Mrs. Calhaem was in the accident which occurred on Tuesday afternoon on Waterloo Bridge, when a motor 'bus swerved and dashed into the rail of the bridge with such force as to loosen the masonry for some yards. Mrs. Calhaem happily escaped serious injury, but has not yet recovered from the shock, her head still feeling very bad.

Mr. Martin Harvey made two records at Birmingham the other day, when he appeared in The Only Way in the presence of the largest audience the Theatre Royal had ever known and to the largest audience ever gathered in the provinces to witness the famous play. Last week, at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, the queues on Friday and Saturday nights were stated by the local authorities to be the longest within their knowledge, and, linked together, it was estimated that the length was almost half a mile. Huge audiences have also witnessed the other plays in Mr. Harvey's répertoire, and the revival of Hamlet is everywhere winning favour on a grand scale. Last night Mr. Harvey was announced to produce at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, a new play in two panels, entitled The Spell. Its story deals with a phase of the legendary lore of remote parts of Ireland, and Miss de Silva has a remarkably strong rôle. Next Monday Mr. Harvey commences a season of three weeks' duration at Dublin Theatre Royal with The Corsican Brothers.

The Irving Memorial Preliminary Committee held a meeting on Thursday, Mr. Cecil Raleigh in the chair, there being also present Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Lawrence Grant, Mr. Lewis Casson, and Mr. Chas. Cruikshanks, the secretary. Various matters were discussed in connection with the proposed memorial, and a definite plan of action was agreed upon, the secretary being instructed to communicate with the Press as soon as the precise details were settled.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier, in gratifying the demand for a speech at the conclusion of The Walls of Jericho at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, on Saturday, embellished his remarks with a characteristic story of Mr. W. S. Gilbert. "Shortly before the production of this play in London," said Mr. Bourchier, "I met that brilliant wit, Mr. W. S. Gilbert, and he said, 'Of course your new play will be a success with such a title as that.' 'How so?' I replied. 'Because, my dear Bourchier,' retorted Mr. Gilbert, 'people will get angry so long as the world lasts, and when that happens nicely brought-up people always try to be as mild as possible in the choice of their expletives. Now what is more customary than for one explosive gentleman to say to another "Oh, go to Jericho!"'

"On Monday night," continued Mr. Bourchier, "I promised to telegraph to Mr. Sutro, the author, asking him to come up to Glasgow and hear for himself how sympathetically his play was received by an audience famous for its intelligent appreciation of all that is worthy of the name of drama. Unfortunately an attack of influenza has kept him away. On behalf of my wife, my company, and myself, I beg to tender you our hearty thanks for the welcome you have given us, and to say how much we look forward to coming back to you next year with a répertoire which will probably include, besides The Walls of Jericho, two works of Shakespeare—The Merchant of Venice and Macbeth.

A notable innovation will be made in this year's Drury-lane pantomime, the hero of which will be impersonated by a member of the sterner sex. Mr. Walter Passmore is the actor selected to follow in the dainty footsteps of so many comely principal boys, and his performance of Sindbad will be awaited with interest. Hindbad will be played by Miss Queenie Leighton, and to Mr. Harry Randall will fall the part of a wife, with which Sindbad, in Mr. Hickory Wood's version, has been blessed. Other principal characters are to be sustained by Mr. Fred Emney and Mr. Harry Fragson, the latter of whom is careful to save from shipwreck a grand piano, with which he will beguile the tedium of a sojourn on a whale's back. Mr. Hickory Wood has followed the original as closely as possible, and it will take all the time allowed between curtain rise and midnight on Boxing Night to do justice to the series of spectacles invented and designed by Mr. Arthur Collins.

Mr. Charles Manners, in pursuit of his plans to provide the public with operatic performances such as they have never witnessed before and at popular prices, is promoting amateur operatic societies in various parts of the country, so that when the Moody-Manners' combination visits the town the amateurs will join the company and sing in the choruses of the works they have studied. A society of this kind has been formed by a conductor in Sheffield, who has been teaching his members Tannhäuser and Lohengrin, and next week the society will perform with the Moody-Manners company. There are sixty-two in the company's chorus, and with sixty-five drawn from the ranks of the amateurs the effect of the 127 fresh young voices in Tannhäuser's Hall of Song can be imagined.

Members of the society pay a local conductor 10s. or £1 for the season, and for this their rehearsals of opera, as well as the piano and vocal scores, are supplied gratis by Mr. Manners. Mr. Manners will also superintend rehearsals at stated times, and will lend costumes free. When the students are sufficiently familiar with their parts they will be allowed to give a performance themselves, and any principal parts that are too great for an amateur to take, such as Tannhäuser, Wolfram, or Lohengrin, will be sustained by members of the professional companies without cost. The proceeds of the performance will go to a fund for the supply of costumes, music, &c.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has been successful in obtaining a music licence for his New Royal Theatre at King's Lynn, thus enabling him to present variety programmes as well as stage plays. Mr. Howard's catering since securing the lease of the theatre at Lynn two years ago has met with much appreciation, things theatrical in that town, both as regards the accommodation in the theatre and the style of entertainment offered, having been practically revolutionised.

Mr. Bannister Howard, who had a record house at his benefit at Ryde on Wednesday, when he played his old part of Cattermotle with the Ryde Amateurs, has leased the theatre to a Mr. Cartwright, who will commence operations with Charley's Aunt next week. Mr. Howard, feeling the results of overwork for the past year or two, is about to rid himself of a few responsibilities, and will begin by disposing of the Castle Theatre, Richmond. He is also open to let one or two of his companies, so that he may be able to devote more time to the Crystal Palace Theatre, which, it is gratifying to note, has turned out a regular gold mine.

A gracious reply from the King has been received by Miss Emily Soldene, who wrote to Lord Knollys asking whether it would be possible for His Majesty to accord his patronage to her farewell matinée at the Palace Theatre on Nov. 13. The Royal reply was as follows:—"Dear Miss Soldene,—I have submitted your letter to the King, and he desires me to say how sorry he is to be unable to return a favourable reply to your request. His Majesty has, however, been obliged to decline numerous other applications of a similar nature, and it would be difficult for him, as I am sure you will see, to make an exception in any particular case.—Believe me, yours very truly, Knollys."

Among the latest additions to the programme are Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and Mr. Edmund Payne, who have consented to sing the popular "Run them in" duet from Genevieve de Brabant, and the balcony duet from the same work will be rendered by Miss Violet Ludlow and Miss Soldene. Miss Camille Clifford will sing her "Gibson Girl" song, and Miss Florence St. John and Miss Maude Branscombe have also volunteered to assist. The cast of Mr. Owen Hall's one-act tragedy, Agnesa's Secret, will include Miss Iris Hoey, Mr. Percival Stevens, Mr. William Devereux, and Mr. Leslie Stiles.

The engravings, water-colour drawings, oil paintings, autograph letters, books, theatrical relics, &c., the property of the late Mr. J. L. Toole, will be sold, by order of the executors, on Thursday next by Messrs. Sotherby, Wilkinson, and Hodge, at their sale rooms in Wellington-street, Strand. There are a large number of portraits of Mr. Toole and his friends, including Sir Henry Irving, Helena Faucit Martin, by F. Joubert, after R. Lehmann, signed presentation photographs of Sims Reeves, Mme. Adelina Patti, Dan Leno, and pen-and-ink sketch of Irving in The Belle's Stratagem. The relics include a pair of ironstone ware wine coolers in the shape of vases, believed to have been at one time the property of Charles Dickens; a small tortoiseshell snuff-box, once the property of Joe Grimaldi, the famous clown; a pair of old-fashioned silver-mounted spectacles in shagreen case, worn by Mr. Toole in the character of Caleb Plummer; a pair of striped silk hose used by Elliston, and another pair worn by William Farren. Amongst the autograph letters is an extremely interesting one from Nelson to Lady Hamilton, beginning "My dearest Friend." The autograph letters of actors include Mrs. Fitzhenry, J. P. Kemble, T. King, John Palmer (his last letter), J. Bannister, Emery, Fawcett, R. W. Elliston, W. Farren, Maria Foote, C. Mathews, W. Barrymore, Miss O'Neil, Mrs. Glover, J. P. Harley, Signor and Mme. Vestris, F. H. Yates, T. P. Cooke, Drinkwater Meadows, C. Kean, J. B. Buckstone, T. Moore, and of course those of many living members of the profession.

Mr. Bourchier will send the Garrick Theatre company to the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on Thursday next to give a flying matinée of The Morals of Marcus. The part of Judith is sustained by Miss Mabel Hackney, who gives an admirable performance. In conjunction with Mr. Bourchier, Mr. Charles Frohman will produce the play in America next year.

The Special Committee of the Actors' Association met on Saturday last, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), and Messrs. C. Hayden Coffin, Lawrence Grant, M. R. Morand, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Questions as to payment for rehearsals and copyright in photographs were discussed, and the secretary received instructions.

The Commissioners' Committee held a meeting on Monday last, when the chair was occupied by Miss Georgina Hamilton, supported by Miss Rose Mathews, Mr. Quinton McPherson, and the secretary (Mr. Charles Cruikshanks). Monthly reports from commissioners were received and read, and questions submitted therein were discussed at considerable length and, where thought advisable, referred to the Council.

The Council of the Actors' Association held its usual weekly meeting on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Miss Kate Phillips, and Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Fewlass Llewellyn, Quinton McPherson, M. R. Morand, Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members, and were requested to advise others upon points submitted. Two cases of alleged insanitation at provincial theatres were under consideration, and the secretary received instructions. The Finance and General Purposes Committee presented their report, and the report of the Special Committee was received. Several questions arising out of the report of the Commissioners' Committee were discussed at considerable length, and the secretary received instructions to deal with matters involved. The Suggestion Book was considered, and an entry made. Four former members were reinstated.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman), Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, J. Cooke Beresford, Lawrence Grant, M. R. Morand, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). After dealing with questions of finance, the secretary received instructions to obtain particulars and details for further insurances.

The regret at the withdrawal of A Winter's Tale is so widespread that Mr. Tree has arranged to give two special matinées of the play on the Wednesday of the next and the following weeks. Miss Ellen Terry will again appear in the character of Hermione, supported by practically the same cast by which it was represented recently at His Majesty's.

Messrs. Otho Stuart, H. A. Hertz, and J. T. Grein have formed a committee for the purpose of arranging a short season of modern and classical plays in London by the famous company of the Court Theatre of the Duke of Meiningen. If his arrangements permit, Mr. Stuart will place the Adelphi Theatre at the disposal of the Meiningen company, otherwise a prominent West-end theatre will be provided. The leading members of the company will appear during the London season, which is announced to begin in April.

Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, the proprietors of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, on Sunday last generously granted the use of their premier Leicester theatre for a sacred concert promoted by the Licensed Victuallers' Association in aid of the endowment of a second cot at the Children's Hospital. The principal vocalist was Mme. Ella Russell, the eminent soprano, who delighted everyone. Mr. Henry Nicholson, the veteran musician and flautist, was another notable performer. The fine orchestra of the Royal Opera House, under Herr Theo. J. Klee, gave their services; and Mr. Henry Dundas, the business-manager for the theatre, who was one of the hon. secretaries, rendered every assistance towards the success achieved.

The Society of Authors crows victory because the Theatre Trust has broken down, writes our Paris correspondent. Is it really a triumph for the Society? That is the question. It will be remembered that this so-called Trust had been founded by Messrs. Deval and Richemond, the managers of the Athénée and the Folies-Dramatiques. Backed by powerful financial assistance, they had secured the leases of the Palais-Royal, the Variétés, and the Bouffes-Parisiens. The Society of Authors thereupon promptly boycotted the said trust, and refused to allow any of the Society's members to supply pieces to the houses owned by the trust. Messrs. Tristan Bernard, Henry Kéroul, and Barré, three well-known authors, did so in spite of the boycott, and were heavily fined, and expelled from the Society.

This high-handed proceeding, worthy of the middle ages, created much sensation in theatrical circles; but the three victims of this oppressive measure pluckily declined to make amends. Although virtually prevented from earning their livelihood as authors, they stood by their guns, and vowed that it was for the Society to make the first move towards a reconciliation. The fact is that, notwithstanding all its bombastic talk, the Society was only too eager not to prolong a struggle with determined men like Deval, Richemond, and the before-mentioned playwrights. So they promptly seized an opportunity of coming to a friendly arrangement. By this arrangement the Society takes over from the Trust the leases of the Palais-Royal, the Bouffes, and the Variétés, and removes the boycott on Messrs. Richemond and Deval. As to the three authors who were excluded, they are to be reinstated with flying colours. It is the end of the great storm in a teapot.

An unfortunate accident occurred in the King's Theatre, Kirkcaldy, on the evening of the 23rd ult., when Rob Roy was being presented. In the duel which takes place between Captain Thornton and Dougal Mr. Millard W. Shevlin (Dougal) had the misfortune to be badly cut on the upper lip by his opponent's sword. The wound was by no means a small one, and although Mr. Shevlin was able to continue in his part, he had to obtain the services of a doctor, who found it necessary to stitch the wound.

A special matinée in aid of the Kingston Victoria Hospital took place at the Royal County Theatre on Saturday afternoon, and attracted a numerous audience. A feature of the programme was the production of a new comedietta, entitled No Secrets from Your Husband, the authorship of which was not disclosed. The parts were sustained by Miss Kate Phillips, Mr. G. Bellamy, Miss Irma Foldi, and Mr. Gatty, and the piece received a very favourable reception. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cann appeared in the comedietta First Aid to the Wounded; Mr. H. Ryan and Mrs. Lionel Tatham represented Justin McCarthy's piece The Highwayman; and Mrs. Shuttleworth and Mrs. E. Symons rendered the duologue A Question of Servants. An interesting series of lantern slides was shown by Mr. J. F. East. At the close of the matinée Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director of the theatre, announced that the matinée had realised the sum of £41 17s. 5d.

Mr. J. A. Campbell is having an excellent autumn season with both his companies The Sin of her Childhood and The Little Breadwinner. His new play, The Old Folks at Home, will be produced at the Junction, Manchester, for a fortnight's run next autumn. The mounting is to be on an elaborate scale.

The recent visit of Mr. Charles Carey's After the Ball company to the Perth Theatre was an evident source of pleasure to the officers of the 42nd Highlanders (the "Black Watch"), stationed in the "fair city," and their nightly patronage throughout the week gave eloquent testimony to the excellence of the show. On the concluding night of the engagement the Earl and Countess of Kinnoull, with a large party from the Castle, attended, and at the final fall of the curtain his lordship, in conversation with the manager, spoke in highly complimentary terms of the play and the players.

The atmospheric conditions under which Mr. Charles Carey's After the Ball company fulfilled a highly successful engagement at Coatbridge last week proved too trying to the health of Mr. Norman Bowyer, who was compelled to relinquish his part for a couple of evenings. Dick Seymour was accordingly taken up by Mr. Harold Wantage, Mr. Bowyer's understudy, whose realistic portraiture of the eccentric dude was worthy of great praise.

Mr. John Wingfield, the manager of the Racine Theatre, Wis., U.S.A., is arranging with Mr. Tom Craven for production in America early in December of the popular dramas Half-mast High and The White Star. Mr. Wingfield hopes to acquire from Mr. Craven the entire American rights of these plays. If they turn out as successful on the other side as the same author's Stowaway, which has achieved a run of twenty years, Mr. Wingfield will indeed be fortunate.

Mr. Alfred M. Loader has been entrusted by Messrs. Louis Decori and Paul Olivier with the task of rendering into English their latest drama, produced at The Gaité, Paris, on Sept. 15. Mr. Loader holds the English and Colonial rights.

Mr. Morton Powell, proprietor and manager of the Queen's Theatre, Farnworth, had his annual benefit on Friday, Oct. 26, when a full house testified its approval of the extended programme, and also showed their appreciation of Mr. Powell's efforts to give them the best obtainable dramatic pieces. Special turns were given by Oliver Conroy, a favourite comedian, and Mr. J. F. Elliston's scratch company in the farce A Great Inventor.

Mr. William H. Brougham will terminate on the 24th inst. his long association with Mr. F. Mouillot's A Message from Mars company. Mr. Brougham has played the part of the Messenger over 700 times.

Great interest is being centred in The Four Just Men, which has been so successfully dramatised by George Warren from the story of Edgar Wallace. The excitement of the play is kept alive throughout, and the dénouement is thrilling and unexpected. Mr. J. Bannister Howard has secured an unusually strong company, including Mr. E. A. Saintsbury in the leading part. Other members of the company are Mr. Gordon Bailey, Mr. Hubert Willis, Mr. H. Elliott Ball, Mr. Legai Robinson, Mr. A. J. Hicks, Mr. E. H. Dobell, &c.; and the ladies' parts are taken by Miss Alys Bass and Miss Dorothea Desmond. Mr. Saintsbury is responsible for the entire porduction, and the company, which opens at the Crystal Palace Theatre on Monday next, is under the direction of Mr. Cecil Barth.

In the death last week of Miss Mary Aukett, the talented young vocalist and harpist, another dark shadow has fallen across the path of Mr. Frank J. Arlton, who, as most of our readers are aware, was a cousin of the late Mr. J. L. Toole and the constant and devoted companion of the veteran actor for many years. Mr. Arlton had been betrothed to Miss Aukett for some time, but in view of Mr. Toole's condition it was agreed between the lovers that their marriage should not take place until, in the fulness of time, the claims of Mr. Arlton's relative should have ceased. Miss Aukett, however, was some time ago attacked by tuberculosis, and within the last few weeks the malady reasserted itself in more virulent form than before, and the patient becoming gradually weaker and weaker, she passed away peacefully on the Tuesday night, practically in her fiancé's arms. Her death took place at her parents' residence at Muswell-hill, to which the family had recently removed from Hove. The funeral took place last Saturday afternoon in Hove Cemetery. We are sure everyone will join with us in extending sincere sympathy to Mr. Arlton in his great affliction.

Mr. Alexander Loftus, whose tour with The New Barmaid has been such a striking success, was the recipient of a very handsome present on Saturday night in the form of a heavily gold-mounted letter-case, presented to him by Sir Thomas R. Dewar, of the celebrated firm of distillers. The case was inscribed "A. L. from T. R. D.."

Mr. Charles Hannan's comedy The Electric Man which is to be produced at the New Royalty Theatre on Saturday, will be preceded by the same author's one-act play The Setting of the Sun, which was originally produced by the late Mr. Wilson Barrett.

The West London Dramatic Studio, founded by Mr. Campbell Rae-Brown some months ago, in St. Peter's-square, W., will give its opening variety and dramatic entertainment on Wednesday, when some of the Studio's most promising pupils will be introduced.

There would appear to be no possible doubt relative to the firm hold already gained by Lady Kinton's Necklace on the public. The play aroused intense enthusiasm everywhere, and people are drawn to the theatre to witness it who never go to a place of entertainment. Over and over again the same faces can be seen in the audience, and the universal expressions of delight must be very satisfactory to Servais Le Roy and his manager, W. Scott Phipp. Although the entertainment is only in its third week, there is a smoothness in the performance which reflects great credit on all concerned. The company is a strong one, prominent among the ladies' names being those of Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner and Miss Marie Ault, while among the gentlemen are Messrs. Stafford Smith (who was for fourteen years with the late Wilson Barrett), Frank Melrose, Willie Atom, Chas. A. James, Henry Danson, Robert A. Innes, John S. Chamberlain, and others supporting that inimitable trio Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco with their incredibly marvellous illusions and mystery. Such a show must occupy a unique position in the public eye, and it is safe to predict a long and successful run.

Mr. Charles Carey's production of After the Ball has been meeting with such extraordinary success in North Britain that he has decided to extend the tour for a few weeks. The cast remains the same as at the starting of the tour, Miss M. Sadie as Nancy, the heiress from the Mile End-road, being as popular as ever, her artistic performance well deserving the appreciation it receives. About Christmas we may look for the promised production in the suburbs of The Pick of the Bunch. Every arrangement is complete for this except the engagement of the star artist for the title-rôle, which is by no means an easy one to fill.

The Tunbridge Wells Opera House has not only been doing "capacity business" with theatrical attractions of late, but an unusual "draw" was provided by the National Association of Women-Workers, who held their conference in this beautiful house last week. Some 1000 ladies were admitted, and for seven hours a-day, or thereabouts, they chatted, lunched, read papers, and had tea together. The whole thing was a great success, and brought many extra visitors to the town. It is satisfactory to learn that the business generally has nearly doubled since Mr. Charles Carey took over the management two years ago.

Tragedy by Bernard Shaw will be presented by Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 20, when The Doctor's Dilemma will be produced. A strong cast will consist of Messrs. William Farren, jun., Eric Lewis, Ben Webster, James Hearn, Michael Sherbrooke, Edmund Gurney, Granville Barker, Norman Page, Trevor Lowe, Lewis Casson, Percy Marmont, and Misses Lillah McCarthy, Clare Greet, and Mary Hamilton. The title has before been used for a story by Miss Hesba Stretton, but she has consented to allow Mr. Shaw to utilise it for his new work.

Miss Lilian Braithwaite, happily recovered from her accident, has returned to the cast of The Amateur Socialist at the Criterion, where Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen will on Monday produce a new one-act play, entitled The Collaborators, adapted by Mr. W. Kingsley Tarpey from a short story by Mrs. Kingsley Tarpey. Miss Braithwaite will play the leading part, that of an authoress, and the cast will also include Miss Minnie Terry, Mr. O. P. Heggie, Miss Henrietta Cowen, Mr. P. H. Clayton Greene, and Mr. F. Percival Stevens.

During a visit to Glasgow of the Moody-Manners Opera Company several of its members took part in the musical service at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. The vicar, in appealing for a silver collection, suggested that one-half of the offertory should be given to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, with the result that that admirable institution has benefited to the extent of £5 10s.

Mr. F. Anstey Guthrie was the recipient on Wednesday night of an interesting souvenir from the members of the Haymarket company on the occasion of the celebration of the 200th performance of his play. The souvenir, which takes the form of a model of the table used in the dinner scene of the play, originated from Mr. Weedon Grossmith, under whose supervision the Goldsmiths and Silversmiths Co., Ltd., of Regent-street, have produced a perfect reproduction. The tablecloth is made of solid silver, with its natural folds and creases, and has the facsimiles of the signatures of all the members of the company and those connected with the management of the theatre engraved upon it. The pedestal and legs of the table are made of mahogany, with solid silver claws and castors.

"Amasis" celebrates its hundredth performance on Friday, crowded houses being still drawn to the New Theatre by the popular comic opera. Mr. Louis Calvert has secured for the occasion the services of Miss Hart-Dyke, the well-known dancer, who on the hundredth night will take her place in the cast.

A new play, in which Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will appear, is to be the attraction of a matinée at the Garrick Theatre early this month. The performance, which is under distinguished patronage, is in aid of the Soldier and Sailor Help Society (Work Room Branch).

Miss Sophie Harriss is having such a triumphal progress with The Prince of Pilsen that she has been obliged to return a contract at a tempting salary for the part of Prince in Cinderella. The tour of the popular musical comedy will run right through the pantomime period and probably long after.

Mr. Gus Oxley has been specially engaged to play M. Fred Emney's part in See-See at the Prince of Wales' Theatre. The success achieved by the popular musical play bids fair to continue indefinitely, and Mr. Oxley's appointment will give him invaluable opportunities of adding to his well-earned laurels.

Flying matinées of London successes at the Crystal Palace will be resumed on Thursday, when Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen's company from the Criterion Theatre will appear in The Amateur Socialist. The remarkable play by Mr. W. Kingsley Tarpey is sure to attract playgoers for miles around Sydenham, the residents of which are steadily appreciating the value of Mr. Bannister Howard's enterprise among them.

Miss Tita Brand has just returned from Brussels, where she made a great success, reciting scenes from Shakespeare, the audience rising from their seats and giving her an ovation. Miss Marie Brema's Shakespearian songs were also much appreciated. Miss Brand, after her recitation, had several offers for re-engagements.

Mr. Norman V. Norman had pleasing evidence of having established a novel record in Aldershot last week. During his appearances as David Garrick, one of the officers stationed in the garrison town in purchasing tickets said that that was the sixty-second time he had seen Mr. Norman play the part, and altogether he had seen Mr. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson act in various pieces for over two hundred times.

Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield produced for copyright purposes, at the Osborne Theatre, Manchester, on Friday, their new play, in four acts, entitled The Tyrant. The piece is founded on one of Victor Hugo's masterpieces, and is from the joint pens of Mr. Somerfield and Mr. Frederic Ludovic. Bookings for this latest venture are already excellent.

"Beryl," a domestic play in three acts, by L. M. Baker, was copyrighted by Miss Lillian Beszant's company at the Theatre Royal, Lincoln, on Wednesday.

Messrs. Robinson and Fisher will sell by auction at Willis's Rooms, King-street, on Thursday, the 15th inst., the old chased plate, old Sheffield plated articles, jewellery, including the gold Abert chain, pendant-locket, sovereign-purse, and matchbox worn by Sir Henry Irving at the time of his death, and many other interesting items, the property of the late Mr. J. L. Toole. The curious relics include a mantelpiece and an Elizabethan stove from Mrs. Siddons' house in Upper Baker-street.

Saturday, Dec. 8, will witness the last performance for the time being of The Dairymaids at the Apollo, consequent upon the engagement of several of the leading artists for pantomime, and on the following Monday the theatre will offer accommodation to Peter's Mother, whose retirement from Wyndham's makes room in turn for Toddles, with which Mr. Cyril Maude will re-open on Dec. 12. Mr. Maude's secession from the Duke of York's paves the way for Peter Pan, and the withdrawal next month of See See from the Prince of Wales' in view of the provincial tour will allow of the début there on the 12th prox. of the musical version of The Vicar of Wakefield.

The Waldorf will reopen on Monday, the 26th inst., not with The Social Whirl, as first intended, but with a four-act play named Julie Bon-Bon, by Miss Clara Lipman, which has had a pronounced success in America. It will be presented in London by a company of American artists, with Mr. Louis Mann, a comedian very popular in the States, and the authoress herself at the head.

The new Belle of Mayfair will be Miss Billie Burke, whose talents in musical comedy have already received such favourable recognition. She will take up her duties during next month, when Miss Phyllis Dare leaves the Vaudeville in order to fulfil a pantomime engagement long since signed and sealed.

For the first time since its withdrawal from the Criterion The Little Stranger will be played at the Camden Theatre next week. The company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Steuart, includes the clever boy-actor, Master Edward Garratt, in his original part; also Miss Mary Allestree, Miss Daisy Atherton, Miss Louie Tinsley, Mr. Athol Forde, Mr. Hubert Druce, Mr. George E. Bellamy, Mr. Charles Goold, and Mr. Steuart. All the Criterion scenery and effects will be used, and the comedy has been rehearsed by Mr. Athol Stewart. In front of The Little Stranger will be produced a new one-act comedy by Barton White, called The Second Mrs. Grundy, in which the two characters will be played by Miss Daisy Atherton and Mr. Hubert Druce. The scene of the little piece, which is based on a somewhat novel idea, is laid in the interior of a hut on the Welsh mountains.

"A Simple Sweep," the "musical absurdetta" by the Rev. Father Downes, which is to figure in an entertainment at the Scala Theatre on Friday and Saturday next in aid of the Little Sisters of the Poor, was first produced in Leeds twenty-seven years ago, and was afterwards staged in London as a curtain-raiser preceding The Silver King. The second composition, The Minstrel, a miniature grand opera, the libretto of which is by Mr. J. Arthur Bleackley, will be produced for the first time in London. A duologue, also from the pen of Mr. Bleackley, under whose direction the performance will be given, will have a place in the programme.

A team of actors, captained by Mr. Thalberg Corbett, were opposed in a golf match on Monday by the Home Park Club at the links in the vicinity, and lost by one point. The scores were equal in the singles, each side scoring three, but in the foursomes the local team got the better of their opponents by one point, the totals being—Home Park, 5; Mr. Corbett's team, 4. The theatrical side consisted of Messrs. Herbert Ross, Dawson Millward, G. du Maurier, Thalberg Corbett, Norman Salmond, and A. Whittaker.

Mr. G. Morton-Williams, who shortly concludes his fourth tour as heavy lead with Mr. Frank Bertram's The Convict's Daughter company, has been re-engaged by Mr. A. Hamilton Warden to play his original part in A Woman's Past.

Mr. Townsend Whitling, the stage-manager for the phenomenally successful tour of The Freedom of Suzanne with Miss Mabel Love, is, together with his wife, Miss Violet Ley, now in his third year under the Hutchison management.

Mr. Frank Bertram's company with The Breed of the Treshams, celebrated at the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, last Thursday afternoon, its 250th performance on tour. Mr. Martin Harvey, who was playing at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, last week, could not himself be present at the celebration, but the majority of his company were.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's lecture on "The Corner-Stones of Modern Drama" at Harvard University on Wednesday afternoon contained the following eloquent tribute to Ibsen's genius:—"They who have rooted themselves at ease in the rank stubble of modern commercialism shudder at him, as a weed at the ploughshare, as a cancer at the knife. For two-thirds of human kind he has only a command of self-contempt and a sentence of despair and destruction. But the strong he fortifies; the steadfast he establishes. He is a scourge to slaves, but for them that are free he enlarges the bounds of freedom. They honour him who honour the truth, and they welcome him who welcome the growl of the thunder and the dart of the lightning rather than stagnancy and miasma, and the fitful shimmer that dances round corruption."

Mr. Jones has undergone the process of Conversion since 1893, the time of The Tempter, when he wrote of the "lobworm-symbolic" play, protested against the temple of our national English drama becoming the very lobby and ante-room to a Scandinavian back-parlour, and begged his audience at the Haymarket, in a rhymed prologue, to

Shun the crude present with vain problems rife,
Nor join the bleak Norwegian's barren quest
For deathless beauty's self and holy zest
Of rapturous martyrdom, in some base strife
Of petty dullards, soused in native filth.

The publishing world does not supply us with a strictly theatrical publication weekly, but a "book of the week" has come to hand in Mr. W. H. Pennington's "Sea, Camp, and Stage," which is published by the enterprising firm of Arrowsmith. In the remembrance of Mr. Pennington's fame as a reciter and one of the "Six Hundred," we are apt to overlook his experience as an actor, of which, in this volume he gives some amusing reminiscences, one of which gives a good idea of Phelps's dignity in the most trying circumstances:—

"Some may remember a reliable old actor named J. B. Johnstone, who was something of a dramatic author. He was usually singled out by Mr. Phelps for parts of the kind which used to be designated as 'feeders.' . . . Upon one occasion, the play being The Merchant of Venice, the ancient J. B. J. was as usual the Tubal, and the piece concluding with the final exit of Shylock, the actors and supernumeraries were making for their respective dressing-rooms, for the purpose of assuming their private costumes and hastening from the theatre. All of us dressed in rooms above Mr. Phelps, whose apartment was just up one flight of stairs, and as a matter of respect everyone made way for him. Shylock and Tubal are similarly attired, and the lights upon the staircases not being very brilliant, any difference in the make-up of the two Jews may not have been discernible.

"I cannot say exactly how it occurred, but some jocular friend of J. B. Johnstone, mistaking Mr. Phelps for the former, struck the dignified tragedian upon the lower part of his back, and was horrified to discover his mistake as the great actor, speechless with rage at the indignity, turned upon him. 'Oh, sir, I beg your pardon. I thought you were old J. B. Johnstone!' 'No apology, sir; you're a vulgar brute in any case!' responded the scarcely appeased Mr. Phelps. The practical joker must have felt very small."

When Mr. Pennington was playing Hamlet at the Sadler's Wells Theatre in 1870, he attracted the attention of Mr. Gladstone, upon whom he afterwards waited at 11, Carlton House-terrace, where, later on, Pennington, at Mr. Gladstone's request, gave a recital under distinguished patronage. When the great statesman attended a performance of Ingomar at a matinée of the Gaiety Theatre in 1883, an odd incident took place.

"A great many persons awaited the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, and they had scarcely alighted from their carriage before a gentleman rushed forward in a state of great excitement, and ere the Premier could make any show of resistance he was seized by both hands, his detainer repeating several times and with great unction, 'Oh, you grand old man!! You GRAND old man!!!' Fred Charles, who was in front of the theatre, and waiting to show attention to the distinguished visitors, hastened to the rescue and released the evidently astonished statesman, who inquired of Fred, 'Who is the gentleman?' 'Mr. Toole's brother, sir—Mr. Frank Toole,' replied my representative, and expressed the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone had suffered no inconvenience from the unexpected greeting. 'Oh, not at all, not at all,' pleasantly replied the Premier."

Sir Frederick Bridge, says the Evening Standard, found recently a musical setting of Hamlet's soliloquy, "To be or not to be," and it was sung for the first time for generations at a lecture he gave on "Shakespeare and Music" at Hove. The composition was written, it is thought, a few years after the poet's death. The idea of putting celebrated Shakespearean speeches to music is a quaint one, and may be adopted by contemporaries. Perhaps we may see modern musical renderings of the "Mercy" speech from The Merchant of Venice, Othello's address to the Senate, and the "Dagger" soliloquy from Macbeth.

So many unnecessary remarks have been made in America about the assurance of Mr. H. B. Irving in venturing to undertake his father's parts in The Lyons Mail and Charles I., that he has been compelled to make it known that their early reproduction is one of the requirements of Sir Henry's will. According to that testament, it is necessary to keep the plays in active répertoire to ensure a regular income from them; the further stipulation being made that if this is not done the dramas shall be put up for sale at public auction. The plays must be acted in any case; and no better successor to the late Sir Henry could be found than his gifted son to act them, especially now that the result has justified the venture in the continuation of the Irving traditions.

Mr. Irving's strong facial resemblance to his father in features must assist him in realising the "Martyr King" personally. In Mr. Bram Stoker's "Reminiscences of Henry Irving" he says:—

"One of the most notable things of Irving's Charles I. was his extraordinary reproduction of Van Dyck's pictures. The part in its scenic aspect might have been called Van Dyck in action. Each costume was an exact reproduction from one of the well-known paintings, and the reproduction of Charles's face was a marvel. In this particular case he had a fine model, for Van Dyck painted the King in almost every possible way of dignity. To aid him in his work Edwin Long made for him a tryptich of Van Dyck heads, and this used to rest before him on his dressing-table on those nights when he played Charles. Irving was a painter of no mean degree with regard to his 'make-up' of parts. He spared no pains on the work and on nights when he played parts requiring careful preparations such as Charles I, Shylock, Louis XI., Gregory Brewster (in Waterloo), King Lear, Richelieu, and some few others he always came to his dressing-room nearly an hour earlier than at other times."

The Free Lance for this week contains a letter, written in 1875 by Mr. F. L. Toole, in which he describes a consultation which took place between himself, Dickens, and Mark Lemon on a walk from Walworth to the Elephant and Castle, as to whether J. L. Toole should go on the stage. The consultation settled Toole's fate. He had always refused to decide it for himself.

No period could be better chosen for a comedy-opera than that of the Directory. It was the time when the natural "dressiness" of the French nation, forcibly repressed under the Terror, blossomed out with unbridled freedom; when "victim balls" were attended only by those who had lost a relative by the guillotine, and when glass tears adorned the dresses of gay mourners; when blond perruques were supposed to be made of the hair of the dead, and the Beauharnais and the Cabarus resolved to attire themselves "like the free peoples of antiquity"—that is, in sandals and an "airy nothing," with a waist under the arms. There is a half-seriousness about the epoch that lends itself easily to pretty playfulness; and yet there is something dramatic about it, too—a kind of after-taste of the immense "action" of the Terror.

To whoever belongs the credit of the idea of using Sardou's Les Merveilleuses for a libretto, the thought was essentially a "happy" one. With such a skilled librettist as Mr. Basil Hood, and such a dainty lyricist as Mr. Adrian Ross, the foundation of the work was assured; but it was a most fortunate thing that Mr. Edwardes was able to secure so bright and sparkling a composer as Dr. Hugo Felix, of Vienna. He is not only a thoroughly well-trained musician; he has sufficient versatility to turn his pen into a popular channel, as well as to produce concerted pieces, well written and ably orchestrated. The score of Les Merveilleuses raises the work above the ordinary level of comic opera, and makes it approach opéra comique. As for Mr. Ross's lyrics, they are worth reading for their well-turned aptness alone; and Mr. Basil Hood's dialogue is smart, crisp, and vivacious.

The dresses and scenery, which form such an important part of every Edwardesian production, are, in The Merveilleuses, exquisitely, bewitchingly beautiful. Whether it be Mr. Joseph Harker's café scene for the first act, or his Luxembourg fête for the third; or Mr. Hawes Craven's artistic and sumptuous stock market and reception room sets, the feast of the eye is richly and liberally supplied; and Wilhelm has designed some of the loveliest dresses ever limned by his skilful brush. The Merveilleuses, indeed, is a delightful treat both for eye and ear. Everyone admired it, and everyone enjoyed it; and Mr. Edwardes has undoubtedly scored another triumph.

The plot is simple, but interesting. Dorlis, an aristocratic emigrant, returns to Paris, at the risk of his life, to seek his wife Illyrine, whom he left to fight on the side of the Royalists. She, believing he has deserted her, has obtained a divorce from him. He finds her on the eve of her marriage with Barras's secretary, St. Amour. Dorlis obtains an interview with Illyrine in her bedroom, and explains his absence. St. Amour, by an alarm of fire, brings out the concealed Royalist, who is arrested. By the ingenious device of an "incroyable" named Lagorille St. Amour is persuaded that he alone is ignorant of a mysterious plot against the Government; and he is so frightened that he promises to obtain Dorlis's pardon, and to restore Illyrine to his arms.

Owing to the sudden illness of Mr. George Graves, the parts of St. Amour and Tournesol were re-cast, being undertaken by Mr. W. H. Berry and Mr. Fred Emney at very short notice. Every excuse must therefore be made for Mr. Berry, who appeared somewhat nervous during the earlier part of the evening, but improved rapidly as he went on. We can foresee very plainly the richness of humour with which Mr. Berry will represent the cowardly St. Amour when he is quite at home in the character. Mr. Emney is evidently a very quick study, for as Tournesol, the police agent of Carnot, he could not have been better. He is a master of dry humour; and his scenes with the rival police agent, represented by Mr. Fred Kaye, whose humour is like the good wine which needs no bush, sent the audience into irrepressible delight. Mr. W. Louis Bradfield has seldom if ever done anything quite so good as his Lagorille. Mr. Bradfield is the possessor of what is known as an "attractive personality," which is sometimes more of a drawback than a blessing to its possessor, as it means that effect and applause can be obtained with the exercise of very little effort. But Mr. Bradfield is not content to rely upon his personality; his Lagorille is good work, and shows careful study. His affectations, his mannerisms, his elegance of diction and of manner present a first-rate picture of a Dandy of the Directoire period. Mr. Willie Warde plays the small part of Des Gouttières, secretary to the Directors, and his "get-up" and "business" are, as usual, excellent. Mr. Scott Russell is a most imposing head waiter; and Mr. V. O'Connor and Mr. Gordon Cleather as the two Dandies, Melval and Valcourt, play easily and naturally. Mr. A. J. Evelyn is a capable Ragot; and Mr. N. Greene as Picard, a servant, and Mr. J. Boddy as an officer, do all that can be done with small parts. Miss Evie Greene, as Lodoiska, has returned to the London stage after too long an absence. We cannot spare Miss Greene—her beauty, her singing, her dramatic powers are too rare to be missed. As Lodoiska Miss Greene looked and acted marvellously well. Her song, "Ring-a'-ring o' roses," one of the gems of the piece, was applauded to the echo. Mlle. Mariette Sully made Pervenche a charmingly piquante little personage, and used a light voice with striking tact and skill. Miss Denise Orme made the sweetest Illyrine imaginable; her songs were exceedingly pretty, noticeably "So sorry," which she sang very daintily, and her duet with that fine singer Mr. Robert Evett was received enthusiastically. Miss Elizabeth Firth was a melodious Liane; and Miss M. Perceval gave a charmingly quaint dance in the third act. Mr. Robert Evett as Dorlis won instant favour. He was in splendid voice, rich and mellow; and his songs and duets filled his hearers with deep content. Mr. Evett remains true to the old Savoy traditions, and the result is that in singing and acting he gives us of the very best. The Merveilleuses were agreeably represented by Miss N. Sevening, Miss D. Dunbar, Miss M. Erskine, Miss Eleanor Souray, and Miss E. Barker. Every playgoer of taste and intelligence owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. George Edwardes for his production of Les Merveilleuses. It is everything that a comedy-opera should be—bright, picturesque, lightly and playfully interesting, and of real musical merit. In Les Merveilleuses, as in The Little Michus, we have a piece which appeals to the eye, the ear, and the intelligence.

THE WILLIAM MORGAN JUBILEE CELEBRATION.

In August last Mr. William Morgan, managing-director of the Scarborough Aquarium, entered upon his fiftieth year of service as a public caterer, and the celebration by a banquet and testimonial at Scarborough was fixed for Friday evening.

In his long and distinguished career as a provider of entertainment Mr. Morgan has done much to advance the cause of healthy popular amusement. He has been a noted pioneer in the development of dramatic and musical enterprise, and has achieved a success that it has been given to few to equal. Mr. Morgan was the first to introduce complete London companies into the provinces, the first to give concerts by the greatest artists at popular prices, and the first to open all-day entertainments for a covering sixpenny admission.

In Bradford, Blackpool, Scarborough, Morecambe, Preston, Bridlington, and elsewhere Mr. Morgan's active, varied, and extensive managerial efforts have been greatly appreciated. In Scarborough he has enjoyed the distinction of filling the position of mayor for three successive years.

Such a long and honourable career as this, it was felt by Mr. Morgan's host of friends and admirers, was worthy of some special recognition, and the hearty co-operation of many well-known gentlemen in promoting a testimonial was obtained.

The following influential committee has been formed consisting of the following gentlemen:—The Right Hon. the Earl of Londesborough, Sir George Sitwell, Bart., and Messrs. Lea

MR. WILLIAM MORGAN.

Priestley Edwards, J.P., George Lord Beeforth, J.P., Alderman E. H. Gawne, J.P., Councillor Ascough, George Padley, Francis Goodricke, C. E. Bradley, Alderman J. Grime, J. H. Huddlestone, Thomas Sergensen, Alderman Fish, G. H. Harrop, Ralph Rushton, John C. Smith, Alderman D. Wade, J.P., John Hart, T. C. Hope, Charles Lund, Frank Johnson, W. H. Clough, Edward Terry, James Burnley, E. Schutt, and Dr. Handcock; hon. treasurer, Mr. Wm. Sayner, York City and County Bank, Scarborough; hon. secretary, Alderman V. Fowler, J.P., Huntriss Hall, Scarborough; hon. treasurer for London, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, London, W.C.

The following letter from Mr. Edward Terry appeared in The Era of Oct. 20:—

Sir,—"Lest they forget," will you kindly permit me, through the medium of your columns, to call the attention of the many friends of Mr. William Morgan to the forthcoming celebration at Scarborough, when, as a recognition of fifty years of management, he will be entertained at a banquet, over which the Earl of Londesborough will preside, and be presented with a testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the dramatic and musical professions and other friends?

Mr. Morgan, as manager of the early Bradford theatres and proprietor of the Aquarium at Scarborough, of which city he has twice served the office of Mayor, is so well esteemed that I feel sure his friends only need this gentle reminder to make them anxious to participate in this interesting celebration. Mr. Valentine Fowler, of Scarborough, as hon. secretary, will be pleased to give all further particulars.—Yours faithfully, EDWARD TERRY.

T.R.H. THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES and suite witnessed the performance of Toddles at the Duke of York's Theatre on Saturday evening.

"THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO," by David Belasco and Richard Walton Tully, was produced on Wednesday, for copyright purposes, at the Elephant and Castle Theatre.

"THE BEAUTY SHOP," a new musical comedy, by W. H. Kirby, with lyrics by Douglas B. Watson and music by George Ess, will be produced by Mr. Kirby at Kilmarnock on Monday, Nov. 12. The cast includes Mesdames Molly Hackett, Cordelia Knight, Millie Gordon, Norah Melton, and M. Bankes, and Messrs. Kirby, E. H. Bertram, Douglas B. Watson, J. Templar Ellis, and R. H. Hamber.

THACKERAY AT HIS MAJESTY'S.

British journalism has rightly earned the reputation of being unprejudiced, and therefore the virulent attack by a certain newspaper on Mr. Beerbohm Tree's realisation of Colonel Newcome—or, rather, on what the precious writer thought most likely to be the chief characteristics of that realisation—before any opportunity of judging orally and ocularly had presented itself, can only be attributed to the ever-growing hysteria that is now considered the chief merit of the modern half-penny daily. The loud cheers and the enthusiastic calls of the first-nighters on the evening of the production of Mr. Michael Morton's adaptation of Thackeray's famous novel must have been the sweetest music in the ears of the actor-manager—must have compensated him for much anxious thought and conscientious study—must have convinced him that he was entirely right in adding to his gallery of theatrical portraits a creation of Thackeray as well as of Dickens. The petty world of sordidness, of greed, of suave cunning, of rampant insincerity has a ready sneer for the soldier and gentleman, who will not price his honour or integrity. "Don Quixote in a Victorian environment! Absurd!" say they. But the higher and better world feels that it is good to see, to know, on the stage the noble gentleman that Thackeray gave us. Mr. Tree presents him in his habit as he lived, and with such a wonderful exposition of the art of the actor that world is content. It was evident on Monday evening, when the run of Colonel Newcome was resumed at His Majesty's before a large audience, that Mr. Tree, in the confidence of complete triumph, played with a surer touch, and he again conquered heart and head by an embodiment that was both beautiful and soul-stirring.

Since the first night—May 29—several alterations have been made in the cast. Mr. Basil Gill fortunately remains to repeat his manly and high-souled impersonation of Clive Newcome, the chief point of the impersonation being the deep affection of the younger Newcome for his elder. He is especially fine in the scene with Lord Farintosh.

Mr. Norman Forbes, with perfect art, presents a portrait of Sir Barnes that is absolutely inspiring in its colossal self-sufficiency, unadulterated snobbishness, and rancorous enmity. Such a mean-spirited wretch might easily be exaggerated, but Mr. Forbes is much too clever an actor to over-accentuate a syllable, and the truth of his portrait is strikingly clear.

Mr. Lyn Harding has added no little to the significance and completeness of his conception of Fred Bayham, and he plays the part of that good-hearted and good-humoured personage in a way that is entirely satisfactory to the lovers of Thackeray.

Mr. Sidney Brough's sketch of Lord Farintosh has gained in firmness of outline, and it would indeed be difficult to find an actor who so completely realises the peculiarities of the rich and full-blooded booby of the 'thirties.

Mr. Charles Quartermaine submits a capital portrait of Arthur Pendennis; Mr. J. Fisher White's James Binney is admirable in its finish; Mr. S. Yates Southgate is quite satisfactory as Lord Kew; and Mr. G. W. Anson is an acquisition to the cast as Sir Thomas de Boots. Mr. W. H. Day's Martin stands out as a perfect conception of the faithful and confidential old servitor—trusted and beloved; and smaller parts have adequate representatives in Messrs. Egerton Hine, Robert Atkins, David Powell, Clive Currie, Reginald Owen, Edward Ouston, and Master Browne, the acting of the last-mentioned four adding much to the interest of the last scene in Greyfriars.

Miss Constance Collier now takes the place of Miss Lilian Braithwaite as Ethel Newcome, and plays the tender-hearted girl with a delicate grace and a gentleness that would be hard to equal. The curls and confections of the period greatly set off the beauty of the actress, who now adds another interesting portrait to her gallery of heroines of the Victorian novel.

Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe) suggests naturally and quite clearly the perfect breeding and hauteur of Lady Kew, to whose worldliness and callousness she gives perfect expression. Distinction, too, marks every inflexion of her voice, and it is an immense advantage to the cast that so distinguished and so experienced an actress should have been secured for the part.

Mrs. Percival, who was a little nervous on Monday, suggests rather than realises the sweetness and charm of the nature of Madame de Florac—a part that was so beautifully played by Miss Marion Terry. Miss Annie Schletter, who succeeds Mrs. Tree in the rôle of Mrs. Mackenzie, plays the difficult part with a great deal of intelligence, being decidedly humorous in the mincing coquetry and hysteria just previous to the wedding. Mrs. E. H. Brooke's Sally Mason once again proves the value of a good actress in a small part. There is meaning in every line and every gesture, and London playgoers always recognise heartily such perfection of detail as is shown by this experienced artist, who had a hearty greeting on Monday. Miss Mary Sumner is light in her touch and sunny in her sketch of Rosey Mackenzie; and Misses Alice Gordon, Cicely Stuckey, and Hilda Moore aid the completeness of the representation by their careful work in the parts of Lady Fareham, Maria, and the nurse at Greyfriars.

OPERATIC CONCERT IN COSTUME.

A NOVEL departure was made at the concert given at the Queen's Small Hall on Wednesday night by M. and Madame Cokkinis, three operatic examples being given in costume. M. and Madame Cokkinis were assisted by Miss Millicent Bradfield (violin), Mr. T. Methodios (flute), Mr. Geo. W. Hodgson (baritone), and Signor Tito Mattei. Besides the operatic examples given, Mr. Geo. W. Hodgson gave a spirited rendering of the popular prologue to Pagliacci, and M. Jean Cokkinis a Romance from the opera Semelli, by Lambelet. Madame Stella Cokkinis, who has a pure soprano voice of great compass, somewhat marred, however, by a persistent tremolo, was first heard in Mattei's song "Dear Heart," in which she had the advantage of being accompanied by the composer. A neatly executed flute solo by Mr. T. Methodios was followed by a pianoforte solo of Signor Tito Mattei, who played "Tranquillité and L'Entrainement," one of his delightful valses, which, needless to say, was heartily encored. The first part of the programme concluded with a grand scene from the national Greek opera Marco Botzaris, by P. Carreni, in picturesque Greek costumes. From this opera, which is faintly reminiscent of Donizetti, a song, "Nina Nana," was sung by Madame Stella Cokkinis, with violin obbligato by Miss Millicent Bradfield; also a pleasing trio, in which M. and Madame Cokkinis and Mr. Geo. Hodgson took part, and so greatly pleased that a encore was demanded. The final air given was the Last Song of Marco Botzaris, sung by M. Jean Cokkinis. In the second part of the programme Madame Stella Cokkinis was set down for the Mad Scene (in costume) from Lucia, with flute obbligato by M. Methodios. There were also to be given a scene and duet from Faust (also in costume) by M. Jean Cokkinis and Mr. Hodgson, and trio, grand scene, and finale, in which M. and Madame Cokkinis and Mr. Hodgson appeared. The picturesque Greek and other costumes were by Mr. C. Fox, of Covent Garden. Other vocal and instrumental pieces were included in the concert, and M. and Madame Cokkinis were warmly greeted by the large audience.

A new curtain-raiser, entitled The Other Heir, by Ernest H. G. Cox, will be produced at the Opera House, Blackpool, on Monday.

REVIVAL AT THE COURT.

Mr. Bernard Shaw's comedy, Man and Superman, was revived at the Court Theatre on Monday evening, when a crowded audience evidently enjoyed to the utmost the author's witty dialogue and remarkably clever character studies. The topsy-turvey philosophy of John Tanner may be described as a piquant sauce to an already appetising dish that is exactly to the taste of a constantly increasing section of playgoers. And in none of his comedies has Mr. Bernard Shaw drawn more amusing characters; while the brilliancy of the dialogue strikes one even more forcibly than it did on first witnessing the piece. The revival of Man and Superman is beyond question a wise stroke of managerial policy.

A few changes in the cast are, of course, inevitable, and, indeed, give an additional interest to the revival. In the part of Roebuck Ramsden, originally played by Mr. Charles Goodhart, Mr. James Hearn can be heartily congratulated on his excellent delineation of the highly respectable middle-class Englishman who is so horrified at the idea of being associated with a man holding such unorthodox views as does John Tanner. Indignation almost chokes the old gentleman's utterance when John acts as counsel for the defence in the case of Violet Robinson; and Mr. Hearn quite succeeds in giving a natural, life-like embodiment. Mr. Edmund Gurney now appears as Mr. Malone, a part originally acted by Mr. J. D. Beveridge; and makes excellent use of his opportunities, more especially shining in the exceptionally brilliant comedy scene with his son's wife in the last act. Miss Sarah Brooke was the original Violet, who is now represented by Miss Grace Lane. This charming young actress at once made a favourable impression, scoring in the very first scene, where Violet turns the tables upon her traducers with a vengeance; even her champion, John Tanner, being by no means exempt from her bitter verbal attack. The only other change in the cast is the substitution of Miss Mary Hamilton for Miss Hazel Thompson as Mr. Ramsden's smart parlourmaid. Mr. Granville Barker's John Tanner retains all those admirable qualities which distinguished the impersonation from the first; and it remains a clear, incisive character-study that merits the highest commendation. Mr. Barker has some exceptionally long speeches to deliver, but rattles them off in such a manner as to give the lines their full value; and some of the most telling things in the comedy are placed in John Tanner's mouth. Mr. Lewis Casson, as the sentimental and poetic lover, Octavius Robinson, has not an easy part to play, but he deals cleverly with obvious difficulties, and comes out triumphant. Henry Straker, Tanner's chauffeur, who does not make his appearance until the second act, is perhaps the most amusing character in the play; and happily Mr. Edmund Gwenn is at hand to resume the part. In his hands 'Enery is quite safe, and again has a large share in providing a delightful evening's entertainment. Mr. Hubert Harben is also good as the young American, Hector Malone, who secretly marries Violet. Miss Lillah McCarthy, of course, resumes the rôle of Ann Whitefield, and again charms everybody by a performance that bears unmistakable witness to her high ability as an actress and her keen appreciation of character as drawn by a clever playwright. In every scene in which she appears Miss McCarthy strengthens in no small degree the interest of the comedy, and easily scores a complete triumph. Miss Florence Haydon's sketch of the doleful widow, Mrs. Whitefield, is delightful in a quiet, unobtrusive way; and the part of the sour spinster, Miss Ramsden, exactly suits Miss Agnes Thomas. Throughout a merry evening the success of the revival was never for a moment in doubt.

AN ANCIENT MASQUE.

Dekker and Ford's masque, The Sun's Darling, was presented on Wednesday evening at the Queen's Gate Hall by the English Drama Society. The members of this coterie of lovers of the stage are no doubt animated by much enthusiasm, but seemingly lack the ability to realise the spirit, the wit, and the beauty of the imagery in this ancient classic. According to the judgment of Mr. Algernon Swinburne, himself a supreme master of the musical effect of verse, the extant text of the masque may be regarded as a recast by Ford of an earlier masque by Dekker—probably his last play of Phaeton. The probable date of the original production of The Sun's Darling was 1623-24, and some authorities assert that Dekker furnished a sketch for the Rose Theatre, and that when, owing to the growing taste of the time, it became necessary to recast and improve the original plot, Ford was called in to assist in making the additions and alterations. The morality of the masque is sound, and the lesson it teaches is felicitous both in diction and in sentiment. Raybright, the son and darling of Phœbus, passes through the four seasons of the year which allegorises the stages of life, and the moral is that, instead of following from first to last the dictates of Folly and Humour, ever seeking for something new, man should endeavour to harmonise his life with the powers granted him by Heaven, and while reverencing Nature, honour the Power that makes him more enduring than her.

"Dekker," Dr. A. W. Ward tells us, "endeavoured to take human nature as he found it, and to reproduce his impressions and tell his truths with simple directness rather than seek for artificial effects by attempting flights beyond his range." The text was blurred by the cast on Wednesday, the elocution being very faulty. Mr. Nugent Monck, who "produced," was quite in the Touchstone mood as Folly; Miss Aimée Lowther had some good moments as Raybright; Mr. Arthur Goodsall, who was responsible for a stage wait, did not lack dignity in his delineation of Phœbus; Miss Katherine Stuart's gestures and arm play as Lady Humour were most amateurish; there was some merit in the Autumn of Mr. Percy Goodyer and the Winter of Mr. E. Playford; and Mrs. Bishop's performance of Pomona possessed no little grace and charm. Miss Mary Large's voice is sweet and well cultured, but the pianoforte accompaniment to the songs of Delight was not what it should have been.

"THE GIRL FROM BIARRITZ."

A new Comedietta, in One Act, by Mr. Leonard Robson, produced at Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, on Monday, Oct. 29.

Charles Flutter ..... MR. LEONARD ROBSON
Anthony Crieff ..... MR. A. E. GREENAWAY
Angela Cross ..... MISS LORNA LAWRENCE

This new one-act play was produced by Mr. A. H. Canby. The plot is simple, but amusing. Charles Flutter, an explorer, is left a large fortune under the will of a deceased uncle on condition that he marries within a specified number of hours, otherwise the money was to go to a Home for Lost Dogs. Necessarily the legatee finds it by no means easy to fulfil the condition on which the fortune depends; but, fortunately, just in time a young lady from Biarritz, with whom Flutter had previously been enamoured, appears on the scene, and all ends happily. The playlet is full of intensely amusing situations, but it also owes much of its unequivocal success to the breezy acting of the author as Mr. Charles Flutter; Mr. A. E. Greenaway's Anthony Crieff (a solicitor) is also highly successful; and Miss Lorna Lawrence makes a charming appearance as Angela Cross—the girl.

MISS ROSE LEMOINE, who has just returned from South Africa, has been engaged to open at Manchester at Christmas in Peter Pan.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA—1850-1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

CHAT WITH MISS MILLIE PAYNE.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Once upon a time—and that time only about a year ago—a grand festival was held in a gilded palace, in a city called Camberwell. And this grand festival was given in honour of a personage who bore the name of a very popular member of the feathered tribe. Of course, as was only to be expected, great folk came from near and far on this particular night to pay tribute to the King in his court. Some went merely to drink, eat, and be merry; others to see the fine sights and the fine people; others still to display their talents in divers wondrous ways. Among the performers were princes and princesses of their kind. In fact, so brilliant had they shown themselves at other palaces that they had attained more than mere regal significance, and were known to mankind as "stars." On this great day there came to the palace, in humility and practically penniless, a girl who little dreamed that she would ever rise to a position of any importance, much less become a star. For several years she had struggled on, hoping against hope, bravely meeting disappointments, waging a bitter war against hard circumstances. On this night she was going to sing a new song. Not that she expected anything would come of it. It was a childish ditty; "Ring-a-ding-puff-puff," it began and "Ring-a-ding, puff-puff" it ended. Somehow or other, whatever humour the verses contained struck her as being more funny, more ridiculous if you like, than anything she had sung before. And so the merriment that was in her mind came out in her voice and manner. And it caught the audience in an irresistible whirl, and they laughed, and laughed again, and finally rocked in their seats in a fit of uncontrollable mirthfulness.

The singer smiled between the verses. It was a smile the like of which the people in the Palace had never seen before. It completely transformed her face. It was a smile she could not help. Whether it was caused by the knowledge of her own droll appearance—for the nonce she was a poor child in a plaid frock, pinafore, tousled hair, Tam o' Shanter cap, and her countenance beaming with a marvellous self-satisfied expression, as if she were content to regard the whole world as a trivial joke—whether her quaint garb and quaint ideas caused her to be amused at herself is a question that the lady herself is best qualified to answer. At any rate, she made such an impression upon her audience that she was recalled again and again, and was applauded to the echo.

That is the story of how Miss Millie Payne went as a sort of unknown Cinderella to the Camberwell Palace one evening and came out after being assured by high authorities that she was the success of the evening, and that she had a great future in front of her. Mr. Will Oliver, the well-known agent, was the first to secure the lady an engagement, and he rapidly booked her. In fact, she says that she owes much of her success to Mr. Oliver.

Miss Payne tells us that she got her idea for the character of the child from a sketch by the late Phil May, and she was herself agreeably astonished to find that it immediately "caught on" with the public. Another song with which she has made a great hit is "We've come to see Jenny Jones," and this, as well as the one already referred to, was written by Mr. Harry Castling. In Cardiff and Swansea, where she appeared at the Empires recently, the audiences were simply convulsed with the references to Jenny Jones, many of the Welsh girls in the audience bearing that name. Still another song which has helped to enhance the young lady's reputation is "Teacup, tell me true," and is of the class which is known as refined comedy. Miss Payne, who is to be seen at the London music halls for some weeks, and who holds contracts right into 1909, has been repeatedly complimented upon her individuality, and the Moss and Stoll management describe her on their programmes as an artist "with style and methods distinctly refreshing." And that puts the truth very neatly.

Mr. Pennington mentions an instance of the tact and ingenuity of the late Fred. Charles, when acting-manager with Miss Marie de Grey's company. On one occasion there was a difference of opinion between Miss de Grey and her assistant acting-manager, which culminated in his calling her a "cantankerous cat."

"The choice alliterative epithet quite astounded her, and for the moment she was unable to utter a word, but recovering herself, she ordered him 'out of the theatre,' assuring him that she 'never desired to see his face again.' He left the theatre, and it was feared that he had taken Miss de Grey at her word. The meeting or scene rehearsal broke up, and we did not return to the theatre until the time to dress and 'make-up' for the stage. As the A.S.M. played a small but responsible part, which could not be provided for at short notice, speculation was rife as to how the difficulty could be met.

"It afterwards transpired that clever Fred Charles, appreciating the inconvenience which would be caused by the absence of the A.S.M., at once sought him out, and without a blush informed him that 'Miss De Grey was exceedingly sorry for what had occurred, and begged the A.S.M. to think no more about it.' The naturally good-natured fellow was more than satisfied; and in the meantime Fred hurried off to Miss De Grey's hotel and told her that the A.S.M. 'could not forgive himself for his rudeness to her, should ever regret it, and begged to apologise.' Of course it will be evident that neither had apologised, and as in the evening the painful subject was ignored by both each thought the other had done so."

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alcsia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. Treasurer, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.; to the "Dot Stephens Fund," at the Capital and Counties Bank, King-street, Covent Garden; or to the Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office, 5, Tavistock Street, W.C.

Miss Cecilia Fowler's Team v. Miss Winifred Bradley's Team.

Played near Clifton Downs, on Saturday, Oct. 13. Misses Lillie Belding, Cecilia Fowler, and Winifred Bradley scored the goals for their respective sides. The following were the teams:—

Miss Fowler's XI.—Miss Lillie Belding, goal; Miss Ivy Bowman and Miss Lilla Carter, backs; Miss Cecilia Fowler, Miss Gertrude Thomas, and Miss Rosie Davies, half-backs; Miss Trixie Maynard, Miss Amy Bernard, Miss Bertha Godfrey, Miss Minnie Leonard, and Miss Gracie Leonard, forwards.

Miss Bradley's XI.—Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Alice Gibbs and Miss Nellie Richards, backs; Miss Edie Lawrence, Miss Nellie Lawrence, and Miss Amy Fisher, half-backs; Miss Alice Mitchell, Miss Winifred Bradley, Miss Florrie Hooper, Miss Kit Montgomery, and Miss Maudie Burgess, forwards.

Referee, Miss Jessie Edwards. Result: Miss Fowler's XI., 2 goals; Miss Bradley's XI., 1 goal.

"In the evening, to our infinite surprise and relief, he made his appearance, never saying a word as to the morning's contretemps, and having dressed for his part, hurried to the prompt entrance to look after some necessary business, where he happened to meet Miss De Grey crossing the stage in the direction of her dressing-room. She was seen to give him her hand with great heartiness and without hesitation, and he appeared not only restored to favour but in greater favour than ever.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth the thoroughfare of Drury-lane was known as Via de Aldwych, and it was not until the close of the sixteenth century that it got its present title, from Drury House, which was built about that time. The old Olympic Pavilion was built chiefly out of the materials of a French warship, the Ville de Paris. The yards and bowsprits of the ship formed the uprights and supports of the new "playhouse," the deck was used for the stage and flooring, and the sides of the ship for the outward walls, while the roof was of tin. The entire cost was £800. Obtaining a licence through the influence of Queen Charlotte, Philip Astley opened the place in 1805 for music, dancing, burlettas, pantomimic, and equestrian exhibitions. It was a complete failure from the beginning, and even the pugilistic demonstrations given by such redoubtable heroes of the ring as Dutch Sam did not make the place pay, and in 1813 Astley sent circulars round to the various theatrical managers, describing the peculiar advantages of the Olympia Pavilion. "We'll throw the bone, Johnny," he said to his son, "and let the dogs fight for it. Someone will snap at it."

Mr. Charles Fry has given annually a series of Shakespearean performances for years past at the Court, Royalty, and other theatres, and also at the East End of London, without scenery. During that time he has produced no less than eighteen plays.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A. H.—A Night Out was produced at the Vaudeville Theatre on April 29, 1896, with the following cast:—Joseph Pinglet, Mr. George Giddens; Paillard, Mr. Chas. Sugden; Mathieu, Mr. William Wyles; Maxime, Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald; Brochard, Mr. J. Carne; Boulot, Mr. Gus Danby; Busteen, Mr. E. W. Thomas; Botticelli, Mr. Neville Doone; Marcelle, Miss Fannie Ward; Angelique, Mrs. Edmund Phelps; Victorine, Miss Pattie Browne; Hyacinth, Miss L. Sargent; Violette, Miss E. Barrington; Marguerite, Miss E. Concanen; Rose, Miss E. Henderson.

BILLY SIVANE.—Your production of a "Parkkeeper" song surely does not prevent other comedians from doing the same thing. Many years ago Mr. James Fawn sang a "Policeman" song, but we have not heard that he barred other comedians from hiding their individuality in bobby's uniform.

G. B.—You have a good right of action against him for the balance of salary, and you can sue him out there, or in the English Courts when you return.

E. F. LLOYD.—The son, "Dan, he went to Ireland," would most likely be published by, or heard of, from one of those well-known publishing firms—Cramer and Co. or Ascherberg and Co.

L. FAWKES.—The Belle of New York was revived at the Adelphi Theatre (then known as the New Century Theatre) on Nov. 27, 1901.

AJAX.—Write to Mr. Frank Macnaghten, King's Chambers, Angel-street, Sheffield.

A. E. T.—A copyright performance of The Three Musketeers was given at the Imperial Theatre, June 25, 1898. On its production at the Metropole, Sept. 12, 1898, Mr. Lewis Waller played D'Artagnan. The Musketeers was produced at Her Majesty's, Nov. 3, 1898. In this production Mr. Lewis Waller played the Duke of Buckingham.

HOXTONIAN.—Daddy Longlegs was the title of the pantomime produced at the Britannia Theatre on Dec. 26, 1885.

J. B.—De Groof was killed by falling from flying machine, July 10, 1874. He fell close to St. Luke's Church, Chelsea.

WYANDOTTE.—Yes, he played as an amateur with the "Old Stagers" and the "Windsor Strollers."

OLD PLAYGOER.—Pink Dominos was first produced at the Criterion, March 31, 1877. It was revived at the Comedy, Nov. 23, 1889, and at the Criterion, Oct. 10, 1892.

HUGH.—George Belmore, the actor, died in New York on Nov. 15, 1875.

J. E. S.—Aug. 31, 1899.

J. KING.—The song "At eventide the shades are stealing" was sung in Falka by Miss Violet Cameron.

F. M.—Belphegor, the Mountebank; or, the Pride of Birth, a play in three acts, was produced at the Adelphi Theatre, London, on Jan. 13, 1851, with Benjamin Webster as the hero, Mme. Celeste as Madeline, Miss Woolgar as Nini, Miss Ellen Chaplin as Henri, O. Smith as De Rollac, Paul Bedford Montroulade, Wright as Ajax, and H. Hughes as Montbazon.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

MUNICIPAL THEATRES.

A remarkable proposal has been made by the Broughton Theatre Syndicate, which owns the Victoria Theatre, Salford. They have offered to hand over their undertaking to the Salford Town Council on certain terms. The managing director of the syndicate, at a special performance given recently in the presence of the Mayor and members of the Council, asked why Salford should not be the first place to have a municipal theatre. The Mayor of Salford is, however, not in sympathy with the scheme.

A muncipal theatre is a standing testimony that the whole of a community is deeply interested in the drama; that it looks upon playgoing as a necessity for intelligent persons; and that it is determined to secure a home of intellectual drama in its midst.

It would be difficult to find any town in the United Kingdom in which such conditions prevail. In the first place, the playgoing public is only a section of the population, a very large proportion of which, from religious or other reasons, never enters a theatre at all. These, unfortunately, are the most serious and reflective fraction of the community. The mass of the middle-class in the provinces is not theatrically inclined. Audiences are drawn chiefly from the young and frivolous, and from the rough and laborious classes. The musical play is the pabulum of the former; the sensational melodrama of the latter. As for the smart people who do so much to keep up the price of stalls in London, they are an abstaining class in most provincial towns. They only patronise the local playhouse when it is visited by some "big star" from the Metropolis. It is obvious that as a muncipal theatre must be supported by the rates, the section which cares least for the drama would be the section on which the heaviest burden of its maintenance would fall. The middle-class ratepayers might well ask why they should be asked to provide for the support of a place of entertainment in which they would take no interest.

We have no belief in the continued existence of any institution which is not a natural growth. The subsidised and municipal theatres of the Continent are the creations of generations of tendency and tradition. The Comédie Française had its origin in the disposition of the French before the Revolution to look to the Government—otherwise the reigning monarch—as the fount of enterprise; and the German municipal playhouses are the remnants of the old system of division into States, each with a paternal kinglet exercising a mild paternal sway.

English critics who advocate municipal and subsidised theatres are apt to form an estimate of Continental establishments which is to a great extent imaginary and decidedly too favourable. The "natives" see things as they are. "I am not even sure," says M. AUGUSTIN FILON in "The Modern French Drama," "that the Comédie Française is a paradise even for good artists of the second rank; but, on the other hand, third-rate people flourish and grow fat in these prebendal stalls of the drama. They make up for lack of talent by presence and traditions." And even in SCHLEGEL'S time the German national theatres were "true hospitals for languor and laziness."

It may well be enquired what excuse could a provincial municipality allege for entering into competition with existing interests? The only one which would hold valid would be the representation of the minority. It might be argued: There is a large number of persons in this city who are not attracted by the ordinary entertainments at the local theatres. They do not care for musical plays or melodramas; and they want to see SHAKESPEARE acted frequently by a stock company, mediocre perhaps in merit, but level in excellence, the plays being poorly mounted, but carefully studied. Where are these intelligent minorities? They certainly do not make themselves either heard or felt. And this is not because the minorities in provincial towns are silent on other subjects. Any local improvement or enterprise that is desired has always a swarm of advocates long before it is carried into effect. But we never heard of an "agitation" for a municipal theatre. And this indifference to the drama as a serious art is carried out in death as well as life. People endow drinking-fountains, churches, and libraries; but a theatre, never. It simply does not occur to testators to do so.

What are the reasons of this difference between the taste and feeling of the English public and that of France or Germany. Drawing a bow at a venture, we should say the sharp separation which was made by the Puritan wave, and has never been effaced; the sporting and athletic tastes of the English; and the love of the fireside, which is caused chiefly by our climate. All these are as much a part of the English nature as the climate itself. Feelings and habits cannot be argued away; their roots go down too deep into character. We have neither the laughing intolerance of the French, the considerate interest of the Germans, or the alert, though superficial, curiosity of the Americans. The intense individuality of the national character tends rather towards brilliant gambling than safe, well-protected artistic effort—towards "starring" rather than ensemble. The actor, not the author, has always been our pet hero; and scenery, dresses, and comfort are all-important. It is easy to account for the respect of the French for their drama; it is one of the results of the artistic instinct of the Latin race. The Germans, it should be remembered, were only a generation ago the philosophers and dreamers of Europe. Despite militarism and commerce, they still "smack." National characteristics, it is true, may be modified, though they cannot be eradicated. But it will be some time before the British character is sufficiently changed for the establishment in every large town of a municipal playhouse subsidised from the rates.

"BLAZES; OR, THE LIGHTNING FIRE BRIGADE."

Pantomimic Absurdity, in Two Scenes, by E. C. Matthews, produced at the Canterbury Theatre of Varieties on Monday, Oct. 29.

Col. Jeff Decker	MR. O. LUCK
Romeo Decker	MR. H. LUCK
Harold	MR. F. LUCK
Alphonso	MR. A. LUCK
P.c. XXX	MR. P. LUCK
Ferdinand Firedamper	MR. E. LUCK
Dick	MR. H. WILLIAMS

The name and reputation of the Brothers Luck are thoroughly sustained in their latest sketch, which on Monday was received with roars of laughter by a crowded audience at the Canterbury. The playlet is modelled on the lines which travesty everything conceivable, and the audience is treated to a series of irresistibly comic surprises. The first scene discloses the staff of the private fire brigade, owned by Col. Decker, a reputed millionaire. During his absence abroad the brigade has deteriorated, until it is manned principally by loafers, who can only be induced to show signs of activity by the announcement that a brewery is on fire. The Colonel returns unexpectedly to find his men in an advanced state of intoxication, and is nearly assaulted by Ferdinand Firedamper, who fails to recognise the "guv'nor." Col. Decker does not discharge the men, as he is a scoundrel of a deep dye, and has obtained his millions from his brother, whom he has kept a close prisoner. He has a scheme to set the house on fire, destroying his brother at the same time, and arranges with the captain of the brigade that when he is called to the fire he shall deluge the flames, not with water, but with paraffin oil. Romeo Decker, the Colonel's nephew and second in command, overhears the plot, and realises that his father, whom he supposed to be dead, is incarcerated in the doomed house. He is offered a drug by the Captain, but throws it into his face, and in the subsequent struggle the Captain receives a "knock-out" blow. When he recovers consciousness he imagines that "to-morrow night," the time appointed for the fire, has come, so he sallies forth with his motley crew, and after an interlude with a policeman the house is duly set on fire, and liberally fed with gunpowder and other combustibles. The furniture of the house, together with a dummy servant girl are all hurled unceremoniously out of the window, ladies in night attire run about the streets, and eventually the front of the house collapses revealing a lady in the act of taking a bath; while the devoted son leads his old father out of the burning building, and gives the wicked uncle in charge.

The sketch scarcely gives full employment to the talents of the popular troupe, but there is every opportunity for extension, and no doubt additions will be made by which the comedy material will be developed, preferably at the expense of some of the broader humour. Mr. E. Luck as Ferdinand Firedamper, described as "twin step-brother" to the Captain, took a prominent part in the fun-making, and gave a very droll impersonation of the fireman who gets an imperative call at the telephone, and lies down to sleep till the fire goes out; while his subsequent pranks outside the burning building were also irresistibly funny. Mr. H. Williams was the embodiment of comic turpitude as Dick, the captain of the brigade, his make-up being fantastically ferocious. Mr. O. Luck acted the scheming Col. Decker with the proper degree of intensity, and his nephew, Romeo, was vigorously portrayed by Mr. H. Luck, whose delivery of his lines and general bearing as the gallant young fireman was much to be commended. Grotesque appearances were made by Messrs. F. Luck and A. Luck as a fat fireman and a thin fireman respectively; and Mr. P. Luck, as a pie-eating policeman, was a credit to the Force. The little piece lacked nothing in the way of realism, the eccentric fire engine, which acted both as a beer barrel and a piano organ, causing a great diversion. The conflagration, too, apart from its humorous aspect, was quite exciting, and formed a vivid spectacular effect.

AT the Bernhard-Rose Theatre, Berlin, a very old play has been revived with every appearance of success. It is Die Bluthodzeit, four-act historical drama, by Friedrich Adami. The action passes in the troublous period when Catherine de Medici flourished, and the plot is well conceived and developed. Herr Bernhard Rose played the important rôle of the King in excellent style, and was very adequately supported.

THE death was recently announced of M. Vizentini, stage-manager at the Paris Opéra-Comique. A distinguished musician, he was for many years first violin at the Théâtre Lyrique, and, finally, became chef-d'orchestre at the Porte Saint-Martin and at the Gaîté. His ambition, however, was to manage a theatre; but all his ventures proved failures. Offenbach made plenty of money at the Gaîté, but when Vizentini took over the house where he produced Dimitri and Paul et Virginie, with Capoul in the chief rôles, it was a financial fiasco. His management of the Folies-Dramatiques led also to disastrous results. But nobody knew how to mount a play better than Vizentini; and when in 1898 M. Albert Carré was appointed director of the Opéra-Comique, he at once gave him the post of assistant-manager. M. Vizentini, who had numerous friends in England, will be regretted by all who knew him.

"ARIANE."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The production at the Opéra of Ariane, the five-act lyric play by M. Catulle Mendès and M. Jules Massenet, has been the great musical event of the Paris season; and the work, which met with an excellent reception, is likely to become popular. Those who only seek melody will be delighted; for the opera is brimful with airs that will soon find their way into concert-hall and drawing-room. To others, however, Ariane came like something of a surprise. The subject, as the title implies, is the story of the loves of Theseus, the Athenian hero, with Ariadne and her sister, Phaedra. But, despite the milieu in which it plays, there is very little Greek about the libretto and the music. We notice rather a decided Parisian touch about both. The whole work has apparently been written without any effort, with an utter disregard for the intellectual movement of to-day. But if M. Massenet has failed in the heroic sense, the work will—possibly for that very reason—appeal to those who complain that modern music is not sufficiently melodious.

At curtain-rise the scene represents the Island of King Minos. Theseus, King of Athens, arrives on the island to slay the Minotaur; and Ariadne, who loves Theseus, has delivered to the hero the secret of the labyrinth, the clue by which he will find his way to the monster's hiding-place. In the second act we are on the high sea. Theseus has conquered and slain the Minotaur, and has taken Ariadne with him to Athens to make her his queen. But Phaedra, Ariadne's sister, also in love with the hero, accompanies them. The pilot loses his way, and directs the barque towards Naxos. In Naxos Theseus perceives that he no longer loves Ariadne, but Phaedra. The despairing Ariadne urges her sister to intercede with her lover; and Phaedra promises to bring him back to her. But no sooner is she in the presence of the hero than all her resolutions vanish, and both fall into each other's arms. Ariadne, who witnesses the scene, faints, and Phaedra, in remorse, mutilates the statue of Adonis, for which the god Cypris kills her. Ariadne, in a sublime spirit of abnegation, implores the god to restore Phaedra to life; and he orders the graces to conduct Ariadne to the sojourn of the dead. In the fourth tableau we hear harmonious sounds. The Graces accompany Ariadne to Hades, and Ariadne obtains from Persephone that Phaedra is to be restored to mortal life. In the final tableau Theseus is bereft of reason. He does not know whom he loves best; whether it is the self-denying Ariadne or the passionate Phaedra. But Phaedra wins the day; and whilst Theseus carries her off in a small boat, Ariadne is left on the island. We see the sirens surround Ariadne, who walks slowly to the beach as the curtain falls.

Written in delightful verse, with melodies flowing freely, the work is charming from beginning to end; and it was therefore all the more to be regretted that M. Gailhard should have staged it in such a poor manner. Some of the scenery was really grotesque. The opera, however, was well interpreted, especially by Mlle. Bréval, who scored a huge success. The other rôles were safe in the hands of Mlle. Granjean, M. Muratore, and M. Delmas.

CAMBERWELL EMPIRE.

Melody, comedy, and melodrama form the nucleus of the entertainment provided here twice nightly by Mr. Jesse Sparrow and Mr. Harry Bawn. The chief feature on the programme this week is Fred Bowyer's ever welcome sketch The Little Stowaway, presented by Ethel Arden and George Abel's well-selected company. Miss Edith Lumley, in the title-rôle, gives a vivid and interesting performance, and in the waif's death scene her acting touches all hearts. As the bluff but kind-hearted captain, Mr. J. K. Walton's impersonation is redolent of the sea; and Mr. H. G. Shaw as the First Lieutenant is responsible for a good character study. As the widow, Miss Maude Esmond is sweetly pathetic; and Mr. Hugh Metcalf as the Boatswain sings with marked effect "Somebody's sailor Boy" and "Jack's the handy man."

Miss Helena Sleath and Mr. Charles Aldin appear in a musical scena entitled Dashing Duval, the Knight of the Road, and in bright and merry fashion depict an incident in the adventurous life of that historic highwayman. Miss Sleath as Lady Sylvia not only acts well, but gives evidence of a cultured voice in her rendering of Ganz's "The Nightingale's Trill." Mr. Charles Aldin doubles the characters of Claude Duval and Sir John Oldroyd, and is highly satisfactory.

In costume playlet, The Gambler, Mr. Fred S. Peake has surrounded himself with an efficient company, and sustains the title-rôle with much earnestness. He has excellent support from Miss Dora Davis as Lady Janet Locksley, an impersonation full of winsomeness. Elegant costumes of the Stuart period are worn by the company.

The Eight Beau Ideals are clever juvenile performers, whose solos, duets, part songs, and international dances are very entertaining. In a pretty and effective Alpine setting Ruby and Laws give an entertainment full of bright and merry moments. It is a happy combination of amusing cross talk, clever quick changes, and well-rendered selections from operas. As a burlesque policeman Mr. Dan Agar has some funny patter in his song "Round the corner." Mr. Carl Rosine, a clever magician, amazes his audience by producing from a bowl of bran a large dish of beautiful goldfish in water. This trick is, however, eclipsed by his having both his thumbs tied securely together by members of the audience, and then catching a number of hoops on each arm. Rose Adams, a dainty and youthful comedienne, excels in dancing; Fred Villars, swell comedian, has a humorous ditty in "Just keep off the grass"; Andie Caine is amusing in character business; and the Empire animated pictures, a distinct feature of the evening's enjoyment, include a comic film entitled "A day's outing on his own." Mr. Percy Ford is the courteous acting-manager here; and the stage management is in the capable hands of Mr. W. Nutt, the orchestra being under the artistic direction of Mr. Frank Hurst.

COPYRIGHT CONVICTION.

Joseph Courtenay, twenty-seven, was charged at Greenwich, before Mr. Baggallay with acting as a pedlar without a licence, and with the possession of forty-seven copies of pirated music.

The facts were admitted, but the prisoner, who had also a large number of pieces of legitimate music, denied that he sold the pirated copies. These, he said, he gave away with legitimate copies, making the presentation with a view to working up a connection.

Mr. Baggallay fined the prisoner £5, or one month.

THE Bristol branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society secured the services of Mr. Acton Bond to head the cast at a dramatic reading of King John, given at the Clifton Rooms on Saturday last. The Bishop of Bristol (the president of the branch) was in the chair, and the financial receipts of the evening's entertainment were larger than on any previous occasion since the inauguration of the branch some two years ago.

THE Town Council of Bridlington invite applications for the position of musical-director of the Royal Prince's Parade from March 25 to Oct. 13, 1907. The salary is £100, and applications, stating full particulars, are to reach the Town Clerk not later than the 24th inst.

BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

Mr. George Alexander was the judge at this year's elocution competition held under the auspices of the above society at the St. James's Theatre on Friday afternoon, the 26th ult. Mr. Alexander was supported at the judge's table by Miss Irene Vanbrugh, and Mr. Acton Bond and Miss Morritt, the hon. general secretaries and directors, were present to introduce the competitors, whose relatives and friends made a goodly assemblage in the auditorium. Mr. Alexander, in naming the successful contestants, stated that it had been a great pleasure to him to be present that afternoon. He had to congratulate Miss Morritt upon her energy and enthusiasm in the cause of furthering the knowledge of Shakespeare's works. He felt that he ought to acknowledge the support on this occasion of Miss Vanbrugh.

Mr. Acton Bond, in thanking Mr. Alexander for so kindly fulfilling the principal duties of the afternoon and for lending the use of his theatre, stated that the task of awarding the prizes had been a very difficult one owing to the all-round high level of excellence. If the entries increased in like ratio between this year and next as they had done between last year and this year, they would have to ask the different centres of the society to hold eliminating competitions so that only the best people would be sent up for the final examination in public.

The conditions of the examination were that all competitors were to recite two passages, one comedy and the other serious, from Shakespeare's plays. Both scenes and speeches were admissible provided they did not exceed the time limit of five minutes.

Among the four gentlemen classed as "professional," Mr. Norman Wrighton secured the prize, the speech, "A horse, a horse," from Richard III., being delivered by him with fine effect. In this class, too, Mr. Paul Mardon was highly commended. There were eight entries for the professional ladies' division, Miss Kathleen Rind winning the first prize for a clever exhibition of elocution as applied to the Epilogue in As You Like It and the scene at the end of Winter's Tale. The second prize was awarded to Miss Hilda Fletcher, and Mr. Alexander was so pleased with the performance of another candidate, Miss Hutchinson, that he expressed the intention of giving her a prize himself.

In the amateur ladies' class, Miss Gwendoline Hart came first and Miss Enid Rose second. In regard to a third student, Miss Ruby Fectum, Miss Vanbrugh was so pleased with her work that she intimated her desire to present the young lady with a prize. Mr. Sydney Smith was the successful candidate among the amateur gentlemen. As to the juniors, of whom there were six—all girls—Miss Clare Absalom was the lucky prize-winner.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 29, the Musical Play, in Two Acts, book by Hugh Morton, music by Gustave Kerker, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK.

The ever-welcome Belle of New York, presented by Mr. Bannister Howard's company, is paying a return visit this week. Mr. Frank Lawton repeats his success as Blinky Bill, the inimitable whistler receiving a perfect ovation on his reappearance here on Monday. Miss Empsie Bowman is a delightfully dainty Violet Grey, her singing of the well-known numbers being very pleasing, and her acting all that can be desired. Miss Lily Maxwell is a charming Fifi, and the pretty music of the part is delightfully rendered. Miss Winnie Browne makes an attractive and clever Cora; Miss Florence Hersee is a very vivacious Mamie Clancy, and the scenes in which she is concerned are full of go and dash; the other ladies are all pretty and clever. Mr. Paddy Dupres gives a fine rendering of Ichabod Bronson, and is a warm favourite, his singing being really good. Mr. John Doran is a handsome and manly Jack Bronson, and sings particularly well. Mr. Max Copeland is capital as the polite lunatic; Mr. Alfred Sandoe is very good as Doc Snifkins; Mr. Walter Uridge gives a clever rendering of Mugg; and the Portuguese Twins are amusingly represented by Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and R. L. Cody.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors — The late SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

THE freehold site of the Theatre Royal, Stockton-on-Tees, which was recently partially destroyed by fire, will be offered for sale by auction on the premises by Messrs. R. and W. Mack on Tuesday, Nov. 20. The situation is unique for a theatre or music hall, having a long frontage to Yarm-lane, convenient access for scenery, &c., and being within fifty yards of the electric tramways, giving expeditious and inexpensive access to the population of an extensive and populous district. The main halls, including the handsomely-designed front in Yarm-lane, remain standing, and are practically intact. The Theatre Royal was fully licensed by the county magistrates representing the Durham County Council.

TWENTY teams of matched ponies, with patent leather harness identical with those which were such an admired feature of last year's Cinderella pantomime at Drury-lane, and are now attracting similar praise at the Porte St. Martin, Paris, may be obtained on hire from Hales, of 40, Wellington-street, Strand. Handsome white horses for Dick Whittington, plunging quadrupeds, and every class of performing animal are also to be procured at the old-established firm.

MR. WALTER JOYCE, that popular veteran of the stage, and comrade of the late John Sleeper Clarke, is now "in front" at the palatial restaurant built by Mr. Rayner at 45, Haymarket. The place is the picture of comfort and beauty in its Adams decorations and mahogany-panelled saloon bar and lounges. It occupies a fine position, and with its admirable appointments and up-to-date management should be a great success.

PRESENTATION.—At the Castle Theatre, Richmond, on the last night but one of The Walls of Jericho tour Mr. Wallace Court, on behalf of the members of the company, presented Mr. Horace Mitchell, the urbane acting-manager of the company, with a case of handsomely-mounted pipes.

"BURTON'S Professional Date Book and Diary for 1907" has just been issued. It is of handy size, and contains almost everything that a theatrical manager or an artist needs at his finger ends, as, for instance, the sizes of printing papers, sheet quantities, space for code, spaces for subs., salary list, percentages, and a complete weekly balance-sheet for the year. This carefully-compiled little book can, with confidence, be recommended to managers as a certain time-saver. In proof of its completeness we may mention that it includes the following headings:—"Weather" and "Apartments." The price is only 1s. 1d., post free, from 5, Milner's-chambers, Fargate, Sheffield.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Some interesting details are to hand respecting the dinner given in New York by American publishers on the 21st ult. in honour of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., who was the guest of the evening. A private letter from a prominent figure in New York musical circles runs thus: "Frank Bowers, of the great Chicago house of Lyon and Healy, was chairman, and the affair went off in great shape. They all thanked 'T. P.' heartily for the example set to America, which would be very useful in influencing the authorities to introduce the same legislation here. There were one or two very clever speeches by such renowned wits as J. Kendrick Bangs.

"Then at the finish 'T. P.' got up and gave us the finest after-dinner speech I have ever heard. He described very graphically the exciting struggle against time, showing how it was only at the very last minute of the session—and then by keeping the Government clerks up all night—that he forced the Musical Copyright Bill through. He also described his interviews with a granite-hearted opponent of the measure, without mentioning his name, which were very interesting, and told us of the starving authors who were being ruined by the pirates, and finished with a grand peroration on the elevating influence of art, most particularly the art of music, the importance of which seemed to him so great in opposing 'brute materialism' that this was his chief guiding motive in supporting the Bill to stop the marauding pirates. Everyone was enthralled with the eloquence of the renowned Irishman, and most of the suburbanites lost their trains."

The news of Mr. Walter Gibbons's serious illness will cause general regret in variety circles. He went home on Friday night, the 26th ult., to his country residence, Cold Blow, Burgh Heath, Epsom, and seemed to be in his usual robust health, but at four o'clock on Saturday morning he was in great pain, and at about eleven sent for the local doctor, who treated him for an attack of colic. Later in the day, however, the symptoms were diagnosed as those of an irregular attack of appendicitis. Eventually an operation was decided on, and Mr. Mayo Robson, surgeon, of London, performed it at 1 a.m. on Sunday morning. The patient is going on as well as can be expected, and is under the care of an excellent trained nurse. We sympathise greatly with the anxiety of the young wife, and hope that the tension she must be undergoing will be relieved by daily reports of satisfactory progress.

Mr. Walter Gibbons will in due course be endowed with a music and dancing licence for the Brixton Hippodrome, late the Brixton Theatre, and will probably open the house about Dec. 3, on the two-performances-nightly plan. He desires it to be generally known that the Empress and the Hippodrome, though close together, will not be run in opposition. The theatre did not answer as a legitimate house, and with such populous surroundings there should certainly be room for two variety establishments. We make this statement on the personal authority of Mr. Gibbons himself, and do so because a great deal of the opposition to the licensing of the Hippodrome has been caused by the belief that it will injure the other house. The two will be carried on as one concern, with, it is hoped and believed, advantage to the public and profit to each.

Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss were interested spectators recently of the Follies' burlesque on The Beauty of Bath and The Catch of the Season. One of the "gods," recognising the popular couple, shouted out at the conclusion of the skit "How's that, Seymour?" Mr. Hicks immediately went to the front of his box, and replied "Excellent!"

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hurley have received over 1,000 telegrams and letters of congratulation, as well as many costly presents. It would be therefore quite impossible for them to reply to every one individually; but they desire, through the columns of The Era, to convey their sincerest thanks to friends for kind and loving wishes for their future welfare. The wedding-cake, which weighed 160lbs., was presented to the bride by Romano's, Limited—a kind thought indeed.

Mr. Harry Tate's friends in this country will be glad, but not surprised, to hear that his essentially British humour—which is perhaps the most cosmopolitan—has found the widest appreciation in New York, and that he made such a success on his début at Hammerstein's on the 8th ult. in Fishing that the management retained him for a further two weeks—a most exceptional thing at that house. The latest question in New York, both in Wall-street and on the Fifth-avenue, is "Any luck?"

Mr. George Dance will, it is understood, be responsible for a new place of entertainment at Ilford—a town that is growing to vast proportions. If he succeeds in his application for a theatrical as well as a music and dancing licence, privileges which have been quite readily granted to the Walthamstow Palace, the Richmond Theatre, and the Ealing Hippodrome, he will not be fettered in his choice of attractions—a freedom for which his brother-managers in the London amusement centres sigh in vain.

The Alhambra matinée on Saturday, in aid of Mr. T. H. Roberts's fund for the relief of the needy survivors of the charge at Balaclava, was a record success. Mrs. Clement Scott, surrounded by some veterans who shared in the glory of a historic day, recited Lord Tennyson's poem, and evoked enthusiastic cheers. Mr. George Leyton, who relinquished an engagement at Plymouth in order to be present, repeated his stirring song, "Boys of the Chelsea School," assisted by a couple of dozen trained boys belonging to Mr. Philip Nolan's choir. Mr. Leyton has done a noble work for these old soldiers, whose cause he has helped to the extent of nearly £2000, and whose needs he has proclaimed far and wide. Mr. George Scott directed the matinée most successfully, and Mr. T. H. Roberts thanked the Alhambra directors most cordially in his speech from the stage.

Mr. Charles Blyth-Pratt's first charity matinée since he assumed the management of the Oxford was an outstanding success. The performance in question was given on Thursday afternoon in aid of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum. As to the artists, who gave of their best, there were Mr. Arthur Roberts and Miss Ruby Celeste, Miss Alexandra Dagmar, Mr. T. E. Dunville, the Sisters Edwards, and Messrs. Doody and Wright, Percy Honri, Edie King, Clarice Mayne, George Mozart, Miss Jessie Preston, Miss Madeline Rees, Mr. Ernest Shand, the Stella Troupe, Mr. Russell Wallett, the Lotti Troupe, Mr. Fred Holland, and Mr. Ted Thomas. Votes of thanks to the directors of the Oxford for the free use of the hall and to Mr. Blyth-Pratt for his kindly services were proposed by the Victuallers' chairman, Mr. Harry Hudson.

Calder's Colossal Comedy Company will produce the latest musical skit, The Dandy Duke, on Monday at the Empire, Dublin, previous to introducing it to a London audience.

In the King's Bench Division, on Wednesday morning, before Mr. Justice Grantham, Mr. Hugh Fraser applied to his lordship to expedite the hearing of the libel action of De Celle v. Lee. He stated that the plaintiff was the well-known music hall artist, whose stage name is Miss Alexandra Dagmar, and that she was under a contract to go to the United States shortly. His lordship fixed Nov. 12 as the date for the hearing of the action.

Mr. F. W. Fitt has handed over to Mr. E. T. Boardman, the Mayor of Norwich, the sum of £30 as the proceeds of the recent anniversary performance at the Norwich Hippodrome. The Mayor, who was present at the entertainment, will allocate the money to local charities.

A pleasing illustration of the good feeling existing between Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, of the Derby Palace of Varieties, and his staff was given on Saturday evening. This happened to be the birthday of the popular lessee and manager, and during the performance Mr. Herbert Taylor appeared on the stage, and informing the audience of the raison d'être of the "extra turn," presented to Mr. Edwardes on behalf of himself, the other members of the staff, and a few private friends a valuable dressing-case. Mr. Edwardes, who was obviously taken by surprise, suitably acknowledged the gift.

That Over the Sticks, Mr. Joe Elvin's evergreen sketch, has not exhausted its popularity was abundantly proved at the Gaiety, Birmingham, last week, when all records, both for number of people paying at the doors and amount of money taken, were easily beaten. The actual figures are 31,509 persons who paid for admission. Nothing to equal this has been experienced at the hall since it has been built. Mr. Albert Bushell, the manager, marked the occasion by presenting Joe with a handsome ivory-handled umbrella.

Mr. F. V. St. Clair has just removed from his residence in the beautiful neighbourhood of Windermere, where he has lived a number of years, to Shropshire. In that county he has purchased a part of the Covert Estate of the late Lord Hill, not far from Whitchurch, and has built a new residence there. It is his intention to erect several bungalows among the pine-woods with a view to letting them furnished to artists requiring a rest. Pheasants, partridges, and rabbits abound, so that those fond of shooting will find plenty of sport. Those who wish to gain renewed energy amid ideal rural surroundings—"far from the madding crowd"—will truly appreciate Mr. St. Clair's notion.

Mr. Walter Norman begs to thank, through The Era, his many friends, members of the Terriers, and brother and sister artists, who so kindly have sent him letters and telegrams of congratulation on his appointment as manager of the Hastings Hippodrome. So numerous have been these kind messages, that it is impossible for him to answer them personally, much as he would like to do so.

Mr. Philip Sefton, at Manchester last week, had much unexpected work thrust upon him. He was engaged for his seventh return visit to the Tivoli, and on Monday, whilst walking home to his "diggings" after the matinée he met that well-known actor-manager, Mr. William J. Miller, who is touring The Throne of Terror, and was due to open at the St. James's Theatre that evening. Mr. Miller was "stuck" for an important part owing to an actor being unable to play, but the situation was saved by the kindness of Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes in altering Mr. Sefton's turn in the first house at the Tivoli, thus enabling him to step into the breach and play the part. Mr. Sefton's revised nightly programme ran as follows:—Tivoli, 7.5; St. James's Theatre, 7.30 till 8.45 (Acts I. and II.); Tivoli, 10.5; St. James's Theatre, 10.25 (Act V.)—truly a good night's work This week Mr. Sefton is at the Coliseum, Glasgow.

The authorities having closed the Queen's Theatre, Glasgow, so suddenly on Wednesday, Oct. 17, Mr. Barney Armstrong wishes to inform all artists that were under engagement to him for that theatre that their dates must be cancelled. He also asks those that were to fulfil contracts with him to send their vacancies to Armstrong's Agency, now under the direction of Bernard M. Armstrong (nephew to Barney Armstrong), New Gaiety Theatre, Glasgow, who will do his utmost to fill in any vacancies up North.

Fred Karno's great sketch, The Dandy Thieves, will pay a visit to the Hackney Empire next week. The action of the sketch is well-known, but with the history and personality of Mr. Fred Karno himself the public are not so well acquainted. Equally a theatrical manager and a variety impresario, he has made his speciality pantomime productions, and has excelled as a producer of the same. Each member of the troupe has been carefully selected, and Mr. Karno's managerial acumen ensures careful rehearsal for each sketch, the best possible company, and complete accessories, so that everything essential to success is assured. He himself was originally a gymnast. His principal successes have been Her Majesty's Guests, originally produced at the Princess's, Jail Birds, Hilarity, The New Woman's Club, Early Birds, and The Mumming Birds.

When Mark Sheridan, after many encores, left the stage of the Palace, Sunderland, on Monday evening, at the conclusion of his turn in the first house, it was quite apparent that it would be impossible to produce the half-hour sketch, The Battle of the Belles, and there was a call for "the sketch" from the pit and gallery. The portrait of the King was shown on the screen, the orchestra played "God save the King," the bandsmen left their positions, but the audience remained. The manager, Mr. Alf Brown, came to the front of the advertisement curtain. When he could be heard he tried to explain. The audience did not want explanations. They wanted The Belles. There were more shouts for the sketch, and at length the manager returned and announced that The Battle of the Belles would be played. Triumphant cheering!

Mr. Cull-Pitt, who is this week at the Empire, Coventry, during a recent tour of the East made researches into the weird doings of the people in the Orient. He brings back some wonderful impressions of their remarkable experiments in mental telepathy. In Calcutta he came across an instance which completely astounded him. One native received news from another native in Bombay, many miles away, and some hours later a telegraphic message brought confirmation. In numerous cases Mr. Cull-Pitt found that the natives were able to beat the wires, for they appeared to have a system of wireless telegraphy of their own.

Mr. Cull-Pitt, who is assisted by his wife in his entertainment, landed at Calcutta at the time when native feeling ran very high in consequence of the Government action concerning the partition of Bengal. He appeared before many of the native rulers, who are very enlightened, and live almost upon European principles. His tour included Egypt and Ceylon, and his journey to the East has not altogether been unproductive, for at Christmas he will produce a new act, in which will be presented a large number of tricks suggested by Oriental conjurors.

Miss Bessie Travis, ventriloquist, who is appearing successfully at the Palace, Grimsby, this week, returns to town on Monday, opening at the Queen's, Poplar.

Miss Frances Letty will produce at an early date a new chorus song, which will be published by the Monte Carlo Company. Since Miss Letty appeared in town she has been booked at nearly all the principal halls in the kingdom.

The Hippodrome, Ton-y-Pandy, will reopen for the season on Monday, under the old directorship of Mr. David Taylor. The house has been newly decorated and partly reconstructed. After an absence of over three years Mr. Carlini Baldry has returned as general manager, and is seeking for big acts.

Mr. Elvin will be seen at the Oxford next Christmas in a gigantic production, which for lavish display is confidently anticipated to outrival all his previous efforts. He will also produce on the same date at the Canterbury another big sketch. Both novelties are from the pen of the versatile Wal Pink, who in delineating the humours of Cockneydom always has a happy touch.

Mr. Jesse Sparrow, chairman and managing-director of the Empire, Camberwell, Limited, presided on Friday, the 26th ult., at the statutory meeting of the company, when he reported the very favourable flotation of the Empire, and the excellent business done at the new variety house since its opening. This must be highly gratifying to all concerned. When the new electric tramways system is completed patrons will be able to travel quite conveniently from Dulwich and Sydenham.

Mr. Tom Woottwell has had to give up work this week at the Euston and Hammersmith Palace, owing to a severe cold contracted by him last Saturday during a midnight journey from Manchester. This is only the second time during twenty years that he has been unable to fulfil engagements in consequence of illness.

Miss Gracie Graham will leave Plymouth on Dec. 13 by the liner Orient for a six months' tour in Australia, which will be followed by a three months' engagement in South Africa, and returns in 1908 to the Moss and Stoll Circuit. She is making her appearance this week in the shadow of York Minster, and is amusing anglers and others by the drollery of her original "Fishing" song, from the pen of Bert Delmar.

Mr. Tom Craven, whose prolific pen is seldom at rest, on the strength of the great success of his and Mr. Will Evans' production, The Mystery of the Cliff, has been commissioned to write three new dramatic sketches, one of which will be produced before Christmas.

Miss Maude Odell, who started a successful engagement on Monday as La Statue Humaine at the Palace Theatre, was suddenly compelled to curtail her performance on Wednesday evening, owing to sudden illness. Medical advice was requisitioned, when it was found that the artist was suffering from ptomaine poisoning, the cause of which is at present unknown. Later Miss Odell was conveyed to her residence, suffering great pain. She, however, appeared as usual on Thursday evening.

Miss Juno May, who is 6ft. 2in. in height, weighs eighteen stone, and is only twenty-two, is in strict training as a lady wrestler. She is under the tuition of Mr. Antonio Pierri, and has hitherto thrown all the wrestlers of her own sex who have tried conclusions with her. This magnificent specimen of womanhood is not a Suffragette, so that the police need not be alarmed.

Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, the proprietor of the Royal Albert, Canning Town, will on Thursday and Friday next week give performances in aid of the Seamen's Hospital (Royal Albert Docks Branch). This will be the sixteenth annual entertainment held in aid of the charity mentioned, and in this respect Mr. Hunt is carrying out the promise he made some time ago to continue the favours hitherto extended to the Hospital by the late proprietor of the Royal Albert, Mr. Charles Relf. There will be special attractions for the two nights, many prominent music hall artists having undertaken to give their support.

Mr. Lewis Waller, who, in the most becoming costume of Lincoln green, is "trouncing" malaperts at the Lyric as Robin Hood, may be recommended to read the following witty verse, which we shrewdly suspect is from the pen of Wal Pink. It appears as a pendant to the cast of the Water Rats production of (Cock) Robin Hood at the matinée at the London Pavilion on Monday, Nov. 19, and runs as follows:—

Louisa was a naughty child, who swallowed pins and things,
She swallowed toys, her papa's paints, and mama's cherished rings,
Her "tummy" was a treasure house, to her naught came amiss;
But Louie will indeed be brave if Lewi-sWallers this.

Messrs. St. John Denton and George Rowlands, who scored such a success with The Punch and Judy Girl on the halls, are presenting a lively musical novelty at the Duchess, Balham, on Nov. 12, entitled Mixed Bathing. They have engaged a strong company of principals, including Miss Anita Edis (fresh from her Continental triumphs) and Messrs. Stanley Damerell and Cecil Rutland, supported by the Denton Girls. They have spared no expense in the mounting, and the scene at Madeira is one of the prettiest possible.

Mr. Will Evans and Mr. Harry Randall are among the invalids, the former gentleman being unable to appear on the Stoll tour at the Empire, Cardiff, and the latter being absent from the Oxford, where his place has been most successfully taken by Mr. Will Edwards.

About the third Thursday in November is now named by the directors of the Empire as the most likely date for the first performance of the still unnamed ballet. Mme. Katti Lanner, who has returned to her post as ballet mistress at this theatre, is hard at work arranging the dances, and as the first scene depicts the ballet-room of the Opera House in Paris, Madame should be at home in her task. The second tableau, in which Mlle. Genée has her chance as a novice of filling the place of the absent première danseuse, represents the Gardens of the Seraglio, in which the dancing class is supposed to be rehearsing an Oriental divertissement. In this also Mr. Fred Farren, who in the first tableau is a maitre de danse, appears as the Sultan, and Mr. Sundberg is transformed from a patron of the ballet into a slave dealer. As has already been noted, the music is by Messrs. Cuthbert Clarke and C. Glaser, each doing a moiety.

The Harrison Brothers (comedians) had an unpleasant experience at the Empire, Camberwell, on Friday, the 26th ult., when both of them had their watches, chains, and Masonic pendants stolen. Their attendant for many years, Otto Menotti, had his pockets rifled as well to the tune of five shillings. In the previous week a gold watch and chain and a "Kruger" half-sovereign attached were stolen by the same person. The only "little ray of sunshine" in the matter is the fact that the thief was smartly captured and confessed.

Mr. Sydney Kent, the well-known artist, has supplied a title-page for Mr. Fred Earle's forthcoming ditty, "Birdseed," which will raise many a smile when the song is issued to the trade on Monday. The comedian is depicted standing outside his live-stock depôt, an emporium crowded with seaweed, birdseed, and with dens and cages containing some truly remarkable specimens of ornithology and domestic animals.

Mr. Phil Ramy, descriptive vocalist, who will appear shortly in London at the Camberwell Empire, comes with excellent provincial credentials, and is generally the author or part author of his own songs.

On the evenings of Monday, Nov. 5, and Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Victoria Hall, Waterloo-road, will be produced by Mr. Richard Maynard (by permission of Miss Lilian Baylis) a new and original sketch, entitled Cora (of the Ballet); in the cast will be seen Mr. Trent Adams, Mr. Alexander Bradley, and Miss M. E. Ellis, the lady being seen in the title-rôle.

The Terriers will give their second social of the season on Sunday at the headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster-bridge-road, S.E.

The Theatrical and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council will sit at Newington Sessions House on Monday, and if necessary on Tuesday, to hear applications for the renewal of old licences and the granting of new ones for places of entertainment south of the Thames and under the Council's control. At Clerkenwell Sessions House the Committee deal with places north of the Thames on Monday, Nov. 12. The applicants for new licences include Mr. Walter Gibbons for a music and dancing licence for the Brixton Hippodrome, and Mr. Oswald Stoll for a similar permit for the proposed Empire at Finsbury Park.

Mr. Leo Sterling, of Sterling and Love, is the latest to join the Terriers' Association, being initiated on Sunday last, when Terrier Fred. W. Millis was in the chair.

Mr. Jefferson has had to make additions to his agency staff to cope with the work entailed in negotiating dates for Dr. Walford Bodie. Within two weeks sixty odd towns have been fixed, and many more inquiries have had to be held over pending the Doctor's fulfilment of his American trip. Mr. Jefferson will, by Dr. Bodie's courtesy, extend his energies to London, viâ 163, Blackfriars-road. Notice will be posted to clients in due course.

Lionel Vaughan's company, which is scoring continued success with Stanley Adams's clever sketch In Trouble (late Who's the Culprit?), is topping the bill this week at the Empire, Belfast. On Monday the sketch comes to the Middlesex.

Miss Nellie Gannon (Mrs. Harry Wright) has suffered a severe bereavement by the loss of her mother, who passed away after a short illness on the 18th ult. at Leicester. Unfortunately, Miss Gannon, who was engaged in Dundee, was unable to attend the funeral, but her daughters, Peggy Fame and Gerty Wright were present.

Mr. Henry Carlton, the popular young comedian, has been appearing with enormous success in his own native town of Grimsby this week at the Palace Theatre in his latest success, The Window-Cleaner. Mr. Carlton, who is a keen sportsman, has had some excellent shooting.

It is doubtful if any British comedian has done more globe-trotting than Mr. Tom Woottwell. In 1891, with a burlesque company, he played forty weeks in America, then took a trip to India with the Surprise Party (vaudeville). In 1896 he went to Australia for six months and stayed eighteen (being shipwrecked on the return journey on the Peninsular and Oriental liner China in the Red Sea). The year 1901 he chose for a visit to Italy with an English swimming team; and on returning to Australia in 1902 for six months he stayed twelve. The year 1903 saw him in New Zealand, under the Percy Dix management; in 1904 he played three months in Johannesburg and Cape Town; and next Christmas he returns to America. The Christmas of 1907 he will spend in South Africa.

At the 486th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.B.A. were present Messrs. Clemart, Fred Neiman, Bob Leonard, Douglas White, Jeff Vendome, Albert Voyce, Jack Collinson, Frank Gerald, Charles Coborn, and C. Douglas Stuart. Mr. Clemart presided. Mr. J. Archer Mitchell, of the Melville Hotel, Nicholson-street, Edinburgh, was appointed as agent in that town, and Mr. Sam Young, of the Newtown Hall, Paisley, was also elected agent. It was decided to place £360 to the credit of the current account, in order to pay the amounts to the charities as decided at the general meeting. An important matter is to be discussed at the meeting next Tuesday.

The production of the dainty, old-world comedy of powder and patches, The Lady of the Roses, at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, will be under the personal superintendence of the author, Mr. Hubert Bartlett. A special feature of the production will be a prettily-arranged minuet, with which the sketch concludes.

Marconi invented wireless telegraphy; and at the Alhambra can be seen a system of wireless telepathy of which two Danish Americans, named Agnes and Julius Zancig, are the exponents. In his postered proclamations Mr. George Scott, the manager, quotes Mrs. Lovell's old drama, Ingomar, speaking of the pair as "two souls with but a single thought," and the keenest expert cannot detect the employment of a "code." Mr. Zancig, in a preliminary explanation, states that he and Mme. Zancig are so sympathetic that a thought in his brain is immediately reproduced in hers. The most extraordinary test is the final. Mr. Zancig reads silently an extract selected haphazard from a book, and Mme. many yards away repeats the passage aloud.

Mr. Denman on Tuesday gave his decision at Marlborough-street concerning the artistic illuminated advertisement displayed on the façade of the Palace Theatre. It consisted of a framework of wood, he said, which supported a plaster imitation of a stone wall, with figures of a pierrot and pierrette on it, and with a transparent centre, on which the theatre advertisements were printed, and which were illuminated at night from behind by electric lights. The construction was over 13ft. high, its width was 7ft. 10in., and it projected forward from the wall 2ft. 2in. The London County Council contended that it was a structure, and came within the London Building Act. Counsel for the defence urged that it was not. If the construction had been of stone, it would be held to be a structure; as it was, he must find as a fact that, although flimsy and light, and removable from the wall against which it stood, it was still a structure within the meaning of the Act. He therefore imposed a penalty of 40s., and ordered its removal within fourteen days, and awarded the Council £3 3s. costs. Mr. Edward Davis, who appeared for the Palace Theatre, said that his clients would consult counsel as to an appeal.

St. Mary's Church, Stoke Newington, was on Saturday last the scene of a pretty wedding, when Mr. Charles Ridgwell, the well-known comedian and author-composer, led to the altar Miss Lily Lynn, who was given away by her father, Mr. Harry Lynn, the well-known actor, Mr. Sid Bandon making an imposing figure as best man. Telegrams of congratulation and presents were numerous, and the wedding breakfast at the bride's residence was largely attended by brother and sister artists. Mr. and Mrs. Ridgwell are enjoying a visit to Eastbourne.

The Brewsters, who are meeting with great success at the Teatro Pavellon Soriano, Barcelona, return to England at the end of November.

In the Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Joyce, on Thursday, an application was made by the Empress Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., Brixton, against Frederick John Westcott, better known as Fred Karno, to restrain him from committing a breach of agreement by appearing at Camberwell, which was within two miles of the Empress. Mr. Hughes, who appeared for the applicants, admitted that there was little left but the question of costs. Mr. Younger, for Mr. Karno, considered the agreement most Draconian; a debenture trust deed was nothing to it. In the result the defendant agreed to pay £62 10s. as costs in settlement of the two actions.

"The Drummer of the 76th" still continues to conquer all towns visited. From Manchester it goes to the Empire, Glasgow, where Mr. Matthew Brodie is on his native heath, but promises not to play Napoleon in the Doric.

Ernie Mayne returns to London on Monday, after a starring tour with Oswald Stoll circuit. He is still vacant for pantomime. He was originally booked to play Idle Jack at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, now in liquidation.

At last Sunday's meeting of the International Artists Lodge several matters of interest and importance were discussed. Bro. 1226 again announced the news that the Berlin Executive Committee had granted the secretary in England the power of reinstating members who had been in arrears in their dues, upon repayment and application for readmittance to the Lodge.

Brother 595 called attention to the reports of the Executive at Berlin, where the working of the road shows instituted by the Lodge were discussed. Brother 595 briefly explained that the Dom Fair at Christmas at Leipzig used to be the occasion of the meeting of managers and agents to see artists perform new acts, &c. Various abuses and developments on the non-useful side had rendered this old fair of little use to artists. The Lodge had now started companies of turns which are out of work, and had placed them by hiring the theatres from managers in the small towns of Germany and by obtaining halls in towns where there was no regular place devoted to variety entertainment. The meeting was of the opinion that it would be a good thing to introduce something of the kind in England in towns where there were no recognised high-class music halls. Further discussion was left to a subsequent meeting.

Hardeen, the Handcuff King, on Friday, the 26th ult., had to run the gauntlet of a challenge from two ex-officers of the Colchester Borough Police Force. In a letter to Mr. Ben de Frece, the resident-manager of the Colchester Hippodrome, they challenged Hardeen's ability to release himself from a strait-jacket in use at a local institution. Mr. de Frece accepted on the principal's behalf, and the event aroused unwonted interest and caused an immense audience to assemble. Hardeen allowed the two challengers to strap him into the jacket, which was of a most formidable aspect, and, amidst intense excitement, released himself in fourteen minutes.

In the Chancery Division on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Warrington, a petition by Hugo Baruch et Cie. for the compulsory winding-up of the London Coliseum (Limited) was mentioned, and allowed to stand over for a fortnight. Mr. Waggett, for the petitioners, stated that a long affidavit had been filed by creditors opposing the petition, and he wanted time to answer it.

Mr. Charlie Deane, the comedian whose song "Getting Older" has so much taken the fancy of the public, sails in a fortnight's time for South Africa, where he is to fulfil an engagement lasting some six months.

The following additions to the "Fred Locke Fund" have been received by Mr. J. S. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow: Frank Doyle, 3s.; Lodge Glasgow, St. Mungo (No. 27), £1 15s.; Dan Thomas (219), 10s. 6d.

Lambeth and Robertson are a Scotch couple who present comedy as it really exists north of the Tweed. Mr. Robertson, who is this week at the Leeds Empire, is a descendant of Rob Roy, and he met Miss Lambeth, the Glasgow city organist, in that city, where both had been engaged to render similar parts. Neither artist could agree, and a quarrel resulted. Later a reconciliation took place, a partnership for life was entered into, and the foundation was laid of a realistic little sketch, A Scot's Wooin'. This depicts two lovers indulging in a violent quarrel, and has now been played 700 times in Scotland from the Shetlands to Berwick, and was seen only a few weeks back in London for the first time at the New Cross Empire, where it obtained an enthusiastic reception. The coat Mr. Robertson uses in the sketch is 120 years old, and was worn by Lord Hamilton of Dalzell in 1796.

Mr. Robertson's first experience in London was unique. He was wired for to go to Hastings at short notice. Accordingly he told the guid wife (Miss Lambeth) to pack the trunks and to meet him at Crewe, where he also had a little business to transact. At the great engineering centre he successfully got through his business and went back to the station, only to discover that the train by which his wife was travelling did not stop there. It went through, as a matter of fact, just as he had ascertained the unwelcome news. Mr. R. accordingly caught the next express to Euston, thinking his wife would be awaiting him, but subsequently it transpired that that lady, finding the train go through Crewe, got out at Stafford and went back to Crewe expecting to meet her other half there. Both waited long and anxiously, sent many telegrams to one another to various places, but without discovering each other's whereabouts. Mrs. Robertson did the most sensible thing she could do—put up at the nearest hotel. Not so Mr. Robertson, however.

Arrived at Euston, he discovered to his dismay that he had a cheque for £90 in his possession and 5s. 3d. in coin. It was a Sunday morning—no banks open—and he had to get to Hastings. He went to Charing Cross Station, explained the situation to the stationmaster, showed that individual his contract, his cheque, and his 5s. 3d., asked him to wire to the manager of the pier at Hastings, where the artist was to open on the Monday and which was the property of the S. E. and C. Railway, all in vain. Mr. Robertson had to choose between practically starving all night and the next day or spending the 5s. on a railway ticket to Hastings. He chose the latter course, and proceeded to kill the fourteen hours prior to the train starting and to spend the 3d. over. That sum he got rid of at Short's in a whisky. There he entered into a conversation with a cabman, who, on hearing Mr. R.'s story, stood him another whisky. Mr. R. took that man's number, and every time now that he visits London he wires for the cabman to meet him to drive him to wherever he may be staying. So cabby has not been the loser by his trusting ways.

The same night Mr. R. slept out on the Embankment, and made the acquaintance of another man—a city policeman—who has since become one of his firmest friends. The man in blue first advanced towards him with the intention of ordering him to vacate the seat he had taken. A few words with the comedian convinced him that it was no loafer he had to deal with. And so it came about that the P.C. offered to show Scottie the "toon" by the river at moonlight, an offer that was gratefully accepted. The sights Mr. R. saw, and how he longed to tip the bobby and take pity on the poor waifs en route, and was unable to do so, may be better imagined than described. He spent a night and a day chiefly remarkable for what he learnt and the many pangs of hunger he endured. Penniless, he at last reached Hastings, where he found his wife very anxious, but very happy to get him back safe and sound. The moral of all of which, says Mr. Robertson, is that a millionaire with pockets full of cheque-books and many banking accounts, if he be unknown, may starve in London.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA has acquired a new song, written and composed by Henry F. Greenfield, and entitled "He says he's an astronomer."

MR. ARTHUR LENNARD'S new song, "If I'd been born a girl," by Fred Murray and Charles Hilbury, has been accepted for publication by Messrs. B. Feldman.

MR. DAVID DAY'S firm are just issuing "The New Promenade Waltz," by Jas. Finnigan, which that popular Manchester M.C. and past master in the art of terpsichore has, with the ingenuity which is natural to him, evolved from Chas. Coote's "Enchantress" waltz. Mr. Finnigan's fecundity in inventing new movements, figures, and steps is remarkable.

MESSRS. FRED BAINES and R. P. WESTON have just placed the song "He got the job," which has been made popular by Mr. George Brooks, with Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.

LESTER REEKIE and Harry Lawrence are the author and composer of George Brooks' song "Would you mind passing the salt?" In "That's what they told to me," another of the comedian's songs, Messrs. Keith and Merson have collaborated. Both are published by Francis and Day.

A. J. MILLS and Bennett Scott call the special attention of their numerous clients to the fact that they are now located at No. 9, Charing Cross-road, W. C. (facing the Garrick Theatre), where all may hear their pantomime songs to advantage, and where business is also transacted with artists requiring special songs, scenas, or sketches written.

"SAILING IN MY BALOON!" is fast becoming an epidemic, and looks like being the only serious rival to Mills and Scott's other popular pantomime number, "By the side of the Zuyder Zee."

A VERY fine patriotic song has just been secured by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, entitled "Fighting for the King and Sireland." It is by Edward Montagu, whose rousing song "The dear old shore" will be long remembered.

AMONG other novelties being placed on the market by Messrs. Francis and Day are "Mr. Johnson, I don't want you," by Jack Foley, sung by Miss Louie Herman; "Man and wife should always pull together," by Murphy and Lipton; "It's not the bee that hums the most," by Medley Barrett and Hugh Owen; "Just because you've got a brand-new suit," by C. Collins and Charles Ridgwell; "Won't you float with me in my gondola?" by J. F. Lambe and T. W. Thurban; "Never put off till to-morrow," by Mellor, Gifford, and Lawrance; "Beau Kate," by A. E. Sidney Davis and Herman Darewski, jun.; and "Moon, shine again," by Chas. Ridgwell, now being sung by Mr. Charles Whittle. Mr. Ridgwell, whose "Billy Muggins" is a gem, became a Benedict on Saturday last.

A PANTOMIME song that is likely to achieve great popularity this Christmas, especially in London, has just been issued by Messrs. Price and Reynolds. It is called "Courting at Hampton Court," and is essentially of the popular type. The words are by A. E. Sidney Davis and the music by John Neat.

MISS CARLOTTA LEVEY, who has been making an enormous success in the provinces with Murphy and Lipton's new song, "Don't tell the world your troubles," will introduce the number to town audiences on Monday, when the popular lady opens at the Tivoli. Mr. David Day is publishing it.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE, who has during the week been delighting Shepherd's Bush audiences, has for over three months on the Moss' Empires tour been evoking thunderous plaudits with a trio of songs by that talented trinity of tryers, Messrs. Mellor, Gifford, and Lawrence, namely, "My castle in Spain," "Don't cry, little girl," and "My cosy caravan," and that one firm publishes all three—namely, Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. HENRY E. PETHER, whose barn dances, "Josie" and "Teasing," have added much to the gaiety of ball-rooms, has just completed for Messrs. Francis and Day a third, entitled "Waiting at the church."

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY have recently acquired three new "free" songs from the versatile pens of Messrs. Mellor, Lawrence, and Gifford, entitled, "Don't put off till to-morrow," "Matilda McGee" (another "Irish Molly"), and "The Marsh-Marigold and the Will-o'-the-Wisp."

MESSRS. MELLOR, LAWRANCE, AND GIFFORD, the song-writers, have recently placed the following novelties on the market:—With the Von Tilzer Company, "The blue-bell's wedding" and "No fellow should be without a sweetheart"; with Messrs. Feldman and Co., "I want no other little girl but you"; with Messrs. Reeder and Walsh, "Sailing home"; and with the Monte Carlo Company, "There's a big ship sailing in the morning" and "My chateau on the Rhine." The last number promises to be the "Bamboo bungalow" of next season. All are "free" for the halls and pantomimes.

MR. F. V. ST. CLAIR'S song, "In Chicago," is still a feature in most programmes, and has been on sale in cheap music form in the various halls throughout the provinces. Nearly one hundred thousand copies have already been sold, as many as a thousand copies going in one night at some houses.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., have accepted a new number from Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, entitled "No fellow should be without a sweetheart"; and have also acquired for immediate publication a new song, entitled "You are my girl in the springtime," which Miss Daisy Jerome is singing with great success.

MISS NELL RICHARDSON will feature in her forthcoming engagement at the Palace two songs, entitled "Fair Lady, sigh no more," by J. F. Lambe, and "Moonbeam," the latest American hit. This song, by the way, looks like a big principal girl song for the pantomimes. The two numbers will shortly be issued by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd.

MISS VICTORIA MONKS has found another big winner in her new coon song, "I'm leaving home," which bids fair to eclipse the popularity of "Take me back to London Town." The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., are the publishers of both.

MESSRS. HARRINGTON AND TATE have been busily engaged during the past week on some new and novel songs for the "Queen of Comedy," Miss Marie Lloyd, which she purposes producing in London at an early date. The Monte Carlo Publishing Company will shortly issue this talented artist's great success, "Customs of the country," in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company are by way of issuing a novel topical duet, for dame and principal boy, entitled "Whom shall we invite to the party?" by Fred Terry and Gilbert Wells. There are no less than thirteen verses, and every conceivable topic of interest is embraced therein. All pantomime producers on the look-out for a novelty should secure this highly-original and "taking" number.

MARIE LLOYD'S WEDDING.

It was far more amusing than the average music hall entertainment, was this wedding of Miss Marie Lloyd with Mr. Alec Hurley. The actual ceremony which de jure bound the two famous artists together took place on Saturday morning before the Registrar (Mr. Herbert E. Bridgen) at Hampstead Town Tall, outside which a large crowd, who did not seem to regard the function in anything like a serious light, had congregated. Some thirty motor-cars took the entire bridal party to Haverstock Hill, and from there to the Gaiety Restaurant, for the reception.

The bride's gown was a very beautiful creation. She wore a corselet skirt of the finest pearl-grey cloth, with rich cape and stole of ermine, with muff to correspond, and in the latter was clustered a large knot of pink carnations. Her toque was likewise of ermine, with a panache of grey feathers, and she wore with it a long white curtain veil. Mr. Sam Poluski and Mr. Tom Macnaughton were the groomsmen, although they preferred to designate themselves bridesmaids.

THE WEDDING CAKE BY BUSZARD.

From the Hampstead Town Hall to the Gaiety Restaurant the bridal party was escorted by a gallant corps of enthusiastic budding warriors belonging to one of the boys' brigades Outside the restaurant in the Strand a curious crowd had foregathered, and the approach of the bride and bridegroom was hailed with considerable cheering and a good deal of gentle jesting. The reception-room provided an animated spectacle. There were from 150 to 200 people present, among them being, in addition to those already named, Mr. and Mrs. Wood (parents of the bride), Miss Alice Lloyd, Miss Rosie Lloyd, Miss Annie Wood, Miss Maudie Wood, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood, Miss Marie Courtney, Mr. Sydney Wood, Mrs. Dick Burge, Mr. Tom Claxton, Mr. Nelson Francis, Mr. H. Aylin, Mr. and Mrs. B. Sayers, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nathan, Miss Claire Romaine, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Elen, Miss Alexandra Dagmar, Mr. Henry Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. George Foster, Mr. Chas. Blyth-Pratt, Mr. Albert Gilmer, Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. W. Newhouse, Miss Lily Lena, Mr. Charles Hector, Mr. Malcolm Scott, Mr. Jack de Frece, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Romaine, Mr. Fred M'Avoy, Mr. Willie Clarkson, Miss Ruby Celeste, Mr. Leon Zeitlin, Mr. Bernard Marks, Mr. W. C. Barber, Captain Young, Mrs. Sister, Mr. Joe Blessedale, Mr. J. Morrell, Mr. Alfred Butt, Mr. Hugh J. Didcott, Mr. Orlando Powell, Mr. George Arthurs, Mr. James Howell, Mr. Joseph Wilson, Mr. Harry Masters, Mr. Harry Parker, Mr. James Finney, Mr. Fred Miller, Mr. Basil Lawrence, Mr. Mark Leslie, Miss Louie Lytton, Miss Carrie Moore, Miss Lucy Weston, Miss Queenie Nathan, Miss Rose Hamilton, Mr. Fred McNaughton, Mr. Robert Levier, Dr. Lang, Mr. Sydney Joussiffe, Mr. Jack Clarke, Mr. James Brown, Mr. Burgess, Mr. George Walmer, Mr. Billy Doyle, Mr. George Fraser, Mr. Gainsborough, Mr. Fragson, Mrs. Geo. Le Brun, Mrs. Keddie, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. A. Bishop, Mr. Luigi, Mrs. James Tate, Miss Alda Martini, and Miss Alice Wilson.

The cake, which weighed nearly 100lbs., was decorated by white sugar sprays of convolvulus, geranium, azalea, and phlox, was cut amid great cheering. Then the speech-making began. Captain Sheen, in a few well-chosen words, proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom; and standing upon a sort of dais in the centre of the room, surrounded by the admiring guests, who fairly crushed one another in their desire to secure an affectionate proximity to the honoured couple, Mr. and Mrs. Hurley were compelled to reply to the demand for a speech.

Mrs. Hurley made a characteristic address, in which she said she was proud of her husband. She hoped for a few years longer to amuse the public on the music hall stage, "then we shall settle down at one of those roadside hostelries where the motor-cars pass by and never stop, and I shall say to my old man, 'Put up the shutters, and we'll go out on horseback.' And now, ladies and gentlemen," she concluded, "I thank you very much for turning up here to-day to wish us good health. I'm not going to invite you again, so don't worry yourselves."

Mr. Tom Macnaughton and Mr. Sam Poluski considering themselves to be the "bridesmaids," spoke on behalf of those charming creatures, and added to the afternoon's fun. Mr. Arthur Roberts also delivered an entertaining speech.

Mr. Malcolm Scott, who hazarded the statement that he was replying on behalf of the ladies, propounded a conundrum—"Why was Alec Hurley?" and answered it himself in the words, "In order to Marie Lloyd." Proceeding, Mr. Scott remarked that in order to be successful on the music hall stage, it was necessary to have a song which concluded with something about coons or cake walks. Then he relieved himself of the following lines in his best "woman-that-knows" style:—

THE DISAPPOINTED SOUBRETTE.

I've never had a date with Moss and Thornton,
I've never had a telegram from Stoll,
I've never been engaged at the Alhambra,
I've never sung a song about a dancing doll;
I've never been engaged by Mr. Willard,
Inside the Empire I have never been;
I'm fat and discontented, but I don't care if it snows,
For I'm your dusky, pale-faced queen.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

DEAR SIR,—Will you very kindly oblige by inserting the enclosed letter in next Saturday's issue of The Era as an expression of goodwill and congratulation towards Marie Lloyd from her admirers in Eastbourne? Thanking you in anticipation, believe me, dear Sir, yours very truly,

CATHERINE WEBB.

Eastbourne, Oct. 29.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MARIE LLOYD.

(MRS. ALEC HURLEY).

DEAR MARIE LLOYD,—There has been a generally-expressed wish by your numerous admirers in Eastbourne to convey their congratulations upon your marriage, with good wishes for your long-continued happiness. I have undertaken to voice these sentiments, although we live in hope that ere long they may be expressed in person, for I can assure you if ever she does visit this town, a true and loyal welcome will await the "Queen of the Halls."

You have made yourself the people's idol as much by your British industry and pluck as by the talents which you possess in such brilliant measure; to you has been vouchsafed the great power of charming people out of their sadness and care, and your infectious gaiety has cheered many a heart. In return, it is not too much to hope that your life may now be full of sunshine and untouched with care. This wish loyally greets you from Eastbourne, with many another as true and hearty for yourself and your husband.—Believe me, always sincerely yours,

CATHERINE WEBB.

TO MARIE AND ALEC.

(On their Wedding-Day, Oct. 27, 1906.)

Marie, dear friend, on this, your wedding-day,
A heart-felt wish I'll offer, if I may;
Your life, I trust, will ever joyous be,

Happy and prosperous and sorrow-free!
Alec, old boy, let your well-wisher true
Pleasure now find, congratulating you.
Proud, proud, indeed, methinks you ought to be,
In wedding our sweet Queen of Comedy.
Nobly stand by her, in all stress and storm,
Eager to shield her, with affection warm.
Side by side standing, when the skies are bright,
Side by side still, when sunshine yields to night!

So may you live, true husband and true wife,
Making a rose-bow'r of the path of life,
Hummed by the sun of Love divine,
Lustrously shining, where the roses twine;
Each loving each—each to the other true—

Oh! may Life's choicest flowers bloom for you!
Never may shadows gloom the path you tread,

Your lives as blissful as the day you wed.
Over those lives may True Love wave her wand,
United, in a sweet and life-long bond!

All honour, all success, to both of you!
Laurels of Fame bedeck your brows anew.
Language is weak, as I sit, pen in hand;

Yet, friends of many years, you'll understand!
Oh! that I could but join the merry throng,
United subjects of our Queen of Song!
Rigorous illness keeps me to my chair:

Let me in spirit, if not form, be there.
I wish you all that heart can wish: Good health,
Very much pleasure, fame, success, and wealth.
Ever the best of husbands—best of wives,
Sweet Happiness smile on you all your lives!

JOHN P. HARRINGTON.

QUEEN'S PALACE.

The biggest contribution to the programme at the Queen's this week is furnished by Mr. Fred G. Brooke and Miss Dora Deane's new dramatic episode, entitled

"THE DESTROYERS."

Henry Carfax ..... MR. FRED MORGAN.
Stephen Bryce ..... MR. FRED G. BROOKE
Dr. Kelway ..... MR. HARRY HILLIER
Prof. Houseman ..... MR. RICHARD COWELL
May Houseman ..... MISS ISLA GARNET VAYNE
Diana Carfax ..... MISS DORA DEANE

Out of the scores of sketches written by Mr. Fred G. Brooke and Miss Dora Deane, The Destroyers may be put down as one of their best efforts. Some originality is shown in the plot and in the manner of weaving it into a stage story. Twenty years previous to the time at which the play opens, Professor Houseman, an inventor, had invented a wonderful explosive. Henry Carfax, a ruined financier, proposes to purchase the patent, and after an agreement has been arranged between him and Houseman as to the price, he gives the inventor a cheque, which is not worth the paper it is written on. Houseman denounces Carfax for playing such a trick upon him, and in a violent scene the financier assaults the inventor, while Carfax's private secretary, Stephen Bryce, also attempts to secure the formula of the explosive, and in a dastardly manner blinds Houseman. Later there is a quarrel between Carfax and Bryce. The former discovers that his secretary has committed forgery in respect of a cheque, and the incriminating document is in the possession of the financier. Quite accidentally, and without any knowledge of her father's transactions, Miss Carfax is brought into contact with Houseman, to whom and to whose daughter she affords the shelter of Carfax Hall. Bryce succeeds in rendering Carfax insensible by means of a drug, and then gets possession of the fateful forged cheque. He drops it on the floor, and, in an instant, when his back is turned, Dr. Kelway, who has been a silent witness of the proceedings, picks it up and substitutes for it another, which Bryce, believing it to be the one he took from the pocket of his employer, burns. However, his revenge is apparently not complete yet. He incites Houseman to avenge the loss of his sight upon the financier by blinding him with vitriol. Leading the blind inventor to the chair in which Carfax sits in an unconscious state, he directs Houseman's hand which holds the glass containing the destructive liquid. Carfax recovers just in time to prevent the deed being committed, and gives the old man a heavy blow which fells him senseless to the ground. Dr. Kelway, however, restores Houseman, who regains his sight with the shock. He immediately recognises in Bryce the man who has done him so much injury, and Bryce, fearing the legal consequences of his various misdeeds, including the forgery, evidence of which, to his surprise, is still in existence, shoots himself after being struck blind by a flash of lightning. To Mr. Fred G. Brooke falls the most arduous task set to the members of the company. He plays the part of Stephen Bryce with thrilling dramatic force, and as a persuasive and accomplished villain he would be hard to beat. An interesting character-study is presented by Mr. Richard Cowell as the aged and blind inventor, and Mr. Fred Morgan acts with subtlety in the rôle of Carfax. Miss Dora Deane submits a particularly pleasing portraiture of the good-hearted and benevolent daughter of the financier, and Miss Isla Garnet Vayne is winsome and engaging as May Houseman. Mr. Harry Hillier acquits himself creditably as the doctor. The sketch is extremely well mounted.

Excellent material is to be found in the rest of the programme. Miss Daisy Jerome's imitations of the greetings characteristic of the people of different nationalities, and her song about a little ragged urchin who stands outside a house in Park-lane wistfully watching a dinner-party, as well as the verses anent "a little pat of butter on the floor," which causes so many people to slip, form an attractive portion of the evening's entertainment. Miss Jerome is a versatile comedienne whose abilities have long been recognised. Miss Rose Hamilton discourses in entertaining fashion about members of West End clubs, concluding with a song about the "greatest of clubmen, the King." In Miss Maud Esmond we have a charming burlesque artist and vocalist, her songs, "You can't stop the sun from shining" and "Remember me to mother dear," being rendered in an expressive and sympathetic manner. The Gregson Comedy Trio make for merriment with their original speciality act, The Dummy. The whole turn is exceedingly funny, the doll duet being particularly amusing. Mr. Charlie Deane has a song with a moral in "Getting older," in which he points to the necessity, as the years roll on, of making provision for a helpless old age. The verses are sung in the right sympathetic strain, and are highly appreciated by the audience. The Brothers Corcoran, who, we learn, were formerly employed in the shipbuilding trade at the Thompson Shipyard, Sunderland, prove themselves to be capable instrumentalists. They give a fine performance of popular airs, including "Sing me to sleep" and "A little boy called Taps." The Swift Trio are seen and admired in an amazingly smart cycling act, and Happy Fritz, the Dutch boy, submits an attractive speciality dancing turn. The coloured pictures presented by the New Bioscope on the subject of "Mephisto's Son; or, A Night in Paris," are both interesting and vividly descriptive. Mr. Jack Woolf attends in his usual strenuous manner to the requirements of the establishment, and in the arrangements thereof are to be found evidence of his sound judgment and painstaking labours.

MR. HARRY CONLIN has settled pantomime with Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, of Edinburgh.

MUSIC HALL LADIES' GUILD.

This, the latest society for the assistance of the wives of artists who are in need of help through various causes, is now in working order. The officers of the society are among the most prominent of our lady artists, whilst the indefatigable secretary is Miss Anna de Grey, to whom all inquiries should be addressed at 69, Primrose Mansions, Prince of Wales'-road, Battersea Park. Messrs. J. B. Roberts and Co., of 312, Regent-street, W., have been appointed the solicitors to the society. We feel sure its work will be ennobled by the generosity of the women of the profession, who will be guided by delicacy and tact in their administration of relief to necessitous wives and children. Donations of clothing from Mrs. Stratton Mills, Miss Lilian Lea, Miss L. Burnand, Mrs. Ginnett, Sisters Slater.

THE offers from ladies who desire to assist at the matinée at the Canterbury on Nov. 27 are coming in very freely. Seats can be now secured at the box office or on application to Mr. Fred Miller. The advertisement inserted by the Guild in The Era of last week has resulted in an engagement being obtained for a necessitous artist. Any lady wishing to join the Guild will please address Miss De Grey, 69, Primrose-mansions, Prince of Wales's-road, Battersea. Gifts of children's boots and shoes and clothing will be gladly received and judiciously allotted.

MR. TOM MELLOR, in conjunction with Mr. Ernest Leathley, will shortly be seen on the London variety stage in a novel and original act, entitled "My latest song." Some of the best-known agents are on the qui vive. The novelty is, we understand, by Mr. Mellor himself, who was partly responsible for "The wooden hut" rage and the "Bamboo bungalow" craze.

MR. DONALD HALL, a recruit from the regular stage, will shortly produce at a West End hall Mills and Scott's charming descriptive ballad, "Will you dance with me, Marie?" This song reverts to the style made popular by the late Chas. Godfrey. The melody is plaintive, and occasionally passionate, and lingers pleasantly in the ear.

"SKYLAND," by Harrington and Tate, with which Mr. Charles McNaughton is making such a phenomenal success in The Belle of Mayfair, on tour, is being eagerly snapped up by pantomime producers, who "know a good thing when they see it," and already it has been "booked" for Liverpool and other important cities. It certainly promises to be the favourite topical song of the year. The Monte Carlo Publishing Company, who issue the song, are charging a fee for pantomimes.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company's newest publication, a coon motto song, "You don't miss de water," by Harrington and Tate, which is being "featured" on the "halls" by Mesdames Frances Letty and Esta Stella, bids fair to become one of this pantomime season's greatest "hits." Although the firm is charging a fee, it has been accepted by such good judges as Mr. F. W. Wyndham for his various theatres, Mr. Herbert Cottesmore for the Shakespeare, Liverpool, and many other prominent pantomime producers.

MISS ALICE LLOYD has been scoring very heavily at the Palace, Hammersmith, during the past week with the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's highly-successful song, "Queen of Old Samara," written and composed by J. F. Lambe. Miss Lilian Doreen is also singing this tuneful number at all her engagements with conspicuous success. The pantomime demands for this song have already been unprecedentedly great.

MISS CLARICE MAYNE will, on Monday next, sing two of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's songs—viz., "She didn't come from Borneo," by Paul Pelham, Newton Butts, and Herbert Rule, and "You don't miss de water," by Harrington and Tate, both at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue (where she starts a fresh six weeks' engagement), and the Empire, Hackney. Miss Rose Hamilton will also sing "She didn't come from Borneo" in the halls, and will make a special feature of "Queen of Old Samara" in pantomime at Glasgow.

MR. ALF. GIOVANNELLI has been engaged as clown by Mr. Samuel James in one of his next Christmas productions. This makes Mr. Giovannelli's fifth season as an impersonator of Joey.

MR. GODFREY A. YATES, the well-known agent, owing to the increase of his business, has taken larger offices, close to all stations and theatres, at 41, Mount-pleasant, Liverpool.

MISS LENA VERDI, who is meeting with great success on tour, goes to the Crown Theatre, Peckham, for pantomime, to play Gretchen in Mother Goose.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD.

To Miss Marie Lloyd Mr. Blyth-Pratt gives the proud title of "queen of all comediennes." The little woman is pre-eminently a British product, and without the coaching and training of schools has grown into a great artist by the sheer force of genius. She resembles Judic in her audacity, and her seemingly unconscious accentuation of the sauciest lines is quite French also. One may note this in her first song, "The custom of the country"—which, by the way, is quite as successful at the Oxford as it is elsewhere; and there is quite a world of meaning in her utterance of the cabalistic phrase, "Tiddley-om-pom-pom," which forms the refrain of the inimitable Marie's song as the Cockney-Espana señorita, with a keen sense of the amenities of civilisation in a southern clime. A characteristic touch of Iberian civilisation is a suggestion of the barbaric in just a taste of the Moorish dance. In another number the popular favourite imparts to the audience her confidences as a lady susceptible to the gallantries of an adorable stranger on a railway journey. Miss Lloyd had a very warm greeting on Monday, when she had just returned from her short honeymoon, and by their persistent applause the audience sounded a note of congratulation which must have been very gratifying to her.

Mr. Harry Randall has unfortunately been absent for several nights through indisposition; and on the evening of our visit his place on the programme was filled by Mr. Will Edwards, who found plenty of appreciation for his comic description of a "beano." In his final contribution he detailed the delirious and erratic fancies of a nightmare, in the course of which the sufferer is supposed to harangue his "fellow gaol-birds and brother sherbert-shifters." In this humorous number he scored most unmistakably, and his success is all the more creditable as he won it under the anonymity of the word "deputy." Mr. Ernest Shand has another curate song—this time with the text "Dearly Beloved"—and the adventures of the "unworldly" person give rise to shouts of laughter, which are continued while Ernest of the voluminous coat remarks "What weather we're having!" with sundry embellishments that have nothing whatever to do with meteorology. Brown and Le Clerq again prove that the public can never tire of good sketch by the reception they get in that crusted specimen of negro farce, entitled Black Justice, with the success of which "Big Ben," at any rate, has been associated for something like thirty years. Comedy of the Dutch-American pattern seems to have been most successfully acclimatised by Fanny Fields, who is, however, not quite happy when she introduces gags concerning St. Peter and Paradise. It is injudicious and without a particle of the real wholesome fun that is to be discovered, for instance, in the duologue turn of the Poluskis, who go for "laughs," and see that they get them.

A turn cast in an original mould is that presented by the smart acrobatic Mackweys, whose knockabout act on the wire and on terra firma is just the very thing for a pantomime. The business throughout is indescribable, but is very laughable and—when first one of the partners and then the other slides from the stage and drops into the auditorium just behind the orchestra—sensational. If the Mackweys escape serious injury in their business it is certainly from no lack of energy. Doody and Wright amuse early comers, who also appreciate the turn of Miss Edie King, recently described in our columns. Miss Alexandra Dagmar, with her fine physique and admirable voice, is very entertaining as a Viennese soubrette; Miss Annie Purcell's success as a vocalist is thoroughly deserved; Mr. Russell Wallett is diverting as "The Lady in Black"; Mr. T. E. Dunville's mirthful manifestations are of the true Dunvillian brand; and the programme has other attractions in Hackenschmidt, George Bastow, the Stella Troupe, and Arthur Roberts and Co. in The Woman Who Was.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

The usual large and delighted audiences assemble here nightly to enjoy the very liberal and carefully-selected bill of fare provided for their delectation by the enterprising management of this popular resort. Loud laughter and prolonged applause is the order of the night at every performance. The most remarkable turn on the bill is that of Miss Kate Carney, who is accorded at every house the great reception which she always gets at this establishment. Miss Carney first sings in her own inimitable style "I am coming back to you," in which she is warmly applauded, and then appears in her latest production, entitled Brighton Promenade, supported by fifty artists. The famous Coster Queen is as bright and vivacious as ever, and is, if possible, even a greater favourite here. Mezzetti and Mora, in a comedy triple-bar performance, prove themselves artists of exceptional excellence on the horizontal bar; Charles R. Whittle, billed as a peculiarly quaint and taking comedian, fully deserves this description, and in his songs, entitled "Nothing like this" and "Billy Muggins," causes much hearty laughter. Ted and May Hopkins, the Welsh comedy couple, sing of Cambrian courtship in a manner to provoke much merriment, and their dialogue is smart and novel.

Miss Daisy O'Malley dances with much grace and agility, and is a warm favourite, her singing of "Rosie McKee" being especially good. Barton and Ashley's quaint comedy turn evokes roars of laughter, their patter being really funny.

Arthur Reece makes a very welcome appearance here, and in "When there's a girl about" has found a song peculiarly adapted to his own style of interpretation, the popular comedian being well received. The Stein-Eretto Troupe give a really marvellous exhibition of skill, and their wonderful speciality, viz., that of jumping to the top of three tables on both hands, calls forth tumultuous applause. Miss Amy Sullivan is also included in the programme and proves herself an attractive and charming comedienne.

Another welcome feature in the generous bill is the American Bioscope, which exhibits many amusing and interesting pictures, including the Fishguard route to Ireland, &c., and these pictures are now an established turn in many variety theatres and prove most enjoyable to the majority of those present. The splendid orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Louis la Rondelle, "discourse most excellent music." The overture, "Poet and Peasant," being admirably rendered. The managing director must be congratulated on the skill which week after week enables him to find a succession of artistes so thoroughly suited to the taste of his patrons, and Mr. Ernest Bridgen, the popular resident-manager, must be complimented on the admirable order maintained in front of the house and on the courteous and obliging demeanour of all his staff.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

The most important item in the current bill at the Islington Empire is the dramatic sketch, entitled My Pal Jerry, a sequel to The Bloomsbury Burglars, by Messrs. H. Boden and Lew Lake. The first scene represents the Central Criminal Court, and the two pals Jerry and Nobbler, are being tried for burglary. Most of the proceedings are uproariously comic, the two prisoners interrupting judge, counsel, and witnesses in the most outrageous manner possible. The unfortunate constable who took the men into custody bears conspicuous marks of the rough usage he met with at their hands; and even the court officials are not exempt from their violent and unprovoked attacks. However, the disorderly behaviour of the prisoners, strangely tolerated by the Judge, who is addressed as "Old Father Christmas," is the cause of incessant merriment on the part of the audience. The more farcical the doings in Court the heartier becomes the laughter; but all the same this portion of the sketch might be shortened with advantage. In the next scene—Pentonville Prison—the pals, though confined in their respective cells, hold an animated conversation, and while one is visited by his "donah" the other receives the sympathetic attentions of his wife and some half dozen children. The scene is also enlivened by a row between the two ladies. The pals are next found at the Portland quarries, where a riot takes place, and they make their escape. But Jerry is mortally wounded by a shot from the gun of a warder, and the sketch concludes with a most pathetic and touching death scene. Nobbler, although the prison officials are in active pursuit, refuses to leave the side of his dying pal, and consequently is caught and handcuffed, previous to being taken back to prison. The sketch is well played by Mr. Lew Lake and his associates, and is most effectively staged.

Mr. Tom Leamore, a comedian who is well known in North London, sings his ditties, "The prodigal son" and "Rufus" with all his old success, finishing with an eccentric dance that elicits quite a storm of applause. The famous Abdullah Arabs are here this week, and their skill in the formation of human pyramids is acknowledged by loud applause. Equally wonderful are their tumbling feats, which they perform to the accompaniment of wild ejaculations and encouraging shouts from the members of the troupe who are for the time being spectators only. Mr. Dennis Drew is the central figure in his scena, A Bit of a Soldier, and his robust rendering of a military song is deserving of much praise. He is supported by a chorus of soldier lads, the smallest of whom takes the command, to the amusement of the audience. A capital performance is given by Dezmonti and Mora in their comedy bar act. Mora is a funny little fellow, who is also clever in his business. Dezmonti's work on the bar is marked by much skill, and he is also graceful in his movements. The combination is an excellent one, and the turn is warmly appreciated. The Sisters Jonghmanns sing in their usual pleasing and artistic style "Manitoba" and "Eileen Alannah"; Mr. Walter Stanley, comedian, has a successful ditty in "I'm glad I live in England." Hicks' Clerks shine both as vocalists and comedians; Miss Edie King, comedienne and dancer, gracefully illustrates national dances; Mr. Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian, is also in the bill, and "How the jail birds flew" is presented by the bioscope. In the absence of Mr. J. L. Wilson, Mr. Harry Blight, acting-manager, looks carefully after the front of the house.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

Talent in brilliant array is this week presented at the Camberwell hall, the programme at which might well be said to match the entire evening's show at variety houses of more remote days. A sketch on an elaborate scale is found in The Mystery of the Cliff, which had its initial representation at the Bedford a fortnight ago. The little piece represents Mr. Will Evans, so widely popular as a humorist, in the light of a pathetic writer, in collaboration with that practised playwright, Mr. Tom Craven. The sketch deals with an incident on the sea-coast, in which an adventuress, foiled in her endeavours at blackmail, pushes an old man over a cliff, allowing the odium of the crime to rest upon the shoulders of the victim's son. A local clergyman with a mania for taking snapshots ingeniously conceives the occurrence, and reproduces it at a cinematograph entertainment in the schoolroom. A dramatic moment is reached when the picture is displayed on the screen, and the guilty woman, who is present among the audience, collapses in terror. The part of a naval lieutenant affords opportunity for Mr. Ernest Leicester to appear at his best, and his virile acting and forcible delivery gain the heartiest appreciation. Miss Violet Fulton represents the adventuress with concentrated passion and deep intensity, and Miss Cissy Farrell plays with gentleness and refinement as the village schoolmistress. Comedy is furnished at the hands of Mr. Sid Craven as an eccentric curate and Miss Jessica Lait as his sweetheart, and Mr. Archibald McLean acts powerfully as the luckless father. The sketch, which contains three scenes, is beautifully mounted, and a handsome oil-painting of the chief scene which graces the vestibule of the hall excites much comment.

Comedy of the lightest and brightest kind is provided in Hooked by Crook, a trifle presented by Mr. Homer B. Mason and Miss Marguerite Keeler. The little piece is highly diverting, Mr. Mason exercising a constantly hilarious effect as a light-hearted burglar, who gives novel imitations at the piano, and Miss Keeler acting with charm and delicacy as a young fiancée, her lover being played in excellent style by Mr. Henry Travers. Collins and Rice also have a slight sketch representative of an actress's dressing-room, and laughter loud and long comes of its presentation, while a comic recitation at the end, in which the lady joins, is effectively rendered.

The popularity of Verno and Voyce is well maintained in their episode of the newsboy and the naval officer, the powerful voice of one member of the duo and the clever string of verses on popular periodicals reeled off by his partner meeting with enthusiastic acknowledgment. The Athos Troupe provoke admiration for the wonderful way in which they juggle with balls bounced on the stage, an innumerable number being kept going in this way by a trio of performers. Their acrobatic feats are also skilfully executed, especially notable being a series of what might be termed head-tumbling by one member of the troupe. Vocal obbligatos are given to their musical selections by Barton and Franklin, who appear in handsome Scottish uniforms. They extract melody from bamboo bells, render the prison scene from Il Trovatore on concertinas, and perform Sullivan's "Lost Chord" impressively on bells and tubes. An encore is loudly demanded, and a spirited sand-dance gives evidence of uncommon versatility. Tennyson and Wallis, who are in the programme of the first house, deputised on Wednesday at the second for Mr. Pat Rafferty, and put the assembly into the heartiest mirth with their "cross-talk," which has an agreeably original flavour, while their duet, "When they get old," has sentiment as well as humour. Mr. Jack Lane, as a yokel, indulges in some funny "patter," which keeps the house highly amused. Miss Sylvia Du Barri's cultivated soprano is heard agreeably in a "Toreador" song and in "Sing me to sleep," the ballads being rendered with such feeling as to win the warmest applause. Miss Lily Lena sings a couple of songs in the smartest style, the three Sisters Silcott make the jolliest "Middies" imaginable, and dance with rare neatness, and the well-varied pictures on Vernon's Bioscope create great interest. Mr. Leon A. Bassett controls his musical staff with his customary judicious care; Mr. P. A. Lennon is tactful and untiring in the discharge of his duties as manager; while Mr. J. J. Fruin at his post of observation in the box-office has the pleasure of welcoming the rush of patrons which nightly occurs at the opening of the doors.

MISS RAY MASKELL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you kindly correct a report in circulation to the effect that I have received a sum of money from the V.A.F. as a death levy for the late Eddie Harvey? This is entirely wrong, as I have not had one penny. I was promised a certain amount, but up to the present I have not received it.

I should like this fact made public in order to put a stop to further false reports.—Yours faithfully,

RAY MASKELL.

BANQUET TO MR. T. P. O'CONNOR, M.P.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., was banqueted at the Hotel Astor, New York, on the 19th ult., by the Music Publishers' Association of the United States. The "college room," where the publishers assembled to honour their distinguished guest, whose notable achievement in connection with uniting all factions in Parliament and securing their endorsement in the passage of the new Copyright Bill they wished especially to commend and commemorate, was suitably decorated for the occasion. Mr. J. F. Bowers, president of the association, presided, and in a few neat, tactful, and appropriate remarks introduced Mr. O'Connor, whose formal address on the copyright situation as existing in the United Kingdom, and his detailed narrative of how Bills are brought before and obstructed in Parliament, together with his many witty sallies apropos of the subject, was listened to attentively and greatly relished, generous applause greeting his telling points, which were frequent and neatly turned. At the close of his address Mr. O'Connor was presented with a set of laudatory resolutions on behalf of the association. They are to be artistically engrossed and forwarded to the recipient, who acknowledged the honour in a brief and graceful rejoinder.

The entire affair was managed in excellent taste, and the work leading up to this very satisfactory result was accomplished only after rapid, strenuous, and untiring work on the part of a number of New York publishers, who took the initiative and assumed the responsibility until relieved by the executive committee of the association. Friday last Isidore Witmark, of M. Witmark and Son, Fred B. Haviland, of the F. B. Haviland Publishing Co., and Leo Feist held an informal conference as to ways and means and the scope of the proposed function. Believing it too important an occasion to confine its observance to the local publishers, they wired President Bowers in Chicago to preside. He accepted promptly, and notified Secretary Bayly in Washington, D.C. In the meantime Mr. O'Connor had returned to New York, and on being waited upon expressed his pleasure in accepting an invitation to meet the publishers, to whom he would gladly give an entire evening, as he considered it too significant an occurrence to accord less time, and therefore would cancel any engagement that his numerous friends and political allies were constantly making, for his every working hour evidently—night and day—had been parcelled out. Subsequently, Friday (the 19th ult.) was substituted to suit the convenience of the guest, when a special committee waited upon him, escorting him from his hotel to the Astor banquet room.

In the meantime the publishers of New York were personally canvassed, and nine-tenths immediately pledged their hearty co-operation. The executive committee held its first meeting Tuesday, the following being present:—J. L. Tindale, of G. Schirmer; Leo Feist; Jay Witmark, of M. Witmark and Sons, and E. T. Paull, of E. T. Paull Music Co.; B. S. Cragin, of Charles H. Ditson and Co.; Isidore Witmark, of M. Witmark and Sons; and Nathan Burkan, attorney for the association, were invited to participate. Letters had been despatched to out-of-town members, and such other essential work as was already under way was detailed and approved. In the afternoon Messrs. Feist and Burkan, as a committee, called upon Mr. O'Connor at the Prince George Hotel, where he was sojourning during his stay in the city, when the formal invitation from the association was tendered and pleasantly accepted.

On Thursday, the 18th ult., a second conference of the full committee was held at the Hotel Manhattan, President Bowers in the chair. Messrs. Walter M. Bacon, with White-Smith Publishing Co.; George W. Furniss, with Oliver Ditson Co., Boston; Walter S. Fischer, of Carl Fischer, New York; and Chas. B. Bayly, the missing members at the first meeting, in attendance. The final arrangements were then completed.

LONDON ENTERTAINMENTS' PROTECTION SOCIETY.

A largely attended meeting of members of the London Entertainments' Protection Society was held on Wednesday to consider their position with regard to music-hall sketches in view of recent proceedings. Last week Mr. Graydon, of the Middlesex, and Mr. Gros, of the Metropolitan, were prosecuted for performing stage plays in a place not licensed for such performances, and were mulcted in costs. Mr. George Adney Payne, Tivoli and Oxford, states that it has been decided to secure adequate representation before the Courts for the artists affected by this persecution. He would not call it merely prosecution.

MISS DAISY JAMES, through our columns, desires to thank everyone for their kind expressions of sympathy with her in her recent sad bereavement.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

There is a time-honoured impression that "old friends are the best," and it would seem to be verified in the programme that Mr. Arthur J. Barclay is enabled to present here for the current week. Out of the ten "numbers" announced on the bill five are familiar favourites, while another—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope—had not a look in on Monday night owing to lack of time. It may be well to begin with the boys (and girl) of the old brigade, leaving the absolute novelties to the end. Mr. Dave O'Toole sings a couple of songs in his own dry manner, and is well received. A very popular "turn" is that of Miss May Mars, who, appearing first in the tights of orthodox fashion, sings capitally an appropriate song, and afterwards gives her picturesque embodiment of a Cleopatra-like lady, with the scene representing the Pyramids and the Sphinx. The statuesque grace of the singer and her fine declamatory style are productive of much enjoyment. Miss Mars richly deserves the great applause with which her performance is greeted. Terry and Bentley repeat an act that has made them popular here before now. The couple sing well, dance well, and look well; while the acrobatic performance of the gentleman elicits unstinted applause. Another well-tried favourite is Mr. Charles Mildare, whose whistling proclivities have been tested and not found wanting on several occasions. Mr. Mildare's imitations of various birds are marvellously true, and afford the most unbounded delight. A turn that has before now won favour here is that of Stirling and Love. The command of various instruments possessed by the gentleman is simply wonderful, while the lady sings agreeably. Together they manage to produce an artistic and animated show.

A large portion of the time allotted to each performance nightly is occupied by the sensational sketch, Grip; or, the Fatal Hand, played by George Kirk and his company. This is the story of a young woman tempted by the wicked devices of evildoers to desert her lover the moment a flimsy pretext is presented to her, and to marry the villain-in-chief, who, with his accomplice in crime (a lady), only want Alice to act as a decoy at their gambling-house. Of course, before the final fall of the curtain the rough places are made smooth, and justice is meted out all round, chiefly owing to the doings of a "man with three fingers" called Grip and a little girl of the "slavey" order named Judy. The piece is effective enough in its way, and is cleverly played by the company engaged. Mr. George Kirk himself acts Grip with a decided grip of the character. His cool, inflexible and masterful bearing towards the bad people is most effective. Duberg (the Viper) is well played by Mr. George Langdon, who is equally diabolical in evening dress and in workman's clothes. The banker, Sterling, is played by Mr. Monson Thorpe. Miss Connie Laurie is full of resource and smartness as the child of the street, Judy, and is received as prime favourite with the audience almost from her first entrance. Miss Gwendolen Thorpe, with nervous tension, plays the unfortunate victim, Alice. Miss Marie Collings is a handsome and bold "wretch" (companion to Duberg), speaking her lines with refreshing distinctness. Grip is elaborately mounted. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope winds up the programme, which is opened by an overture, "His Majesty's March," written by Mr. H. Petersen, and conducted by the composer. Mr. Geo. F. Slatter looks after the front of the house with his customary tact and skill.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Affairs at the Royal Albert are now in full swing, and the house is being patronised to such an extent that it will almost appear advisable for Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, the proprietor, to enlarge his seating accommodation at some time or other. Already he is having plans prepared for a new frontage, which will be decorated in elaborate fashion by marble pillars and statues. The alteration will be effected within a few months, and the building when completed bids fair to become one of the architectural sights of Canning Town. The system of two houses a night, which Mr. Hunt inaugurated at the re-opening of the Royal Albert, has proved successful even beyond his anticipations.

This week one of the chief attractions is furnished by Miss Ella and her troupe of forest-bred lions. One is struck with the lady's daring. She arouses the anger of one of the beasts, and almost before he has ceased roaring his annoyance, she places her arm in his mouth, then her face, in a manner that seems to invite disaster. Yet her influence over the creature is apparently so strong as to ensure her own safety. At her bidding, too, four lions perform various feats, such as jumping over pedestals, and engage in various other forms of acrobatics. In spite of the seemingly complete control Miss Ella has over her troupe, much of what one sees her doing in the cage is exceedingly thrilling. For an amusing cross-talk turn we can commend Messrs. F. W. Nash and T. H. Noel, who prove themselves to be versatile comedians and smart dancers. Miss Minnie Morán is a delightfully engaging comedienne and dancer, and her whole business receives the hearty approval of the audience. Musical clowns who are not content to give a hackneyed show are to be found in Messrs. Alec Huline and Tom Le-May. Both of these gentlemen contrive to be original, and funny.

Mr. Peter Gotz, who, according to the programme, bears the reputation of being the lightweight champion wrestler of the world, is on in an interesting exhibition of strength and skill. Gotz is the winner of two international championship belts, one light-weight and the other middle-weight. He has defeated many champions, and he now offers the sum of £5 to anyone of 10st. 6lb. whom he fails to throw in fifteen minutes, and £25 to the man of same weight who defeats him. Perhaps the most instructive portion of his act is a demonstration wherein he shows how to deal with a hooligan who suddenly pounces upon a law-abiding pedestrian, and of course everybody goes away from the hall with the pleasant assurance that he is prepared for all emergencies. Mr. Gotz's performance concludes with a wrestling bout with, presumably, a stranger. Mr. Harry Bancroft is an actor-vocalist whom it is a pleasure to listen to. His song, "Rich little boy," is sung with appropriate expression and feeling, and the number is highly appreciated by the house. Miss Emmie Ames makes for merriment with her latest success, "Presents from my Christmas tree." A huge stand laden with scores of those pretty toys that children delight in at the festive season is placed in the centre of the stage, and as Miss Ames picks out an article from the collection she sings an appropriate verse. Mr. Nero Bianco deals in illusions, and one's curiosity is aroused when a lady appears suddenly out of what was a second ago an empty barrel. The same lady is bound and placed inside a cabinet, which is opened less than a minute later and found to be rid of its former occupant. The Moxon Troupe provide an amusing acrobatic and equilibristic act, and also demonstrate their abilities on the concertina. Of course, the programme at the Royal Albert would not now be complete without Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, and considerable attention is given to the latest films presented by the firm this week.

THE DUCHESS.

Record business is still the order of the day here, and Manager Ross, just returned from a well-earned though brief holiday, is again presenting to his patrons a most interesting and entertaining programme. The ball is started in no half-hearted manner by the Three Florodora Girls, with their interesting comedy, entitled The Rival Sweethearts. These artists put plenty of life into their performance, which they bring to a conclusion with some neat dancing. Dale and O'Malley are a couple of amusing comedians, the one who is addressed as "Archibald" being especially funny, his quaint style causing roars of laughter. Miss Mabel Thorne, a charming comedienne, has a couple of interesting numbers. In her first, entitled "Paint," she scores well; but it is in her second, that well-known number, "Rainy Day," that she is at her best, and the way the choruses of both of these are taken up by "the boys on the top shelf" is sufficient to show how much she is appreciated. Mr. Charles Whittle is a comedian whose refreshingly original style will soon carry him into the very front rank of our variety performers. His two songs, "America" and "Billy Muggins," are rendered in a most capable manner, the latter especially being a quaint and most humorous number. Harry Tate's company in Motoring is paying yet another of its periodical visits to this hall, and, if possible, the sketch seems to be more appreciated than ever. Although this popular comedian is at the moment in Africa, his deputy takes his part in such an efficient manner, that even those that are in "the know" might well be pardoned if they made a mistake. The Musical Schaffers, who seem to be able to extract music from anything, are paying their first visit here, and, judging by the manner they are received, it should not be long before they make another. They are presenting their novel turn, entitled The Garden of Melody, and a more appropriate name could certainly not have been chosen. These artists start with a melody played with funnels, and bring their turn to a conclusion with a pretty waltz played on revolving sunflowers. Miss Daisy Davidson, a New Zealand soprano, is the possessor of a charming voice, which she knows full well how to use, and it is a pity that time does not allow of her contributing more than one song. In the one she renders, however, her well-trained voice is heard to the greatest advantage, and hearty applause awaits her on concluding. Cruickshanks, who has not been here for some time, is again presenting his musical act, into which he introduces some new and laughable jokes. Amongst other songs, he gives a most amusing parody on "Under the old apple tree." Fred Karno's company is presenting that laughable sketch, Moses and Son, with the inimitable Fred Kitchen as Perkins, the caretaker. Whilst he is on the stage, this comedian is the cause of roars of laughter, and he receives most able support from Miss Leah Morris as Moses's daughter. Others who contribute their quota are Miss Janet Reeve, Miss Madge Rockingham, Mr. Landeck, and Mr. Anthony Gordon. This sketch is well mounted, and the scenery is effective. A capital evening's enjoyment is brought to a conclusion with some amusing pictures on the bioscope, that one depicting "the inexperienced chauffeur" causing roars of laughter. The orchestra, under Mr. Charles Longmaid, are heard to advantage in Sullivan's Gondoliers, and do full justice to the incidental music of the programme. Mr. Bertham C. Ross, the popular manager, by his tact and courtesy, continues to make hosts of friends, and Mr. L. Westcott Hicks is his acting-manager.

TWO HOUSES A NIGHT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—At the commencement of my theatrical (?) career I have the temerity to give my personal opinion in regard to this controversy, and I must admit it is rather curious to me that my attempt to woo the suffrages of theatregoers, after working the twice nightly music halls for so many years, should be coincident with the dawn—or is it merely a flash in the pan?—of two performances each night at the theatres. I think it would be safe to suggest that there is not a performer on the music hall stage who would not unhesitatingly admit that the system is injurious to the production of his best work. Therefore, it would seem only reasonable to conjecture how much more so must the said system militate against the gentle, refined, and subtle art of the actor.

Probably there is plenty of money in the theatres as—so far—we have been playing to capacity. Accordingly, may it not be the fault of the theatre manager himself who—being unable to cope with the novelty and originality of the music halls—"throws up both hands" and weakly imitates a system which must necessarily ever lend itself to great diversity of opinion.—Yours faithfully,

SERVAIS LE ROY
(Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco).

T. R., Darlington, Oct. 29.

THE Harvey Boys are making a big hit on tour with their new boxing act, That was Me. They open at the Hippodrome, Leeds, next week.

MISS BERTHA STUART, the favourite Scotch character ballad vocalist, who is meeting with the heartiest reception nightly at the Palace, Cork, is naturally very gratified at the compliments paid to her by Sir Alfred Dobbin, J.P., one of the directors, who has expressed himself as delighted with her singing.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The fairs ahead for next week are:—Beverley, on the North Eastern Railway; Eastwood, on the Great Northern; Kirkby Stephen, on the North Eastern and Midland; Plymouth, on the Great Western and London and South Western; Portland, on the London and South Western; Rotherham, on the Midland and Great Northern; Scarcliffe, on the Lancashire, Derbyshire and East Coast; Penistone, on the Great Central; Heckmondwike, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Morpeth, on the North Eastern and North British; South Shields, on the North Eastern; Swaffham, on the Great Eastern; Alford, on the Great Northern; Alston (Cumb.), on the North Eastern; Biggleswade, on the Great Northern; Hertford, on the Great Eastern and Great Northern; Loughborough, on the Midland, Great Central, and London and North Western; Leeds, on the North Eastern, Midland, Great Central, and Great Western; Romsey, on the London and South Western; Biddenden, on the South Eastern; Easingwold, on the North Eastern; Thornaby, on the North Eastern; Bakewell, on the Midland; Camborne, on the Great Western; Carlisle, on the North Western, Midland, North Eastern, Maryport and Carlisle, North British, Glasgow and South Western and Caledonian; Cartmel, on the Furness; Egremont, on the Great Western and Furness; Farnham, on the Great Eastern; Hucknall, on the Midland; Kendal, on the London and North Western; Lancaster, on the London and North Western and Midland; Melton Mowbray, on the Midland, Great Northern, and London and North Western; Sutton-in-Ashfield, on the Midland; Wakefield, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire, Midland, Great Northern, Great Central, North Western, and Great Western; Wetherby, on the North Eastern.

In Scotland we have Alyth, on the Caledonian; Jedburgh, on the North British; Paisley, on the Caledonian, Glasgow and South Western, and Glasgow and Paisley (joint). In Wales there are Llangefeloch; Penygroes, on the London and North Western; and Penmorfa, on the Cambrian.

Kidwelly Great Fair opened on the 27th ult., but the fair day proper was the 29th, when a tremendous crowd of people, young and old, flocked in. In the fair-field Messrs. H. Studt and Sons occupied premier position with their Venetian gondolas, the shows present being Tom Wortley's model colliery village and Lerca's snakes, performing dogs, and knife-throwers. There were, we are sorry to say, two concerns of the kind denounced by the Rev. Thos. Horne a week or so ago as a disgrace to the profession. Had there been one good show, say a bioscope, instead of these two, things would go on better. Others present were Messrs. David Boswell, James Day, Edward Booth, and W. Evans, with their shooters, cocoanut sheets, mollies, &c., Turner's and the Don Photo Studios. Oxley, the wire king, had a well-appointed stall of gold wire work. Business was very good throughout.

After an absence of some 30 years, Mr. John Studt paid a visit to Kidwelly Fair on Monday, and was well received. With his usual generosity, on Tuesday he gave all the children of Kidwelly a free ride on his Venetian gondolas, the free rides lasting some eighty minutes; after which a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Councillor A. Stephens, ex-Mayor of Kidwelly, and seconded by the Rev. Hugh Rees, B.A., curate of Llandurry.

John Cole's electrical leaping and switchback gondolas, with attendant cocoanut sheets, shooting galleries, &c., opened on the Broad Quay, Bath, last Saturday for a short season, and crowds of pleasure-seekers have availed themselves of the chance to enjoy all the "fun of the fair."

Princess Gooma and her Dahomey Warriors met with great success at Wishaw Fair last week. Friday, the 26th ult., was an interesting date in the annals of the Warriors, for on that occasion they celebrated their sixteenth anniversary. Mr. Tom Brown, the genial director for this long period, was the recipient of a handsome gold watch and massive gold chain. Princess Gooma was also presented by Mr. Bert Miles on behalf of the Warriors and staff with a beautiful brilliant brooch. Mr. Brown, in a few felicitous words, acknowledged the gifts, and after the show Princess Gooma and her Dahomey Warriors, with the whole of the staff, repaired to the Royal Hotel, where a sumptuous "spread" wound up a memorable day.

At Buckingham Fair the principal showmen and entertainers were Alf. Ball with bioscope and variety company, and F. Grey, with his famous aggregation of novelties, including the motor-car switchback track and galloping horses. This year, for the first time, the Buckingham people emulated the ox and sheep roasting so famous at the Warwickshire Mops. The celebrated champion ox roaster, Mr. George Luckett, of Stratford-on-Avon, was in charge of the arrangements for this new departure.

At Leighton Buzzard the pleasure fair following the statutes was provided by those well-known caterers Messrs. Barker and Thurston, with their cinematograph theatre and elaborate roundabouts; and with them were associated a number of fairground caterers attending their round. Alexander's circus, located for the fair-day in the town, drew immense crowds, and in another part of the town Mr. F. Gray, with his well-known entertainment, received a full share of public patronage.

The official answer to the Showmen's Petition against the abolition of Writtle Fair is to hand, and reads as follows:—

"Home Office,
"Oct. 25, 1906.

"Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for the Home Department to acknowledge the receipt of your letter relating to Writtle Fair.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"M. D. Chalmers.

"Rev. T. Horne."

This, of course, is the acceptance of the petition, which will be considered in its proper place when the matter comes before the Home Secretary for final decision.

The Rev. T. Horne is holding on Sunday next a series of meetings and conducting a service in connection with the Showmen's Guild at Rotherham. In the very early days of the Vandwellers' Society Mr. Horne was Curate of Whiston, Rotherham, and every year at the time of the Statute Fair meetings were held to make known the claims and work of the guild. Many friends were won to the showman's cause through the public advocacy of their business and trade rights at these annual meetings at the Statute Fair. It is a very good thing that these meetings are being resumed, for it is no small part of the work of the guild to educate and guide public opinion by means of open meetings presided over by gentlemen of local repute. Excellent examples of what we mean have been fully noticed in our columns during the last few weeks—notably the successful meetings at Gloucester and Hull.

Bridlington, a popular pleasure resort in the summer season, keeps its fair on Oct. 22, and was visited by Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie, Captain Tom Payne's bioscope, Westray's two ground booths, the freak exhibits, and the novelty show; these, with Professor Carvill's school of boxers, completed the show list. The steam horses and motor cars were those of W. Shipley and R. Marshall, J. Carvill provided swings, and there were a goodly array of shooting concerns, variety stalls, and throwing games.

NEW CENTURY PICTURES AT THE CURZON HALL, BIRMINGHAM.

Mr. Waller Jeffs, of New Century Picture fame, had a unique experience last Friday night (26th ult.) at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham. Messrs. Mason (late Draycott), the eminent Birmingham photographers, arranged to take a flash-light picture from the stage of the audience in this hall, and we have pleasure in inserting above a copy of this wonderful picture. It is astonishing that after a twelve weeks' season (twice daily, at 3 and 7.45) Mr. Jeffs has succeeded in keeping the interest of the Birmingham public to produce such an audience as we see depicted in the photograph above. The New Century Picture Company have for the last six years been giving seasons under Mr. Jeffs' management from twelve to twenty weeks in the Curzon Hall, and this long innings of two shows a day easily passes the record for any Birmingham place of amusement.

Mr. Jeffs' experience in pleasure travel leads him to choose travel pictures of the most interesting kind, while the pictures of the comic element are not overlooked. The fact that on one occasion recently there were over eighty clergymen counted in the audience at the Curzon Hall shows that the picture entertainment is acceptable to those who very seldom visit a theatre or music hall.

Mr. Jeffs has at the moment two other companies under his direction showing at Wolverhampton and Redditch. He is associated with Mr. Sydney H. Carter, of St. George's Hall, Bradford, who controls the Northern "New Century" companies, now numbering some seven distinct animated picture enterprises, together forming probably the largest organisation of the kind which runs regular and prolonged seasons in all the more important towns, besides others of lesser note.

"The city and district are much indebted to Mr. Waller Jeffs for having brought the people into touch with realistic and exact representations of the principal events and scenes in the world's more recent history.

"Instruction imparted by the means of the New Century Pictures at Curzon Hall has proved of great educational advantage to the city, and it is not surprising that the pictures continue to be very largely patronised, for Mr. Jeffs spares no pains or expense to keep right up to date."—Birmingham Express, Oct. 30, 1905.

Messrs. Green and Wallis's Carnival, held at the same time as Old Wigan Fair, has been, from every point of view, a big success. The crowd of entertainers, with concerns big and little, was equal to anything brought to Wigan in the palmy days of the Corporation Fair. Colonel Clark's coliseum of animated photography, Dyer's empire of varieties and cinematograph, Gal Hague's black and white boxers, and the well-known roundabout sets of every variety and up-to-date attractions of Messrs. Green, T. Hurst, W. Holmes, W. Mitchell, and gem sets by Messrs. Holmes and Green. The other caterers included J. Sharp, G. Wallis, The Lorenzos, Hall, Holmes, Dearden, Marsden, and Mesdames Bowser, Henshaw, Jewell, and Burton.

At Tewkesbury Fair a special feature was the benefit performance for the Nursing Institute, Hospital, and Dispensary, given by Mr. John Studt. The fair-ground attractions included Chipperfield's electrograph, Purchase's menagerie, Dooner's coliseum, and many minor novelties, in addition to the well-known concerns of Mr. John Studt.

The Mansfield Statutes Fair, which commenced on Thursday, was to be continued on Friday and to day. Among the shows is Buff Bill's menagerie.

THE FIGHT FOR BURSLEM WAKES.

Without accurate knowledge of all the local circumstances it is extremely difficult to deal effectively with attempts to interfere with the fairs of the people and to defend the trade and business interests of showmen and fairground traders. In order to obtain this inside information the hon. chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, the Rev. T. Horne, has spent some days this week in Burslem, the primary object of his visit being to deny in no measured terms the vile slanders heaped upon show-people by certain members of the Corporation when the wakes question was before that body, and to prove that show-people, as a class, are just as honest in their dealings, as industrious in their work, as cleanly in their habits and daily life as any other class in the community.

To show the need for this mission of defence on the behalf of travelling showmen, we have before us the alarmist statements of the enemies of the wakes, not only uttered in the Council Chamber, but since then repeated and amplified on public platforms at the recent municipal election.

We gave last week a full report (as given in the local Press) of the proceedings of the Town Council with reference to the fair. The main reasons given by the abolitionists were that it was (1) out of date and no longer required by the people, and that the shows were a source of noise and nuisance to the immediate residents of the fair-ground spaces, and (2)—and most serious of all—that the holding of the fair in the centre of the town was a danger to public health.

In a recent speech at a board meeting in connection with the municipal election, Councillor Brodie, the leader of the abolitionists on the Town Council, was severely heckled by indignant ratepayers and market traders on the question of his determined attack on the wakes.

In his reply he again emphasised the serious allegations he made in the Town Council. He insisted that the continuance of the fair was a menace to public health—they gave up the best streets and thoroughfares of the centre of their town once a year to noise, rowdyism, and insanitation. All ordinary traffic was disorganised, and in many cases business had to be suspended. The chairman of the Sanitary Committee would tell them that what the sanitary inspector reported after the last wakes was a disgrace to any town in the United Kingdom. The whole thing belonged to a time when amusements were not so easily or cheaply got, and working people were not blessed with the advantages that they were to-day.

The town, he argued, was spending thousands of pounds upon an infectious diseases hospital and sewage works, and he asked what was the good if they invited shows to bring in all this filth and thereby run the risk of bringing in infection into the town. It will be readily seen that charges of the character made by Mr. Brodie must have a most damaging effect upon public opinion. Before dealing with these serious allegations, the Rev. T. Horne called upon the sanitary inspector and asked for a copy of the report that had inspired Councillor Brodie. This, Mr. Horne was told, could not be given him without the consent of the Sanitary Committee. In the meanwhile the character of showmen must be dragged through the dirt and made the talk of the town upon the allegations of a secret report. The sanitary inspector entirely exonerated the great majority of show vans as being model dwellings in a sanitary sense, and when pressed for specific examples to the contrary could only hint at carelessness in dealing with rubbish and the emptying of slops—a fault even more common amongst the residents of towns than with travelling showmen.

There were, of course, the usual necessary cleansing of the streets incident to the influx of a crowd into the town upon the fair days; but as regards the terrible bogey of danger to public health, not one specific instance could be adduced. To vindicate their character in the minds of the people the showmen have issued

A MANIFESTO

In Defence of Burslem Wakes.

The Executive Committee of the Showmen's Guild appeal to the people of Burslem for fair play and justice. They protest with the warmest indignation against the vile slanders heaped upon them as touching the cleanliness and the sanitary and health conditions of their movable dwellings. They deny the truth of such statements as those made in the Borough Council concerning the danger to public health that the shows bring to the heart of the town at wakes' time. Their answer to these unjust aspersions is: They demand proof—proof clear and without doubt; they demand the name of the individual offender and the name of any one resident of Burslem whose health has been injured by the insanitary conditions of the shows at the wakes.

Vague and alarmist general statements do considerable damage, but they are not evidence, and the showpeople say, "Give us and our friends and patrons, the show-loving public, proof positive. We claim, and it is generally conceded by all unprejudiced observers of our daily life that we are, as a class, as cleanly in our habits of life and quite as healthy as the rest of the community. We go further, and say that our people are longer-lived and freer from epidemic and contagious disease than the ordinary dwellers and workers in cities and towns. The great progressive London County Council welcomes the showpeople at all times of national rejoicing and the Bank Holidays to make fairs upon the open spaces under the control of the Council for the amusement and recreation of the people. London recognises in these times of the speeding up of industry and keen competition that the great body of the workers require such healthy, wholesome, and essentially British open-air entertainment as that provided at our modern fairs and wakes.

Surely if mighty London recognises that it is wise to provide amusement for the people and to co-operate with the organised showmen for that purpose it would be (to say the least) equally advisable for Burslem to follow the lead of the London County Council. It is also worthy of note that great provincial towns like Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Leeds, and Bradford are surrounded in each instance by a belt of fairs held in the suburbs, but frequented in their multitudes by the people of the city. All these great corporations without exception co-operate with the showmen, and also without exception give them a clean bill of health. We may also point to the fact that great towns like Nottingham, York, Bradford, Halifax, Blackburn, Burnley, Bolton, and a hundred others still hold their fairs in the heart of the town, and all these public bodies co-operate with the showmen, and again, without exception, give them a clean bill of health.

It is because of their knowledge of these facts that the whole body of showmen resent with all the force and vigour at their command the vague alarmist statements used in the debate of the Borough Council when the question of the wakes and its continuance was before them. The showmen also wish to call the attention of the people of Burslem to the threatened abolition of Old Burslem wakes. In the first place, they would remind those who wish to abolish the fair that it is a properly-constituted and legal fair, and that it cannot be abolished without the consent of the people of Burslem. There is statutory power to abolish fairs, but the statute safeguards the rights of the people in their fairs, and it also safeguards the business interests and rights of showmen and fairground traders. The advocates of abolition on the Borough Council will find that they have made a serious blunder in assuming that they can, by a resolution of the Council, usurp the authority of the Home Secretary, as provided by statute law. Anyhow, the showmen will take every legitimate and constitutional means to defend their trade interests, and they will also rely upon the sense of fairplay and common justice of the people of Burslem to assist them in the fight with the enemies of the wakes.

It has been said that fairs are becoming out of date and not suitable to the needs of the people. The people who say these things have made no effort at all to understand the subject, and it is almost lamentable that men of intelligence and speaking in places of authority should continue to assert the decadence of British fairs. It is true that the migration of the people from country districts into great industrial centres like the Potteries has caused the falling into disuetude of certain old fairs, but for every fair thus ended there has sprung into existence a dozen new fairs. In the great industrial belt of England, stretching from London to Liverpool or London to Newcastle, there are more fairs in existence to-day than ever obtained in the history of the nation.

The Showmen's Guild represents an industry that concerns the daily livelihood of 70,000 persons engaged in the provision of amusements to the people of the Empire. It also touches indirectly a large number of trades and industries engaged in providing the things used in the amusements of the fair and the articles sold by fairground traders. In conclusion, the Executive Committee of the Showmen's Guild confidently appeal to the working classes and to the Trade Unionists of Burslem for their help and assistance in this fight for the continuance of Burslem wakes.

Why should the people of Burslem be deprived of their annual time of holiday and recreation at the wakes? Surely the hard grind of daily toil and the increasing keenness of the struggle for life makes it more necessary to-day than ever in the past to extend rather than to curtail the people's opportunities of necessary recreation and amusement, and what better form of amusement for the toiling multitude than that provided by the thousand-and-one attractions and novelties of our popular and up-to-date fairs?

Signed on behalf of the executive of the Showmen's Guild.

George Sanger, President.
P. Collins, Vice-President.
T. Horne (Rev.), Hon. Chaplain.
Thomas Hurst, Hon Secretary.

Offices of the Guild:
5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London W.C.

To be charged as a body and to be held up to public scorn and repudiation in the manner adopted by Councillor Brodie left the showmen no other alternative but to issue the manifesto and to demand evidence that will bear the fullest possible examination. We are confident that the people of Burslem will take good care that justice is done and that showpeople shall not be traduced and driven out of the town without an opportunity being given them to defend their character and their business interests.

Now we turn to the popular movement in the town itself for the defence of the wakes. Immediately on the decision of the Council becoming known, the local tradesmen and the market traders took concerted action. The petition asking the Mayor to convene a town's meeting was numerously signed and duly presented. The Mayor has fixed Nov. 15 as the day for the meeting. The Tradesmen's Committee has for its chairman Mr. T. Bentley, one of Burslem's most esteemed public men and proprietor of the Burslem Theatre. Mr. Bentley took the leading part twenty-five years ago in restoring the wakes in 1881 after it had been in abeyance for two years. The secretary to the committee is Mr. Arthur Boulton, solicitor.

Mr. P. Collins, vice-president of the Guild, and the principal tenant of the Corporation at the time of the wakes, is taking a deep interest in the question and has provided the Guild officials with most valuable information, and also thrown himself heartily into the work of defence. Mr. Collins was not able (owing to indisposition) to be with the hon. chaplain in Burslem. It was his intention to have been there, but found himself at the last moment compelled to remain indoors under doctors's orders. However, he sent his business-manager, Mr. Jeffries, and that expert showman has rendered invaluable assistance. Mr. Jeffries, as representing Mr. Collins and the general body of tenants great and small at Burslem wakes, and Mr. Horne, for the Showmen's Guild, have worked like twenty men, and we are now in a position to say that a big impression has been made upon the forces of the enemy at Burslem. Conferences have been held with the leaders of the local interests concerned in maintaining the old-time fair. The local Press, unfortunately already committed to the side of the abolitionists, has been fed with accurate information on the showmen's side of the case. Huge posters are now on every hoarding in the town setting out in clear bold type the showmen's manifesto. Ten thousand handbills containing the manifesto are being distributed from house to house in the borough, the forces of the voters and the friends of the wakes are being co-ordinated, and the campaign to save the fair is now in full swing.

Already the enemy has shifted his ground. He declares now that he did not mean abolition, but only that the fair be taken to another ground. This is a most miserable subterfuge, for they know, what the showpeople know, that in Burslem

THE AUDIENCE AT CURZON HALL, BIRMINGHAM, ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1906.
Twelfth Week of the "New Century" Pictures.

At Great Marlow on the 29th were the following concerns:—Biddall's cinematograph, Biddall's menagerie, Professor Elliott's boxing booth, John Thomas's steam circus, and a considerable number of minor novelties.

Bridgenorth St. Luke's Fair attracted a considerable crowd of fairground caterers. The principal show was Farrell's cinematograph, and the side show was Wright's fine art gallery. There were shooting saloons by Farrell, Wright and Son, and Wilson, who also provided minor novelties. The other caterers were Messrs. Curry, Kemp, Wright, and E. Harlem.

it is practically impossible to remove it. They know that to take the fair to the outskirts of Burslem would be to invade (in whichever direction they went) another pottery town. This is indeed a peculiar feature of the case. As soon as you leave Burslem you are either in Hanley, Stoke, or Newcastle-under-Lyme. The Potteries really form one huge town cut into four separate divisions—Hanley, Stoke, Burslem, and Newcastle. There is no open country worth mentioning, and certainly no distance that you cannot cover easily on a cheap tramcar.

To advocate the removal of Burslem Wakes is but another way of saying "kill it." The opinion on the Borough Council is clearly divided between those who desire to abolish it and those who say "remove it out of the centre of the town." The abolitionists have skilfully devised a resolution that unites both parties—a resolution that most practically abolishes the fair and yet does not say so. All it says is "That the Market Inspector be instructed to let no ground for shows or booths on the town squares at the time of the wakes."

A clever and a cunning scheme; but its promoters reckoned without the showmen, their tenants for years in succession. They also forgot the people. Now that they find that the people are rousing themselves to defend their grand old wakes, "these mighty men in buckram" are turning tail and saying, "Oh, yes, oh, yes; it is for the people to decide. Let a ballot be taken, and let the people settle it." But notice, if the local traders and the showmen had not moved and these schemers and plotters against the people's fairs could have ridden roughshod over the backs of the people, not a word would have been said about a ballot of the people.

It seems to us to be the habit of mind of nearly all men in power to ignore the source of their power—the people. Once they become "Jack-in-office" they arrogate to themselves plenary powers to order and rule everything and to fix and determine what the poor workers shall do, even to the question whether they may take their children to a fair and enjoy a little innocent fun and recreation. The one thing these men forget is, that as they gained their power to rule by the sovereign will of the people, so back again must they come to the people for a renewal of their mandate of authority. The action of the local committee and the rousing work of the Guild will prepare the people to exercise their fair franchise. The town's meeting in defence of the wakes, to take place at the Town Hall on Nov. 15, will be addressed by the Rev. T. Horne, T. Watson Wright, and local champions of the fair.

IN connection with the mistaken zeal of a certain section of Burslem people to remove the fair out of the centre of the town, it is worthy of note that at Workington the experiment was made, and the fair removed from the squares and open spaces in the centre of the town. So great, however, was the dissatisfaction at the new arrangement amongst the local traders and the people, that the Corporation have determined to revert again to the old plan of holding it in the town.

WITH regard to Burslem, it would be impossible to find such admirable ground spaces for shows as the old arrangements for shows afforded.

THERE are no less than five excellent open squares, including the large piece of ground upon which the wooden theatre is built. These spaces are entirely out of the run of the traffic of the town, and during the wakes the grouping of the shows in proper order upon these five open spaces (all within sight of one another) leaves the main thoroughfares and the cross-streets connecting them entirely free for the crowds to move about from showground to showground with perfect freedom.

THE movement to defend Burslem Wakes is now well organised, both locally for the tradesmen and nationally for the showmen. The Rev. T. Horne has been in Burslem, and with him was Mr. Jeffries, manager for Mr. P. Collins. Owing to the great pressure on our space, the detailed account of the movement is held over until next week.

THE forthcoming meeting of the Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen Union at Rotherham will deal with necessary business of importance. Will members see advertisement as to time and place?

LORD JOHN SANGER'S circus visited Luton on Monday, and was well patronised, particularly at the evening performance. The programme included some remarkably clever doings by elephants and trained dogs, in addition to the usual equestrian and acrobatic items. The circus was located in a field off the Bedford-road.

WE learn that Mr. Alfred Hengler has taken Messrs. Harcock's Winter Gardens, Plymouth, for the season. The season commenced on Monday, and had a most auspicious send-off, the two shows-a-night system having been adopted.

WE are sorry to say that Mr. Alfred Whitmee, of the Eden Theatre, Hemel Hempstead, after pluckily trying again, this time asking only for three months' licence for dramatic performances, has been refused.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

CARL VILLIERS.—We advise you to communicate with Mr. S. Forrest, Winchelsea Cottage, Station-road, Forest Gate, E.; Mr. F. Gray, 3, Victor-road, Kensal Green, N.W.; Messrs. Thurston and Sons, Stanstead, Essex; and W. Wilson, Ordnance-road, Hounslow.

F. R. O. (Swinton).—Your best plan will be to attend a meeting at 3.30 p.m., in Mr. Kemp's show, the Fairground, Rotherham, next Sunday.

A MOST successful concert was given on Thursday, Oct. 25, at the Branswick Institute, Vauxhall, in aid of the widow and orphans of the late Guard Lawford, of the L. and S.W. Railway. The following artists kindly appeared: Tom Packer, H. Mayville, J. Penny, the Olympians, Gleeson, Mountford and Walsh, Dacombe, Joe Lawrence, Sisters Lavender, Frank Gerald and Co., C. Stelling and dog, Kathleen Leslie, Ernest D'Almaine, Fred W. Millis, Reginald Cooke, Ada Norman, W. L. Murray, Three Martells, Sidney Gandy, Ted Harding, and Fred Neiman. The concert was under the patronage of Mr. Henry Holmes, superintendent of the L. and S.W.R., and the Terriers Association, and over £60 was realised for the beneficiare. The stage was managed by Mr. A. H. Hoyle, the theatrical manager of the South-Western, and Mr. C. Douglas Stuart.

AT the Southampton Hippodrome last week quite a furore was created by the appearance of Master Ernest Scorell, aged eleven, who sang "For all Eternity." The power and sweetness of his voice delighted the audience greatly. He appeared both at the afternoon and evening performances, and his reception at night was quite remarkable. Master Scorell will appear for a week here later on.

MR. WILL H. BOARDMAN, the manager of the Pavilion Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, has arranged for a special matinée at that theatre on Thursday, Nov. 15, the proceeds of which will be given to the relatives of the unfortunate miners who lost their lives in the disaster at Wingate Colliery. Several of the leading theatrical gentlemen of the North have very kindly volunteered their aid.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual, 1906, is welcome as containing carefully compiled lists of the pieces produced during the past year in London, the suburbs, and the provinces, in Paris, and in Berlin. The rest of it is curious and entertaining reading. There is the almanack with its "memorabilia of theatrical events occurrences, &c." There are besides a score of stories and other articles contributed by theatricals a very good one being Miss Louie Freear's set of verses, "'Boy Bob' at Sea," which has humour, feeling, and swing. The book contains many theatrical portraits. As a book of reference the Annual is of great use and value, and while some of its contents doubtless appeal more keenly to the professional than to the outsider, any thoughtful person may derive from its study much amusement and no little insight into the conditions, the magnitude, and the complexity of the English theatre of to-day.—Morning Post, Jan. 22.

CAPITALISTS.
THE THEATRE ROYAL, STOCKTON-ON-TEES.
Messrs. R. & W. MACK
are instructed to offer
FOR SALE BY AUCTION,
at the Theatre Hotel, Stockton-on-Tees, on Tuesday, the 20th day of November, 1906, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all that commanding
measuring 988 square yards, or thereabouts, situated in Yarm-lane, Stockton-on-Tees, being the site of the Theatre Royal, recently partially destroyed by fire.
The situation is unique for a theatre or music hall, having a long frontage to Yarm-lane, convenient access for scenery, &c., from Yarm-lane and Bridge-road, and being within fifty yards of the electric tramways running from Norton, through Stockton, Thornaby, and Middlesbrough, to North Ormsby, giving expeditious and inexpensive access to the population of an extensive and populous district.
The main halls, including the handsomely-designed front in Yarm-lane, remain standing, and are practically intact.
The Theatre Royal was fully licensed by the county magistrates representing the Durham County Council.
Apart from the special value of the site for a theatre or music hall, its situation and extent render it well adapted for shops or for wholesale business premises.
For further particulars apply to Messrs. Thomas and Malkin, solicitors, Stockton-on-Tees; to Messrs. Criddle and Criddle, solicitors, 2, Collingwood-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne; or to the auctioneers, 73 and 77, Pilgrim-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

FOR SALE by Auction.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,

MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously

Hepworth

No. 1170.

JUST IN TIME.

A fond wife taking hasty leave of her husband gives much apparent pleasure to the good man by her departure. He at once gets his hat and leaves his home.

The lady is seen entering a mysterious-looking shop, where it is announced "Fortunes are told with every accuracy." Upon entering the consulting-room, she is greeted with a demand for money, which she quickly responds to. The fortune-teller now enters the room, with a long wand or stick in her hand. Making many passes and signs, she reveals on one of the walls of the room the near future. The client gasps for breath as she catches a view of her husband, fully equipped for travelling, go to a house, knock at the window, which is quickly opened, and embrace a comely young lady. The two seem thoroughly to understand one another, for the lady is soon out at the door, a maid following, bringing out several boxes. It then dawns upon the watching wife that the scene depicts her husband in the act of eloping. Rushing from the room, she quickly makes her way round to the house of her rival, and knocks vigorously at the door. Seizing the poor servant, whom she at once recognises, she clutches her by the hair and shakes her most ferociously until she discloses which way the eloping pair have gone. Tearing down the street the chaser hires a carriage and drives to the station. Going on the platform, she searches the train which is in, and dashes for the carriage containing the "pair." Opening the door, she drags her man out by his coat-tails, and he is sent sprawling on the ground. Fastening the carriage door, the enraged woman chases her husband home. The last scene discloses her about to take summary vengeance.

WOMAN SUPREME.

Tommy, the torment, gives trouble at the tea table, and, having in a fit of rage hurled a large china jug to "smithereens," is seized by his wrathful parent, who, with the practised hand of one who has administered the dose many a time and oft, applies some vigorous "spanks" to that portion of the anatomy whereon such operations are calculated to be effective where juvenile offenders are concerned. The "torment" determines to escape from the attentions thus bestowed upon him, and, after bringing over table and chairs, gets through the garden gate, and gains a temporary lead of his pursuer. With his nether garments floating in the breeze, his race up the road is checked by a policeman, who brings him to the ground in the attempt to stop him, and at this juncture the mother arrives upon the scene, and, forgetting her anger against Tommy, abuses the "Bobby" for such rough treatment of her offspring. A heated argument results in the policeman taking the mother in charge, Tommy, during the struggle of his parent against arrest, managing to rip up "Robert's" trousers, and rendering him somewhat of an object. Whilst his mother is taken to the lock-up, Tommy runs off home, and is seen explaining matters to father, who is wood-chopping in the garden. The policeman arrives on the scene, and pointing out to the father his torn clothing, attempts to arrest the boy, but the father seizing the hatchet, closes with the "Bobby," and, after an exciting struggle (Tommy, the actual cause of the trouble, meanwhile escaping), another member of the family is taken off by the representative of the law, &c., &c., &c. ANOTHER URBAN TRIUMPH

THE GREAT MOIR-PALMER FIGHT

For the HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP of ENGLAND and a £750 PURSE, at the National Sporting Club, London, on Oct. 29th.

BY COURTESY OF THE NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB we received SOLE CONCESSIONS enabling us TO DEPICT THIS GREAT FIGHT in all its stages.

From a position commanding a close and uninterrupted view of the Ring, and by means of a Costly Electric Installation of Special Arc Lamps, excellent photographic results depicting the whole fight in continuity, from preliminaries to conclusion, were obtained.

OWING TO OUR PERFECT ARRANGEMENT OF CAMERAS AND OPERATORS, by which ABSOLUTELY NO POINT OF THE GREAT FIGHT FROM START TO FINISH WAS MISSED, we reproduce the whole chain of events leading to the Championship being awarded to Moir on a foul.

The Grim Determination and Energetic Blows of both combatants, their Clinching, Breaks away, the Dodging, Dash, Persistent Attack and Defence, the Hustling Tactics employed, and the Final Blow which Disqualified Palmer, are all faithfully reproduced in this THRILLING, ABSORBING, ASTOUNDING, TOPICAL FILM.

Photographic Quality Equal to the Best Daylight Exposure. A Great Picture.

Apply for Terms and further details of this big winner.

Price (Complete, without Illuminant) £30.

Every exhibition given with an EMPIRE Cinematograph secures another engagement, for the picture shown is bound to please.

BUTCHER'S "EMPIRE No. 2" CINEMATOGRAPH gives a rock-steady picture, without flicker, owing to the unique and simple arrangement of the springs in the gate and the position of the shutter.

Ball bearings to every spindle save the operator a lot of work, and ensure the machine working smoothly.

spaces the picture without altering the optical centres, and a smaller, and therefore brighter, disc of light can be focussed on the film.

IF YOU ARE IN LONDON, PLEASE LET US SHOW IT TO YOU.

THE "EMPIRE" No. 1 CINEMATOGRAPH

is a machine modelled upon the lines of our No. 2 pattern, but is lighter, runs in plain bearings, and has no automatic cut-off.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.

Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanack and Annual ("Era" Office, 1s.), a copy of which lies before me, is an invaluable publication for those who wish to have stage records by them. It contains a dramatic and musical calendar, lists of new plays and important revivals produced at the London and suburban theatres during 1905, and also of plays produced in the provinces. Further, we have lists of the new plays and revivals produced at the principal Paris and Berlin theatres. "The Era" Almanack has been regularly issued since 1868, when is was compiled by Edward Laman Blanchard, a comedian whose fascinating life was recorded by Clement Scott. The Almanack closes with an illustrated list of those members of the profession who died during the course of last year, headed, naturally, by Henry Irving. Amongst the other names are those of William Rignold, Frank Celli, Ada Neilson, and Minnie Mario. There is an added pathos in the deaths of those who were so long bodily before the public, and the ringing down of the last curtain seems to have added significance.—T. P.'s Weekly, Jan. 26.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, 1s. 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. This useful little work, which brings nearly up to date the calendar of dramatic events which is so excellent a feature, is, as usual, full of stories over the signature of prominent stage lights. To those interested in the business of the theatre the work has become a necessity by reason of its valuable record of the progress of the drama.—Financial Times, Jan. 22, '06.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

EARLY TRAINS.

The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were R. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present issue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual is published from the offices of the old-established organ of the theatrical profession, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. As usual, it is a carefully-compiled record of notable events of the year 1906. A pleasing feature is the selection of short stories, after recounting strange experiences, by "stars" of the dramatic and music-hall professions, these being in every case accompanied by photographs of the writers.—Newcastle Daily Journal, Jan. 27 1906.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. L. Andrews. — Mr. Sidney Dench's company is here this week in The Rich and Poor of London. Mr. Henry Deane as Dr. Leonard Morton makes a manly hero; and Mr. F. Danner makes a capital villain of the Earl of Ravenswood. Mr. Sydney Dench as Spider Jack is the life and soul of the piece. Mr. Cole Aspinall is very successful as Matthew Grabbem, and the same may be said of Mr. Arthur James as Bill Blake and Mr. Jack Sydney as Daniel Drake. Mr. Dennis Clyde as Mark Standing is also deserving of special mention. Miss Dora Dench as May Braithwaite, the heroine, quite wins the sympathies of the audience. Miss Emily Woodleigh proves herself to be a powerful actress as Auntie Scrimp. Miss V. Lesborough as Ruby Redgrave deserves special praise. Master Bert Dench as the waif Dixie and Miss Winnie Redford as Sea Drift do clever work. The minor characters are in capable hands, and the scenery is excellent.

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. George Dance's company is giving a fine presentation of The Country Girl this week. Miss Maisie Gay, who possesses an excellent voice, plays with much vivacity as Nan; Mr. Charles Walcot acts with unflagging verve as Barry; Madame Sophie is finely impersonated by Miss Addie Lennard; and Marjory has a very sweet exponent in Miss Nancy Rositer; Miss Winnie O'Connor appears effectively as the Princess, and deservedly gains several encores; and Mr. Percy Carr, as Geoffrey Challoner, and Mr. St. John Hamund, as the Rajah of Bhong, are likewise highly capable. Both the orchestra and the chorus contribute greatly to the success of the piece.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The distinguished comedian, Mr. Harry Lauder, had a great reception on his reappearance on Monday, and so much was his turn enjoyed that at the end his admirers would hardly allow him to leave the stage, although with his usual good nature he had given a multiplicity of encores. The Norman and Leonard Trio are highly successful in their delightful musical sketch, The Itinerant; and the clever comedians, Spry and Monti, are, as usual, enthusiastically applauded; Mdlle. Dora is a skilful oboe player; Mr. Charles Ernest, the double voice vocalist, is enjoyable both as silleur and instrumentalist; Miss Lizzie Lever, a juvenile vocalist, sings cleverly; and among the other artists are Miss Millie Denham, a vivacious burlesque actress; Mr. Barney Stuart, the versatile actor vocalist; and Vernando, in his novel and amusing sketch, The Ventriloquial Barber.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—This week we have Mr. Chas. Watson Mills's company in A Wrecker of Men, under the direction of Mr. Thompson Carruthers, who in the rôle of Eric Melville is well placed. Mr. Frederick Biron is a powerful Jim Murley; as Pharosaphus Mr. Milner Noble gives satisfaction; Mr. Millar Anderson, as Railton, is well received; Mr. Stanley Champion and Mr. Harry Dunning are quite favourites in the respective parts of Guise Strange and the Hon. Reggie Verincourt; Mr. Charles Earle is good in the double rôles of Ezekiel Isaac and Karnaphus; Miss G. Talbot deserves praise for her impersonation of Marion Isaacs; Miss Beatrice Reynolds is responsible for mirth as Vavasole Slopper; Miss Cissie Podmore is effective as Doris Melville; and the greatest praise should be given to Miss Lucy Sibley, who ably sustains the part of Risca Mallison, in the absence of Mrs. Walter Bentley.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—There is an entire change here from melodrama to variety. Tarro Myaki, who heads the bill, does some interesting and exciting work; Mr. Charles March gives a smart exhibition of quick-changing; Harry Leander is well received; Mr. Ellis Barrington is successful; Issa Steel has a pleasing voice; and Lonnen Meadows, J. W. Wilkinson, W. Dunlop, Lewis Leslie, Ada Tilley, and L. Leslie appear with success in sketches.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Parsons.—An excellent bill is provided here this week. The Achmed Ibrahim Troupe are wonderful acrobats; Miles and May are amusing; Miss Blandford receives due appreciation; Fred Horsfall keeps his old form; Bliss and Bliss are very good; Par and Garetti give an interesting show of facial mimicry and lightning cartoons; McCann's Dogs are clever; and some good pictures are exhibited on the Bioscope.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Williams.—The ever-popular musical comedy, Florodora, has so many fascinating associations that the oftener it is presented the more it grows in favour. Mr. Bannister Howard has sent a capable company to present it, and success is thereby again assured. With Mr. Alf. E. Passmore as Tweedlepunch, there is a continual round of fun; Mr. Stanley White is capital as Gilfain; and Mr. Allen Morris sings and acts with excellent results as Abercoed; and Mr. Herbert St. John's Donegal is capably played; whilst as Leandro, Mr. A. C. James does well. Miss Kate Leicester is a charming Lady Holyrood, and Miss Lily Gallick is a favourite as Angela, her smart acting, singing, and dancing helping considerably to the success of the piece; Miss Jos. Sullivan's Dolores is ably portrayed; and Miss Kathleen L. Russell as Vallida does well.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn. — It is interesting after a lapse of time to hear once more the tuneful melodies and to note the quaint manners and dresses of the Japanese musical comedy The Geisha, and to share in the applause heartily given to its performance by Mr. F. Mouillot's company at the Theatre Royal this week. The Geisha occupied the boards four nights, and A Greek Slave two nights, the latter poetic and musical piece being also excellently presented. As the principal tea-girl, O Mimosa San, Miss Lydia Bland was vivacious and full of charm; Miss Edith Adeson as the English girl, Molly Seymour, was sprightly and chic; and Miss Doris Langdon as O Juliette Diamante acted the French girl in naïve style. Thoroughly efficient representatives of Lady Constance and her lady guests were found in Misses Winifred Knightly, Lucy Kipling, Daisy Notting, and Evelyn Powell; and notable representatives of the British warship's officers were seen in Mr. Wilfred Heath as Fairfax, Mr. E. Pollard as Dick Cunningham, and Messrs. Royton Hoare, Squire, and Evelyn Lovell. Mr. E. Kipling made an amusing Wun-Hi, and Mr. J. H. Booth made an imposing and dignified Marquis Imari.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech. — The leading line on the Empire bill for the week is Peter Gotz, the young Hackenschmidt, surnamed the King of the Light-Weight Wrestlers. The Spanish Goldinis have astonishing electric novelties; Smith and Johnson are clever exponents of their speciality; the Edwards Trio are adroit and sensational equilibrists; American banjo song and dance are introduced by the Dagodets, comedy entertainers; York, Mac, and York are seen to advantage in a comedy act; a funny parody is enacted by Arthur Alston, the comedian, in "Starve Her Joe"; and Harry Morris, character comedian, and Marie Jones, a smart and clever protean actress, assisted by Ernest Munro, are also entertaining. "The Millionaire Man" is depicted on the bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—The programme here this week includes Florelli and Miss Elly in a unique spade-jumping act; Marco, a smart illusionist; Miss Lily Hayes, coon comedian and dancer; Wyndham and Waters, comedy vocalists, in a scene entitled The Professor and His Pupil; Grant and Allen, pleasing burlesque comedians; Mr. E. C. Clayton's Aftergraph pictures; Mr. Tom Kelso, in a rightly described absurdity, The Silly Servant; and Mr. Bert Brantford, comedian.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush was played on the first three nights of this week by Messrs. Durward Lely and Wm. Mollison and company. Mr. Mollison, in his original part of Lachlan Campbell, gave a grand portrayal of the stern, unbending Highland Presbyterian, and he had admirable support from his company. Mr. W. A. Mackersey, in the character of Dr. Wm. MacClure, was excellent; while Margaret Howe had an equally fine exponent in Miss Josephine Woodward. The "Postie" of Mr. Alec F. Thompson was a relief to the sombre picture; the Kate Carmichael of Miss Alice Francis was made appropriately bright; while as the Rev. John Carmichael, Mr. Durward Lely made a most favourable impression, and his singing contributed much to the enjoyment of the piece. The part of the Earl of Kilspindie was in the able charge of Mr. D. Lyall; while the part of Lord Hay was played in a manly style by Mr. Archibald W. Chappell. Thomas Mitchell, the herd, was well portrayed by Mr. Kendall Chalmers; while the dairymaid, Annie, was made acceptable by Miss Edith Blair Staples. The two youngsters, Geordie and Jeannie, were prettily portrayed by Miss Martha Stewart and Miss Jeanie Fitzgerald respectively. To Miss Evelyn McNay was entrusted the trying part of Flora Campbell, and she created a most favourable impression by her sweet and touching acting. The piece was well staged and most complete in every detail.

BACUP. — New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Messrs. Owen and Zelda's variety company is here this week. The programme is headed by Marlo, who gives a refined and clever juggling act. Zelda in her novel musical act is greeted with applause. Wall Owen was highly amusing as the comedy man in A Bit o' Blarney. The Sisters Pelmish are responsible for some graceful dancing; and others who met with a favourable reception are Marie Yorke, dainty soubrette; Fred Tenby, comedian; Pearce and Ward, specialty artists and burlesque boxers; Alex Fox, ventriloquist; Dan Noble, comedian; and the Schallers.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Uncle Tom's Cabin was presented here on Monday and Tuesday by Mr. Josh Hybert's company. Uncle Tom had a faithful exponent in Mr. Billy Taylor, who held the attention of the audience throughout the piece; Mr. Reg. Kloof displayed keen judgment in the difficult part of George Harris; and Phineas Fletcher, the Quaker, received careful treatment from Mr. J. A. Hybert. Messrs. L. Humphries and Western Beecher handled their respective parts with ability; Miss Violet Mignon made a sympathetic Little Eva; and Miss Kitty Wood quickly scored a success as Topsy.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Hilliard Vox's company in Alaska is here. Mr. Vox gives a good account of Skookum Jim, the hero, and Mr. C. D. Pitt is sufficiently villainous as Ned Larson; Mr. John Ford submits a stirring presentment of Majumite Kid; Jessie Dalton is sympathetically played by Miss Cora Patey; and Miss G. Hastings Walton's portrayal of Alaska is clever; Mr. Albert Rogers as Pompey Cæsar and Miss Leslie Wynne as the Widow Casey are very funny.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in The Worst Woman in London is here. Mr. George Gaisford plays finely as Jack Felton and Mr. C. R. Stone does well as James Milford; the Ruth Milford of Miss Elizabeth Watkins is a winning and graceful one, and Miss Florence Dalton as Francis Vere is especially attractive and successful; Mr. Willie Garvey does well as Bob Goldfinch, and Mr. H. W. Monty is a characteristic Hugh Drayton.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—The Melody Makers, in their scena, The Burglar's Dream, are pleasing; the Gallery Boy sings well; Oswald Williams proves a clever illusionist; Mount and Corelli give a capital musical duologue, The Master and the Maid; the Sisters Grey (Adah and Lucien) sing pleasing duets, as do also the Sisters Cora.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A Long.—San Toy is being presented by Mr. Mouillot's company. To Miss Beesie Allayne, an accomplished vocalist and bright actress, belong first honours for her excellent portrayal of the title-rôle; Mr. Bert. Edwards puts in plenty of hard work as Li, and causes much hilarity; Mr. Wm. Jordan, who has lately taken up the part of Yen How, is well suited in every respect to make a success of the portly Mandarin; Bobby Preston is satisfactorily undertaken by Mr. Arthur Cartwright; and praise must be accorded Mr. Charles Ross, as Fo Hop; Mr. Robert Rivers acts Sir Bingo Preston with humorous fussiness; Mr. Frank Tyndall appears as the Emperor; Miss Irene Lavington is fairly successful as Poppy; and Dudley, her maid, finds a chic representative in Miss Nellie Berlyl.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Very bewildering is the electric wireless telegraphy demonstrations by the Marconis, and they create extraordinary interest; the Gladenbecks, in their balancing and ring speciality act are recalled again and again for their clever feats; Susie and Protti, in their finished terpsichorean interlude, are always well received whenever they visit Bath; Friscari, the hat juggler, does his work with accuracy and remarkable ease; Minnie D'Aublyn, with her ringing voice and pleasing songs, is deservedly applauded; Barney Vox carries through his popular ventriloquial act to the accompaniment of considerable laughter; the clog dancing of the Gilberts is smartly executed; Tom Yorke, coster comedian, is to the fore; and Raymond's Biotableaux are greatly enjoyed.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Earl and the Girl. Mr. J. Clegg causes roars of laughter as Jim Cheese; Mr. Frank Wilson makes an excellent Dick Wargrave; Mr. Alec Godfrey cleverly depicts the character of Downham; Mr. Melville capitally interprets the rôle of Hazel; Liza Shoddam finds a capable exponent in Miss C. Dade; Miss Alice Nixon is a charming Elphin Haye; and Mrs. Shimmering Black is successfully represented by Miss M. Maude. The part of Miss Virginia Bliss is capably undertaken by Miss C. Stephens.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—We are favoured this week with a return visit of Mr. Edward Terry and company on Monday in Liberty Hall. His impersonation of William Todman was a delightful piece of acting. In the rôle of Mr. Owen, Mr. Allan Pollock acquitted himself well; and the rôles of Blanche and Amy Chilworth were charmingly portrayed by Miss Fyfe Alexander and Miss Gertrude Tate. Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., deserves praise for his clever impersonation of Hon. Gerald Harringay; and Miss Eugenie Vernie was capital as Crafer. Other rôles were effectively filled by Miss Ella Dixon, Master Earle, and Messrs. Wm. Dexter, E. W. Thomas, and Geo. Howard. On Tuesday Mr. Terry presented Sweet Lavender. On Wednesday The Magistrate was given.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Mr. George Gilbey, a clever comedian, tops the bill and has been most successful. Mr. Lempriere Pringle and Mr. J. C. Piddock and company (including that charming comedienne Miss Beatrice Edwards, and Mr. Morgan Williams) produce an operatic episode, entitled The Romany King, which has been accorded a capital reception. The Four Charles appear in their original transformation acrobatic juggling act which has been voted first-class; and Miss Dolly Harmer is an exceedingly smart character comedienne. The fine tenor voice of Mr. Arthur Aldridge has been heard to advantage; and Mr. Charles Banks and his dog "Wof" supply an interesting and clever performance. The Lorrisons, the Macdonald Trio, Bromley and Fontem, and the ever-attractive Palace Pictures complete the bill.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—After only a week's absence, the inimitable solid man, Mr. W. J. Ashcroft, returned to this theatre on Monday and was again remarkably successful with his capital rendering of several Irish songs. Mr. Ashcroft's popularity in Belfast is certainly unbounded. Boswell's Circus, containing some clever performing animals, was accorded a capital reception; and a hit has been made by the McConnell Trio in one of their well-known sketches. Miss H. Alexander exhibits talent at the piano; and Mr. George Newbern's imitations are interesting; Mr. Ernest Ball is an actor-vocalist of merit; and also here are Burley and Burley; Miss Elly Adair, comedienne; Mr. Frank Sylco, tramp juggler; and Joly Comet, soloist.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—This week the Alhambra Dramatic Company produces with good effect the sterling drama, The Slave of Sin. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a clever emotional actress, sustains the rôle of Elsie Beresford with much credit; Mr. Horace Denton acquits himself with distinction as Gordon Morley; Mr. Percy M. Stevenson portrays the villainies of Dr. Selby vividly; much praise is due to Mr. Cyril Grier for his skilful delineation of Wily; Miss Ellie Macintosh is a vivacious Clara Jenkins; Mr. Tom H. Solly creates much laughter as Alphonse D'Arcy; Miss Nora Caronne as the adventuress, Ida Ross, is worthy of praise; Miss Alice Clarke is the repulsive Mother Moocher to the life; Mr. Elmore Frith acts with skill as Professor Morley; and Mr. H. Arnold Allen is seen to advantage as Stephen Fletcher.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Batteraby; Manageress, Miss G. Battersby.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is presenting A Beautiful Fiend. Mr. Tom Robertson, as Count Karateff, plays most effectively; in the title-part, Miss V. St. Lawrence gives a splendid exposition of the dare-devil Wanda; Mr. Montague Beaudyn takes care that every detail connected with Paulovitch's trials is fully brought out; Miss Irene Munro is another hard-working and consistent artist in the rôle of Nadine Karateff; Mr. Harry Oates as Crackles, Mr. Tommy Bryon as Malachi, and Miss Blanche Hill as Patty Woodlands all lend valuable aid.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company is here with The Traitor, a drama which appeals strongly to the popular parts of the house. Mr. Bensley Evans gives consistent and effective renderings of Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon successfully represents the Traitor; and Mr. Arthur McCulloch as General Hertz and Mr. Edward Duff as General Trantz are both most efficient; Mr. Frank Sutherland is a capital Jack Boult; the rather exacting rôle of Elsie Dupres is cleverly enacted by Miss Katherine Vere; Miss Gwynne Warren is an excellent Countess Zika, and Cen-Cen is amusingly portrayed by Miss Maud Stuart.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—A return visit from Happy Fanny Fields, Anglo-Dutch comedienne, is highly popular, the lady being deservedly a great favourite here. Mr. John E. Coyle, with an excellent budget of comic songs, is also a leading attraction; and Barker and Miss Rozsika's troupe of performing animals give a most pleasing exhibition; Les Rallis, in The Artist and His Monkey, are a conspicuous success; Takio, Japanese mimic, is exceptionally clever; and Marba and Verity, comic acrobats; Miss Lily Morris, comedienne; Mr. Julian Mack, patter vocalist; Mr. Walter Bentley, comedian; Mr. George Reeves, variety artist; and Brown's Royal Bioscope complete the company. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Redway.—Mr. William Greet's company is beguiling large audiences this week with The Earl and the Girl. Mr. William Stephens as Jim Cheese, the pseudo Earl, fully maintains the humour and popularity of the rôle; Mr. Arthur Harrold as the real Earl, and Mr. Percy E. Wright as the supposed heir, the Hon. Crewe Boodle, act and sing in a taking and telling manner; Miss Frances Earle as the heiress, Elphin Haye, is applauded vociferously; Miss Gertrude Melville appears to signal advantage as Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Mary Morison comes into much popularity as Virginia Bliss; Miss Beatrice Anderson proves a formidable Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Jennie Richards disports with amusing ingenuity as Liza Shoddam; Mr. H. Courtin parades as the truculent Bunker Bliss with excruciating effect; and Messrs. W. Norman, Greene Taylor, and Tom Redmond, &c., support in an able manner.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Walls of Jericho wrought an indelible impression here on Monday, when Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh made their rentrée, surrounded by an excellent company. Mr. Bourchier's attitude as Jack Frobisher was richly enjoyed, and his trumpet-tongued denunciation of the "smart set" and its ways evoked thunderous applause. Miss Vanbrugh's acting as Lady Alethea reveals the inherent goodness of the woman, good at heart though light of mind, and her part in the performance was enthusiastically applauded. Mr. Chas. Goodhart as Hankey Bannister succeeded in a conspicuous degree; Mr. Arthur Whitby as the Marquis of Steventon gave a striking performance; Mr. H. Nye Chart was also superlatively successful as Harry Dallas; Miss Pamela Gaythorne gave admirable expression to the witty-tongued Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss Nora Greenlaw manifested the amiable qualities of Lady Westerby in a charming manner.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—A Country Mouse appears here under the well-known direction of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison. As Angela Muir, the adventurous young lady who is not so ingenuous as was supposed, Miss Annie Hughes is distinctly clever and successful; as Lady Sylvia Bowlby Miss Moyra Creegan gives most important support; Miss Francis Davie acts in a bright and winning manner as Violet Aynesley; Miss Ida Laurie gives humour and point to the rôle of Mrs. Crooper; Mr. John E. Watson delivers a clever study of the butler, Jephcot; Mr. William Calvert is admired for his well-expressed sentiments as John Bowlby; Mr. T. A. Braidon is mirth-provoking as Lord Robert Wyckham; Mr. Evelyn Vernon duly accentuates the rôle of the Duke of St. Kitts; and Mr. Chas. Bedale acts in a finished and pleasant manner as the Hon. Archibald Vyse. A Country Mouse is preceded by A Bit of Old Chelsea, in which Miss Hughes scores in her original part.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Mr. Jack Haddon and his company appear here in Walter Howard's famous play, Under the Russian Flag. Mr. Haddon is awarded a fine reception in his well-played rôle of Captain Demetrius; Miss Marie Rayner plays the part of Luka Marischia to excellent advantage; Mr. George Herbert invests the rôle of General Romanoff with due importance; Messrs. Edward Avinall and Cecil Melton as his two sons, Michael and Ivan respectively, both deserve praise; Mr. Chas. Liddon plays a powerful and impressive part as Wolf Marischia; Mr. Hal Forde lends valuable support as Paul Poniski; Messrs. Fred Haming, W. Wilson, and William Rivers act worthy parts; Miss Blaine Vanbrugh gives an artistic exposition of the rôle of Vera Vassiloff; and Miss Violet Lytton creates a favourable impression as the opera dancer, Orgarita.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Augustine Knight presents E. Hill-Mitchelson's modern romantic drama, The Assassin, here, and in the character of Prince Demetri scores a big success. Mr. Edwin Ashby, in the heroic and rival part of Ivan Ipanoff, meets with every sympathy; Miss Ella Vane, in the titular-rôle of Countess Wanda, acts with well-studied effect; Miss Frances Waring secures the warmest admiration and sympathy as the unfortunate Nita; Mr. Theo Balfour bears the aristocratic rôle of Duke Carl with dignity; Mr. Edwin Jenner proves "one of Ireland's best" as Capt. O'Neill; Mr. Tom Taylor is successful as Peter; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond lends much diversion as Baron Alphonse; Mr. Jack H. Smith is an able contributor as Evangil; Mr. Chauncey Morris shines as General Nicol; Miss Hettie Senior as "America's best," Connie Jonathan, scores in a very clever style; and Miss Edith Woodward as Olga Stadt, Miss Ada Douglas as Nadia Farina, and Miss Marie E. Robertson as Katrina are able supporters.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Howard Hardy's company holds the stage here this week in The Days of Cromwell, a drama replete with clever and thrilling sensationalism. Mr. Howard Hardy assumes the rôle of the hero, Walter Clifford, in a gallant style, which wins him volleys of applause; Mr. Henry Belding as the Avenger, Ironhand, proves himself an exceedingly capable and conscientious actor; Messrs. Chas. Herberte and Vernon Vane plot and plan villainy with excellent realism as Sir Marsden and Matthew Mar-dyke respectively; Miss Jennie Hardy contributes a charming portrayal of the heroine, Ruby Avondale; Miss Jane Massey acts capably as Mistress Shadwell; Miss Beatrice Hudson as Mistress Judith is most meritorious; Mr. Geo. P. Lester is highly successful as Sir Wilfred Avondale; and the humorous rôles of Mr. T. E. White as Shadrach Shadwell, Mr. Geo. Harvil as Toby, and Miss Mona Hungerford as Betsy are cleverly portrayed and much enjoyed. Messrs. John Melton and Alfred Smith shine as "Chaunt and Slay" and "Smite and Pray" respectively.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Life's Sweetest Sins, with its realistic scene and model of a submarine boat seen in actual service, is portrayed here by Mr. T. Arthur Jones's company. As the sailor-lover of the heroine Mr. Jones inspires the utmost enthusiasm with his manly performance; Miss Hazel Dent acts as his sweetheart, Doreen Rivers, in a prepossessing way; Mr. Oswald Douglas proves a dominating character as the infamous Dr. Colbrooke; Miss Mary Ainslie acts as Fay Colbrooke with the utmost success; Messrs. Robert Sawin and Clem Horlock are conspicuous as the doctor's satellites; Mr. Fred Wilson does good service as one of the confraternity, Ernie Woodstone; Messrs. Edgar Morgan and Bertram Lee leaven the play with admirable humour as Bob Tanner and Martin respectively, being well assisted by Miss Elsie Walton as the maid; and the other characters are in good hands.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The Four Indian Fakirs are exceptionally clever conjurers; Tiller's company remain another week; Mad Minstrels is a sketch which provides plenty of amusement; De Dio is an expert dancer, her dance, "The Indescribable," being most artistic; C. H. Johnson, Spry and Austin, R. H. Douglas, and The Calcotts are entertaining comedy artists; while Clarice Netta whose sweet voice is heard to advantage; and Rose Naynon with her 100 trained birds complete the bill.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Marie Kendal is at the head of the bill here, and her songs are loudly applauded. The Five Delevines are great favourites; Sinclair and Whiteford have a good comedy sketch; the Walleys perform some clever juggling tricks. Other turns are the Three Clarions, Steve McCarthy, Tennyson and Wallis, Horace Wheatley, Lee and Bentley, and the cinematograph.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Mlle. Eugene Fougère is here with her artistic novelty dance "La Matchiche"; Tiller's Manchester Mites are a clever and well-trained combination; the Albanos have a bright musical act; the Sisters Olive and Flo Cecil are dainty comediennes; Mac and Hill and the Paragon Trio are applauded for their songs; Lily Sharplin is a clever mimic; the Five Whiteleys and Great Scott add to the success of the programme.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Sketches are the principal attraction here; Julia Kent, Alex Keith, and company have a tabloid musical comedy, Where's Aubrey? which has made a big hit; and a melodramatic sketch, His Master's Wife, played by Madge Morley and company, is equally successful. Harry Hayton, Charles Robinson, and Will Cornish are entertaining comedians; the Picquays have an up-to-date gymnastic display; Lilian Bowas wins loud applause. The bioscope is also a big attraction.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is attracting large audiences here this week with the American drama At Cripple Creek. The character of Joe Mayfield is excellently portrayed by Mr. Stanley Bedwell. Villainy is well depicted by Mr. Chas. H. Lester as Martin Mason and Mr. J. G. Maine is highly successful as Manuel Alvarez, his accomplice. Wahketah, the faithful Indian, has a worthy exponent in Mr. Arthur D. Layland; little Rosie Hopkins cleverly undertakes the part of Little Tatto; Dynamite Ann receives a praiseworthy interpretation from Miss Agnes Verity; whilst Belle Gordon is capably played by Miss Lily Beagle. Miss Daisy Carlton is well received in her rendering of Maggie Mason. The humour of the play is supplied in a commendable manner by Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood and Mr. Sydney Benson as Ben White, the nigger.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—There could be no bigger attraction to Blackburn theatre-goers than a visit from Miss Florence Baines. The play in which Miss Baines appears is Miss Lancashire, Limited, and of course the interest wholly revolves around that lady, who is hardly ever off the stage. As Mary Ellen Thompson, a typical Lancashire lass, she is excellent, and, moreover, speaks the dialect with far more correctness than most artists who attempt to portray Lancashire characters. She is also good in her several songs. She is supported by a capital company, and the play is also extremely well staged.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—As Midnight Chimes, a sensational drama presented by Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company, is being played here. Included in a strong cast is Wittie Watty Walton, the popular comedian, who is very successful in the part of Ted Flavin, a railway porter.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Mr. George Gray and company, in The Fighting Parson, are meeting with their usual success here. It is their first visit to the town, and the miniature drama has proved a powerful attraction. Other items in an excellent programme are turns given by Lily Lassah, a pretty and graceful comedienne; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, in their amusing sketch, A Desperate Remedy; Lilian Verdi, mimic; Will Driscoll, comedian; and Maurin's fountain.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is presenting Public Opinion here this week. Spencer Traughton, C.B., is carefully embodied by Mr. Chas. B. Bedells, and Lord Percy Kilgour finds an able exponent in Mr. Templer Powell; Mr. Frank Hill as the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley and Mr. Ernest H. G. Cox as Sir Babington Mulley are also clever character impersonations; whilst Mr. Thomas Sidney gives a good account of Horace Wibsey, and Mr. S. Irwin Barrett contributes an admirable study of Viscount Pomfey. A delightful Lady Diana Goldershaw is Miss Lilias Earle's contribution; and Misses Margaret Marshall as Pansy Bligh, Miss Hilda Honiss as Phyllis Dagenham, and Miss Amy Coleman as Charlotte are also good. The title of the curtain-raiser is The Other Heir, a clever little play, which is specially noticed in another column.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Youngest of Three, played by Mr. H. F. Maltby and company, is proving an attraction here this week. Mr. Maltby makes an excellent George Wendover; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves gives a creditable rendering of Gerald Wendover; whilst a capital portrait of Philip Radford is supplied by Mr. A. E. Wyn Weaver. Miss Beatrice Marsden is fully equal to the part of Lucy Dulley; and Miss Janet Hodson (Anne Dulley) and Miss Mara Maltby (Florence Dulley) also play their parts most satisfactorily: Jane is quite safe in the able hands of Miss Nancy York. Hounslow Heath, a tragic episode in one act, is the curtain-raiser.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The Three Guitanos, eccentric acrobats and pantomimists, head a good bill here this week. In smaller type appear the names of Madge Grey, a clever dialect comedienne; Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian; the Westwoods, trick cyclists; F. Warden-Reed and Miss J. Stevens, in a dramatic sketch, entitled The Right Road; Larola, who does some clever balancing tricks; Winnie Derson, comedienne; the Brontes, in a sketch; Rose Cabani, a pleasing comedienne; and Harry Anderson, the popular vocal comedian.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The visit of Mr. Dickie Clare's company has, in Lucky Liza, proved a decided success. In Miss Madge Brownie is found a sprightly exponent of Eliza Bird; a humorous Peter Pettitoe came from Mr. T. W. Benson; and the Paul Pettitoe of Mr. Leonard Maitland was most acceptable; Mr. George Minto, as the Judge, was excellent; a charming Virginia Blatherwick was found in Miss Vesta Brownie; Mr. Dickie Clare, assisted by the remaining members of the company, was responsible for the humorous support to a highly enjoyable entertainment.

THE GAIETY.—Proprietor, Councillor John Grantham; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur James.—The principal turn is supplied by Charley Dixon, comedian. Bert Terrell, Tyrolean artist, has proved a strong attraction; whilst the dainty songs of Kate Lynd find much favour. The Gaiety Bioscope displays a new series of pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. William Tudor.—The genial proprietor has a capital show of pictorials, augmented by some good variety turns.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Melvin.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company is here in the successful play, The Walls of Jericho. Mr. A. E. Anson excellently fills the part of Jack Frobisher; Miss May Taverner gives a well studied rendering of the character of Lady Alethea Frobisher; Mr. Alfred S. Barber plays with much humour the part of Hankey Bannister; Mr. A. W. Tyrer is good in the thankless part of Harry Dallas; Mr. Cecil Warde is painstaking as the Marquis of Steventon; Miss Nona Wynne portrays the part of Lady Lucy Derenham in a pleasing manner; and Miss Marguerite Cellier is well placed as Lady Westerby.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Park's Eton Boys head the bill here, and other turns include Morimura, a Japanese illusionist; Annie Casey, comedienne; Harry Bancroft, vocalist; Frank Cass, comedian; Miss Fatmah Diard, American Prima Donna; Will English, coloured comedian; Beautiful Lillian, trick cyclist; Rappo and Ella, wonderful equilibrists; Gertrude Moore, in a singing and dancing speciality act; Charles Chard, comedian; Goggin and Davis, in a versatile comedy acrobatic act; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrun.—The Cee-Mee Troupe, in their sensational comedy aerial act, head the bill here this week, and do some daring acts on the flying trapeze; Sanger and Coleman are very good in their scena, "The Belle of the Phonograph; Almero on the silver wire is well received; and Geo. Raper creates much laughter with his songs and patter; Old Joe, Battle and Breeze, The Leolas, and Henry Nawtrof and Co., in a farcical tabloid comedy, Where's Your Ticket? all receive much applause.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche, who are paying a first visit here in What the Butler Saw, opened on Monday to an appreciative house. As Pink, the butler, Mr. Rignold has a part which gives him a full opportunity to display his undoubted humour; Miss Ada Blanche, whose dresses are really beautiful, is very successful as Mrs. Barrington; while as Mr. Barrington Mr. Charles Fawcett contributes largely to the success of the piece. Mr. Reddick Anderson is a capital Sir Charles; Mr. George Ascott is good as the peppery General; Mr. Harry Rignold's Abraham Welstein is amusing; so, too, is Miss Annie Goward as Mrs. Hake. Other excellent performances come from Mr. Louis Lingard, Mr. Alec Alves, Mr. Roy Byford, Miss Marie Daltra, Miss Hylda Davies, Miss Vera O'Connell, Miss Violet Gould, and Miss Dorothy Garth.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Musical comedy again constitutes the attraction, Mr. Frank Curzon's company being on a first visit with The White Chrysanthemum. Mr. W. H. Rawlins plays Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage with humour; Mr. Horace Mills is droll as Lieut. Chippendale Belmont, and, with Mr. Harry Paulton as Private Perks and Mr. O. E. Lennon as the versatile Chinaman, Sin Chong, the fun is uproarious. Mr. F. Pope-Stamper scores a success as Lieut. Reginald Armitage; Miss Katie Vesey, who dances gracefully, is a bright Cornelia; as Betty Kenyon, Miss Daisy Le Hay is delightfully coy; and Miss Nora Guy makes a charming Sybil.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Revenge, another of Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's romantic plays, is here. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson, with fine effect, fills the part of the villainous Prince Orloff; Draga Vanessa affords Miss Amy Ellam fine scope for her dramatic abilities; as the injured Captain Loris Vanessa, Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson earns the sympathies of his audience; Mr. Francis Serle is a diverting Count Mussant; and the parts of the King and Queen are powerfully filled respectively by Mr. Jerrold Ord and Miss Violet Carlyle. As Olga, Miss Ada Douglas evinces dramatic skill.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The Boissets are on a return visit in The Bricklayers; Beatrice Willey contributes ballads; sprightly and tricky dancing is a feature of the duets by the smart Knick-Knacks; the Brothers Redmond are popular in their acrobatic comedy turn; and a fine mandoline performance by the Di Pace Brothers wins marks of favour. In their feats of modern necromancy, Kahn and Kahn are exceedingly smart; an excellent entertainment is submitted by Prof. Dunning, ventriloquist; Marion Scott, comedienne, gives an acceptable turn; originality and humour mark Barney Armstrong's style as a Scotch comedian; and the American Bioscope shows some fine films.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. R. H. Foster.—Dora Martini does some clever tricks on the high trapeze and suspended rope; and another successful contributor is Harry Taft, a good whistler; the Steinway Quartette entertain with a good selection of sea songs; Charles Gardener is acceptable; in a bright turn as dancers and baton swingers, the Zampis meet with success; the Leotard Brothers are good clowns, clever acrobats, and exceedingly smart hat throwers; Charles Dare's Minstrels give an admirable entertainment; Musical Silvo discourses charming music, and interesting pictures are exhibited by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON.—PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—The new and enterprising manager, is this week offering a capital bill, at the head of which is Miss Daisy de Roy, a charming and talented comedienne, whose songs are finely rendered, and evoke many encores. Miss Violet Robson sings with great taste and feeling; Mr. Fred Field's baritone voice is rich, and his songs are well rendered; Soros, the man of mystery, gives a clever exhibition; and the Sayes are a couple of excellent burlesque artists, the lady's dancing being a great treat. The well-written sketch, The Painter's Dilemma, is capitally played by Misses Edna Reed and Mabel Wood and Mr. Clement Burge. The American Bio-Motograph shows some admirable pictures.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company is here this week with Beauty and the Barge. Mr. Blake Adams is the life and soul of the piece as Captain Barley, and keeps the audience in the happiest of moods; Miss May Fairclough makes a bright and winsome Ethel Smedley, whose lover Lieut. Boyne, has a capital exponent in Mr. Edward Coventry; Miss Mary Pemberton is a pleasing Lucy Dallas; Mr. Charles A. White, as John Dibbs, and Miss Ruby Wyndham as Mrs. Baldwin, submit amusing and clever character studies; Mr. Walter Pemberton is well suited as the irascible Major Smedley, and able support is given by Mr. Pennington-Gush (Herbert Manners), Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite (Mrs. Porter), and Mr. Fred Knight (Tom Codd). The farce is preceded by Jerry and a Sunbeam. At Thursday's special matinée Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, from the Garrick Theatre, London, appeared in The Morals of Marcus.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. Bede Montefiore's company opened here on Monday with The Streets of London. Mr. William Rokeby gave an admirable portrayal of Badger; Mr. Riddell Robinson's Gideon Bloodgood, and Miss Dorothy Cacey's Alida Bloodgood were well played; Mr. Clifford Armitage was effective as Captain Fairweather; Miss Winifred Ingham's Lucy and Mr. Charles Kean's Paul were able enactments; and Mr. Richard Palgrave made a capital Mark Livingstone. Very entertaining light comedy was provided by Mr. Jerrold Manville (Jonas Puffy), Miss Florence Moore (Dan Puffy), and Miss Adelaide Gracey (Mrs. Puffy). The drama was well staged.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard. A capital programme is sustained here this week. Imra Lorraine is seen to great advantage in a series of beautiful tableaux vivants; Theo Bouwmeester, Dutch actor, successfully assumes seven characters in Who is Guilty? Andy Meier and Belle Mora submit a good turn, which includes singing, dancing, comedy and ball punching; Harry Ray and Lillie Calden are a pleasing pair of comedy artists; the Karno Trio are amusing in The Travellers' Rest; the Sisters Brand are charming duettists and dancers; Gwennie Haste is warmly applauded for her singing and dancing; Lily Watson sings and dances herself into favour; Charles Ridgwell is good character comedian; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is an excellent company here this week. Fred Wright, jun., the popular Gaiety Theatre comedian, achieves distinct success with his songs; Will Gardner, America's champion skate dancer, gives a fine turn; the Kentucky Four are entertaining in plantation songs and dances, Topsy, the whirlwind dancer, being especially effective; Otto and Olga are pleasing comedy instrumental and burlesque operatic artists; Tom Woottwell is a droll comedian; Charles Prelle's highly trained dogs perform interesting and clever feats; Raie Walters sings in pleasing style; Jenny Johns is a smart comedienne; Claude Fieldman's troupe of clever juveniles are well received; H. J. Kisbey, "the callboy," is popular; Harris and Worth are diverting talking and singing comedians; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

Mr. Macowan gives a fine impersonation of Monsieur Beaucaire; Miss Violet Sterne makes a graceful and pleasing Lady Mary Carlisle; Mr. Murray Hawthorne's Duke, Mr. J. C. Taylor's Major Molyneux, Mr. P. R. Forman's Captain Badger, and Mr. R. Entwistle's Beau Nash are capitally represented.

NEW PALACE PIER.—Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson and company are here this week with The Perfect Lover. Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson submits a clever and powerful rendering of the character of Lilian Tremblett; Mr. Harold V. Neilson acquits himself admirably as Joseph Tremblett; and Mr. Lewis Willoughby is highly successful as Lord Cardew; Miss Elizabeth Watson makes a capital Susan Leeson; Mr. John Detliv shows clever acting as John Collis; Mr. W. Lemmon Warde's William Tremblett is well played; Miss Dorothy Milne is a pleasing Martha; and the remaining parts are ably sustained.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. James Welch and his full company are here with the amusing farce, in three acts, When Knights were Bold, the staging of which is on a very liberal scale. On Monday evening there was a large attendance in all parts of the house, and the large audience evidently fully appreciated the smartness and really funny qualities of the play. Mr. Welch acted cleverly as Sir Guy de Vere, he was always very amusing, and in the second act was excruciatingly funny without appearing to try to be so. Miss Audrey Ford acted suberbly as Rowena, maintaining a naturally dignified deportment throughout; Miss Daisy Cordell was well placed as Miss Isaacson; Mr. Edward Sass distinguished himself by a clever performance of Sir Brian Ballymote; Mr. Henry J. Ford did excellently as Charles Widdicombe, Mr. Arthur Grenville made a capital character part of Isaac Isaacson; Mr. Chesney was successful as the Dean of Beechwood; the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave was impersonated with the necessary dignity by Miss Emma Gwynne; the parts of Millicent Eggington, Marjorie Eggington, and Kate Pottleberry were nicely taken by the Misses Estelle Winwood, Enid Sass, and Mabel Wentworth; and Wittle, Barker, and Alice Barker had good exponents in Mr. George F. Tully, Mr. Gordon Tompkins, and Miss Annie Chippendale; the Herald have a dignified representative in Mr. Leopold Profeit.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here with the successful drama, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, the play being staged in a very effective manner. Miss Beatrice Homer displays much power and acts excellently in the title-rôle; Mr. Philip Dainen distinguishes himself by a fine manly impersonation of Jack Merriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor acts carefully and consistently as Hubert Gold; Mr. Allen Davenport is highly satisfactory as Tom Redvers; Miss Margaret Watson is pleasing as Morita; Miss Nell Oliver acts decidedly well as Rose Courtney; and the comic parts of Aggie Brown and Tubby Herrick are capitally taken by Miss Nellie Jackson and Mr. Tubby Edlin.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Mark Sheridan, patter comedian, heads the bill, obtaining much applause for his clever turn. The Villions do an exceptionally smart act as acrobatic and comedy cyclists; Maud Mortimer, vocal comedienne, presents a pleasing turn, her songs are selected with taste, and she does them full justice; Lily Langtry, comedienne, is always a favourite here; Espinosa and Neilson are clever and expert in various styles of dancing; Nash and Noel, comedians and dancers, obtain applause; Florence Leonard, soprano vocalist, is successful; Harry Morgan, coon comedian and dancer, is appreciated; Matt Wilkinson and company score with their sketch, The Registry Office; and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Harry Champion, comedian, heads the programme and obtains much applause for his songs; Herbert Darnley's company have a capital sketch, The Skirmishers; it is in four scenes, and is really funny; Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs present a charming musical scena, A Japanese Tea Garden at Night. The sketch is tastefully staged; Miss Santoi is very successful with her songs, and some smart dancing is introduced. Other successful artists are Levaine, in his wire speciality; Martinett and Wallace, coloured musical comedy artists; the Sisters Stratton, pleasing duettists and dancers; the Seven Wulfrunas, in their smart acrobatic act, Fun in a Café; and Fred Land, an amusing eccentric comedian. The performance concludes with a good display of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Hardie and Von Leer's original company, in the celebrated play, Two Little Vagabonds, is here again. Mr. William Fazan forcibly presents George Thornton; Dick and Wally are cleverly portrayed by Miss May Hart and Miss Margaret Nybloe; the Gaffer has an excellent exponent in Mr. John F. Traynor; Miss Laura Hansen as Marion Thornton and Miss Mildred Hodson as Barbara Scarth are successful in their work; Dido Bunce and the Cough Drop are clever studies by Mr. Ernest K. Nelson and Mr. Fred Archer. Good work is done by Miss Maria Pritchard as Biddy Mullins, and also by Mr. Henry Watson and Mr. Edmund Cuthbert respectively as Captain Darville and John Scarth.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A thoroughly enjoyable performance is that of Mr. George Dance's company here this week, in The Little Michus. The delightful music of André Messager is most ably rendered, and the fun is kept merrily going throughout the evening. Miss Alice Coverick sings prettily as Marie Blanche and a charming actress is Miss Ethel Bryan as Blanche Marie; General Des Ifs is a funny personage as presented by Mr. Foster Courtenay; Mr. Gilbert Childs is an amusing Bagnolet, and Mr. William Everard a handsome Gaston Rigaud; Miss Florence Hylton is an excellent Madame Michu; Mr. Leon Simpkin contributes to the fun as Pierre Michu; Mr. Robert C. Harcourt is good as Aristide; Miss Bessie Mackenzie sings well as Mlle. Herpin; and the excellent dancing of Mlle. Marjorie is deservedly encored. The excellent chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The star turns here are a native choir from Jamaica, who are very well received, and Karl Ohm's Animal Hippodrome, in which ponies, bears, monkeys, &c., give a very pleasing performance; T. W. Johnson is a smart comedian and dancer, and the Four Sherrys are clever Risley acrobats; Molly Wolstenhulme, vocalist, is good; the Carina Sisters give a pleasing musical performance; and the New Empire Theatrescope is welcome.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. G. Arkell.—Miss Bertha Norwood, vocalist, sings in first-class style; Frank Coyle, the continuous comedian, causes much amusement; the Sisters Nelson sing well and dance cleverly; a clever and daring show is given by Kyoto, his various tricks fairly taking the house by storm; Frank Cumminger proves himself a clever sand dancer; and J. C. Morris is a droll turn. Special mention should be made of Celest, who is quite a marvel on the wire. Animated pictures conclude an interesting bill.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. George Dance's company is playing The Orchid here this week. Mr. Bertie Wright is as amusing as ever as Meakin; Mr. J. R. Val dances capitally as Zacchary; Mr. Sinclair Holden gives a good impersonation of the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; Mr. Edward Maisby is funny as Comte Raoul; Miss Dorothy Firmin as Lady Violet Anstruther and Miss D. Desmond as Josephine Zaccary both contribute greatly to the enjoyment of the piece. The scenery and dresses are good.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A grand entertainment here is headed by the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese artists, who are marvellously clever; Alice Raymond is a good cornet player; Fenton Cross, who appears twice, produces some excellent pictures with sand and smoke, and his conjuring tricks are capital; Elsie Claire, vocalist; Will Vay's Comedy Juveniles; the Cellos, musical entertainers; and the Bijou vocalists and dancers make a very fine show.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The Eight Lancashire Lads, a good combination of singers and dancers, are the chief attraction here. Other turns include Tod Gowan, vocalist; Solida and Vane, ragtime dancers; Smarte Brothers, in a sketch entitled The Jolly Sportsmen; Howard and Townsend, vocal duettists; Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne; O. B. Krebo, juggler; Selby and Myers, comedians; and J. T. Macmillan, Scotch comedian.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — ATHENÆUM HALL. — Manager, Mr. E. Arnold Crack.—The Girl from Kay's, played by Mr. George Dance's company, is a great attraction here. Mr. J. W. Hooper as Hoggenheimer keeps the audience well amused, being ably seconded by Mr. Harry Jennings as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft acts capably as Harry Gordon; Mr. Louis Edmonds gives a good performance of Mr. Chalmers; and the rôles of Theodore Quench and Joseph are successfully taken by Mr. Edwin Forde and Mr. Claude Dampier. Miss Marie Greenhouse is a winsome Norah; Miss Jessie Fraser is smart in the title-rôle; Miss Grace Murray makes a satisfactory Mrs. Chalmers; and Miss Irene Vere, a charming Ellen, dances delightfully.

CAMBRIDGE — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L. — The Triple Bill company opened here on Monday night. The first piece given was Faithful James, the parts being played by Messrs. Colin Brice, F. Camlin, Harold Chapin, and Harry Welchman; and Miss Mary Conroy and Miss Lilian Maynes. The comedy was followed by the one-act drama, The Gipsy, in which appeared Mr. H. Camlin, Mr. Harold Chapin, Miss Elsie Chapin, and Mrs. Alice Chapin, the third item on the programme being A Pantomime Rehearsal, in which the company could not appear to advantage owing to the bad behaviour of a certain section of the undergraduate audience, but Mr. Colin Brice, as Lord Arthur Pomeroy, received well-merited praise; the other parts being satisfactorily rendered by Mr. Harry Welchman, Mr. Alvin Sawyer, Mr. Harold Chapin, Mr. Clifford Standin, Miss Lillian Mayne, Miss Mary Conroy, Miss Myra Douglas, Miss Elsie Chapin, and Mrs. Alice Chapin.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Mr. Charles Macdona introduces Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) to Cardiff this week with great success. The title-rôle is in the excellent hands of Mr. Morris Harvey, who quickly makes himself popular by his faithful, easy-going rendition of Mr. Popple. Mr. Herbert Dickerson gives a satisfactory account of Norman Popple; and Messrs. Augustin Symonds as George Hennay and Fred F. Allen as Henry Doring, also lend material assistance in the fun-making. La Bolero, the actress, is played by Miss Mamie Brickwell, who captivates the house by her tuneful singing and her sprightly rendering of the part; Miss Lulu Louden acquits herself with much credit as Louise; while Miss Louie Rene (Mrs. Doring), Miss Stella St. Audrie (Mrs. Hennay), and Miss Claire Pridelle (Violet), are others who are greatly responsible for the success of the piece.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The drama, attracting enthusiastic audiences at the popular King's this week, is I Defy the World, a piece always popular with Mr. Samuel James's patrons. The company is an all-round strong one, and the staging of the drama calls for special mention.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—A strong programme is presented at the Queen-street house, headed by the talented Harmony Four, whose humorous musical performance is so popular. Lil Hawthorne is still as dainty and charming a songstress as ever; Whit Cunliffe's catchy songs render him a great favourite; Paulinetti and Pegue present a unique gymnastic performance; a very pretty scene, entitled The Spider and the Fly, is provided by Talbot and Pearce, two capable vocalists; and the ventriloquial entertainment of Clemart is above the average. Moon and Morris, comedians and dancers; Will Mitcham, musical comedian; and Maud Ross, a pleasing comedienne, also contribute excellent turns; while the bioscopic pictures of the Glamorgan v. South Africa match brings the performance to a close.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The Private Secretary, again introduced by Mr. Eugène C. Stafford, is paying a return visit. Mr. Donald Price-Evans appears in the title-rôle with great success; Mr. W. Hargreaves once again causes roars of laughter as Mr. Cattermole, a part he has made quite his own; Mr. W. T. Elworthy gives a capital performance as Mr. Marsland; Mr. Vivian Gilbert has made an excellent study of Sidney Gibson, which he plays without undue exaggeration; Mr. James P. E. Hussey acts Harry Marsland with fine spirit and good taste; Mrs. Alfred Davis repeats her always enjoyable impersonation of Miss Ashford; and Miss Cecily contributes a capital character-sketch of the landlady. Mr. Randolfe Reade as Douglas Cattermole, Miss Berth Elliott as Eva, and Miss Dora Gray as Edith make the most of their opportunities, and add much to the success of the performance.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Another capital bill is delighting large audiences this week. The "Gordon Highlanders," who are the chief attraction, give a wonderful exhibition of quick drill and wall scaling; Alf Gibson, with his quaint style and songs, has every reason to be gratified with his reception; Helm and Cozens, in their comedy act, The Doctor and the Patient, are responsible for much laughter; the Henriques do some clever acrobatic work; Agnes Hansen, a pleasing soubrette, meets with much favour; and the Woolhafs contribute a versatile turn which is much appreciated. A distinctly smart and novel act is given by Rose and Grayson, whose mélange of music, singing, and dancing meets with warm approval. The ever-popular Pepiscope, with some excellent pictures, concludes an enjoyable entertainment.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—A Country Girl is on a return visit here, the company being one of the many sent out by Mr. George Dance, the business-management being in the hands of Mr. George Blant. Mr. Coningsby Brierley works hard and with capital result as Barry; and Miss Cissie Sephton is a good Madame Sophie. Mr. John M. Hay has a fine appearance, and proves popular as Geoffrey Challoner. The two old men, Sir Joseph Verity and Granfer Mummery, are well represented by Messrs. Arthur Jackson and H. A. Mather respectively. Miss Ernestine Desborough finds much favour as the Princess; the part of Marjory Joy is in the safe hands of Miss Barbara Babington; and Miss Elaline Thorne makes an excellent Nan.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Low Lake and his company of comedians top the bill here; Maxford and O'Neill have some smart patter; by no means the least interesting item of the programme is the contribution by means of Lacey's Ernscope, "The Bride and the Bicycle" being particularly amusing.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Leslie Race is billed to appear here, but in his absence Mansel Fame gives a couple of well-received songs; Fraser and Haley are a pair of vocalists who score with "Peeping Eyes"; Professor Fuller mystifies the onlookers with his "Astarte" illusion; Elsie Robey causes much laughter in The Slavey's At Home; Rich and Rich are a smart pair of cross-talk comedians; Wm. Hollee, Nannie Goldman and company appear in The Little Charwoman with good results; Mabelle May executes some spirited dances; and the Edisonograph has fresh pictures.

CHORLEY. — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—The drama The Throne of Terror is being presented here this week. Mr. W. J. Miller is effective as Maximilian Robespierre, Mr. Arthur Harley capably undertaking Comte de Roquefort; Mr. Roy Milton excellently renders Captain Eugene de Lisle; as Jonjou Mr. Bert Ellis is particularly humorous; Marguerite de Roquefort is charmingly depicted by Miss Katherine Maude Davies; Miss Ethel Lanyan Maude portrays Victorine D'Almonte with much power; and Miss Georgie Whyte vivaciously plays Peppietta.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—East Lynne is being produced here this week, under the direction of Mr. Richard Dalton, and on Monday evening the house was comfortably filled. Mr. Vincent Clive cleverly portrays Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Eric Mayne provides an excellent character study of Francis Levison; Mr. Eric Maxon pathetically delineates Richard Hare, and Justice Hare has an able representative in Mr. Frank Liston. Miss Dorothy Grimston excels in the dual rôle of Lady Isobel and Mme. Vine; Miss Ella Thornton makes a good Barbara Hare; and Joyce is admirably undertaken by Miss Eva Haydon.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona;

singing of Scotch songs being excellent; Mlle. Von Ella, illusionist, gives a very clever performance; Salmon, trick cyclist, introduces new and very clever feats; Cavalli, ventriloquist, creates a great deal of laughter with the help of one lay figure, and his dialogue is good; Wellesley Lynn, impersonator, pleases in his songs; Stephens and Rennior, comedians, sing parody songs, and one gives a sand dance; Lilly Loyadale, who possesses a well-trained soprano voice, sings two songs in a cultured style; and Ernie Myers, patterer and comedian, submits capital humorous songs.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A numerous gathering witnessed a return visit of Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company with a répertoire of plays, including Mary Queen of Scots, East Lynne, Nell Gwynne, Jane Shore, Sapho, and From Washerwoman to Duchess. As Mary Queen of Scots Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer combines all the necessary qualities with marked success, and was loudly applauded on Monday night. Other characters were in capable hands.

The Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—A thoroughly enjoyable programme is submitted to the patrons of this capital house. Sibb and Sibb are exceptionally clever gymnasts; Hymack gives a turn which is both puzzling and amusing; Ella Shields is a big favourite as a coon singer; Joe Peterman and company give a sketch entitled The Pawnbroker; Lugio's sextette, in A Serenade in Naples are aided by some excellent part singing; Lawrence Barclay is a capable comedian; and Clackamus, an American comedian; and Lade Henderson, descriptive vocalist, with the usual pictures, are other attractions of the bill.

The Empire. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance. — An attractive programme is provided at this undoubtedly popular house, and the bill is headed by Mr. Willie Edouin, who appears by special permission of Mr. George Edwardes. Boris Lenski, the Dutch violin virtuoso, delights everyone by his brilliant solos; Wyndham and Kitty give a daring performance on the tight wire; Charlie Kitts and Rhoda Windrum cause much amusement in a sketch entitled The Cuckoo; Sidney Dolf, a clever comedian, introduces smart juggling; Horace White is an exceptionally clever ventriloquist; and Vernon's Vioscope gives a set of up-to-date pictures.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton. — Hardie and Von Leer's No. 1 company is playing Two Little Vagabonds to full houses nightly. Mr. Douglas Vigore capably enacts the part of George Thornton; and he is ably assisted by Miss Valerie Crespin as Marion Thornton. Miss Lucy Beaumont and Miss Gladys Vernon as Dick and Wally evoke sympathy; Miss Lillian Stewart makes a pleasing Barbara Scarth; as Sister Randall Miss Lena Vernon is well placed; Mr. Edward McLean is an effective Captain Darville; and Mr. Richard Hicks a good John Scarth. Mr. Maurice Holmes as the Footman raises many laughs; and Miss Violet Vivian handles a difficult part well as Biddy Mullins. Mr. Lionel Ellis, Mr. Frank Gordon, and Mr. Gerald Valentine are responsible for the three roughs, Bill Mullins, Dido Bounce, and the Coughdrop. The part of Dr. Lynn is in the able hands of Mr. J. Goodman, and that of Joe Gargoyle is made the most of by Mr. Geoffrey Dering.

CREWE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. James Cardwell's juvenile pantomime company is appearing here in Beauty and the Beast. Miss Dolly Dodds as Beauty is a general favourite; Miss May Gibson captivates everybody as Silverstar; and Miss Kitty Trewhitt is a dashing Prince Charming. Miss Daisy Fielder is well suited as Will Scarlett; and Miss Isa Gibson is a charming Maid Marion. Miss Edie Camm as Marjorie Daw gives a talented display; and Miss Beattie Townshend is good as Evilheart. Master Jack Harrison is amusing and clever as Baron Hardup; and the Brothers Armstrong are capital as the two sisters, Dressalinda and Marrigolda. Messrs. Doyle and Gibson keep the audience in a good humour by their quaint jokes, and do well as Flip and Flop; and Wee George Wood is remarkably clever for his age. Specialities by the Margueritta Quartette of Dancers, the Barefooted Troupe of Dancers, Miss Edie Camm (bâton swinger), and Wee George Wood, are also introduced.

CROOK.—Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson. — The Price of Her Soul, played by Messrs. Shinton and Greenwood's company, is drawing large houses here this week. In the character of Lord Mandeville, V.C., Mr. John B. Shinton is seen to great advantage, and Miss Ada M. Ryder submits a delightful rendering of Countess Inez; Mr. Annesley Hely, as Major Skoboloff, is well to the fore, and Mr. Archie Gear is a capable Demetrius Lanovitch; Miss Kate Walfred's conception of Olga is good, and Miss Grace Garside could not have been better placed than as Lady Jemima; Miss Olive Chesman is a clever Nadine.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The Freedom of Suzanne is being capitally played here by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Miss Mabel Love is a host in herself, and makes a bewitching and entertaining Suzanne Trevor; Miss Annie Stalman is praiseworthy as Lady Charlotte Trevor; Miss Charlotte Mead is suitable as Mary Minching; Miss Violet Ley makes a charming Lady Isabel Bury; Miss Dorothy Lart is bright and attractive as Mrs. Tustail; and Mrs. F. Turner scores as Mrs. Putman. Mr. Percy Hutchison submits a scholarly rendering of Charles Trevor; Mr. F. G. Thurstans is capital as Fitzroy Harding; Mr. Patrick Quill is commendable as Sir Horace Hatton; Mr. J. Hastings Batson does well as Lord Dacher; Mr. Townsend Whitling is competent as Captain Harry Cecil; and Mr. Richard Neville is good as Tommy Keston. The curtain-raiser, Mary's Secret, is excellently enacted by Mr. T. Whitling, Mr. F. C. Thurstans, Miss Dorothy Lart, and Miss Violet Ley.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in The Village Blacksmith, is attracting appreciative audiences here this week. The title-rôle is in the excellent hands of Mr. Sam Livesey; Mr. Joseph Carter plays forcibly the part of Captain Leo; Mr. Edwin Maydew as Lucas Marlow earns distinction; Mr. Thos. E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins is exceptionally good; and Mr. George V. Campbell as Billy Twigg is responsible for much laughter. Miss Bertha Hanbury as Harry Strong wins applause; Mrs. T. C. Livesey figures satisfactorily as Sal Parkins; and Miss Maggie Edwards as Kate Strong, the blacksmith's wife, acts with grace and sincerity.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The bill of fare here is quite up to the mark. Arthur Conquest and company make a big hit in the realistic pantomimical sketch, The Sioux; the O'Natis troupe of jugglers are clever; the Sisters Edwardes are neat dancers; Albert Whelan, Australian entertainer, is received with approbation; Farley, Rennie, and Farley are droll in Fun at a Railway Station; Fred Elton is applauded for a speciality act, "On Board an Ocean Liner"; Venie Clements is an entrancing comedienne and dancer; Mlle. Omega is great in her wire act; and the King's College Boys in "Excepts from Opera," score a success.

DARLINGTON. — Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company in The Coal King, is the attraction this week. Mr. L. Maitland plays the part, Tom Roberts, in a very able manner; Miss Grace Shirley, the heroine, is in the capable hands of Miss Gertrude Valentine; Mr. Robert Smith, in the part of Sir Harford, is admirable; the heavy lead is played by Mr. Escott Robson, who makes the most of the part; Mr. Alfred Terris, as Jim Williams, is extremely droll; Miss Sybil Coghlan makes a capital Araminta Green; another good character is Mad Ann, played by Miss Sinna St. Clair in capital style. Two tons of coal are given away this week to the poor. Since last August, Messrs. Polini and Maitland have given away over 100 tons.

DARWEN. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company made a welcome reappearance here the early part of the week in A Country Girl. Miss Hettie Peel was a frolicsome Nan, and she has a good voice, which she uses to advantage; Miss Violet Leslie looked sweet and pleasing, and sang tastefully as Marjorie; Miss Madge Campbell was excellent as Sophie; and Miss Adelaide Clifton proved herself a capital Princess Mechelanah. The rôle of Geoffrey Chaloner was in the capable hands of Mr. Martin D. Pitts, who also sang well; Mr. Bernard Vaughan was a stately Rajah; Mr. W. O. Billington was highly amusing as Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr. Frank Weir deserves special mention for his conception of the part of Barry, his mannerisms were exceedingly funny. The chorus and the augmented orchestra were quite in keeping with the production.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company is here this week with the musical comedy Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Ida Ressanby is successful in the title-rôle, singing several excellent songs. An outstanding feature of the performance is the playing of Mr. Will Brereton, a comedian of conspicuous ability, his songs and dances are unusually good, and his patter and gags most amusing. Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith sings may capital songs; Miss Marie Vere figures agreeably as Ruth Montrose; and Mr. Walter Ashley is a manly George Fielding. Possessed of a capital voice, he uses it to the best advantage. Captain Dudley is in the able hands of Mr. Henry C. Ward; whilst another character worthy of mention is that of Hawkins, creditably acted by Mr. Arthur C. Hartley. The Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake introduce a number of smart dances.

Palace.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Daisy Jerome made her bow on Monday night to two large audiences, and created a distinctly favourable impression. Another good turn is that of Louis Hardt, whose muscular feats and artistic poses are decidedly interesting. Geo. Davis and company evoke endless merriment in their sketch, Jack's Uncle, which is well staged and acted. H. O. Wills, one of the most amusing of comedians, is deserving of all praise; Wake and Dean are thoroughly entertaining in song and talk; and the Three De Veres introduce a good comedy speciality of the acrobatic order; while Lily Vane contributes an acceptable turn of song and dance. On the Palace Bioscope "Whaling in the Atlantic" constitutes a most interesting picture.

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—The American Indian drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah, is the attraction here this week. Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk takes the leading part in the production, and to her in great measure the success of the piece is attributable. Mr. C. W. Charles, as General Stockton, the Colonel of a United States Cavalry Regiment, has a fine martial carriage and bearing; Mr. Guy D. Hackney is an accomplished comedian, and is accompanied by a well-trained canine friend called Pinkie. Other members of the capable cast are Messrs. Danny Ryan (comedian), P. Boletti, E. Leroy, and J. Shawcrop, and the Misses J. Hart and W. Goepel.

DEWSBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Servais Le Roy presents here this week an extraordinary novelty, defined as a modern mystical play. Mr. W. Scott-Phipp is in charge of the business interests of the company, which includes a number of well-known competent artists. The piece has been "written round" the famous trio of "black magicians"—Le Roy, Talma and Bosco—who, by means of weird and sensational experiments completely baffle and bewilder the mystified audience. The tricks performed are as unique as they are astounding, and the celerity, finish, and aplomb characterising the methods of these modern necromancers stamp them as unrivalled artists in the art of trickery and illusion. Servais Le Roy utterly stupefies one with his feats of legerdemain, rapidity, minute thoroughness, and polish being the salient features thereof. In the rôle of the hypnotist Chartier, Le Roy furnishes a sensational scene, wherein one of the characters in the play is put under control, and immediately made to float in mid air, and in quick succession to vanish instanter, leaving the stage tenantless—a remarkable illusion savouring of the occult. Handsome and physically well-built and proportioned, Mlle. Talma looks as much as she proves herself to be—"the Queen of Coins." The wonderful facility with which this lady palms silver coins startles one. Her nimble fingers make the coins come and go, appear and vanish, with uncanny adeptness. Bosco, as usual, justifies his nomenclature of "the genial one," and one of his numerous jests is to endeavour to stow himself within a barrel of a circumference hopelessly inadequate for his ample proportions, whereupon, ludicrously unsuccessful, he retires quite at ease, promising to bring in another barrel. This diverting trick he terms the "Flight of Cupid!" Miss Marie Ault in the rôle of Annie Jones, a pert and loquacious maid, shows a strong sense of humour; a diminutive comedian, Mr. Willie Atom, is grotesque as the call-boy; Mr. Stafford Smith plays Lord Kinton admirably; Professor Le Gros is well interpreted by Mr. Frank Melrose, Robert Fenton being presented by Mr. Henry Danson, who is rather too immaculately attired for a wax-work proprietor. Considerable amusement is caused by Mr. Thos. Burdett in his assumption of Herr Hachenspreight, a trombonist; Mr. Robert A. Innes impersonates with considerable ability Rufus Merivale; Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner is a sympathetic and agreeable Lucie; Miss May Harley as the lady clerk, Mary Gray, does well.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—Brilliantly skilful and artistic is Slippere, the blind pianist; Miss Ramsay proves herself a most valuable assistant; a basso vocalist of power, depth, and range is Harry D'Albert, late of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Co.; Jean Kram judiciously intermingles comedy business with juggling feats; and other artists are Lestre and Player (comedy duettists and patterers), Sam Shipley (comedian and dancer), Fields and Lewis (burlesque artists), the Lorraines (clever banjoists and dancers, who harmonise excellently), Bean and Belle (operatic duettists), Bella and Minnie Terry (duettists), and the animated pictures complete.

DONCASTER.—New Theatre and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Spring Chicken was well received on Monday. Gustave Babori was excellently played by Mr. J. S. Durant; Boniface was a successful embodiment in the hands of Mr. Harry Averell; and Mr. Ralph Holland scored as Baron Papouche. Mr. Edwin Dodds was alert as Felix, the head waiter; and Mr. Lewis Wigley did well as Stephen Henry. Yeoman service was done by Mr. Moon Taylor in the rôle of proprietor of the Crimson Butterfly; genial and affable was Mr. Fred Payne as Mr. Girdle; and Miss Nellie Kavanagh gave a faithful rendering of Mrs. Girdle. Miss Poppy Poole as Baroness Papouche, Miss Florence Lee as Dulcie Babori, Miss Lilian Erroll as Emmy Lou, Miss Nancy Reeve as La Belle Cissy, were all pretty and accomplished artists.

DOVER. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—A Destroyer of Men is here. Mr. James Hare submits a powerful embodiment of Karl Mischla; Mr. Hill Cremer is excellent as Paul Starevitch; Mr. Chas. Bickell wins sympathy for his able representation of Michael Machila; Mr. Harold B. Lewis is admirably suited to the rôles of the Count; a special word of praise is due to Mr. Frank Orchard, a sufficiently villainous Fedor; Mr. Arthur Swain is successful as Sergt. Krans; and Mr. Ross Warren is loudly applauded for his amusing antics as Coco. Miss Alice Buckland as Mina is popular; Miss Gladys Lloyd is a refined and charming Vida; and Miss Irene Clifford as Olga plays with good dramatic effect.

The Empire.—Proprietors, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. B. H. Harland; Secretary, Mr. C. R. Stanfield.—Percy Galino heads the bill with a clever pot-pourri act; Ethel York is a charming comedienne; G. H. Keith contributes some pleasing numbers; and Bernard and Weston convulse the crowded houses with their comicalities as patterers; Miss Amy B. Ellis and her company present the sketch Justice, which gives Mr. J. H. Brownson an opportunity of showing his histrionic powers, of which he takes full advantage. Raymond's Bioscope shows some excellent films.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The successful musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, as presented by Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crosman's company, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Arthur Reynolds in the part of Sergeant Brue is responsible for much hearty laughter, and Miss Hebe Bliss is an effective vocalist and acts in a charming manner as Lady Bickenhall. Mr. Charles McLagan displays clever comedy as the criminal Crookie Scrubbs, and Miss Mary Hay elicits the admiration of the audience for her excellent singing as Aurora Brue. Mr. Charles Sims gives a characteristic rendering of Mr. Cranks, and Miss Marion Hargreave is particularly good as the servant Daisy. Michael Brue is ably presented by Mr. E. Percy Rogers, and Miss Mabel Keith as Mabel Widget. Miss Lilian Pickering as Vivienne Russell, Miss Vera St. Clair as Louise Claire, and Miss Ethel Ford as Eva Graham are equally successful as in their respective rôles. Mr. Ernest Mozar is capital as Gerald Treherne, and the part of Matthew Habisham is well sustained by Mr. Henry Soutar.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. Martin Harvey and company commenced a short season here on Monday, when The Corsican Brothers was presented before a large audience, which included the Lord Lieutenant and Countess Aberdeen. Mr. Harvey, on making his appearance, had a spontaneous and hearty reception. His rendering of the dual rôle of M. Fabien dei Franchi and M. Louis dei Franchi was a masterly performance, and elicited loud applause, and Miss Coleridge gave a meritorious embodiment of the part of Mme. de Lesparre. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd displayed conspicuous ability as M. de Chateau Renaud, and Miss Mary Rorke was dignified and effective in the rôle of Mme. Savilla dei Franchi. Mr. George Cooke was commendable in the part of M. le Baron Martelli. Mr. Alfred Mansfield played with skill and ability as M. Alfred Meynard. The part of Colonna was in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Wright, sen., and Mr. Albert E. Raynor was an excellent M. le Baron de Montgiron. The play was magnificently staged, and the scenery and effects deserve special mention. At the end of the play Mr. Harvey was called before the curtain with a vigour and pertinacity which made it impossible for him to refuse. He could find no words adequate, he said, to thank them for their splendid reception. He was glad the old play had been so favourably received. They said at the Théâtre Français that when a play held the stage for twenty-five years it was a classic. The Corsican Brothers was well entitled to that praise, and its popularity seemed to be still on the increase.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—Mr. James Willard's company is appearing here this week in A Woman's Pluck, and doing excellent business. Mr. Austin Mortimer as Dick Darrell contributes a finished piece of work, and Miss Grace Lester, in the rôle of Grace Daremont, plays with rare dramatic force. Mr. Fred Norburn efficiently fills the rôles of Mark Scanlon and Tim Daremont, and ample fun is provided by Miss Tina Shaw as Bertie Daredevil. Mr. Frank Etheridge is convincing as Sir Noel Fordyce, and Miss Violet Carr gives a fine portrayal of Jessie Pope. Mr. Harry T. Wood presents a capable picture as Winston Dale, and Miss Margaret Smart is exceedingly good as Gertie Fairfax. Others who do well are Mr. Harry Emerson as Matthew Pope, Mr. Dickey Bird as Roger Pippin, Mr. Highman Tyson as Rev. John Raymond, and the Misses Helen Elmar and Kitty Johnstone as Lady Daredevil and Polly Primrose are both acceptable in their respective parts.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The chief attraction here this week is the musical comedy entitled Dandy Duke, which causes plenty of laughter from start to finish. Ford and Barris, in an excellent singing and dancing turn, are well received, and Rita and Roma score successfully as vaudeville artists; Woodhouse and Wells show themselves to be clever comedians and dancers, and the Darnton Sisters are particularly good as duettists. Will Vokes has some good points as a comedian and dancer, and Lilian Rowe is an accomplished ballad vocalist. Phillips and Terry, in their vocal comedy act, elicit applause, and Beatrice Renee is an engaging comedienne and dancer. The Empire pictures are also interesting.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The star turn here this week is the O'Brien Brothers, in a daring triple bar performance, which is loudly applauded. another excellent turn is submitted by Ike Scott and Son, versatile comedians, and Lil O'Gorman is a vocalist and dancer of much merit. The Bristons, comedy acrobats and cyclists, evoke much amusement, and Frank Caffrey is a comedian above the average. The Gondolier Glee Singers are highly successful, and other admirable turns are provided by Jack Lennol, an amusing comedian; Isa Stirling, a refined vocalist; and Playfair and Nikola, papiergraphists. The Bioscope projects many new and entertaining pictures.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Are You a Mason? opened here on Monday to a delighted audience, who thoroughly appreciated this screamingly funny farce. Amos Bloodgood, in the hands of Mr. E. H. Patterson, and Frank Perry, in those of Mr. Howard L. Tracy, create an immense amount of fun as the sham Masons; and Mr. Ernest Cossart, as George Fisher, is a distinct success both in "petticoats" and out; Mr. Frederick Jacques gives a good character-study as Hamilton Travers; Miss Adelaide Grace is an imposing representative of Mrs. Bloodgood; and the Eva Perry of Miss Mabel Durant is full of grace and dignity, while her two daughters, Annie and Lulu, are prettily played by Miss Babs Stuart and Miss Madge Merrique. The farce is preceded by a one-act play, entitled The Ruby Heart.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—The programme here this week cannot fail to please the taste of the numerous patrons of the hall. The Bros. Bright, gymnasts du Salon, are at the head with a very superior performance. That very quaint comedienne, Miss Amber Austa, has a hearty reception for her clever turn; the Fimans have a very amusing sketch, entitled The Fire Station; Sphinx and Sphinx are magicians that mystify; Phil Rabey, comedian, has some good songs; and Will Haines is a descriptive vocalist who proves himself popular; the bottom of the bill is occupied by Empress, the lady handcuff expert, who very cleverly extricates herself from all sorts of positions. The Empire pictures complete the programme.

DUNDEE. — Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—The Prince Chap is the attraction here. Mr. H. R. Roberts acts the part of William Peyton in most convincing fashion; Mr. George Shelton gives a very effective rendering as Runion; Miss Marie Wright as the boisterous Puckers creates much merriment; Mr. Wilfred Draycott is an excellent Earl of Henningford; and Messrs. Greenaway, Robson, and Berlyn, the latter as a German student, are a capital trio of artists. The part of Claudia in Act I. is splendidly acted by little Betty Green, in Act. II. by Miss Geraldine Wilson, and finally by Miss Laura Lawrence. Miss Ethel Hollingshead as Alice Travers and Miss Kathleen Kellie as Mrs. Harrington are good in their respective characters. A curtain-raiser, entitled The Girl from Biarritz, is also played.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists give a thrilling performance; a capital scena is presented by the Ten Dixie Girls, who are expert dancers; the Four Jumels excel in a musical entertainment; Major Moss and Son are vocalists of much ability; Calile and Walker give a clever comedy act; T. C. Callaghan, comedian; Ethel Loftus, comedienne; Little Rose Pink, serio; and Vernon's Pictures complete the programme.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—An exceptionally fine programme is submitted by Mr. Williams this week. The Bros. Lauri perform some original acrobatic feats; the St. Johns are excellent musicians and capital dancers; Les Prunellas introduce a clever speciality act; Mr. George Melvin scores as a Scotch comedian; Michael Kemble is an excellent baritone vocalist; the Prison Scene from Maritana is rendered by a clever trio of vocalists; Lang and Beal create great hilarity with their comedy act; La Belle Helene on the tight wire, and Mlle. Lockhart on the reversing globe complete an excellent programme.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A sensational drama, entitled What Men Dare, is located here. Mr. Percy Norman's impersonation of Fender Drugin is capitally done; Miss Maud Buchanan is a fine Olga Levin; Mr. Angus Alexander is seen to advantage in the part of Richard Wilson; and a clever rendering of Mary O'Brian is given by Miss Ida Mackay.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Charles Windermere and his comedy company opened a six nights' engagement here on Monday, when Facing the Music was produced. Mr. Windermere's clever acting as "the other Mr. Smith" is very funny, and deserves the full measure of applause lavished on it; Mr. C. Casson Freer is an admirable Rev. John Smith; Mr. Gordon Phillott acts with the requisite "go" the part of Dick Desmond; Mr. G. W. H. Wynne is successful as Colonel Duncan Smith; Mr. Henry Nelson is a capable Sergeant Duffell; Miss Kathleen Willoughby ably sustains the part of Mabel; Miss Clare Manifield makes a charming Nora; Miss Mary Buckstone does full justice to the part of Miss Fotheringay; and Miss Evelyn Shelly gives a splendid rendering of Mrs. Pointing. Where is William? is billed for the latter three nights of the week.

EASTBOURNE. — Pier Pavilion. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Messrs. Harry and Fred Poole's Myrioramas are the attraction here this week. The pictures and effects are, as usual, consistently excellent, and capital variety turns are introduced. The Snow and French Family are expert cyclists, skaters, and tumblers; Houstan, the Chinese magician, is quite in the front rank of conjurers; Learto and his dog, Babs, are original and amusing; Mr. Harry Dowsett is in great demand as a comedian; and Miss Florence Hamilton sings in good style. Mr. Fred Poole is the bright and interesting guide.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—There is a good variety bill offered here this week. The Whitworth Cycling Girls and Campkin are clever amusing cyclists; the Elvio Comedy Trio are smart and original in their absurdity, Those Troublesome Slaveys; Miss Maud Prenton has a charming voice; Mr. Victor Courtney is a realistic mimic and clever musician; the Three Careys sing well; Miss Rene Ring scores as a comedienne and dancer; Lady Fauntleroy pleases the audience as a ventriloquist; and the new Hippodrome pictures and Mme. Collard's dogs complete the bill.

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The success of the present revival of The Lady of the Lake must be a matter for congratulation to the management of the Theatre Royal, which has been so long identified with admirable presentations of dramatic versions of Sir Walter Scott's works. Scenery, dresses, and grouping are alike good, and convey to the spectator a vivid impression of the great poem which gives a setting to some of the romantic escapades of King James V. There is some fine acting in the piece. Mr. Leo Stormont is appropriately vigorous and picturesque as Roderick Dhu; and Mr. Ernest E. Norris wears his suit of Lincoln green agreeably, and plays with a chivalrous manliness as King James. Mr. Geo. Barran is a stately, impressive Earl of Douglas; and Mr. Chris Walker is a dignified Allan Bane; Mr. Ernest Lodge is an effective Brian, and Mr. G. Hunter and Mr. Forrest Niven are excellent in the parts of Red Murdoch and Malise. Miss Ada Horner is a graceful, tender Ellen Douglas; and Miss Evelyn Pascel is a pleasing Lady Margaret. The appearance of Miss Dorothy Chard as Blanche of Devon arouses confident hopes for the success of the young actress in her profession. Gifted with a charming face and figure, and possessed of a flexible and expressive voice, Miss Chard displays dramatic insight and power which make her performance both truthful and touching. The choruses are extremely well rendered, and the dancing of the Lottie Stone Troupe imparts additional life to the scenes in which they figure.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard Wyndham, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The return visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Little Michus was warmly welcomed on Monday evening. The piece is full of brightness and sparkle, and it has once more the advantage of being performed by a well-chosen combination. Mr. Eric Thorne, in his old part of General Des Ifs, displays his wonted energy and resource as a comedian who keeps his audience in a constant flutter of amusement. The Bagnolet of Mr. Jack Cannot is another admirable bit of light comedy work; and Mr. Leonard Mackay, as Aristide Vert, acts and sings with judgment and vigour; Mr. W. Talleur Andrews and Mr. Willie Ward, jun., are also well cast as Gaston Rigaud and the Market Man; Mr. George Miller and Miss Florence Parfrey are excellent as Pierre and Madame Michu. Special mention must be made of the dancing of Miss Vivien Talleur as Mlle. St. Cyr; and the numerous other feminine rôles are gracefully and capably filled. Last, but not least, Blanche and Marie find very charming and delightful representations in Miss Iris Hoey and Miss Thelma Ray, who make two most attractive Little Michus.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The comedy element is strongly represented here this week in an otherwise well-varied programme. Dutch Daly, the droll ranconteur, receives a cordial greeting, and his concertina playing gains a double encore. Mr. Walter Curtis provides a diverting turn which keeps the audience thoroughly amused; Miss Minnie Cunningham is among the daintiest of comediennes, her rendering of Irish songs being particularly enjoyable. Casey's Court, a clever farcical sketch, introduces Mr. Bob King and a troupe of midget performers in some very quaint and funny scenes provoking continuous laughter. Maxwell and Frances present a novel comedy act; and the Maples make some palpable hits with their humorous knockabout business. Mr. G. H. Elliot, the chocolate-coloured coon, sings well and finds deserved favour with his hearers; Lora, a young girl in the guise of an overgrown parrot, assists in a kind of second-sight séance, and also, when blindfolded, manifests marvellous powers of memory in the matter of endless rows of figures. Selma Braatz justifies her assumption of the title "the lady Cinquevalli" by her dexterous and graceful juggling; the Two Finneys give a pleasing exhibition of submarine feats in a water tank. A capital series of bioscope pictures completes the bill.

Cooke's Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The programme here this week contains many stirring equestrian numbers. Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke makes a decided hit with his nautical act, Westward Ho! and also introduces a performing mule, the antics of which are very clever and amusing; the Saletos give a series of spirited head and hand balancing feats; and the Humels, in their excellent double equestrian performance; Miss Iona Ginnett's admirable exhibition of her Arabian steed, and the Pischel Troupe of acrobats are loudly applauded; Frank Anderson's Nimble Nippers are irresistibly funny, and Little Bishop and Pete Simple contribute largely to the hilarity of the audience. Mr. John Henry Cooke has been enthusiastically called each evening.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is paying a visit here this week, and opened on Monday with the charming opera Carmen. The title-rôle was filled by Miss Rosena Beynon; her splendid voice was heard at its best, and she acted with a spirit which made her the gipsy to life. Mr. Charles Carter as Don José did well, and rendered his numbers in fine style. Miss Lucie Lever was excellent as Michaela, her voice being much admired. Mr. Marshall Vincent as Escamilla was decidedly good, and he was recalled for his chief number, "The Toreador." The week's bill includes Cavalleria Rusticana, The Lily of Killarney, Tannhäuser, Lohengrin, Faust, and The Bohemian Girl. The orchestra and chorus are under the experienced directorship of Mr. Harrison Frewin.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Playgoers at this theatre have a week of rich fare. On Monday evening Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company appeared in the farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle, which kept the audience in a continual ripple of laughter. Mr. James Danvers, in the character of Professor Septimus Stoney, was particularly good. In the title-rôle, Miss Josephine Ellis was warmly applauded for her vivacious representation of the part; the cast also included the well-known names of Mr. Ed. Chester and Mr. Morrice Holmes, who pleased the audience to the full. On Thursday evening, Mr. Herbert Ralland's company was announced to present the ever-acceptable La Poupée.

FLEETWOOD.—Queen's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—This week Messrs. Elliman's No. 1 Company is presenting A Heart's Desire. Mr. Cecil Gray is an excellent Lord St. Ives, Mr. A. W. Beresford-Carl a good Eric May, Mr. J. R. Tyrrell a capable Hon. Bertie Beresford, and Mr. J. Denman an effective Coombes. Miss Drenkie Newcome, as Julia, contributes some good singing; and Miss Kittie Beatrice Russell, as Gwendoline, and Miss Barley-Clarke, as the Hon. Elsie Beresford, are successful; Miss Dorah E. Eastlake capably takes the part of Oliza.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland. — Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 company is here this week with The Dandy Doctor. Mr. James Salter causes much hilarity as Melchesadeck Brown; Mr. Herbert Pearce scores a success as Colonel Pendred; Mr. Walter Nugent is a smart Arthur Vandyke; Mr. Leslie Martin works hard as Bertie Bolingbroke; Miss Effie Vincent as Ivy Pendred acts in a charming manner; Miss Ethel Dunker makes an impression as Miss Vandyke; Miss Bell Hamilton plays the part of Miss Lorraine in an able manner; Miss Dollie Payne and Miss Rosie Chandler are good in their respective parts as Henson and Marie; and Miss Florence Smithers, in the rôle of Jane, plays in her usual vivacious way.

GAINSBOROUGH. — King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—One of Mr. Morton Powell's companies, under the direction of Mr. Horatio Sinclair, appeared here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in the sensational drama of The Woman Who Gambles. Miss Gertrude Hunt gives a powerful rendering of the Countess Natalie, and Mr. Horatio Sinclair is a good exponent of the character of Baron Cratziaw; Miss Florrie Halton as Cora Gouldhart and Mr. Reginald Fox as Lieut. Czarteriski are excellent; Mr. James Duncan as Count Otto plays the part in a manly manner.

GATESHEAD.—Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. France.—Mr. Chalmers Mackey's company is appearing here in The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr. Mackey as the rollocking Barney O'Hea creates considerable mirth, whilst his singing and dancing are much admired; Mr. Charles Homer cuts a handsome figure as Shamus McDermott, and his Irish songs are appreciated; Mr. David McFarlane presents a well-studied portrayal of Connor Martin; and Mr. Haughton Macaulay depicts with credit the rascally Michael Kenny. Mr. St. John Stuart is excellent as Gerald Courtney; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey is a delightful Norah McGrath; Miss Adele Liddon is well suited to the rôle of Mrs. McDermott; and Miss Nana Flensberg is a lively Biddy M'Ginn.

King's Theatre.—Licensee, Mr. E. Johnson; Manager, Mr. H. Arnold.—The principal attraction here is Mr. Claude Ginnett and company in Rejected Remounts, which causes a deal of amusement; the smartest and most daring acrobatic act ever staged here is that put on by the Borghetti Troupe; perfection in animal training has nearly been reached by Dandy George, whose canine assistant, named "Rosie," goes through a marvellous performance; paying a return visit, Harry Wenburn, with really funny songs, is more popular than ever; a very amusing trio are Wild, Willie, and West, described as bounding navvies; a burlesque actress of great ability is F

Mr. Richard Ferris's interpretation of Sir Richard Wharncliffe is a piece of clever acting; and Mr. F. Thorpe Tracey as Timothy Nias and Mr. Norman Hall as Horatio Spanker are also successful. Miss Kate Froude as Kate d'Arville is all that could be desired; and the Madge Merry of Miss Edith Carr gives great satisfaction; Anna Nias has a clever representative in Miss Florence Lovell; Mr. J. Leoni plays with tact as Jacob Simpson; and a capable performance is that of Miss Irene Tracey as the Kipper.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Glenville and Ormond's company is here in the popular American drama The Still Alarm. Mr. Matthew H. Glenville as Jack Manley gives a capital representation of the part, and in conjunction with Miss Maud Warburton as Elinor Fordham is responsible for much of the success achieved. The other characters are in the able hands of Messrs. George Arthur, Tom Beasley, Fred Ormond, Lewis Gordon, and Misses Mabel Veriton and Hettie Zillwood. The piece is excellently staged, and the well-trained fire-brigade horses form quite a pleasing feature.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Miss Frances Delaval and her clever company are this week appearing here in the new drama, Her Lost Self. As Philippine Marcel Miss Delaval has a part that affords much scope for her dramatic ability; and Mr. Herbert Cecil is well placed as Wilfred Daventry; the callous Norman Esmond is cleverly acted by Mr. G. Osmond Tearle; Mr. Leslie White as Paul Kimberley and Mr. Fred Lillywhite as Victor Elsworth give able performances; Mr. L. W. Halfpenny is an amusing Abraham Cohen; Miss Hetty Stewart as Bridget and Mr. Jimmy Stewart as Tom Flyaway also give some clever comedy; Mrs. Edmund Lyons as Rachael Cohen, Miss Clare O'Sullivan as Lucille, and little Miss Min Johnson as Dorothy all sustain their parts in admirable style.

NEW GAIETY.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Barker.—Mr. J. A. Newton's company is here in A Trip to the Highlands. Miss Ellinger, Mr. J. B. Montague, Mr. Wal Croft, and other accomplished artists are retained, and repeat their former successes, whether as actors, singers, or dancers.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—Carl Hertz mystifies his audience with his clever illusions; the Boccaccio Minstrels and Vocalists are a great success; and the same may be said of Little Tina, the clever child mimic. The Mezzettis present an extremely smart and humorous horizontal bar act; the Rio Brothers are one of the cleverest gymnastic combination yet seen at this hall. The remaining turns are the Henry Taylor Trio, expert equilibrists; the Eight of Hearts, singers and dancers; Lillian Warren, pictorial songstress; and Dave O'Toole, comedian. The Urban Bioscope gives an up-to-date series of pictures.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The attraction here this week is Milton Ray's company of comedians, in the musical farcical comedy The Cruise of the Calabar. The cast includes the ever-popular comedian, Mr. Arthur Milton, who has met with a great ovation. He is well supported by the other members of the company. The Horne Bros. are seen to much advantage in an amusing boxing act; and the Cattaneo Troupe are marvellous comedy acrobats. A clever turn is submitted by the Welsh Wanderers, a troupe of genuine "Penillion" singers; and the Hope Sisters are pleasing duettists and dancers. Other acceptable turns include the Three Romas, gladiatorial marvels, Arthur Pearl, comedian, Amy Marsden, comedienne, and Vandinoff, lightning oil painter.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—George Leyton is again giving his dramatic scena, The Wreck of the Birkenhead, and is most heartily received; Fred Karno's company appears in a rough-and-tumble sketch, entitled The Smoking Concert; Maidie Scott, a young comedienne of much originality, made an instantaneous hit with her various songs; Bennett and Martell cause roars of laughter with their smart patter and knockabout fun; Mlle. Renee gives an enjoyable musical turn; the Crown Trio are well received; Dorothy L. Clark also contributes some enjoyable songs; and the Tally-Ho Trio give a combination of song and humour. Stanley and Vandyke, in a lively sketch, complete a first-rate programme.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Extra value is the rule here, and the programme is an exceptionally long one. Chung Ling Soo, the famous Chinese conjurer, again mystifies the audience completely with his marvellous tricks; Matthew Brodie and his company appear in a strikingly dramatic and pathetic little play entitled A Drummer of the 76th, in which this clever Scotch actor gives a fine performance as Napoleon; Sid Cotterell and company appear in the amusing sketch The Substitute, and cause roars of laughter; Mulvey and Miriam do well in their studio scene; Walter King as the "candy-man" is entertaining in his doleful way; and the Haytors give a lively interlude in a scene with a cabby; Williams and Warden are smart Irish cross-talkers; Rogers and Weston give a Hebrew turn; and Raleigh Abrahams and company contribute a boxing absurdity. Despite the long bill room is found for the Bioscope.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Harry McKelvie.—A capital programme here includes the Cleveland company, in a potpourri of dancing, acrobatics, and comedy juggling; in The Doctor's Deputy Del and Hal keep the house in a merry mood; Zeta Grey and party are seen in a bustling sketch, The Lancashire Lass, in which the fine operatic singing of the lady is the outstanding feature; Harry Rogerson appears as a "tired" comedian; while Sammy Shields has again a great reception; Harry Edson and his clever dogs are a distinctly enjoyable item; the Yankee eccentric, Raglus, has had a good reception; Lottie Lennox has returned with some new songs and old favourites; La Diabelo appears in a daring and sensational bicycle act on the Devil's wheel.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Biggam.—At the Harmonic's three halls John Clyde and his sketch party made a hit with Our Sons' Wives; Pete and Minnie Lee, big favourites here, again gave their black and white speciality turn; J. B. Preston did well in several new and clever songs; and Chorley and Connor again showed their ability as comedians. The Three Smiths gave a varied song and dance turn; Bill Walters is a versatile negro comedian; Cambo's musical items were much enjoyed; Minnie Osborne sang and danced with notable success; and songs were contributed by Myra Norman and J. M. Aitken.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale's répertoire company is here this week. On Monday evening The Sleigh Bells was capitally enacted. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale gave a good delineation of the rôle of Mathias; Mr. Fred Wilberforce appeared with good effect as Christian; Mr. Cotton Holmes was successful as Mons. Bussey; Mr. T. G. Westland as Fritz and Mr. George Liddle as Kaspar were very amusing; Mr. Arthur Rose in the dual parts of the Judge and the Polish Jew was well placed; Mr. David Beattie made a capable Father Hermann; Miss Violet Macree was seen to advantage as Mme. Mathias; Miss Nancy Roberts did well as Annette; and Miss Elaine Grant was commendable as Lucille. The Vicar of Wakefield, David Garrick, and The Lady of Lyons are also billed for the week.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE (late Theatre Royal).—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea.—The Tokio Troupe of Japanese Jugglers are warmly applauded for their clever and daring feats; Ossi Souplessi is one of the most supple contortionists that has ever appeared here; Miss Evelyn Taylor sings a couple of pleasing songs in effective style; and Fred Keeton convulses the audience with his comicalities. Conan and Doyle patter to an accompaniment of laughter, and win a recall for their neat dancing; the Three Sisters Lee are smart vocalists and acrobats, to say nothing of their dancing; George Bernard is at once popular as an actor-vocalist; and Angeline is a lady juggler who dances whilst performing her feats; Chas. Valvo appears as a military officer, and in a ventriloquial entertainment scores well. The Bioscope is this week showing a capital film of the Springboks v. Gloucestershire, taken by Mr. J. R. Poole on Saturday last.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson. A return visit is being paid here by Mr. Frank Ayrton's company with The Power of Gold. Mr. Charles Whitlock as Hodgi Zambra acts with force and skill; Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge scores a decided success, being ably supported by Miss Madge Seymour, a vivacious Norah Donnelly. As Paul Judson, Mr. Richard Oliver acquits himself admirably; Mr. Albert Sefton sustains well the part of Mark Horley; Mr. Wilson Wyte is amusing as Mark Anthony; and Mr. Frank Holyoake is a capital Dr. Saunders. Miss Lilla Wilde is highly successful in the difficult rôle of Lady Brandon; Miss Georgina V. France gives a charming portrayal of Meg Judson.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr Lester Collingwood's company is paying a return visit with the realistic play, When London Sleeps. The hero, David Eagleheart, is capitally played by Mr. Sam Arthur, ably assisted by Miss Mabel Scudamore as Queenie Carruthers; Carrie Jones, the circus rider, is admirably depicted by Miss Bessie Frank; Mr. D'Arcy Kelway is excellent as Sammy Blyth. Other parts well acted are Capt. Rodney Hayes by Mr. C. F. Wentworth; Furnaby Fuller by Mr. Charles B. Sutton; Bob Jones by Mr. F. E. Thomas; Hon. Bertie Broomhead by Mr. Frank Howard; Mark Blackwood by Mr. Harry Barham; Hilda Carode by Miss Bessie Frank; Maudie de Freir by Miss Daisy Clifford; Signorina Robertino Jonesio by Mrs. Edgar Colona; Leila by Miss Josephine Melbourn; and Adele by Miss Helen Holmes.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—The new comers are Frame, the renowned Scotch comedian, whose songs are received with enthusiastic applause; the Sutcliffe troupe of piper dancers and acrobats in a clever turn; Carl Lynn, animal impersonator; the Hexell Team, depicting a coster's outing; and Miss Viviana, the dancing girl.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 Company, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Kirby, in Somebody's Sweetheart, is the attraction here this week. The untiring vivacity and delightful singing of Miss Molly Hackett in the title-rôle is generously recognised, and Mr. W. H. Kirby makes a conspicuous success with a really mirth-provoking performance as Martin Blabs. Mr. E. H. Bertram's fine voice is heard to advantage in the part of Stenton Ashleigh, and the character of Freddie Ashleigh is in the capable hands of Miss Millie Gordon. Mr. Douglas B. Watson scores as Stephen Leverton, and the parts of Lem Lee and Old Joe are capably sustained by Mr. J. Templer Ellis and Mr. Reg. Hugh Humber. Miss Cordelia Knight acquits herself with distinction as Zora, Miss Norah Melton makes an excellent Mrs. Ainslie, and the smart dancing of Miss Rosie Chandler and Miss Dolly Payne, as Molly and Kitty, deserves special mention.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The bill here includes the Vasilescu Troupe of comic bar performers, who submit a smart gymnastic turn; Rose Rose and Rosert, in their comedy scena, Always Moving, are a decided success; the Sisters Loftus are charming vocalists; Ferris and Farnley score with their patter; and the Two Whites are popular comedy artists. Andie Burn, comedian; and the Brothers Ralston, vocalists, are also on the bill, and their performances are appreciated. The Empire pictures complete the show.

PAVILION THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—The company here includes the Selbinis, who give a remarkably clever exhibition of their skill as daring trick cyclists; Forest and King, described as "the two pieces of elastic," are very smart; Garden and Zesch, society entertainers, furnish a delightful entertainment; Cissie Schofield is a clever comedienne; Esme Gordon, comedienne and dancer, deserves mention; and Baroux and Bion submit a good acrobatic and knockabout turn. The Paviscope pictures are also interesting.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—Oliver Twist has been presented by Mr. Tree's company, with Mr. William Mackintosh as Fagin, a study of character that has won universal admiration. Mr. Cecil A. Collins met all requirements as Bill Sikes, and Miss Marie Polini was a popular figure as the unhappy Nancy. Mr. Tom Macfarlane as the Artful Dodger was admirably suited to the part; Mr. T. P. Haynes accomplished some excellent character acting as old Grimwig.

CURRY'S TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Conway and Leland, although only boasting of one leg apiece, have accomplished as difficult feats as many two-legged performers; Nelson's Newsboys contributed excellent songs and smart dances; Marguerite Broadfoote, a comedienne with a dainty and original style, scored heavily; the Alberto troupe displayed skilful feats of equilibrium; and others appearing were Bert Woodward, a clever cyclist; J. H. McCann, roller skate dancer; Harrigan and Holt, comedians and dancers; Ted Young comedian; and Ada Twibell, burlesque actress.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Ailton.—A sensational dramatic sketch, The Maniac, has achieved considerable popularity here. The principal character, a mad inventor, was vividly portrayed by, Mr. Melville Bickford. The Great Penstone displayed exceptional ability as an illusionist, his tricks being both novel and mystifying. The Two Errols, in a leaping speciality, exhibited remarkable jumping powers; while others contributing to the programme were the Sisters Transfield, clever instrumentalists; W. G. Webber, bass vocalist; Conway and Garland in Left in Charge; Grace Langley, comedienne and dancer; and Mabel and Winnie Brooke, comediennes.

THE HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree. — The ever-popular story of Dick Turpin has been presented in the form of an equestrian sketch by Mr. George Ginnett's company. Mr. Ginnett himself represents the highwayman. Juan and McQue contributed highly amusing patter, and Alf Bishop's quaint comedy was acceptable. Babs Lloyd, a charming dancer, was highly popular, and the programme also included Marie Ray, ballad vocalist; Rena and Rex, in a duologue; and Nellie Van, comedienne.

HALIFAX.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The visit of Mr. Walter Melville's company in A Girl's Cross Roads has aroused much interest here. Miss Nannie Meade's conception of the drunken hag Barbara Wade is remarkable; Mr. Wilson Gunning gives a clever character study of Jack Livingstone; Mr. Chas. Franmore depicts with much feeling the rôle of Farmer Meadows; Mr. Gerald Jowan is a plausible Cuthbert Lumley; and Luke Ramsden and Dr. Weston have able representatives in Mr. Fred Withers and Mr. Frank Brunell. Miss Jessica Black cannot be too highly commended for her assumption of Constance Cornell; and much fun is caused by Mr. Fred Ingram (Toby) and Miss Lena Delphine (Tilly).

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The principal attraction here is provided by the Flying Eugenes in gymnastic sensations; Dan Paulton, eccentric comedian; and Rosie Sylvester, a chic comedienne, are also very favourably received. Massona proves his capabilities as juggler; and Howard Stephens and company in The Mummy and the Maid; Frances and Melli, grotesque clowns; Lilian Doreen, vocalist; Cribb and Cribb; Goodfellow and Gregson, the hilarious couple; and Mason and Bart, in a comedy bar act, are heartily applauded.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—Harry Weldon is as quaint as ever; Henry Cot and Colibri, the giant and midget, provide a curious item; plenty of comedy is supplied by the Bros. Ethairien; a smart coloured entertainment is presented by Rastus and Banks; clever dancing is exhibited by Les Belles Americaines; and Gracie Bard, coon delineator; Angelo, lightning cartoonist; and the Davenports are all successful.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Miss H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company opened on Monday in Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold is seen in the title-rôle, and her impersonation is an admirable one; Mr. Paul Belmore as Kleschna is all that can possibly be desired; as Raoul Mr. Hamilton Deane is distinctly successful; and Mr. William F. Grant's Paul Sylvaine is a capital piece of histrionic art; Mr. Roland Daniel is a capital Valetin; and Mr. Campbell Goldsmid as Schram is deservedly successful.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Miss Winifred Hare holds the premier position here this week, and is decidedly successful in her well-rendered items. The Bounding Pattersons provide a turn of exceptional merit; The Toreadors, in their bull-fighting act, are much appreciated; Norman B. Osborne is a young ventriloquist who is quickly coming to the front; Dion Wade is most amusing; Florence Esdaile has a nice voice, which is heard to much advantage; The Athlones, Sandow's lecture models, are excellent; and the Grand Pictures are interesting.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding Smith.—During the fore part of this week Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company have presented a powerful company in Lucky Durham. The honours of the evening rested with Mr. Edmund Kennedy, whose fine acting as John Durham held the large audience spellbound. Mr. Arthur Leigh had a part which suited him "down to the ground" in the rôle of the Hon. Reginald Steighton; Lord Mountfallen was very ably portrayed by Mr. Forsyth; as was also Mr. Vallerton by Mr. A. E. Walker. Special mention must be made of Mr. Powell James, who took the part of Arthur Walcombe. Miss Alice Belmore was charming as Helen Vallerton, and the same may be said of Miss Dulhunty as the Hon. Margaret Steighton. Mrs. Durham, as played by Miss Gourlay, was a fine characterisation; Miss Frances Wolveston, too, gave a capital performance as my Lady Mountfallen. All the other characters were in very capable hands. For the latter part of the week Mollentrave on Women was announced.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Captain Bevan's Gordon Highlanders were announced as "top turn," but, having disappointed, their place on the programme is occupied by the Six Imrie Juggling Girls, whose dexterity with the Indian clubs gains for them a flattering reception; charming Dorothy Dundas, a sweet soprano, at once established herself a favourite; the musical entertainment by Martinetti and Grossi is decidedly novel, the way they turn plant pots, bicycles, beef joints, &c., into musical instruments is most amusing; the Nettas, vocalists, harmonise splendidly; in "Father's Idiosyncrasies" Bert Weston reels off many jokes, ancient and modern; the Custances do some brisk work in a comedy duologue entitled A Game for Two; and other items are George Gulliver, ventriloquist, Charles Austin, comedian, and the Bioscope.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—On Monday Mr. Allan Wilkie, supported by a capable company, opened a week's visit here. Othello was the play chosen. A very impressive performance of the Moor was supplied by Mr. Wilkie. Mr. G. Alexander Marsh played as the deceitful Iago with much realistic force; Mr. Herbert Morgan submitted a good reading as Cassio; Miss Carrie Baillie as Desdemona gave evidence of much histrionic ability; Miss Ine Cameron played forcefully as Emelia in the last scene, and Miss Gertrude Gilbert made a picturesque Bianca. David Garrick and The Bells were played on Tuesday. Romeo and Juliet, The Merchant of Venice, The Fool's Revenge, and Hamlet were billed the remainder of the week.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. W. Hunter.—Nicholas Nickleby is being produced here by Mr. J. D. Hunter and his talented company. The principal incidents in Dickens's novel are brought into prominence, and the scenes are most effectively staged. The unthankful part of Ralph Nickleby is well taken by Mr. Maule Cole; Mr. E. C. Lilly gives a finished interpretation of the title-character; Mr. J. D. Hunter presents a capital character of the cruel, unprincipled Wackford Squeers, the fidelity of the sketch being at once recognised; and Mr. Thomas Boucher creditably sustains the part of Newman Noggs. A perfectly admirable sketch of Matilda Price is given by Miss Cherrie Wardroper; Miss Blanche Bayley gives one of her best impersonations in the character of Fanny Squeers; and Miss Eva Bayley as Mrs. Squeers realises very truthfully the author's idea.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; General-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The attractive burlesque vocalist, Miss Lillie Andrews, opens a good programme; Miss Clara Victor sings in a pleasing manner; the Hippodrome Bioscope is remarkably interesting; Roy Cochrane and company engage in a dramatic playlet, Turned Adrift; Weldon and Wynne make a welcome reappearance, their comical juggling creating great amusement; Jenny Grey is a graceful and expert danseuse; and A Scottish farcelet, entitled The Downfall of Julia, is introduced.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Grainger.—This week Miss Grace Warner is paying a first visit in The Crimson Clue. Mr. Geo. Gordon's impersonation of Michael Stanton rivets attention; Mr. Reginald Brown plays the twin brothers, Jack and Harry Esmond, with success; Mr. W. Bird is a dignified P.C. 69 Edward Croker; Mr. J. L. Leigh as Billy the Rotter keeps the house convulsed with laughter; Mr. Arthur Page as Crazy Jim is very good; Miss Anna Corri plays Miss Tabitha Esmond with feeling; Miss Kathleen Cranston's Mother Scrooge is a fine performance; Miss Esther Dean is a vivacious Musette; and Miss Grace Warner's interpretation of Sal Scarlet, alias Scarlet Sal, is both powerful and artistic.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—On Monday Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly presented The Trail of the Serpent. Mr. Bradford Crosby is a manly Gerald Kingston, Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly an excellent Ralph Hammond, Mr. Vincent Kelway a good Gipsy Jake, and Mr. Leo Whamboult an aristocratic Sir Gerald Kingston. The humorous element is introduced by Mr. Robert Cromwell as William Higgins, ably assisted by Miss Gladys Newcombe as Rose Wilson. Miss Marie Barrat as Ethel Maynard is capable, and Miss Nana Cameron, in the rôle of Rachel, displays ability.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman's company is playing Sergeant Brue here with much success. Mr. E. Russell is smart and alert as the Sergeant; Mr. T. A. Shale is responsible for brilliant comedy work as Crookie Scrubbs; Miss Kitty Dale is a dainty Aurora; and Miss Lily Lingard a bright Lady Bickenhall.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The Novello Family, who head the bill, provide a clever and original entertainment. Other turns are supplied by Fred Hallam, comedian; the Three Rubys, smart lady gymnasts; Drew and Alders, in their acrobatic speciality; Lesley, Bell, and company, in a brightly played sketch, A Little Bit of String; the Sisters Selwyn, duettists and dancers; T. W. Harris, light comedian; the Morton Comedy Trio of vocal comedians; and a clever film on the Biograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Lion and the Mouse, toured by Mr. Walter Maxwell, bids fair to achieve no ordinary success in this city, largely due to the remarkably clever work of Miss Christine Silver, who as Shirley Rossmore carries the house with her. Mr. Leslie Carter, cast as John Ryder, affords every assistance in the principal scenes. Commendable is the reading of Mr. Stephen Wentworth as the son; the same may be said of Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as Mrs. Ryder. The remainder of the cast undertake their rôles with conscientious care.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Hall Caine's dramatised story, The Prodigal Son, met with an instantaneous success here. Mr. Hewetson caught the author's inspiration in his picture of the eldest son; Mr. Norman Partridge as the Prodigal was tender in his efforts to gain the respect and love of his daughter; Miss Alma Murray has but little to do as the mother, but that little is done with consummate skill; Miss Lily Hall Caine with eminent success doubles the rôles of mother and daughter. As Helga, Miss Cecil Cromwell filled a difficult task with taste and discrimination.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's Ltd.—General Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character is the attraction here. Miss Marion Turner is an acceptable Molly Vernon; the Rev. Robert Everton of Mr. E. J. Collins had many effective touches; Dick Punch, played by Mr. G. H. Asquin, was a pleasant piece of work.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Harry Roxbury and company make a welcome re-appearance in The Prince of Monte Carlo; and other artists include Flo Hilton, Tom Burns, Geo. Rapley, Harry Zetter, Eugenie, and Johnny Holland and Co.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Slingsby.—Fasola tops the bill in a startling entertainment; Edie Anderson is a smart vocalist and dancer; Poole and Poole (natives of Hull) gain much applause; Lil Hartley, a popular singer of chorus songs, stays on a second week; Fox and Melville are interesting vocal song illustrators; Percy Johnson and Gus Granville complete the bill.

THE PALACE.—The Three Olympiers appear in a most artistic entertainment entitled Beauty in Bronze; a clever musical act is presented by the Stavordale Quintette; and the Risley act of the Kremos brings down the house. The remainder of the company includes Obo Bros., Mark Melford, Ambrose Thorne, Phil Hermann, and Pat Carey.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather—Mr. E. Lockwood's company is this week delighting large audiences with the musical comedy Sergeant Brue. In the title-rôle, Mr. J. Harold Carson keeps the house in one continual roar of laughter, and Mr. Maitland Dicker, a clever and resourceful comedian, makes Crookie Scrubbs a very entertaining individual. Mr. Robert Selby gives an excellent rendering to his lines as Michael Bruce, and Mr. F. Laceby extracts humour out of the part of Mr Crank. A charming Aurora Brue is found in Miss Florence Spurgeon; Miss Reydon Dallas scores heavily as Lady Bickenhall; Miss Dora Taylor renders good service as Daisy; and Miss Kathleen V. Grey makes a graceful Mabel Widget. Mr. Cecil Strickland is well placed as Matthew Habisham; and Mr. Harold Godwin is an efficient Inspector Gorringe. The chorus, under the conductorship of Mr. Edwin Thornton, acquit themselves admirably.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mysteries of the Thames is being played here this week by Mr. F. Brooke Warren and company.—Richard Brandon receives ample justice at the hands of Mr. Andrew Money; and Miss Marie Ramuz is a good Kate Brandon; whilst Miss Violet Leal as Little Doris has many admirers; Mr. Gilbert Hall as Jack Hammond makes the most of his part. Mr. Dan Hardie is aptly chosen for the rôle of Peter Waggles; and Mr. Sydney Vereker as Bill Bosco gives a good performance. Miss Stephanie Baring appears to advantage in the double rôle of Helen Price and Grace Rochdale. Mr. F. Brooke Warren plays in a clever way the part of the villain, Capt. James Denbigh.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—The Gay Parisienne is being presented here by one of Mr. C. Macdona's companies. Mr. Will Harman as Ebenezer Honeycombe is humorous; Miss Evelyn Hughes is sprightly in the title-part; Miss Holford Beringer as Mrs. Honeycombe renders good assistance; Miss Madge Soutar is an excellent Ruth; Miss Ethel Twimey a pleasing Norah, and Mr. Edgar Ashwin a capital Tom Everleigh. Mr. Clifford Seyler does well as Pom-Pom.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock. — The chief feature of a strong programme this week is the sensational performance of Tom Grave, whose cycling feats are marvellous. Wilson Blacklago makes a favourable impression as mimic and humorist; Jessie Burke and Phil Smith contribute an amusing sketch; Mr. Charles Diamond is an accomplished harpist; and Miss Beatrice a refined soprano; Bob Baxter is a cheery comedian; Alma Obrey a pleasing vocalist; Shawlene a clever sifflleur; and Picton and Roxborough contribute a droll sketch.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—This week we have a welcome return visit of Miss Lillian Bezant's company in An Actor's Romance. Miss Bezant is most successful as Dot; Miss Marion Ryder is a charming Phyllis; and the evil character of Florence Hastings is finely portrayed by Miss Florence Nelson. Mr. E. Eardley Howard displays ability as Harold Devonport; Mr. Harry Algar Lyons is good as Jack Woodford; and Mr. Percy Warlow is deserving of praise as Isaacs. Mr. Harry Wren is amusing as Charley Cummins.

VICTORIA THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. H. Fowkes.—Mr. Mouillot's company is here in The Blue Moon. Mlle. Marguerite Maudin appears to advantage in the title-rôle, and Miss Dorma Morgan is well received as Evelyn Ormsby. Mr. Ainslie Burton as Moolraj is funny, and is ably supported by Mr. Chas. Stephenson as Private Taylor, who with Miss May Audrey as Millicent contributes largely to the success of the production.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. Lingford Carson's No. 1 Répertoire Company, under the direction of Mr. Chas. Draycott. In Mr. Carson's latest play, The Modern Adventuress, Mr. Chas. Draycott ably enacts the part of Pietro Donnelli, a sculptor; Mr. Morley Carroll is good in the rôle of William Delby, a banker; Harry Delby, his son, is in the capable hands of Mr. Sydney C. Cranston; and Mr. Ernest P. Far ably portrays the character of Wallace Danton. Miss Muriel Thompson gives a striking rendering of Violet Meredith, a most notorious character. The Octoroon, The Heart of a Hero, and The Ticket of Leave Man are also billed.

KIRKCALDY. — KING'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—A large and delighted audience greeted Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in La Poupée on Monday night. The piece is well staged, and receives justice at the hands of talented artists. First honours are due to Mr. Harry Brayne as Hilarius, his contribution being most commendable. Miss Mysie Devine is artistic in the rôle of Alesia, and sings well; Mr. Arthur Cozens is an unquestioned success as Lancelot, displaying the requisite amount of innocence; Mr. Walter Balfour gains much applause for his fine singing as Father Maxime; Mr. Fuller Allen makes the most of his opportunities as the Baron; and Mr. Arthur Dennis is successful as Loremois. Miss Edith Hunter capably undertakes the rôle of Mme. Hilarius; and as Henri Miss Dorris Dickens is very effective. The chorus is worthy of special mention. The 'Varsity Belle is announced for the last three nights of the week.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company are this week paying a return visit with The 10.30 Down Express, which has attracted large audiences. Mr. Stanley as Sam Wagstaffe creates no end of fun, and is ably assisted by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts. Mr. George Beverley plays with distinction as Jack O'Malley; Mr. Charles Burdon is capital as James Inderwick, the villain; and Mr. Edwin Clarke is a first-rate detective. Miss Elsie Capell as Bessie Leigh is a favourite; and Miss Evelyn M. Walton does exceedingly well as Letitia Leigh.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, in their successful skit, The Would-be Actors Rehearsing a Drama, head the bill here, and are nightly received with acclamation by good houses. Signor and Mme. Borelli are capital musicians; and Ruby Dahl's life-size marionettes are amusing. Connie Mascott, comedienne; Three Sisters Thurban, instrumentalists; Marie Blythe, contralto; Lily Lena, comedienne; and Little Tim, comedian, not forgetting Walter Payne's animated pictures, complete the programme.

PALACE. — Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell. — Another attractive programme is arranged here, and fairly large audiences assemble nightly. The star is undoubtedly Ancillotti and his thought-reading dog Pilu, which is really wonderful. Harry Gold, comedian, an old favourite, has a good reception; and Charles W. Lever is a quaint comedian. Little Violet, comedienne and sand dancer, is a very pleasing turn; whilst others who contribute successfully include Miss Flo Banks, comedienne; The Izons, comedy artists; Reed and Larne, comedians; Kloff and Ramsay, in a musical act; and the Edison-Swan animated pictures.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The convict drama, Sentenced for Life, is being played here this week by Mr. Bulmer's competent company, and is proving a refreshing change after a good run of comedies and comic operas. Mr. R. Brancepeth Nevill admirably adapts himself to the duties of Sir Wallace Wilson and as Captain Paul Devrich Mr. Ernest Vaughan makes an uncompromising villain. The character of Lieut. Roy Stillwell is very capably enacted by Mr. Edward E. Louis; Mr. Morris Maud appears with great success as the Rev. Martin Orris; and Mr. Arthur Keand and Mr. Reg. Olroyd, as the two convicts, are extremely good. Adele Grey finds an able exponent in Miss Madge Douglas; Miss May Neilson, as Kate Rennell, and Miss Mary Dalby as Lady Stillwell also do well. Others assisting in the success of the piece are Messrs. James F. Firth, Archie Scar, Arthur Liversay, H. Walton, and Luke Warden.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is paying a return visit this week with The Spring Chicken, sumptuously redressed and fitted with many new and acceptable features. Mr. George Gregory is droll as the eccentric Mr. Girdle. Mrs. Girdle is a really clever study by Miss Irene Verona, whose vocal contributions are much appreciated; charming Miss Gertrude Glyn again graces the part of Rosalie, and her effort is a pleasing one; Miss Nancy Langtyre is delightfully piquant as the Baroness Papouche; Mr. John Brabourne merits commendation as the love-lorn Gustave Babori; while the Baron of Mr. Frank Hector is a decidedly clever and characteristic effort. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., Miss Gertrude Gilliam, and Miss Nellie Lonnen are other prominent members of the company.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The popular romantic drama, Two Little Sailor Boys, occupies the boards this week, and a condensed version in which all the best features are retained is filling the house twice nightly. Two promising young people, Miss May Day and Miss Frances Green, act the little heroes in a style that promises well for their future success: Mr.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—One of the most attractive engagements of the season here is the return visit of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's excellent company in the successful play, The Walls of Jericho, which opened on Monday evening to a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Herbert Bunston repeats his masterly impersonation of the part of Jack Frobisher, and Mr. George A. Brandram scores his usual success as Hankey Bannister; as Lady Alethea Frobisher Miss Florence Jackson deserves the highest commendation for a performance of all-round excellence; Mr. Cyril Baleine is good as the Marquis of Steventon; both Miss Lydia Busch as Lady Westerby and Miss Molly Carton as Lady Lucy Derenham give attractive and clever embodiments; Mr. Sydney Hamilton as Harry Dallas and Miss Edith Cuthbert as Miss Mornington are excellent; Miss Rita Milman as the Duchess of Skye, Mr. Alexander Casey as Lord Drayton, Mr. Harry Pemberton as Lord Marchmont, Mr. Joseph Herbert as the Hon. Wilfred Renton, and Mr. E. F. Meads as Bertram Hannaford also deserve a meed of praise for capital portrayals.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—After the lapse of a considerable period the patrons of this drama house are being regaled with musical comedy this week in the engagement of Mr. C. Edwardes's company in The New Barmaid. Mr. Leslie Austin both sings and acts well as Captain Lovebury; Mr. Charles Adeson as Bertie White and Mr. Alexander Loftus as William White create great merriment, and Mr. W. E. Chewd as Mons. Bonsor and Mr. James Grant as Colonel Claymore also sustain their parts with the best results; Miss Amy Preston is clever as Ethel Joy, and as Dora Heath Miss Violet Osmund is to be highly complimented; Miss Grafton is smart as Brenda Louth. In the second act Mr. Charles Adeson, Miss Maud Goddard, Mr. W. E. Chewd, Miss Marion Vyner, Miss Emily Preston, Mr. Frank Collins, and Mr. Alexander Loftus introduce with success various specialities. The dances of the Star Trio are executed in admirable style, and add to the success achieved.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Isles.—The principal attraction here this week is Fred Karno's troupe of comedians, who are presenting Mumming Birds and Early Birds, the former on the first three nights and the latter for the remainder of the week. Mr. Karno's companies are great favourites with Palace audiences, and the success attained on previous visits was well maintained this week. Dan Crawley "gets there" every time with his three songs, and his popularity here increases; Lilian Lea, a vocalist of great ability, scores a big success; Katie Butler displays great versatility and drollery and is most successful. The Molasso Quartette of cyclonic dancers give a clever show, which is well appreciated; the Three Dumonds as itinerant musicians are very good; Lilian Bishop is an excellent male impersonator and smart dancer; Silent Tait, the eccentric wizard, scores with an entertaining turn; Jack Charman's singing is also a feature in a good all-round programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—Premier position here is occupied by Harwood's Juveniles in a novel scena, entitled, A Children's Christmas Eve; Frances Haskoll, the "Vocal Chameleon," is seen and heard to great advantage in a very pretty show; Daisy Morrell, a dashing and popular vocalist, daintily costumed, is successful with her well-rendered songs; Anna Kenwick, American comedienne, and an extremely clever dancer, is scoring a well-deserved success; Rowland Hill is an entertaining comedian, and George Hyam, comedian, causes much laughter. A special item is the retainment of Walter H. Pallsiter's Bioscope.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace and company are paying a welcome return visit here this week, with The Love that Women Desire. A finished performance is given by Mr. J. O. Stewart as Squire Abingdon, whose partner in crime finds an able exponent in Mr. G. Carlton Wallace. Mr. Fred Lloyd presents an admirable impersonation of Philip Carnaby; Mr. Leonard Montgomery is seen to advantage as Frank Hardy; Miss Lalla Stanhope plays cleverly as Sybil Thornburn; Miss Alice N. Livesay effectively portrays the rôle of Madge Abingdon; Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke keeps the audience in continual laughter, being ably seconded by Miss Nita Imeson as Pattie Swift.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager Mr. John Darlison.—One of the latest musical comedies, entitled After the Ball, is being presented here this week by Mr. Charles Carey's company. Mr. Buckstone Clair appears with good effect as Martin; the acting and singing of Miss M. Sadie in the rôle of Nancy are popular; Mr. Percy Baverstock puts unlimited energy and humour into the part of a peppery old Colonel; Halliwell Merrit and Dick Seymoud are successfully impersonated by Mr. Algernon W. Lee and Mr. Norman Bowyer; and Miss Queenie Finnis makes a very delightful Nellie Mather. The smart dancing of Miss Eva Ellis and Miss Nellie James as Ruth Gay and Kitty is thoroughly appreciated.

LEVEN.—TOWN HALL.—Mr. Will Knott opened on Monday for three nights with his company of "Canadian Cavaliers." Varieties were supplied by Mr. Will Knott, comedian; Mr. Alf Walters, ventriloquist; Mr. Leonard Wylie, actor-vocalist; Miss Rosie Caine, a neat dancer; Miss Florrie Coyne, a clever girl violinist; and the Cavalier Sketch Company. Some capital pictures were shown on the bioscope.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The Blue Moon made its first appearance in Liverpool at this theatre on Monday night, and was received with genuine expressions of approval. Mr. Robert Courtneidge sent a first-class company. A delightfully-rendered title part was sustained by Miss Florence Smithson, whose rich singing voice was listened to with every pleasure, several encores being demanded; the always popular Bert Gilbert as Private Charles Taylor, and Mr. Edward Lewis as Moolraj caused endless laughter, particularly the latter, whose mock conjuring came as a great treat; Mr. Leslie Gaze proved eminently successful in the character of Major Callabone; Mr. Herbert Clayton made an imposing Captain Ormsby, and sang several pieces with taste and judgment; Miss Lulu Valli was vivacious and graceful as Millicent Leroy; praise is due to Mr. George Mudie, jun., for his Bobby Scott; the rôle of the Prince was efficiently presented by Mr. Thomas Holding; and Miss Daisy Revett made the most of Evelyn Ormsby.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The initial production in this city of the clever play Raffles has afforded the frequenters of the popular Shakespeare much satisfaction. Mr. Leonard Boyne richly earned the expressions of thanks he received for his tactful and convincing picture of the amateur "cracksman"; Mr. Lewis Edgard came in for a share of the honours on account of his carefully handled "Bunny"; Miss Hilda Stewart played with dignity and power as Mrs. Vidal; Miss Madge Murray left a favourable impression with the character of Lady Ethel; more could scarcely be expected from Mr. Clifford Brooke, who undertook Curtis Bedford; the Earl of Amersteth was in the good hands of Mr. Arthur Willoughby; a finished type of real burglar was submitted by Mr. Daiziel Heron, whose make-up and actions as Crawshay were excellent; Mr. Edmund Breon did his best as Crowley; Miss Amy Thomas looked sweet and dignified as Lady Melrose; Miss Hazel Thompson distinguished herself as Gwendoline Couran; and the small but important part of Marie was particularly well sustained by Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald. A Lesson in Shakespeare, supported by Messrs. Daziel Heron and Edmund Breon and Miss Hilda Wright, was an appreciated curtain-raiser.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Melville dramas are always a big draw at the favourite north-end house, and this week Her Forbidden Marriage has been no exception to the rule. Miss Nellie Bonser gave an excellent rendering of the much-tried Lucy, playing with distinction; Mr. Henry Lonsdale presented a most effective George Maddison; the rôle of the rascally Charles Devereux was ably handled by Mr. Louis Hector, being well supported in his schemes by Lady Lancaster (Miss Octavia Noel); Mr. Fred de Vere made an exceedingly funny Timothy Tuttutt; the comedy being also largely contributed to by Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Patty; and acceptable work was done by Mr. Beresford Whitcomb (Sir George), Miss Barbara Gott (Mother Superior), and Mr. Leonard Maxwell (Geoffrey Broughton).

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A programme of exceptional talent is this week billed, headed by R. A. Roberts, the well-known protean actor, in a new production, entitled Ringing the Changes; Florrie Gallimore is an old favourite, and her friends give her a gratifying reception; the Columbia Trio are finished singers as well as humorous; and the Elgars are worth listening to. Others who add to the evening's enjoyment include the Mayvilles, Josie Delaine, Wallace Whitney, and Beattie Foster.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Although The Face at the Window has for years visited this theatre, it continues to prove a big draw, and this week the "house full" boards have been much in evidence. Armadale and Warren's company have given the drama with all its old-time intensity, Mr. Lionel D'Aragon being the Le Loup, and Mr. T. W. Dunscombe again playing Paul Gouffet. Miss Eugene Magnus was pleasing as Marie De Brisson; a well-thought-out La Pinau came from Miss Marie Tennant; Mr. Alfred Warne had some good points as Henry Brisson; and a deal of taking comedy was provided by Mr. C. Alan Hineson as Peter Pottleberry, and Miss M. Leslie-Cudd in the rôle of Babette.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—For the first time in Liverpool The Spider and the Fly has been given at this theatre. Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company is a capital all-round one, all of whom do every justice to the interesting play. Mr. Stanley S. Gordon acts with distinction the part of Cyril Girdlestone; Miss Nina Vaughton is charming as Edith McAllister; Mr. Ellis J. Preston shows much talent in depicting the rascally Welby Girdlestone; Mr. Frederick Ross presents an interesting David Strong; two smart comedians, Messrs. Fred Terriss and Charles A. Preece, are particularly humorous as Romulus Roe and Remus Roe; Miss Amy Venimore as the despicable Stella Gray acts with power; Miss Marjorie May's Flipp is well depicted; Miss Lucy Murray is funny as Molly Blake; and a good sketch of a clergyman is submitted by Mr. H. C. Lancelly.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Miss Dolly Elsworthy, a favourite in Liverpool, heads the bill here this week with Nell Gwyn, the Orange Girl, in which she is supported by a strong company, including Mr. R. Purdie (Charles II.), Mr. H. Ash (Buckingham), Mr. A. Howard (Dick Harriden), Miss G. Stirroll (Lady Castlemaine), and Miss C. Rivers (Mother Gwyn). The piece has been hugely appreciated. Leo Dryden is also in big type, and has had a good welcome for his finely-rendered songs; Gus Garrick is as great a laughter-maker as ever; Elton and Elma had a clever comedy bar act; some sweet songs were sung by Alice Hollander; Cairns and Lynch were loudly applauded for their buck dancing in wooden shoes; Jack Hylton showed himself an eccentric comedian of high ability; the comedy clay modelling by Bicknelle was an uncommonly good turn; and Davis and Davis, refined comedians, were also in the list.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Mark Anthony heads the bill here this week, his funny songs and mimicry being keenly appreciated; James Lowrey, the singing furnaceman, is heard with pleasure; Martine and Son put in another week with their excellent illustrated songs; Newco and Sullo present a laughable sketch, John Chinaman and Jonathan; and also in the programme are Harry Hale, actor vocalist; and Blanche Marion, burlesque actress and dancer. The Tuesday matinées continue to be popular.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Mr. Lingford Carson's well-written play, Defending His Honour, has proved a strong attraction here this week. Mr. Percy Boucher presented a humorous Dick Verison; Mr. Harry Tresham was a convincing Douglas Bryce; Mr. Sydney Grant held the heavy part of Stephen Graid with distinction; a fine sketch of George Duncan came from Mr. Cecil Ravenswood; Mr. Robert Wilton did credit to Richard Verison; Miss Evelyn Kington gave every satisfaction as Harry and Jack Bryce; Miss Beryl Ravenswood was the Mrs. Verison; and Miss Florence Palmer made a sweet Ethel Byrce. Some excellent pictures were shown by the Royal Bioscope.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The "Royal" Stock company is here this week appearing in Wife and Fortune. Mr. Albert Sember, an able actor, plays well as Jack Weston; Mr. Frank S. Stickland is a sufficiently villainous Captain Desmond; Mr. Walter Foster does well as George Thornton; a humorous Tim Larks comes from Mr. H. G. Brandon; Mr. Vincent A. Briscoe does credit to the rôle of Mr. Keen, K.C.; Miss Lina Nazeby shows her high talent as Beauty Glitters; Miss Lillian Burns makes a sweet Mary Weston; and Miss Florence Barnes is humorous in the rôle of Becky Larks. Some excellent pictures are shown by the Royal Bioscope.

PARK PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Cline and Clark, a pair of smart black and white comedy artists and dancers, are prominent here this week; Hector and Paulus are clever comedy acrobats; the remarkable second-sight feats of the Violas have caused the greatest wonder; the Brothers Harrison have a laughable trifle, Quaint Conceits; Little Barney renders several taking songs; some remarkable conjuring comes from Cardo; and likewise in the list are Jennie Laurie, comedienne; and Flo Warner, burlesque artist.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Tom Foy, with his comedy sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London, is the principal attraction here this week. The Jolly Tars in China, an exceedingly humorous trifle, is provided by Foy's comedians, who make their initial appearance in this city; some wonderful jumping is achieved by Santeron; the old favourite stump orator, Billy Richardson, is as amusing as of yore; Maston, described as the new mimic, does some good work; Patty Bella sings and dances in pleasing style; and Claude Tomlin, light comedian, also appears.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—The Holloways, with their wonderful wire act, are top here this week, astonishing everybody; Herbert Darnley's company of comedians have an uproariously funny skit, entitled Muscles; the merry dancing May Henderson is as great as ever; as musical eccentrics the Two Tees are particularly good; Carlton, a remarkable manipulator of playing cards, is likewise full of smart patter; Xley and Hamilton present a most acceptable burlesque opera; Edward Lauri and May Beatty, assisted by Nina Osborne, go through a lively musical mélange of opera, comedy, and farce, entitled In Her Boudoir; the Three Prestons cause great laughter with their act, The Liftman's Rise; and the Wedburns are "merchants of merriment."

HAYMARKET.—Mr. J. S. Childs.—Charles Bignell is foremost here this week with his humorous songs; the McKays, comedy duo and lightning oil painters, showing much skill, pay a first visit; the Ballot Brothers go through some clever balancing; incessant laughter follows the antics of Gertrude Rowan and Billy Moore with their absurdity, The Song Monger; Tommy Vaughan, negro comedian and clog dancer, proves popular; Little Dot Pardy shows much talent as a juvenile male impersonator; and Violet and Mack have some pleasing vocal duets.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The big line here this week is Mrs. Brown Potter, with her company in Mary, Queen of Scots, a dramatic sketch, charmingly-mounted, which has been witnessed by delighted audiences. The Anartos, conversational jesters and musicians, are irresistibly funny with their act, The Morning Mail; Corbin's dogs go through a clever performance; Ella Retford shows herself to be a clever vocalist and dancer; some sensational cycling is accomplished by Arthur Kenny; the Three Sisters Sprightly are a capital turn; Leo Teli, the equine mimic, has an unusually interesting show; Hillman and Russell are humorous with the duologue, The Somnambulist; and Bugler Carr, the musical puzzle, is also in the programme.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Clifton and Gibson are here with their funny songs, stories, and patter; Fred Curran brings several laughable ditties; some smart conjuring is gone through by Prince Ishmael; George Tacius, double-voiced vocalist, has some acceptable pieces; Mackintosh and Royal are expert clog dancers; and others who appear include Young Hoctor, comedian; Sisters Russell, comediennes; and the Bohemian Boys, coloured vocalists and dancers.

LLANDUDNO.—PIER PAVILION.—Secretary, Mr. Sam Hughes.—Poole's Myriorama is occupying the boards here for six nights. The programme is as varied as ever, and good audiences assemble each evening. Amongst the artists are Mlle. Juanita M. Di Oliviera, with her trained cockatoos; Miss May Finch, a pleasing vocalist; "The Silly Selbys," in an eccentric musical act; the Veronas, lady dancers; Felix Somers, with "people we know"; McAskell, in a conjuring act; and the Paulasto Troupe, in acrobatic feats.

LONGTON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. L. Howard.—An enthusiastic audience welcomed Mr. J. W. Turner's Opera company on the commencement of its annual visit on Monday. The weeks' programme included Satanella, The Bohemian Girl, The Puritan's Daughter, The Waterman, Il Trovatore, Faust, and Maritana. Mr. Turner heads the list of artists, and, as usual, has with him a host of favourites, including Miss Christine Gomez, Miss Kitty Brownless, Miss Jessie Dennis, Miss Maude Esdale, Miss Beatrice Hill, Messrs. Sydney Clifford, John Ridding, F. J. Hargrave, Tom Griffiths, George Ridding, R. Cummings, and others, who, together with an efficient chorus, have given an excellent rendering of the several operas during the week.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards. A Noble Brother is the attraction here for the Fair week. As Jerry the Tramp Mr. Charles Carte gives a remarkable impersonation, and is much applauded for a clever piece of acting; Miss Doris Brookes acts with fine discretion and sympathy as Nana Leigh. Other parts are well sustained by Miss Alice Ballard as Mrs. Leigh; Miss Rose Conroy as Rosie Rapid; Mr. Howard Thorne as Colonel Leigh; Mr. Max Madden as Jack Elsworth; and Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin as Henry Travers.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The City of Sin, under the direction of Mr. Alfred H. Elliott, is presented here this week for the first time. Mr. Conrad Heywood is distinguished by a fine portrayal of Paul Torraine, while Mr. J. Berresford Innes draws a fine picture as Mortain. Miss Edith Wallace does well as Alice Bertrand, and Miss Jenny Weston is well placed as Ilma.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. G. Gilbert—Mr. Joseph Poole's popular myriorama is on a welcome return visit. The whole entertainment is quite up to the usual standard of excellence, and the variety company includes the Four Rosairies (acrobats), Funny Johnny O'Rourke, Eileen and Mayne (musical act), Franco Midges (conjurors), Harry Mier (American comedy juggler), Three Boleros (funny bar act), Bert Berry (guide), &c.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's principal company in Her One Great Sin is occupying this theatre this week, and attracting good houses. Mr. Leicester Jackson as the spendthrift squire, Arnold Thornhill, is excellent; as is Miss St. Albans as Grace Warhurst. They are ably supported by Messrs. F. Hudson, J. Cecil, C. E. Lambert, H. B. Ford, J. Crondace, T Bollard, W. W. G. Dudge, Gerald Smythe, and C. Dale; and by the Misses Phyllis Damien, Louie Walton, Nellie Lambert, and Maudie Lambert.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Guttey.—Mr. and Mrs. Walters' company is appearing here this week in Babes in the Wood. Miss Gerty McQueen submits an admirable interpretation of Robin Hood, the same remark applying to Miss Fanny Adamson as Maid Marian; Miss Hilda Deacon is good as Dolly, and Ally Benson is capital as Flossie. Mr. E. Thirlway is effective as the Baron, and Messrs. Traynor and O'Connor provide plenty of fun as Blustering Bill and Wavering Wally.

EMPIRE.—Sole Lessee, Miss N. Harrell-Palmer; General-Manager, Mr. J. Rolmaz.—This week the Merrions (Will, Harry, and Fred) supply plenty of good wholesome fun.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A good house welcomed Messrs. Gatti and Frohman's company in The Belle of Mayfair here on Monday, and a capital performance was acknowledged by quite a large number of calls. The music especially was much enjoyed, though the acting and vocalism were up to a high standard of excellence. Miss Alice Russon made a big success as Julia Chaldicott; while as the Hon. Raymond Finchley Mr. Vernon Davidson was an entirely pleasing lover. Mr. Charles McNaughton and Mr. Percy Yorke were excellent in the parental rôles; Mr. Wensley Russell was good as Hugh Meredith; and in the notorious pose of the Gibson Girl Miss Blanche Massey was a conspicuous figure. The scenery and dresses are, of course, highly pleasing; and an efficient orchestra and chorus are under the capable direction of Mr. Alfred C. Toone.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Lee.—The performance of The Shulamite, given here on Monday by Mr. William Greet's company, was deserving of a much larger audience than it obtained, for the rendering was admirable, and the play itself proved both powerful and entertaining. The principal success in this small but effective combination is gained by Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, whose impersonation of Deborah is characterised by fine accomplishment and emotional power of a high order. Mr. Charles Weir's depiction of the narrow-minded Simeon is also, if slightly artificial, strong and effective; while Mr. W. T. Lovell gives a studied delineation of Waring, the Englishman; Mr. Reynolds Denniston is quietly convincing as Jan Vanderberg; Miss Mary Griffiths presents an excellent Tante Anna; and quite a pathetic little study of Memke, the Kaffir boy, is offered by Miss Marcella Hudson. The play is preceded by the one-act piece, entitled The Widow Woos, in which (among others) Mr. Henry de Solla acts very well.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—The third week of Mr. C. P. Levilly's company at this theatre is occupied in the presentation of La Poupée, in which Miss Stella Gastelle is seen in her old part of Alesia—a very dainty performance. Mr. W. H. Powell as Hilarius creates considerable amusement; Mr. Aubrey Carr as Launcelot sings and acts with taste; Mr. Frederick Hobbs makes a success of the rôle of Father Maxime; Mr. Fred Seymour is capital in his old part of Loremois; Miss Kitty Cavendish is, as usual, tuneful and clever as Henri; and distinctly clever work is added by Mr. William Griffin as Baron Chanterelle. Mr. Vernon Reed as Balthazar, Miss Avis Grahame as Madame Hilarius, and the remaining members of the cast.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. E. Knight and George Denham's company is here this week in the domestic drama, The Boom of Big Ben, which is crammed with emotional incidents and interesting situations. Mr. Fred Powell gives a capital interpretation of Captain Joe Galloway, the bluff old sailor; and Miss Violet Ingram is clever and winsome as Marjorie, while Miss Rosabel Dodd as Olive Lorrette, a woman of pleasure, is well suited. Mr. George Denham does admirably as Gilbert, the erring son; Mr. Polson Turner as Siegenbach makes a subtle villain; and Mr. Renaud Lockwood gives a pleasing idea of Battleby, the civil engineer; Mr. John Brittain as Tony Prebble provides acceptable amusement.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Hallatt and Howard's company is here this week in the latter's successful drama, Her Love Against The World.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Mr. Fred Jarman's company is here this week in a stirring Russian drama, Under the Czar. Heroic parts are ably rendered by Mr. Newton Buckland and Miss Francesca Strickland; Mr. W. T. Riley gives a vigorous depiction of the villainous Kovesky; Mr. Louis Weston as Paul Ignat and Miss Linda Riley as Paul's foster-mother are responsible for some enjoyable humour; and other notable parts are satisfactorily played by Mr. John R. Levey, Mr. J. Leicester, and Miss Rose May. The drama is well staged.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is paying a return visit here this week in Mr. Campbell's attractive drama, The Sin of Her Childhood. Miss Mary Fulton acquits herself well in the central rôle of Mary Haysel; Mr. Austen Milroy is excellent as Stephen; little Ivy Rocheforte acts nicely as Mary, Stephen's little sister, and afterwards as Eric; and a splendid performance is given by little Dot Moss as Hannah Spry. Admirable also are Miss Jennie Douglas-Hicks as Maria Haysel; Miss Nellie Hook as the entertaining Eliza Muggins; Mr. Charles Fancourt as the heroic vicar, Alan Grey; Mr. Woodley Hulse as Capt. Thornton, and Mr. Hugh Brady in the humorous rôle of Barney O'Reilly.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's principal company in Florodora succeeds this week Mr. Flanagan's production of Ivanhoe, which finished its run on Saturday last. A very good performance is given, the greater part of the fun being provided by Mr. Daley Cooper as Tweedlepunch. Mr. J. R. Tate is smart as Cyrus Gilfain; Miss Nellie Bowman is charming as Angela; Miss Gladys Elvey makes a very pleasing Dolores, and sings well; Mr. R. Courtier Dutton does excellently as Frank Abercoed, vocally and otherwise; as Captain Arthur Donegal Mr. Harold Perry is smart and vivacious; and Miss Edith Housley presents an accomplished Lady Holyrood. The minor parts are capably filled, and the chorus and orchestra are invariably good.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A remarkable attraction here this week is provided by Louie Freear and company in a "slavey" sketch called Snooks, in which, as Jemima, the popular comedienne has fine opportunities for characteristic work. Popular also are the Ten Loonies, in their elaborate and eccentric musical sketch Dotty; while excellent business is added by Little Ganty, well named "the lump of fun"; nimble Nat Clifford, the whimsical comedian; Madge May comedienne; Harry Carsdale, mimic; the Three Amaranths, charming girl acrobatic dancers; Halma, society juggler; and Cosgrove and Burns, a talented duo of singers and dancers. The Bioscope shows scenes in Bonnie Scotland.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wilson Barry.—Vesta Tilley, the popular male impersonator, is the bright particular star here this week, and, as usual, is delighting packed houses with new songs and old favourites, and meets with a very flattering reception. An excellent turn is that of Walter George's Light Opera Singers, otherwise the Smart Set, who are vastly entertaining. George Martinengo is a first-rate 'celloist, and is well received; Cullen and Carthy are capital comedians, with good patter and dances; and Mills and Nairn are seen to advantage in a laughable absurdity, entitled A Lovely Liar. Mabel Hind, character comedienne, dances nicely; Herbert Rule, a quaint comedian, is amusing; Dan Kennedy, comedian, sings a song; and the Eskimo Troupe in their scena, Lapland, are decidedly clever. Up-to-date events are portrayed by the Palace pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The famous La Milo is the great attraction here this week, and "standing room only" is the cry at every performance. La Milo's poses are graceful and beautiful in the extreme. Cruikshank's caricatures, clever as they undoubtedly are, done between the poses, appear somewhat out of place, taking one from the sublime to the ridiculous at lightning speed. George Formby, the Lancashire comedian, sings three funny songs in his eccentric and inimitable style, and makes a big hit; the Barowsky Trio and Another are exceptionally clever acrobats and head balancers, with new tricks; Mabel Bright and company in scena, Girls Will be Girls, dance and sing in a captivating manner; Fred Russell, with Coster Joe, is a clever and entertaining ventriloquist; Howard and St. Clair are as funny as ever; and the Brothers Corcoran, the musical shipwrights, are well received. Hengler's spectacular absurdity, Harum-Scarum, remains in the bill; two enjoyable vocal items are rendered by the choir; and some interesting pictures are shown on the bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Klio, a living study in sculpture, is again drawing crowded houses here this week, her poses being very effective. Fred Cary, a comedian full of humour, has an excellent reception; Albert Athas and Lizzie Collins cause much amusement with their speciality act; Lily Black is a charming vocalist with taking songs; Nell Richardson, comedienne, sings two pleasing songs; J. W. Rowley, an old favourite here, is very funny; Ella Dean, descriptive vocalist, is well received; the Sisters Walton, singing mill girls, are appreciated; and last but not least Sylvia Cavalho, supported by Harry Bates, is seen to advantage in a comedy episode, entitled The Husband of Peggy. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures are excellent.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Billy Williams, who tops the bill here, is a capital comedian, and is encored at every performance. Clown Zertho's dogs are wonderfully clever; T. E. Johnstone, actor-vocalist, is good; and Peakman and Walsh are comic jugglers. Other smart turns are given by Monty Walker, the Yorkshire comedian; Walter Wade, vocal comedian and mimic; France and Francis, acrobatic comedians; Maud Vera, coon artist; and the Kimberley Boys, comedians. "The Swell Cracksman" is depicted on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The chief turn here this week is Mackinnon's Scottish Meisters in their vocal scena, Ancestral Spirits, the singing being particularly good. Some expert and comic juggling is done by the Canary Family in their speciality. The Flying Kitchen; and the Three Sisters Hayden are delightful vocalists. The Four Keith Mersons in a new sketch, The Mountain Climbers, are extremely clever and amusing, and are loudly applauded. Tom E. Hughes and Hardie Parm, comedians, are good in their particular line; and Earl and Melville are good in patter and dance. Vocal contributions are given successfully by Farrimond and Little Bert, and the Bioscope picture, "What the boots saw," is perhaps the best seen here.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Duchess of Tooting, that bright and laughable sketch by George Sheldon, in which Stephen Adeson makes a hit, is to the front here this week. Billy, James De Voye's famous talking horse, is remarkably well trained; Carr and Rose are a very humorous couple; Brothers Esdale are smart in song and patter; and good turns are also those of the Falcons, clever and amusing hand to hand balancers; Haig and Novel, comedy artists; Oliver Conroy, comedian; the Sisters Bartholomew, duettists and dancers; and Vera Mayne, Canadian comedienne. "The 100 to 1 shot" depicted in the Bioscope is interesting.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Captain Cecil Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Good houses were the rule the first three nights of this week, when Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company presented Florodora. Mr. Gus Danby is very funny as Tweedlepunch; Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores possesses a fine voice and uses it to advantage. Mr. Colin Johnston is a capable Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. C. A. Road Night gives an admirable rendition of the part of Leandro; Capt. Arthur Donegal is in the capable hands of Mr. H. Carnelley Joye; Mr. Howard V. Cropton submits a capital interpretation of the part of Frank Abercoed; Miss Rosa Sullivan is warmly applauded as Lady Holyrood, and Miss Dorothy Dempster is good as Angela. The chorus is powerful and well balanced.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. H. Darnley and T. Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—Newham and Latimer, who top the bill here, receive great applause for their burlesque turn; Miss Ida Kathrena gives a pretty scena, My Dancing Doll; and Miss Dolly Sellek sings some pleasing songs, which take on. The Sisters Ward give a good turn; Miss Ethel Dove receives great applause, as also does Alf. Brookes, comedian. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope depicts an interesting series of up-to-date pictures.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. E. Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—This week Mr. A. Austin-Leigh and the stock company have been appearing with success in the comedy, A Pair of Spectacles. Mr. G. W. Elton has been exceedingly good as Mr. Benjamin Goldfinch, and Mr. A. Austin-Leigh has played Uncle Gregory in a manner that has left nothing to be desired. Miss Marie Scharning has appeared to advantage as Mrs. Goldfinch, and Mr. Percy Goodyer has sustained the rôle of Percy, the son, with plenty of animation; as Dick, the nephew, Mr. Harold West has been good, and Miss Helena Millais is delightfully piquant as Lucy Lorimer. The remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained by Mr. Thomas Ford, Mr. H. G. Mason, Mr. C. Alexander, and Miss Vera Hood.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—There is plenty of go and animation about the programme here this week, the turns being opened by a bright performance by Mlle. Onra in her picture act on the silver wire; Arthur Croxon, comedian and mimic, is good; and Will Codwin and Co. present the song-scena, Repentance, most successfully. Clara Walters is particularly smart as a trick pianist and speciality dansense; Arthur Slater is a whistler who has few equals, and his mimicry of birds, and tuneful rendering of operatic selections elicit enthusiastic recognition; Maxadler's thrilling spectacle, Balaclava, from the drama, The Two Hussars, presented by Harry Bruce and his company, makes a stirring finish to an all-round enjoyable programme, the interest in which is added to by the excellent bioscope pictures shown again this week.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond. An excellent company appears here this week. Miss Ethel Mordaunt is a charming balladist, and her songs are well received; Mr. Harry Royde, a very eccentric comedian, causes roars of laughter; Miss Josie Watson is a popular serio, her songs being highly relished; the Maynard and France company produce a capital sketch, A Slave's Devotion, which is well played and excellently staged; Miss Topsy Levane (Mrs. Phil Reymond) is in her second week, and a bigger favourite than ever, her new songs being very successful; the Elshaw company conclude with a screaming comedy sketch, Rhubarb, which fairly convulses the audience.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company is here this week with Napoleon the Great. Napoleon is artistically presented by Mr. Hugh Montgomery; Colonel Laveréness is made sufficiently villainous by Mr. Henry Earlesmere; Colonel Meuron is capably played by Mr. Phil Harpur; Pierre is a very humorous character in the hands of Mr. Frank M. Thorne; Paul is skilfully represented by Mr. Bartlett Garth; Mons. Fouche is capably drawn by Mr. G. Acton Dix; and Sergt. Choupin is satisfactorily played by clever acting in the Sautmarket did him every credit; Dougal Cratur was true to life as played by Mr. John Stevlin; Miss Marion Lind was a decided success as Helen Macgregor, and Major Gallbraith could not have been left in more capable hands than those of Mr. Alex Hamilton. The cast is a large one and well balanced, the scenery is wild and characteristic, and the production, on a whole, well worthy of generous commendation.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. Popple, of Ippleton, with Mr. G. P. Huntley in the title-part, is being presented at the Theatre Royal this week by a fine company sent by Mr. Chas. Macdona. A most diverting character study is given by Mr. Huntley, and there is uproarious laughter pretty nearly all the time the popular comedian is on the stage. As Louise, Miss Nellie Hodson proves a distinct success, her songs and dances being invariably encored; and to Miss Millie Legarde as La Bolero much praise is also due, her acting being admirable, and her songs admirably rendered. Excellent support to a piece that is attracting large audiences is also given by Miss Eva Kelly as Violet, Miss Kate Forster as Mrs. Doring, Miss Ella Daincourt as Mrs. Hennay, and Mr. Q. B. Hunter as Pat Fenton, and others in the lengthy cast.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke,—Mr. Frederick Melville's company with Between Two Women is paying a visit to the Palace this week, and performing to good houses nightly. The part of the Earl of Millard is well filled by Mr. Fred Goddard, and that of his son, Harry Millard, is in the able hands of Mr. Jack Wilcox; the Rev. Phillip Carton is excellently portrayed by Mr. Godfrey Tearle, and Mr. Walter Thornton impersonates James Durward in an excellent manner. Miss Molly Malone, as Violet Thornton, is the great success of the piece, and admirable support comes from Miss Nellie Fletcher as Carmen de Severeaux. The company is a large one, and works together with success.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—A crowded house was present on Monday evening to witness The Silver King. Messrs. Polini and Austin Melford have carefully selected their company, and were well rewarded by a fine reception. Mr. Fred D. Davies, as Wilfred Denver, lends a dignity to the part that becomes it well; and as Nellie, his devoted wife, Miss Daisy Scudamore wins golden opinions; Mr. Edward J. George's Daniel Jaikes is well done; the unctuous villain, Elijah Coombe, is faithfully represented by Mr. Arthur Wright, and the Spider, in the hands of Mr. L. St. George Lowther, loses none of his cunning. Other parts are admirably filled by a good company.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—Mahout, the Albanian wrestler, is the big attraction at this popular resort this week, £5 being paid over to a local charity on behalf of the wrestler, who failed to defeat an opponent in five minutes, as agreed. Nellie Wallace, the quaint comedienne, provokes much mirth; the Griffiths Bros. give a side-splitting comedy act, of which a wrestling match is the special feature, and score heavily; a clever and humorous turn is that supplied by the Motramos, who perform well on their various musical instruments. Marvellous balancing feats are effected by Frank Maura; Syd May gives some good imitations; the Ten Genis execute somersaults from alarming positions, and are very smart; Fred Clements is a fast-improving comedian; and Beattie and Blanche, comediennes and dancers, and Jessie Burnett, comedienne, all contribute to a good evening's entertainment.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss Ada Reeve holds premier position here this week, charming her audiences with her daintiness, whilst her graceful dancing adds to her success. An interesting acrobatic turn is that supplied by the Emilions, who score heavily; another tumbling act is that of the Three Panamas, who are exceptionally smart; the Two Bees cause roars of laughter in their sketch, The Man in the Moon; and The Battle of the Belles is a rollicking absurdity played by Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company of six; Bert Williams, ventriloquist, performs with well-merited success; and a good song is sung by Harry Herbert, comedian; the Brothers Curran's display of the fistic art has many admirers; and Satsuma, magician, mystifies everyone with his clever feats. The Barrascope pictures complete a mammoth programme.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company is playing here this week in When It Was Dark. The Rev. Basil Gortre is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Cyril Austin Lee; Constantine Schwabe, the villain of the piece, is quite a success in the hands of Mr. Geo. H Pitt; Mrs. Morton Powell as the heroine, Helena, wins admiration; Miss Eva Moss acts capably, and is admirably supported by Mr. Riddell Robinson.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Alexandre and Hughes introduce humour and witty repartee that cause intense amusement; the New Macs are popular with quaint patter; and a clever turn is that of Ray Wallace, mimic. The Albert and Edmunds troupe presents a diverting sketch; the Imperial troupe of lady dancers give a smart show; Geo. Brooks contributes some taking songs; the Sisters Dowell are appreciated; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford appear in a descriptive duet, "Sweethearts just the Same"; and Lizzie Daniels is warmly applauded.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. George Dance's premier company is presenting the musical play The Duchess of Dantzic this week. Miss May Glenn gives an admirable interpretation of Catherine Upscher, and her songs are well received; Mr. Gilbert Yorke submits an excellent portrayal of Napoleon; Mr. Ernest Torrence is good as Lefebvre; and Mr. Steve Fitzgerald is amusing as Papillon. The chorus is highly effective, and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Edward Whitehall, work well.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Hall and Earle are clever and amusing eccentric acrobats; Webb and Branston are high-class vocalists; Marie Reeve, comedienne, gains favour in song and dance; A. G. Spry, comedian, proves himself a favourite; Lozelle is a gymnast of the sensational order; Will Souls gives a laughing song with successful results; Wragg and Wragg are applauded for a display with sword, lance, &c.; Miss Hulo Hodgson with Mr. Harry Lowther and company present a farcical episode entitled Barmaids; and some excellent pictures are thrown on the screen.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company, with The Manxman, is proving a great attraction here this week. Mr. Cross gives a finished performance of Pete; Mr. James Dillon's rendition of Cæsar Cregreen is powerful; Mr. Sydney Kearns is a good Phillip Christian, and Mr. Herbert Lett a smart Doctor Mylcreest. As Ross Christian, Mr. Dudley Stuart acquits himself satisfactorily; Mr. Richard Hutton is clever as Professor Mawley, and Mr. Edward Cartell gives a good rendering of Monty Missitt. As Kate Cregreen, Miss Minnie Watersford is very artistic; Miss Mona Spearing acquits herself admirably as Miss Christian; Miss Dorothy Duncan makes a capital Nancy, and Miss Kittie Livesay is pleasing as Bella Kelly. The performance concludes with a series of animated pictures.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The programme here is headed by Messrs. Baroni and Kemp, smart lightning change artists. Kavados, equilibrist, &c., gives a clever performance; Flo Melville, comedienne, is pleasing; Carl and Carr, comedians, meet with success; Master Ralph Moore, soprano, renders his songs in good style; Spriggs and Gouney, American comedians, go well, and the Bio-Photoscope meets with its usual success.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Managen Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company in A Royal Revenge are here this week. In the double parts of Estvean Alvarez and Pedro de Castro, Mr. J. H. Clyndes is highly successful; Mr. Walter Kenion as Michael Sancha is good both as an actor and a singer; Mr. John Foxhill is capable as Nicholas Vargas; and the same may be said of Mr. George Foster as Manuel Mondega. Mr. Arthur F. Dudley is a commendable Azan; and Mr. H. W. Bradford a good King of Spain. Miss Enid Edoni is a charming Inez; Miss Aimee Gratton Clyndes an excellent Cosa Casilda; and Miss Emmeline Roselle a pleasing Paquita.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. W. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—At the head of the strong programme presented here this week is Miss Ella, with her group of lions; Geoffreys and Benson create laughter in their sketch, Spoofed; Eno as a mimic gives some clever impersonations; Miss Rosie Lloyd is popular in her songs; Tom Fancourt and Jenny Ruby are exceedingly funny in their act, Out of Barracks; the Howards display ability as cornet players; Carl Howard is very good as a conjuror; and the Brothers Hayes score as comedians. The Hippo Bio is also a good turn.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Veronique is paying yet another visit here, and the crowded audiences, full of enthusiasm, are ample proof of its great popularity. In the title-rôle, Miss Ruth Lincoln is simply delightful, her vivacity, dainty presence, and artistic vocalism compelling the highest admiration. Mr. Roland Bottomley makes an excellent Florestan, and shares popular favour with Miss Lincoln in the "Swing" song and "Dear Little Donkey" duet. Mr. Leslie Holland displays his versatile humour to the best advantage as Coquenard; Mr. Fred Lyne adds also to the merriment by his comical impersonation of Loustot. Miss Ethel Negretti makes an ideal Agatha, playing with the right touch of gaiety; Miss May Elsie acts capitally as the deaf Aunt Benoit; and Miss Lena Maitland is charming as Emerance, her song in the last act being rendered with exquisite taste and feeling. Miss Gracie Sinclair as Denise wins golden opinions, and Mr. Courtney Comber gives a bright interpretation of Seraphin. Praise is also due to the florists, Misses Beatrice Hodson, Louie Beckman, Mabel Thornton, Frankie Fowler, Cissie White, and Blanche Grahame. The chorus is exceptionally good under the guidance of the conductor, Mr. Victor Campion.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is appearing here this week in The Fatal Wedding, which once more proves its attractiveness. A very capable company includes Mr. Wilson Howard, who, in the part of the invertebrate husband, uses his great abilities to good effect. Mr. Guy Hastings makes a very good Curtis, and is ably seconded by Miss Leah Marlborough as Cora. Plenty of fun is extracted from their parts by Miss Blanche Stanley as Bridget and Messrs. Edward Morgan as Toto and Walter Westwood as Schwartz, the dialogues between the two latter being particularly amusing. As the long-suffering wife of Howard Wilson Miss Katherine Clarke looks very charming, and early excites the sympathy of the audience. Miss Madge McCalla must be highly complimented on her acting in the child part of Jessie. Among the specialty turns introduced in the third act, the singing and dancing of Miss Dolly McCalla is very noticeable; whilst the clog-dancing of Master Walter Aubrey evokes unstinted applause. Miss Ivy Westaby sings very sweetly, and the step-dancing of Miss Winnie Crisp is most enjoyable.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The height of sensation is reached in a performance on bicycles by Wizard Stone and Irene Stone in a huge globe, the former of whom successfully loops the loop amidst a scene of intense excitement, receiving a great ovation when the feat is accomplished. An exceedingly smart musical entertainment is given by the Leslie Bros., and their comicalities are a source of infinite amusement. Donaldson Bros. and Ardel add to their popularity by the pantomimic sketch, A Zoological Comedy. Albert Christian renders several songs in a manner which gains him approval; and the illustrated songs of Preston and Balmain obtain a large share of applause. Gertrude Bradshaw supplies an enjoyable song, as also Kate Cohen. both ladies meeting with well-deserved recognition. Nora Emerald, comedienne; Frank Darwin, actor-vocalist; the Caselli Sisters, dancers; and films on the American Bioscope complete the programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Miss Lena Stanton's company is presenting Little Boy Blue. Miss Stanton makes a charming Boy Blue, and evokes the heartiest applause for her songs, which are given in excellent voice. Miss Nora Neville as Dolly Dickory sings and dances in a graceful style; Mr. Bruce Green elicits roars of merriment in the rôle of Dame Dickory; and Little Keeno, who has already won fame here, keeps up his reputation as Jack Lively. Mr. Adrian Romer gives a good conception of Squire Longacre and Mr. Will Terry of Lawyer Copall. Some pretty dances are contributed by the Orient troupe of dancers.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Royal Carl Rosa Opera company is paying its annual visit this week with a series of old favourites and new operas. On Monday Carmen was staged. Miss Doris Woodall appeared in the title-rôle, and used her rich voice with good effect; Mr. Julius Walther was the Jose, and he gave an admirable rendering of the character, he and Miss Woodall having to respond to several recalls. Miss Elizabeth Burgess sang exceedingly well as Micaela, as did Miss Ina Hill as Frasquita and Miss Dorothy Mayfield as Mercedes; Mr. Chas. Victor sang the numbers allotted to him as Escamille very well; Mr. Alec Richard as Zuniga, Mr. Arthur Thomas as Morales, and Mr. A. Felton as Lillas Pastin, admirably filled their respective parts. Messrs. Clendon and Hyde were two capital brigands. Faust was selected for Tuesday, with Miss E. Burgess, Miss Douglas Wilson, and Mr. E. Davis and Mr. A. Winckworth as principals. The week's répertoire includes Tannhäuser, The Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Maritana, and Fidelio. A first-class chorus and orchestra are ably conducted by Mr. W. Van Noorden and Mr. E. Goossens, Miss Annie Elliott being the principal dancer.

COLOSSEUM. — Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—A large audience witnessed the performance of An Abandoned Woman, by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company, which is a strong one. Mr. W. Foster is a very good Captain Herbert Seaton, Mr. B. J. Leill makes Phillipe Malvoisin a capital villain, and he is ably assisted by Miss Georgette Thierry in the part of Ninan; Mrs. Harry Foxwell is a sympathetic Eleanor, while little Frances Maddocks is excellent as Mona; Mr. Harry Foxwell as Paddy and Miss Elsie Dean as Sally keep the audience in a good humour; Miss Lily Addison scores as La Celeste; as does also Mr. Will Glaze as Sammy; Mr. G. Gormley is a capable Sir Marmaduke; and other parts are played by Messrs. Wright, Abott, Forbes, and Quinn.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—D'Arc's wonderful marionettes are an attraction here; the Carpos Brothers give a smart novelty acrobatic turn; Gillin earns much applause as a unique ventriloquial humorist; and the Sisters Marlon are capital vocalists; Emilie Warren is a charming soprano vocalist, and Prince and Milner are a pair of accomplished artists; George French, comedian, creates much laughter with his songs and funny patter. Hill and Whittaker, although billed, did not appear on the occasion of our visit. The Royal Dottoscope concludes with a capital picture entitled "Reedham Orphanage Drill."

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—J. W. Hall, comedian, is here this week, and he keeps the house in roars of laughter; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley appear in a successful sketch, Miss Summerson's Baby; Fanny Humber provides an excellent turn with songs, dances, and solos on various instruments; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, gives a good vocal and mimetic entertainment; and Steeley and Dowton are smart in their burlesque interlude. The Three San Remo Girls are capital comediennes and dancers; and Horace Monto proves himself to be a capital speciality artist. The programme is concluded by the Dottoscope with some funny pictures.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is paying the most welcome of return visits this week with Veronique, which is being received with even more favour than on the first visit. Miss Agnes Tandy sings and acts delightfully as Madame Coquenard; Miss Edith Devonshire obtains a well-merited encore for her song in the last act as the Countess; Miss Neste Laurel is a dainty Denise, and dances most gracefully; while Miss Nellie Wigley has captivated all hearts with her most charming impersonation of Veronique. Mr. J. Warren-Foster acts and sings with excellent effect as Florestan, Mr. Tom Seymour makes a mirth-provoking bailiff; Mr. Scott-Cullen is smart as Seraphin, and Mr. Ellis Holland causes much laughter by his intensely funny acting as Monsieur Coquenard. The chorus is strong and tuneful, and the orchestra did full justice to the music under the skilful direction of Mr. C. Lochuane.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Miss Ida Millais' company is appearing here in No Man's Land. Mr. A. G. Lytton is the Dick Marsden, and his powerful representation is most convincing; Mr. Henry Herne as Harry Oaklands gives a capable piece of acting; Mr. H. P. Warburton is quite satisfactory in the dual rôle of Gilbert Bathurst and Captain Norman Bathurst; Mr. William Maillalieu creditably sustains the part of Dr. Buxton; Silas Moore is ably impersonated by Mr. Frank Denis; Mr. Alfred Byron gives a humorous portrayal of Thompson Poodle; and capital are the assumptions submitted by Mr. Newton Pearce as Solomon Jacobs, Mr. J. B. Thomas as Ikey Moss, and Mr. Edward Adams as Owen Rushton. Miss Ida Millais wins admiration by her clever handling of the rôle of Mary Bathurst; Bessie Poodle is well and humorously accounted for by Miss Nancy Mitchell; and Mrs. Poodle is admirably played by Mrs. Maillalieu.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—An attractive programme is again submitted here, which includes the Mirthful Mystifiers, who evoke many a hearty laugh by their funny sketch, Three of a Kind. Laura Lorne and Nell Rene have a refined musical act; Les Valdos are quaintly entertaining as motor-bus men; Beatrice Bonnie gives her songs in artistic style; Cissie Curlette is a mimetic vocalist of real power; Dick Williams is warmly applauded for his banjo-playing; Sandy and Carl, comedians and burlesque boxers, create amusement with their funny act; Stylo furnishes an extraordinary juggling and marvellous hoop manipulating act; and the Hippodrome Bioscope, which is interesting, completes the bill.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—The premier attraction at this house is supplied by the engagement of Charles Vandyke and company, who supply an interesting and amusing sketch, entitled Nicodemus. Barney Noble, popular raconteur, has a flattering reception; Yettmah, the Japanese magical fantasist, gives a remarkable turn; Martin Melia, Irish comedian and clog dancer, wins applause; success is attained by George Gray, Scotch comedian; Miss Florence Hill, a fine singer, meets with well-merited approval; Nancy Lill is a pleasing contralto vocalist and expert dancer; and an enjoyable item is provided by the Empire Animatograph.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. George Stephenson's company is drawing good houses this week in the musical comedy, Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guiver is entrusted with the title-rôle, and is accorded a warm reception for the charming manner in which she discharges so important a trust; Miss Dorothy Sephton is also greeted with unstinted applause for her highly successful portrayal of Lady Binfield; while Miss Nellie Laurine's Mrs. Bright is very popular; Mr. Leslie Steward's Lord Plantagenet is an outstanding feature of the performance; Mr. Lauri Lisle is prominent as the King of Illyria; Mr. Gordon Leslie makes a decided hit in the rôle of Sir John Binfield; Mr. Jerrold Hays and Mr. P. Allerton Turner are creditable exponents of the Comte de Trenitz and Poulichet, and Messrs. Oswald Griffiths and G. Hathaway do well as the King's attendants, Carl and Fritz; Messrs. A. Harrison, V. Wakeman, and Wallett Waller appear as Eugene, Joseph, and Robert respectively; Miss Elsie Skillings is seen to advantage as Sadie de Poulson; Miss Helen Branscombe and Miss Maud Howard are adapted to the parts of Lillie and Mabel.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is providing a strong attraction here this week with Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt gives a forcible portrayal of the part of Anthony Raybrook; Mr. Clement Wakefield is quite at home as Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. Frederick Sandy is good as Geoffrey Waring; and Mr. Percy Dawsone does well as Willie. Mr. Harry Cornwall is a capital Jabez Thomas; Miss Florence Creagh gives a fine impersonation of Laura Raybrook; Miss F. Trevoir is well placed as Barbara Ashdown; and Mrs. Madge Muriel makes the most of the part of Jane.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—Large numbers assembled at the Royal on Monday to witness Brigadier Gerard, and were very demonstrative in the approval of the fashion in which the piece was presented. The brave, though egotistical, Captain Etienne Gerard, was admirably played by Mr. Loring Fernie; Mr. George Mallett furnishes a study of Talleyrand precisely in accordance with the description of the most reliable historians; Mr. Arthur Somers has a fine make-up as the Emperor Napoleon, and proves himself an actor of first-rate ability; Mr. Edwin Bennett makes a hot-headed Major Olivier, and Messrs. Penn Hamilton and James Crowe as Talleyrand's agent and secretary respectively render able assistance. Miss Maud Hoffman as the Comtesse de Roquelaure, attains a very high plane of dramatic art; Miss Gertrude Beattie as Cignes makes a satisfactory maid.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—An exciting drama by Mark Melford, entitled Secrets of the Police, is the attraction this week. Mr. Edward Lloyd is very creditable as George Jarman, an incorrigible; Mr. Clavering Craig successfully impersonates William Jarman, a Superintendent of Police; Mr. Alfred Brandon is realistic as Frank Grey, a reformed rascal; Mr. Tommy Gough, as Osmond Hare, is an ideal betting man; Mr. Larry Clements as Happy Armstrong, a happy-go-lucky Irishman, raises many a laugh; and Miss Ethel Kay fills her customary rôle as heroine in the part of Rosa.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Casey's Circus is the principal attraction, and the turn keeps the audience in a roar of merriment; Harry Freeman has lost none of his old popularity, his songs being rendered with their customary breeziness; Nina Gordon, the Scottish mimic and society entertainer, furnishes realistic representations of well-known comedians; the Jalvans have an interesting pot-pourri turn, consisting of top-spinning and conjuring; the Vivians have an uncommon and attractive musical playlet, entitled A Reverie; Lidden and Howard (pianoforte experts), Walter Clyde (tenor), and Vernon's pictures complete the entertainment.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, in The Drama of Life, is proving a great attraction here. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton as Harry Beech acts with great power; Mr. John J. Hooker is distinctly good as Walter Beech; Mr. Harwood Roberts scores as the aristocrat; Mr. Edward Van Biene as Count De Fôi plays well; Sylvia Beech is admirably portrayed by Miss Kate Hallam; Miss Florence French submits a good assumption of Lady Jane Wilde; Betty Black is capably impersonated by Miss Nellie Birchenough.

PORTH.—THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—This week an excellent programme includes the Evalos, jocular jugglers; the Sardous, illusionists and mystifiers; Onda Bros., on the comedy bars; Craig, Roze, and Craig, novelty gymnastic experts; Sydney Bach, the Welsh landlady at the piano; the Lynches, illustrators of sweet songs; Allan Hanbury, patter comedian; Ray and Miles, comedy jugglers; Will Rain and company in a funny sketch, entitled Motor Mania. The pictures shown on the Bioscope are exceedingly pretty.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The Catch of the Season is here for a week on a second visit, the musical comedy being presented by Mr. George Dance's company. Miss Zena Dare gave a bewitchingly graceful and vivacious portrayal of Angela; Mr. Frank Lincoln, as the Duke, was most successful; Lord Dundreary found an able exponent in Mr. E. H. Kelly; Mr. Julian Cross impersonated Sir John Crystal naturally and with distinction; Mr. Alfred Lloyd was effective as Mr. W. Gibson; and Master Grata was amusing and capable as Buckett. Miss Belle Napier made a delightful Lady Caterham; Miss Ida Mann did extremely well as Lady Crystal; and the Hon. Sophia and the Hon. Honoria were well depicted by Miss Margaret Savill and Miss Jane Eyre. The Duchess of St. Jermyns being well taken by Miss Gwynneth Galton.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company, with The Indian Mutiny, is attracting good houses here. Mr. George Steel gives a finished performance of Lieut. Manley; Capt. Manley is ably impersonated by Mr. Cecil Anderson; Mr. John Davidson is well placed as Major Ingleby; Mr. Cecil Morand as Terry O'Brien creates plenty of laughter; Mr. Villiers Stanley in the character of Nebu Singh, plays well; Mr. Charles Boult gives a capital interpretation of Ra Goonga; and Miss F. Melrose Millett as the Brahmin priestess is very praiseworthy. Miss Lillie Grey as Mrs. Major Ingleby and Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby play their respective parts well.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A good all-round company fills the bill here for the week. Arthur Lennard, the popular singing comedian, with all his latest songs, scores well and gains several encores; Lucy Coventry is a hard-working and clever comedienne and danseuse; Harry Hilton is an expert magician and card manipulator; Bonnetti and Corrie create roars of laughter; Sid Bandon, character comedian, has a capital reception; the Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers, are a smart pair; Robins and Collier are humorous in their comedy act, The Lady and the Porter; the Mackweys are a pair of clever knockabouts on the wire; Lizzie Fletcher, soubrette, and Payne's Bioscope also increase the attractions of the programme.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—On Monday evening Baron H. Harris's company commenced a week's engagement here with The Prince of Pilsen, to which a hearty reception was accorded. Mr. Harry Kilburn's droll impersonation of Hans Wagner kept the audience in continuous laughter; Mr. Frank Crimp gave a spirited interpretation of Carl Otto, rendering his songs with pleasing expression; Lieut. Tom Wagner had a thoroughly capable representative in Mr. Roy Sydney; Mr. Bernard Russell created much merriment as the Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. Ernest Gifford was entirely successful as the mercurial François. Miss Florence Beech made an attractive Edith Adams; Miss Connie Leon submitted a clever and diverting portrayal of Sidonie; Miss Molly Wynne was a lively exponent of Jimmie; Miss Dorothy Grasdorff filled the rôle of Nellie Wagner in a charming manner; and the part of Mrs. Maddison Crocker was brightly played by Miss Sophie Harris, whose artistic singing was greatly appreciated.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—An excellent attraction is provided here this week by Mr. Frank Lindo's company in the domestic drama Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Lindo impersonates Stephen Armitage with his usual dash and ability; Mr. F. Miles Hodgson, as Lucas Lyle, makes the most of a difficult part; the David Armitage of Mr. D. Doyle is a fine portraiture; Capt. Gerald Gambier is a clever representative of the Duke of Ancaster; and Mr. Danvers acquits himself well as Doctor Granby; Mr. George Overs ably fills the rôle of Dick Redmayne; Mr. T. Lewis as Solomon Keary and Mr. Helsby Wright as the "Gaffer" leave nothing to be desired. Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan soon wins the sympathy of her audience, and little Miss Daisy Rochefort as Dora gains well-deserved applause. The leading comedy parts of the Hon. Percy and Sybil Fay are capitally acted by Mr. Jack Patrick and Miss May Rochefort respectively; and Mr. Ernest C. Owens as Lord Silvermore and Miss Cecil Warde as Lady Summerton also contribute appreciably to the success of the performance.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—At the head of the bill this week is Harry Gray, the Australian comedian, who scores a great success with his funny songs and stories. Edie Gray and Coons deservedly gain loud applause for their delightful vocalism; Lachie Thomson's Topweights give a clever exposition of boxing, wrestling, and club swinging; the Katos' "Komikal Kidgets" are vastly amusing; the Sisters Volbecque, comedy duettists, are accorded a good reception; Mephisto and Marie perform some remarkable feats of contortion in a drawing-room act. Others who contribute successfully to the programme are Johnson and Bert, and George Edney.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—A return visit of Adela Hill and Robert Ayrton's company, with A Gambler's Daughter, is meeting with success. The unrivalled popularity of Mr. Robert Ayrton as Desmond O'Dare still continues; and Mr. Alfred Saunders as Solomon Solomons is an excellent character study; Mr. Milton Curtis scores as Ralph Gillman; and as Dick the Weasel Mr. Alf. Stretton is seen to advantage; while as Stephen Brand Mr. Arthur J. Lennard is well placed. Miss Adria Hill acts the dual rôle of mother and daughter very effectively.

RAMSGATE.—THE AMPHITHEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's all-round clever company is giving effective performances here of Two Little Drummer Boys. Miss Mildred Eversleigh proves herself an accomplished actress in the rôle of Alma Kingsley; and Mr. Fred Emery as the hero is excellent. Villainy finds a capable exponent in the Capt. Darrell of Mr A. Helsby; and Mr. E. Bikker fills the part of General Kingsley with marked success. Miss Kathleen Magee is very good as Margaret Rivers; Miss Edie Macklin quite charming as Molly Meadows; and the "two little drummer boys" are portrayed skilfully by Miss Lily Beverleigh and Miss Maggie English. The remaining parts are handled with skill.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur De Frece.—This week we have here an exceptionally good variety company under the management of Billy Watson, the well-known comedian. Mr. Leo Vincent gives an excellent ventriloquial display; Mr. Jem Hegarty is a smart comedian and sifflеur; Miss Nellie Gannon contribute some excellently-rendered songs; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Watson appear in a laughable absurdity; the Martellonis, lady acrobats and vaulters, give a marvellous display; Miss Peggy Fame sings a capital ditty, and also a song and dance; Mr. Dawson Dewick gives a popular turn; the Three Royal Temples contribute a good musical turn; Mr. Harry Wright is well received; and the Waldrons conclude the programme with an absurdity, The Silly Burglar.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Michael Dempsey.—An excellent company, under the direction of Mr. W. W. Kelly, is appearing this week in A Royal Divorce. Mr. Frederick Victor gives a realistic impersonation of the Emperor; Miss Edith Cole acts in powerful style as Josephine; Mr. Percy H. Vernon gives a successful rendering of Talleyrand; and Miss Agnes Imlay as Marie Louise, Miss Helen Richmond as Stephanie, Miss Gertrude Entwistle as Blanche D'Hervas all deserve special mention.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—A fine performance of Mr. Pinero's play His House in Order was given by Mr. George Alexander's company on Monday evening. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart gave a masterful portrayal of Hilary Jesson; Mr. J. Edward Pearce, as the cold, methodical Filmer Jesson, M.P., acted his part to the life; Mr. George Fitzgerald as the pompous Sir Daniel Ridgeley could not be better placed; Mr. Ernest R. Holloway portrayed with effect the narrow-minded Pryce Ridgeley; Mr. Lloyd Lowndes made the most of Major Maurewarde; Miss Moyna Hill as the boy Derek Jesson was quite fascinating; Miss August Haviland acted splendidly the part of Lady Ridgeley; Miss Elaine Sleddell as the cheerless and irritating Geraldine Ridgeley was everything that could be desired; Mlle. Eve Grand was effective as Mlle. Thome; and Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay showed fine histrionic powers by a clever delineation of Nina. The play is lavishly mounted, and was well received.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co.—A capital company is engaged here this week. The Maisanos extract music from all kinds of implements; Bros. Babusian, as staircase performers and balancers, submit a startling turn; other items on the programme include Royal, champion clog dancer; Harding and Preston, comedy artists, &c.; the Lovelaces, American song illustrators; Hampson, with his dogs and pigeons; Holme, vocal comedian; the Belmores, duettists and dancers; and Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week, attracted by a splendid bill of fare. Heading the list is Tschernoff, with his wonderful performing ponies and dogs; Austin and Cowan, vocal entertainers, have had a gratifying reception; Maggie Rimmer, singer and dancer; Madeline Rossiter, comedienne and dancer; Roze and Calvert, in a comedy act; Charlie Craston, comedian; Tom Carolan, comic and song writer; and the Empire Bioscope complete the programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is filling the bill here with The Midnight Wedding. Mr. Paumier gives a manly representation of Paul Valmar; Mr. Clinton Baddeley is seen to advantage as Captain Rudolph; Mr. Fredk. W. Freeman scores as the Crown Prince Leopold; and Mr. Ulick Burke is deserving of mention as Lieut. Eugene; Father Garrard is well portrayed by Mr. W. S. Hardy; and Messrs. James E. Page, Percy Compton, and Algie Spalding are responsible for a good deal of amusement as Sergeant Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo. Miss Ada Champion is a smart Kathie; Miss Florence Hunt is seen to advantage as Rose; Miss Annie Saker gives a clever and pleasing rendition of the dual rôles of Second-Lieut. Karl Heisburg and Princess Astrea.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—For the first three nights of this week Miss Rose Faith and her London company appeared in No Cross, No Crown. Miss Rose Faith as Clare, the second Lady Luttrell, was excellent; Miss Gwen Stuart in the rôles of Lady Margaret Luttrell and Mistress Gray was very good; Mr. W. Cainden gave a robust and artistic rendering of Sir Francis Luttrell; as Austin Blake, Mr. Herbert de Ville submitted an able interpretation; Mr. Harrison Chapman was a capable Professor Nebb; and Miss Ada Clamson an interesting Doris Luttrell.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, J. Bannister Howard,

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Honour thy Father is the drama presented here this week by Mr. T. Morton Powell's company, under the management of Mr. Frank Eden. The arduous rôle of Gabriel Garth is vigorously drawn by Mr. Walter M. Cameron; the sailor, Jack Halyard, is played in robust style by Mr. Bertram Ross; the rascality of Duncan Bly is effectively shown by Mr. W. R. Winning; Mr. Fred Rolls as Mike stands out prominently as a clever comedian; Mr. W. H. Melrose as Ned also is successful in his efforts to please; Mercy Merry is well played by Miss Winnie Donovan; the erring Lilian Garth is successfully portrayed by Miss Mabel Coleman; Miss Lizzie Morley is a delightful Poppy; and Miss Kate Newton a satisfactory Gertrude Garth.

SHEERNESS.—The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—A capital all-round bill is submitted here this week, and includes Edward Cranston and Co. in their racing sketch, Terry, which obtains much appreciation. My Fancy, aptly described as the queen of sand dancers, is well received. Hans and Lux, comedians and patterers, provide an amusing turn; the Claymores, dancing club jugglers, are accorded a good reception; Kitty Malone, comedienne, wins hearty applause; and Harry Bold, eccentric comedian, also scores. The usual display of pictures projected by Vernon's Bioscope completes the programme.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Mouillot's company opened on Monday night in their delightful musical play, The Geisha, which was again received with cordial applause by a large audience. Miss Louie Collier made a charming and tuneful O Mimosa San, and Miss Florrie Saunders as the lively Molly Seymour acted in a graceful manner. Miss Violet Kenyon looked piquant as Juliette, and Miss Aubrey Ashton was an aristocratic Lady Constance Wynne. Mr. Edward Carlton as Wun-Hi caused roars of laughter; Mr. Cyril Thornton was the typical smart young naval officer as Reginald Fairfax; Mr. J. Mansell Stringer was first-rate as Captain Katana; Mr. A. J. Nicholls was the Governor's factotum; and Mr. Lionel Braham made a humorous Marquis Imari.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Moody-Manners' Grand Opera Company is again here for a short season. The company is unusually strong in the chorus department, the regular forces being strengthened by the voices of sixty local vocalists. The principals include Mr. Joseph O'Mara, Mr. Charles Magrath, Miss Fanny Moody, Miss Toni Leiter, Mme. Zelie de Lussan, Mme. de Vere, and Mr. Charles Manners. On Monday a very enthusiastic house received Tannhäuser with acclamation, on Tuesday The Merry Wives of Windsor was revived, and the operas billed for the remainder of the week were Lohengrin, Faust, Eugen Onegin, and Maritana.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. Geo. Testo Sante's company began a return visit on Monday in the domestic drama, The Life of a Showman, which again delighted the patrons of the local home of melodrama. Mr. George Testo Sante was a frank, manly representative of the gallant van-dweller, Brian Loader, and his fine struggle with a dozen "ruffians" brought down the house. The Brothers Testo, musical clowns, did a clever act in the circus scene, and others who worked loyally for the general success were Mr. F. R. G. Richardson, Mr. Harry Lloyd, Mr. Charles Sams, Mr. J. Roberts, Mr. Edward Warden, Miss Grace Harlington, and Miss Amy McNeill. The piece was effectively staged.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—An exceptionally good all-round company is engaged this week, the artists being Bella and Bijou, the popular society duettists and comedy entertainers; the Lyons Trio of pantomimists in a funny comic ballet entitled The Lady, the Parson, and the Waiter; the De Wynne Brothers, who perform daring feats of strength with skill and laughter-provoking sang-froid; Fielding and Rose, in selections from popular musical plays and comic operas; Miss Flo D'Orville, a pretty and tuneful serio; Miss Rosie Archer, a pleasing mimic of music-hall celebrities; Lambeth and Robertson, in a humorous Scotch comedy skit; Mr. James Heron, with illustrated songs; and that old favourite, Mr. Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian. In addition there is the American Bioscope, with humorous films.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Engaged here are La Maxim Girls, dancers and vocalists; the Brothers Durant, comedians; Mr. Gus Hindell, comedian; the Sisters Redfern, duettists; Pallister's Bioscope, Harley and Hardon, and Miss Flo Chevalier, the popular burlesque actress.

Central Hall.—In addition to the pictures, there are engaged here Mike Cray and his clever dog; and the Misses Dolly, Agnes, and Maud in a refined entertainment.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. Herbert Hollester's powerful and talented company is here this week with the hardy old drama, Lights o' London. Mr. C. F. Collinge is a manly and thoroughly capable Harold Armytage; Miss Jennie Burgoyne plays with ability as Bess; Mr. Herbert Lewis and Miss Violet Temple are an amusing pair as Jarvis and Mrs. Jarvis, their diverting efforts being well supported by Miss Renée Douglas as Shakespeare Jarvis. Mr. F. Dalton is a capital Jim; Mr. Sydney N. Hallows as Squire Armytage merits praise; Mr. Raymond Thomas as the villain works conscientiously and well; Mr. F. V. Lloyd makes an excellent Marke; Mr. Herbert Hollister a bluff Seth Preene; and Mr. H. W. Forster a successful solicitor. Mr. Tom Raymond is a picturesque Man in the Park; Miss Rita Wallace a clever little actress as Joey; Miss Constance Davey plays with conscientious care the part of Hetty Preene; and Miss W. Eves in the character part of Sal makes a good study.

SMETHWICK.—The Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. C Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Her Second Time on Earth was well received on Monday night. A capital company is headed by Miss Hilda Beverley, who gives a really fine representation of the part of Dora Grey; Mr. John Nolan is a capable Captain Jasper Norman; Mr. Frank R. Robertson proves a distinct favourite with the audience as Jack Carlton; the part of Beppo is finely represented by Mr. Leonard Aardale; Mr. Will Corrie creates much merriment as Teddy Butterfly, and is ably assisted by Miss Marie Kildare as Kitty Rosebud; Miss Dorothy Hildebrande is a graceful Laura Norman; the rôle of Elizabeth Burk, a drunken woman, is admirably sustained by Miss Polly Marsh; while Mr. Fred Yarnold is well placed as Doctor Ridley.

SOUTHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. George Alexander's company is this week paying its initial visit with A. W. Pinero's comedy, His House in Order, which meets with a grand reception. Finer acting than that given by Miss Auriol Lee (Nina) and Mr. Frank Fenton (Hilary Jesson) has seldom been seen here, and they are heartily recalled at the end of each act. Mr. Cyril Harcourt is good as the impassive husband; Mrs. Kemmis (Lady Ridgeley), Miss Audrey Campbell (Geraldine), Mr. Adam Alexander (Sir Daniel), and Mr. George (Pryce) avail themselves to the fullest extent of the fine chances of character-acting given them.

Palace. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—Mr. Leonard Mortimer and company are very successful in a dramatic sketch, The Undesired, which is well played. Harry Tate's company is productive of merriment in Motoring; Letine is in the front rank as a male impersonator; Helen Martin, a delightful vocalist, scores a success in her native town; the Three Sisters Chester, banjoists, &c.; Chas Best in Macbunker, the mountebank; and George Bendon, the white coon, also prosper well.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Chief among the turns here are the marvellous Craggs in their acrobatic sketch Billy; they score a huge success. The droll Jack Camp is popular in song and story, and Ernest Montefiore and Co. are well received in the sketch The Little Colonel. Will Val Allen, a clever patterer and instrumentalist; Vincent, acrobatic table expert; Ruby and Laws, vocalists; Sinclair and Parr, vocal entertainers; and the Two Hartfords, trick cyclists, also contribute to a capital show.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — Empire Theatre. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—A first-class attraction is being provided this week by Messrs. C. M. Polini and Austin Melford, whose powerful company is presenting the drama entitled The Silver King. Special mention must be made of the very pretty scenery. In Mr. Herbert Ford a forcible and clever impersonation of Wilfred Denver is found; Miss Victoria Addison as Nellie Denver displays great talent; Mr. Tom Paulton is excellent as Daniel Jaikes, and imparts plenty of good humour that is appreciated; Miss Jessie Upted as Cissy Denver is decidedly good. The Spider is well embodied by Mr. Charles Baird, who is ably assisted by Mr. Henry Osman as Elijah Combe, Miss Mabel Gardner causes merriment in her rôle of Mrs. Gamage; and the remaining characters are well sustained.

The Kursaal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. E. T. J. Bacon.—Owing to this place of amusement being let for a local attraction it is only possible for the usual variety programme to be given on three nights of the present week. Miss G. Stevenson contributes on the piano; Mr. Tom Carpenter and Miss Eileen McCarthy, two great favourites, are more entertaining than ever with duologues and songs; Mr. Will Sutton maintains his reputation in his well-rendered songs; Miss A. McKelvie possesses a rich soprano voice, which gains considerable recognition; whilst the Merry Carpenters are mirth-provoking in their musical comedies. The whole concludes with the amusing sketch entitled The Automaton; or, Boggles' Blunder.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens, Ltd.—Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—After a long run of musical comedy, the presentation this week of the stirring romantic drama, The Breed of the Treshams, by Mr. Frank Bertram's excellent company, comes as a welcome change to the patrons of the Opera House. Mr. H. Tripp Edgar submits a realistic and powerful impersonation of the dashing cavalier of fortune, Lieut. Reresby; Miss Celestine Bertram is a commendable exponent of the part of Batty; Miss Florence Tressilian artistically and cleverly impersonates the rôle of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford; Mr. Cecil C. Klein essays the character of Count Francis Tresham in a highly commendable manner; Mr. Oswald Lingard plays the austere Viscount Dorsington with sufficient asperity and brusqueness; Mr. George Traill is distinctly successful and alert as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen.

Pier Pavilion, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Charles F. Johnson.—A good all-round programme is submitted here. The items for the current week include Jean Seul, illusionist; Robert Gilbert, assisted by Mlle. Blanche, with their troupe of performing dogs and cats; Maidie Berker, pianist; Charles Lestree, juggler and torch manipulator; The Brooklands, dainty comediennes and dancers; Will Letters, comedian; Albert Ventor, quaint comedian; the Celtics, as the "Three Vaudevilles," in their musical comedy act; and the bio-tableaux.

Albert Hall, Winter Gardens.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Jake Friedman, the original one-man opera, who heads the bill here, submits a highly diverting performance, which is warmly applauded. The programme also includes Max Ruebens and Mlle. Dora, in Rubens and Doody's change scenic production, Superba; the Lizzette troupe of lady acrobats; Elsie Rubina, tight wire artist; D. W. Watson, cornetist and coach-horn artist; Jessie Buckle, contralto vocalist; Ada Gatley, swinging wire artist and juggler; Brady and Johnson, sketch artists; and the bioscope, with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—The Prodigal Parson is here this week, with Mr. W. V. Garrod as the Rev. T. Godley, a part in which he is popular. Enoch Jaggers is effectively portrayed by Mr. Hugh Carmichael, who is ably supported by Mr. Wm. Hayward as Ben Jaggins. Miss Vera Fordyce gives a sympathetic rendering of Fern Godley, and the comedy element is well represented by Mr. H. Newton as Phil Drive and Miss Lydia Hart as Gretchen Van Craus.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The Midget Mimes, in Casey's Court, a comic pantomime sketch, introduce an entertainment full of fun and frolic; Derenda and Green are a couple of good juggling comedians; operatic songs and duets are well rendered by Les Voces; Boy Glen is a clever comedian and raconteur. The remaining turns are Lily Esplin, comedienne; Tom Parker, eccentric comedian; Fred Bronte, vocal comedian; Ryder Sloane, descriptive vocalist; and the Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—At the top of the bill are the Four Hearns, a clever comedy acrobatic quartette, who are well received. Another good musical turn is provided by Zanfretta and Napio; eccentric comedy is well represented by Walker and Lake; Jock Walker, Scotch comedian, and Ada Parker, coon vocalist, both score heavily; good vocalism is displayed by A. E. Clifford; and Phil Rees and the Bioscope complete the bill.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. H. F. Housden's company is presenting that gentleman's pretty drama, A Woman's Past, here this week. The play is meeting with much favour, and possesses more than the average share of human interest. As David Heath Mr. J. Myron Howard is a decided success; Miss Dorothy Wallace as Bessie appears to advantage; Miss Irene Carrington displays versatility in the rôle of Clara Darrell; Uriah Craven is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Clifton Earle; Mr. Hausden submits a careful reading of Clement Harper; and both Mr. David Phillips and Miss Doris Cameron succeed in giving pleasure as Frank Delauney and Dorothy Heath.

STAFFORD. — Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—A treat is provided for local playgoers this week by the engagement of Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company. There is a change of programme each evening. The company is a very able one, and includes Mr. Hy. Herbert, Mr. E. Spencer Geach, Mr. Charles Francis, Mr. Gerald Ames, Mr. Plinge, Mr. Dagnell, Mr. Ross Shore, Miss Mary Webb, Miss Dorothy Green, Miss Rosa Burgess, Miss Mary Dibley, &c. Monday opened with Much Ado About Nothing, followed during the week by Henry the Fifth, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, and Richard the Third.

STALYBRIDGE. — Grand Theatre. — Sole Lessee, Mr. Louis Ellison; General-Manager, Mr. Eugene E. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. D. Oswald.—Included in an excellent variety programme is a sketch, For King and Country, in which fifty local children appear. The Captain's Daughter is another sketch which affords much merriment; Bella Leaburn is a dashing comedienne; Birkett and Wade cause laughter in their comedy acrobatic turn; and Henri Bekker, comedy conjurer, is clever. Knotto, contortionist; Chas. Rowen, comedian; the Susters Hula, vocalists and dancers; and "Scenes in the Zoo" complete the programme. On Thursday a special benefit performance in aid of the poor children's fund, organised by the local Buffaloes, was given under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress and the members of the Town Council.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren and company are here this week with Claudian. The title-rôle is played by Mr. Maclaren, who gives a singularly intelligent and engaging portrayal. Mr. Douglas Earle is a capital Agazil; Mr. F. Owen Chambers acts with distinction as the Tetrarch; Mr. C. T. Challoner is excellent as Belos; and Miss Maud Garth is admirable as Edessa. Mr. Weston Hubbard makes a capable Alcares, and Miss Lilly C. Bandmann gives a charming and pleasing picture of Almida.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—There is pleasing variety in the programme here this week, the artists appearing being Radford and Valentine, comedy jugglers; the Brothers Hannaway, comedians; Miss Leah Arden, vocalist; Mr. Harry Levaine, comedian; Mr. Charles Morritt, magician; the Wonderful Blind Man, introduced by Mrs. Charles Morritt; Sisters Aindow, musicians; Brisker's Bioscope; and Hardie and Hardie's sketch company in Those Dreadful Kids.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The appearance here of Mr. Auguste Van Biene in The Broken Melody has attracted large audiences who have manifested marked interest in the performances, the gifted actor-musician as Paul Borinski charming everyone with his solos on the 'cello. Miss Lena Burnleigh acts with sympathetic grace as Mabel; and a clever and effective impersonation of the Duchess de Verviers is given by Miss Rosemary Rees. As Dickson Mr. Chas. A. Morgan is exceedingly good; and Dr. Magrath has a thoroughly capable representative in Mr. W. Thomson; Mr. Faulkner Cox amusingly presents Mortimer, a theatrical agent; and Mr. Henry Ludlow makes an efficient General Ivanoff. On Monday and last night (Friday) The Broken Melody was followed by the one-act comedy, entitled The First Night, in which Mr. Van Biene appeared as Achille Talma Duford.

Empire.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—A big attraction is presented the patrons of this establishment this week in Yukio Tani, the famous ju-jitsu wrestler, and crowded audiences have been roused to a high state of enthusiasm over the various bouts. In addition there is a capital array of talent engaged, the Paolias, in a series of classical poses, commanding much appreciation. Lily Currie is a delightful vocalist; Fred and Maud Vipond are pleasing society entertainers; Mozetto is a smart juggler; the Kurios' comedy act is entertaining and clever; and the individual comedians, Tom Moore, Charles Milner, and Mr. W. B. Raby, sing amusing songs with satisfactory success.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre. — Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—The visit of Miss Minnie Palmer with Mr. Wentworth Croke's My Sweetheart company to the premier house on Wearside is interesting to the present and at the same time reminiscent to the older playgoers of one or even two decades ago. Miss Palmer plays her old rôle of Tina with much of the old vivacity and abandon that distinguished her early performances of the part; Tony Fauste finds a bright and hearty delineator in Mr. Robert H. Howard; Mr. Charles R. Hann submits an able as well as dignified impersonation of the rôle of Dr. Oliver; Miss Iris Lincoln is excellent as Mrs. Fleeter; and Mrs. H. E. Russell successful as Mrs. Hatzell. Mr. Fred W. Leonard is admirable as Joe Shotwell, and Mr. Henry Lesmere is entitled to praise as Harold Bartlett, while Mr. John P. MacCullum causes amusement as Dudley Harcourt. Mr. Alfred J. May does all that is necessary as Farmer Hatzell, and Miss Elsie Forster deserves mention as Peek-a-Boo.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Messrs. Webb and Wilson Benge's company opened here on Monday with the military play, The Two Hussars. Mr. Wilson Benge as the hero, Harry Alford, gives a meritorious performance; Miss Danvers-Smith, in the dual rôle of Ellen Maythorne and Will Gunstock, soon finds the favour of her audience; Mr. Fred J. Webb capitally portrays the rôle of Captain Paul Villiers; Mr. J. Stuart is excellent as Colonel Manners; and Mr. G. Paradise submits a soldierly interpretation of the part of Sergeant McFinne. Miss Sadie Smith and Miss Lallah Price are well suited as Marie and Molly Cutts respectively.

Palace of Varieties.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—An interesting all-round bill is being submitted twice nightly here. It comprises Johnny Fuller, cat impersonator and wire-walker; Osborn and Brooks, in a musical comedy duet; The Don and Munro comedy team; Tony Iveson, the Ragman pianist; E. Rousby's spectacular novelty, "Around Paris," showing some excellent artistic effects; May Moore Duprez, America's Jolly Dutch Girl; Blake and Granby, comedy duettists; the Bouncing Dillons, gymnasts; and Vernon's pictures, showing the pathetic episode of "The Miner's Daughter."

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray.—Mr. E. Graham Falcon's company opened here for three nights on Monday, playing Blue Bell in Fairyland. Mr. Jack Cromo is excellent as the Reigning King; the Footmen are made exceedingly droll by Mr. H. Vernon as Will, and Mr. Will L. Clements as Wont. Blue Bell is ably portrayed by Miss Lily Eyton, and Dickie is played in spirited style by Mr. Lawrence Emery.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—This house was well filled on Monday to welcome a return visit of that popular Adelphi drama, The Trumpet Call, capitally staged and presented by Mr. Charles F. Cooke's company. It would be difficult to praise too highly Miss Doris Gilham's work as Astrea; Miss Elsie E. Hill submitted a telling portrayal of Cuthbertson's wife; and Miss Phyllis B. French was a lively Lavinia. Mr. Leonard Yorke played Cuthbertson with commendable judgment, and Mr. Chas. F. Cooke was capital as Sergt.-Major Milligan. Mr. Joe Bracewell was a great success as Professor Ginnifer; while Mr. Freddie Bentley and Mr. John Denys did particularly well as Tom Dutton and Dick Featherstone respectively.

TON-Y-PANDY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. Fred Granville's company is obtaining a cordial reception in For Better or Worse. Mr. Scott Leighton gives a really fine impersonation of Captain Frank Hilliard; Mr. George E. Olive is convincing as Major Crawford; Mr. Willie Black evokes continual merriment in the humorous part of Horatio Ranter; Miss Ruth Nightingale as Olive Heathcote gives a sympathetic reading of the part; and Belle Baverstock is capitally played by Miss Chrissie Dunbar.

Hippodrome.—Director, Mr. D. Taylor; General-Manager, Mr. Curline Baldry.—After a lengthy closure, the above place was reopened on Monday to a packed house under the above management. Entering the building, everyone was struck with the tasteful decorations. Chief place on the bill is accorded to Dr. Carl Hermann, called "The Electric King." The Three Zaracs, on the triple bars, are a mirth-provoking trio; Chant and Chant, comedy duo, win much applause; and Steve Cooke does well. La Tosca gives a capital series of statuesque poses.

TORQUAY. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. A. Pearse.—Mr. William Greet's company, in The Earl and the Girl, opened to a highly appreciative house on Monday. Mr. Alfred Donohoe as Jim Cheese was excellent; Mr. Thomas Kennard as Dick Wargrave sang well, and Mr. Leslie Owen as the Hon. Crewe Boodle also contributed materially to the success. As Elphin Haye, Miss May Yates scored greatly; Miss Ida Stratham made a captivating Daisy Fallowfield; the Liza Shoddam of Miss Lena Hicks was a successful character-study; Miss Kathleen Gerrard was well placed as Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Winnie Plumpton was appropriately dignified as Miss Virginia Bliss.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl is paying a welcome return visit. The company is good throughout. Great praise is due to Mr. William Cromwell for his excellent portrayal of Jim Cheese; Mr. Robert Hyett makes a good Dick Wargrave; Mr. Stanley Harrison is admirable as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. Arthur Cassidy acquits himself well as Mr. Talk; Mr. A. E. Coleby scores as Mr. Bunker Bliss; and Mr. Frank Cane is able as Mr. Downham. Miss Gertrude Simpson is charming and sprightly as Elphin Haye; Miss Florence Wix is amusing and natural as Liza; Miss Eva Berrington is smart as Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Helen Langton makes a dignified Miss Bliss; and Miss Nellie Grant is a pleasing Mrs. Shimmering Black.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Wee Mona, a clever juvenile vocalist and dancer, is always popular here; Vowles and Bryan are a smart comedy couple; Percy Curry, comedian, is highly diverting; Arthur Royce, comedian, gives a comical musical turn; Miss Bessie Willow is a dashing comedienne; and Collin and Irene, second sight artists, and La Belle Rosa, mandolinist, complete the bill.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—An attractive programme is being submitted here this week. Professor Selkirk's juvenile spectacle, In Bonnie Scotland, performed by 100 Walsall children, proves a great draw. Rosali Jacobi, comedienne, is good; Miss Gladys Hooley, a brilliant violinist, successfully appears in Corri and Dereve's Heart-Strings; the pretty series of pictures so sweetly accompanied vocally by Miss Gracie Moore charms all; Cussac-Talma, illusionist, assisted by Mlle. Yvonne De Forge, give a marvellous performance; the Sisters Anetti are clever in their trapeze act; Frank Bernard and company, in the farce comedy sketch Hello! create roars of laughter; and the American Bioscope completes the bill.

Grand Theatre, Ltd. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Fred Benton and company are appearing here this week in The French Spy. Mr. Benton as Fritz gives a capital performance; Mr. Richard Fulton is successful as Captain Somers; the Count Romanoff of Mr. Max Coutts is all that can be desired; Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe makes an effective General Treploff; Mr. L. Chaseby does well as Lieut. Maxwell; Miss Gertrude Evans in the title-rôle acts with power; and Miss A. Harrison-Tate makes a capital Olga.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. Joseph Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company is here this week in the stirring drama, The Temptress. Mr. Sheen scores a big success as Bob Tanner, a circus clown; Mr. Claude Ashworth as Sir Oswald Fordyce is a dignified personage; and Mr. Wallace Campbell makes a manly Philip Welford. Mr. Richard Talbot is good as Jack Rivers; and as the unscrupulous Lucas Denbigh Mr. Weldon Atherstone acts with dramatic force. Mr. Fred H. Constable is well placed as Pedro Gonzales; and Mr. C. Turnton Fulford is an ideal cleric. A humorous Francis Fitz Fluke is Mr. Allen Carruthers. Miss Lydia Donovan as Stella, the lady temptress, makes the most of her opportunities; a charming Marion Fordyce is Miss Violet Sims; and as the much-wronged Madge Denbigh Miss Effie Bartlett wins all hearts. Miss Ivy Chandos is seen to advantage as Rhoda Brown.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Another capital company is here this week. The Brothers Dean score a big success, and their dancing is certainly a revelation in the terpsichorean art; Gus Harris maintains his big reputation; and W. H. Downs sings several songs in fine style. Myra Love is a charming comedienne; and Pat Duddy a comedian with quite a style of his own. The Brothers Lilian are smart acrobats; and Bayne and Hope score in their sketch, David Garrick.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Kuner.—This week Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, in the domestic sporting drama Bound to Win, is drawing capital houses here. Mr. F. G. Kimberley makes an excellent Harry Lindon, being ably assisted by Mr. Edward Bikker and Mr. Charles Vivian as Squire Forbes and Philip Ayre respectively. The comedy parts of Horatio Ruffit is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Allen Charles; and Mr. Dick Seddon makes an interesting Willie Wilkins. Miss Lottie Addison plays artistically as Gladys Orme; Marion Forbes is left in the safe keeping of Miss Violet Langley; and Miss Annie Lee as Flo Searching is warmly appreciated.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—For Wakes week this theatre has for its attraction Mr. Harry Starr and company, in a new musical drama, entitled The Unseen Power; he is also submitting during the week Carl the Clockmaker and Otto the Outcast. The first-named piece was played on Monday night, and the chief character, Frank Granville, with many disguises, was cleverly embodied by Mr. Harry Starr; Mr. William Miller did exceedingly well in the rôle of Harold Grenville; Mr. Edwin Firth gave a good impersonation of Antonio Romano; Mr. Will Hee scored as George Granville; Miss Katie Norris submitted a clever bit of acting in the character of Chris Granville. The humour of the piece was in the hands of Mr. Fred W. Graham, who kept the house in continual merriment. Miss Ella Crossley's Lucretia was decidedly smart; Miss Madge Blundell was well suited to the part of Anita Romano; and the same remark applies to Miss Cissy Hastings as Lucy. Miss Lizzie Jacobs played Jennie Shrub with decided ability.

New Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—A strong programme is submitted here this week. A smart show is given by the Virginians, who contribute songs and dances; Miss Rosie Reval is a good comedienne; roars of laughter greet Burg, Haud, and Wise, in their exceedingly funny sketch, Ye Old Brown Cow; Mr. Fred Terry submits some clever songs and dances; a smart turn of dancing is given by the Delones; Mr. Fred Earle has made himself quite popular here. The turn of the evening is that given by Hanvarr and Lee ("The Golfer and the Maid"); their exceedingly clever manipulation of the clubs, &c., evoke great applause; an extra turn is given by the Musical Schafers; and the Hippodrome pictures cause much mirth.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Once more A Message from Mars is here with Mr. Wm. H. Brougham as the Messenger, a part in which he has become decidedly popular; Mr. Bruce Lindley gives a capital sketch of the Tramp; Mr. Herbert J. Bentley plays with well-balanced effect the part of Horace Parker; and Miss Minnie Ellis ably fills the rôle of Minnie Templar.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Harry Pleon, on a return visit, appears in a series of his latest creations, which cause considerable amusement; the contortions of Juno Salmo, the Gold Mephisto, are weird and marvellously clever; the audience here never tire of Belle Braham, the charming song illustrator; Captain Slingsby, the clever ventriloquist, is also an old favourite, who is having fresh laurels added; which may also be said of Valazzi in his sensational and clever act of "Sloping the Slope on a Cannon Ball; sparkling and vivacious Bijou Russell dances straight into favour; the gymnastic act by the Jansons is skilfully performed; Bishop and Vale, acrobatic humorists and dancers, and some new films are well received.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company made its first appearance here on Monday in The Convict's Daughter. Mr. Bertram showed exceptional talent in his portrayal of Michael Grahame; Mr. G. Moreton-Williams gained the execrations of the audience by his impersonation of the rascally Jasper Thorn; Mr. Herbert M. King deserved unstinted praise for his interpretation of Harold Trevalyen; as Frederick Neville Mr. G. Nelson Wallace was decidedly good; Mr. S. Roberts was extremely comical as Patrick O'Laragan; Mr. Percy Robinson did good work as Frank Harper; and Mr. P. Paget is entitled to a word of praise as Detective Parr. Miss Nelly Clyde gave an artistic and sympathetic rendering of the heroine, Edith; Miss Phyllis Gibbon was delightfully chic as Betty Hyne; whilst Miss Rose Carew made an excellent Marion Thorn.

WEST STANLEY.—Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—A burlesque, entitled The Honeymoon, is proving a big draw here. Mr. John Haines is a typical blustering Colonel as Vandyke Brown; Mr. Leslie Earle gives a manly portrayal of Jack Armstrong; the rôle of Nathaniel Noodle is finely handled by Mr. Gilbert Payne; Mr. Harrow Farrow submits a telling impersonation of a "johnny" as Archy. The part of Emeretta Noodle is portrayed in a pleasing manner by Miss Rene Walton; Miss Nellie Dyson is good as Stella Le Brunn; Miss P. Fairley wins general favour by her sweet acting as Madge Armstrong.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Fred Little and Fred Darcy's company is here in The Executioner's Daughter. Mr. S. Radcliffe gives a pathetic portrayal of Mons. Roche; the rôle of Felix Marius is cleverly handled by Mr. Jaun De Alberti; Mr. W. Ruddle Brown is a great favourite as Paul Rovel; the part of Ketch is well played by Mr. W. S. Stephenson; Mr. Willie Hicks ably presents the rôle of Tom Holmes; Miss Nellie Howitt is a winsome Annette; the rôle of Christina is smartly performed by Miss Maria Ada Downing, and Miss Evelyn Robson submits a powerful representation of Felice.

WEXFORD. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company is here this week, and on Monday produced the military drama A Soldier of France, which was received with enthusiasm. As Corporal Jean Mr. Arthur Hinton displayed great power, and his acting all through was marked with much feeling; Mr. Travis Green's impersonation of the repulsive Judas Dolara was conceived in the right vein, and he never appeared to strive after effect. Mr. Dan E. Clifford created much merriment in the part of Jollyboy; and Mr. Charles Langton as Lieutenant Louis was very good. Miss Jennie Clare was amusing as Margot; and Miss Lelia Zillwood was eminently fitted for the trying rôle of Pauline Lorraine, which she played with much emotion and restraint. A word of praise is also due to Master Freddie Cave for his clever portrayal of the child Louis Lorraine.

WHITEHAVEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Messrs. Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama is the attraction here, and in addition to the fine series of pictures, the following varieties are included in the bill: Woolford's educated ponies and dogs; Dane's Marionettes; the Fordyces, juvenile singers and dancers; Maxey and Pete, comedy cyclists, and the biograph.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddle.—Mr. Fred Willmot's two-houses-a-night experiment bids fair to be a great success. On Monday evening two large houses assembled, and an excellent bill was well received. The Six Brothers Luck evoked much amusement in their funny sketch The Demon of the Cellar. J. H. Wakefield's coon songs had a good reception; Bert Gordon's singing and playing were excellent; the Ringling Trio gave a wonderful exhibition of stilt-walking; the Lannons revealed themselves as dancers of the highest class and vocalists and comedians of no mean skill; Happy Attwood, in a novel make-up as a little boy, made the house laugh heartily; Georghan and Downs, song illustrators, were an acquisition to the programme, and the bioscope pictures were entertaining.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company is here in the musical play Three Little Maids. The Sisters Branscombe, otherwise the Three Little Maids, are charmingly and vivaciously represented by Miss Cora Lingard, Miss Daisy Sylverton, and Miss Eva Weigh, who sing their numbers admirably. Gretchen has a capital exponent in Miss Laura Wright, who, along with Mr. Charles Caffrey as Cupid, creates great merriment, and sings and dances with much vim. Lord Cheyne and Bryan Molyneaux are ably impersonated by Mr. Victor Kerr and Mr. Guy Williams resp

"THE SPELL."

A Tragedy of Truth, in Two Panels, by Rosamund Langbridge, with special music by Norman O' Neill, produced for the first time on any stage at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Friday, Nov. 2.

Michael Hennessy .....MR. MARTIN HARVEY
Mrs. Riordan .....MISS MARY RORKE
Mary Riordan .....MISS N. DE SILVA

Mr. Martin Harvey's production of The Spell, which event took place at the Manchester Theatre Royal on Friday, the 2nd, adds for himself another rôle to those various popular ones which exemplify his versatility in the eyes of a large and admiring public. Whether the piece will occupy a permanent place in his répertoire or not is, however, an open question, for the atmosphere of The Spell is heavy and depressing, and only in the second "panel" has the actor an opportunity to realise in his lines something of the lugubriously weird character of the theme. That he fulfils the artistic need is beyond question; and, brief as it is, the impersonation deserves to be ranked high among the best of his achievements. But it is much to be doubted whether tragedy so unnaturally environed as that of The Spell, so unrelievedly impregnated with a supernatural element that makes too many demands upon credulity, can have in itself the life that is needed to ensure anything like a popular success.

The scene is the interior of a cabin in Galway. Mrs. Riordan cronches over the fire, seeing visions, and talking ominously and dramatically of the things she sees. In similar tones she is answered or questioned by her daughter Mary, a red-haired girl, who is terribly frightened by the witch-talk of her mother. Intensity is the prevailing note of the dialogue between these two. The mother—a reputed witch as it transpires—has observed her daughter's futile liking for Michael Hennessy, a man who, in common with other people, passes by the girl in contemptuous dread because her red hair implies a curse upon all with whom she comes in contact. To overcome Michael's repugnance and to appease the longing of her daughter's heart, the mother weaves a spell, by which Michael is to be there and then invaded and made, in spite of himself, to come to the cabin and look upon the girl with eyes of love. The idea is worked up, in dialogue, with an intensity more melodramatic than natural, until the girl is infected by an excitement that almost enables her to see the man coming over the hill and down the road to their door. He is coming quickly—he is flying to her. But Michael makes no dashing entrance. He just opens the door and stands within, a man obviously under a spell. A stage half in darkness and an auditorium with all the lights turned low contribute to the weird effect produced by Michael's rapt face as he looks upon the woman he is to be made to love and marry. His appearance is, in a quiet way, electrifying; it is the appearance of Mr. Martin Harvey. And he says not a word. The curtain descends upon this, rising again immediately upon an interval in which the courtship has gone on apace to the morning of the marriage. But Mary is troubled by qualms about the method of Michael's capture, and, believing that he loves her for herself in spite of the spell, is of the mind to tell him how he was made to come to her. Against this projected confession her mother warns her that to tell Michael the truth will break the spell. But Mary would rather have the truth than a lie. Michael, when he appears, is full of an uncanny ecstacy of love for the girl, whose red hair he sees now as golden, and whom he is so eager to possess that he can scarcely wait for the wedding raiment to be donned. Now, while her mother is preparing her (unlucky) green dress for the ceremony, is the time chosen by Mary for confession. It is done admirably, and Michael's reception of the confession is thrilling. His eyes and his brain begin to clear; he sees that her hair is red; that she is accursed; and that he has been entrapped by the evil magic of a witch and her abominable daughter. The hopelessness of escape from the contamination he has undergone and its product of future evil works him up to a frenzy—a frenzy curiously mental rather than physical. Suddenly he snatches up a knife, and the girl falls back from him—dead. It is a horrid upshot. It is a horrid exit he makes, too, retreating backward to the door, unable to take his eyes from the body, and conveying in his whole aspect the sense of the curse entailed upon a human creature drawn to this issue by the supernatural agency of the spell. The picture is completed after his disappearance by the mother's discovery of the end of her work.

The action is accompanied, practically without cessation, by Mr. Norman O'Neill's music, which winds along weirdly in perfect accord with the subdued lights and wailing dialogue. It is really more pregnant and convincing than the play, in which the efficacy of superstitious beliefs, granting their existence, is too emphatically taken on trust. The dialogue also frequently transcends the mental equipment of the characters. But a praiseworthy effort was made to supplement the excellence of Mr. Harvey as Michael by Miss N. de Silva, who imparted at times much emotion to her embodiment of Mary; and by Miss Mary Rorke, whose impersonation of the mother was evidently inspired by a keen appreciation of the portentous atmosphere of the play. As for Mr. Harvey's creation of Michael Hennessy, it is as if one had seen a strange and memorable picture.

MISS LILLIE SELDEN'S MANDOLINE RECITAL.

On Monday evening, at Bechstein Hall, Miss Lillie Selden, the clever child mandolinist, gave a successful mandoline and harp recital, under the patronage of Dr. W. H. Cummings, principal of the Guildhall School of Music, where Miss Selden has received her training as pupil of the noted teacher of the mandoline, Madame Fiammetta Waldahoff. Miss Selden is a remarkably gifted little lady, with a really wonderful command of the mandoline, and although this instrument seems a somewhat awkward medium for such music as an "Andante" of Mendelssohn's, and the fine "Adagio and Allegro" from Max Bruch's G Minor Concerto, it was in these pieces that Miss Selden made her finest effects and gained the heartiest applause. The memory of the child is no less remarkable than her precision of execution, shown in such varied pieces as Field's "Nocturne," Hubay's difficult "In the Spinning Room" and De Beriot's charming "Scène de Ballet," a capital example of Miss Selden's powers. Other solos given by this clever performer were "Danse Tzigane" (Nachez), Bohm's "Moto Perpetuo," and "Cossack Revels," by Tchakoff-Grix, also a Study in Harmonics, "The Bell Waltz," "At Twilight" (duo form of mandoline playing (unacompanied) and Hubay's popular "Hejre Kati. The silver medal of the Guildhall School was this year awarded to Miss Selden. Other interesting items included in the programme were a musical poem, "Spirit of Music," composed and recited by Madame Waldahoff, and accompanied by Miss Selden, solo mandoline, and four other mandolinists, pupils of Madame Waldahoff, also by 'cello, Miss Dorothy Crompton; harp, Miss Macdonald; and piano, Miss Amy Parsons. Miss Georgina Macdonald received much applause for her clever harp solo, "Ballade," by Hasselmans and the mandoline quartettes accompanied by 'cello and harp, of Michiel's Czardas, and "Mil in the Black Forest," by Eilenberg, greatly pleased the audience. A mandoline solo was given by Miss Lilian Branston, and another harp solo by Miss Macdonald. The accompanists were Miss Nelson Ward, Mr. W. R. Nicholls, and Miss Amy Parsons. Bechstein Hall was well filled, and the most encouraging reception given to Miss Lillie Selden.

"THE OTHER HEIR."

A Comedy, in One Act, Written by Ernest H. G. Cox, Produced at Her Majesty's Opera House, Blackpool, on Monday, Nov. 5.

Gerald Forester .....MR. ERNEST H. G. COX
Selby .....MR. S. IRWIN BARRETT
Alice Sefton .....MISS HILDA HONISS
Mrs. Simpkins .....MISS MARGARET MARSHALL

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A very enthusiastic audience accorded the warmest welcome to this clever little play on Monday night. The main outline of the story may be told very briefly. The curtain, on rising, reveals Gerald Forester, an erstwhile impecunious journalist, rejoicing over his sudden and unexpected good fortune. He has just received the very pleasing information from a firm of solicitors that a distant uncle has left him a big fortune, and he therefore decides that he can now afford an assistant, and at once rings up a typewriting firm, and instructs them to send a lady typist across to his rooms at once. Presently there enters a charming young lady, whom he naturally concludes is the typist, and with whom he falls desperately in love at first sight. He proposes to her, and is accepted, before she has had an opportunity to explain her mission. However, seeing how matters are progressing, she decides for the present to remain silent, and proceeds to inspect the typewriter (or type machine) in an adjoining room. Forester's servant then produces a letter, which he had forgotten to hand to his master. This turns out to be a letter from the lawyers stating that another will of later date has been found, and which contains a clause to the effect that, if he does not marry his uncle's ward, he will sacrifice the fortune and estates, which revert to the ward, who is on her way to call upon him. He is lamenting his bitter fate when the arrival is announced of another lady, whom he reasonably concludes is "the other heir." A complicated but cleverly-written scene follows, in which Forester tells her (the typist) that under no circumstances could he marry her, and which ultimately terminates in all being explained, and a happy ending. The audience testified their appreciation in the orthodox manner, and were not satisfied until the author came before the curtain and bowed his acknowledgments.

As regards the acting, beyond a pardonable nervousness on a first production, there was no fault to find. Mr. Cox as Gerald Forester did not miss a point. Miss Hilda Honiss played Alice Sefton with her usual charming grace, which made Forester's impulsive love-making quite excusable. Selby, the butler, was played by Mr. S. Irwin Barrett, and the part could not have been in better hands; whilst Miss Margaret Marshall turned the small part of Mrs. Simpkins into a clever character-sketch.

"THE CRUSADER."

Grand Opera, for Juveniles, in Four Acts, Written and Composed by George Tootell, Produced for the First Time, at Lytham Pier Theatre, on Tuesday, Nov. 6.

Wilfrid .....MASTER NORMAN SCOTT
Ralph de Courcy ..MASTER SIDNEY NIGHTINGALE
Bertrand .....MASTER LEONARD FISHER
Walter .....MISS ELSIE CLARKE
Margaret .....MISS MAUDE HOWE
Elfrida .....MISS RUTH BARLOW

Rather a novelty was presented to the public at Lytham on Tuesday, when Mr. Tootell produced his new juvenile opera, The Crusader. It is not often one sees children appearing in grand opera. The plot deals with a knight, one Wilfrid, who, struck by remorse at having, in a fit of passion, killed his best friend, goes, as a penalty, to fight as a Crusader. He is accompanied by Ralph de Courcy. Wilfrid leaves his betrothed, Margaret, with a promise to return in five years, and claim his promised bride. Ralph, however, having conceived a passionate love for Margaret, returns alone, and tells how, after fighting bravely, Wilfrid was killed. He consoles the unhappy Margaret, and at last wins her consent to wed. The marriage is about to take place on the last day of the five years, when Wilfrid returns, puts the wicked Ralph to shame, and claims his bride. The music, without rising to anything very great, is enjoyable, especially the introduction to the acts. The chief parts were ably taken by Miss Maude Howe (Margaret), Master Norman Scott (Wilfrid), and Master S. Nightingale (Ralph); whilst Miss E. Clarke, Miss R. Barlow, and Master L. Fisher were good as Walter, Elfrida, and Bertrand respectively.

"THE GREEN ROOM BOOK; OR, WHO'S WHO ON THE STAGE."

(1907 Issue.)

This valuable compilation, which is already the recognised Who's Who of the Stage and Year Book of the dramatic profession, is being revised and brought up to date for 1907. There will be over 500 new biographies of the principal actors, actresses, dramatists, managers, and critics of the day. The biographies in the 1906 edition have been subjected to careful correction—in some cases extension, in others compression or elimination—until it cannot fail to be regarded as the Debrett of the theatrical profession, and will be an invaluable work of reference to the playgoer and student of the drama, while it will be of the highest value to managers and agents desirous of making themselves acquainted with the répertoire and métier of artists whom they propose to engage. The various appendices will form a special feature of the volume for 1907, and will include a Review of the Drama of 1906, a complete list of all plays produced in the United Kingdom during that period, a revised list of the theatres, music halls, and fit-up halls of Great Britain and Ireland, with the population of towns, and the names of proprietors or managers; Programmes of the Year, by Mr. H. G. Hibbert; Full Account of the Ellen Terry Benefit; a Special Article on Dramatic Criticism, by Mr. J. T. Grein; a Directory of Theatrical Adrresses in which artists may register without fee; theatrical law cases for the year; theatrical events and news of the year; theatrical clubs, charities and institutions, with details as to officials, &c.; box plans of all the London theatres; and full obituary for 1906. Mr. J. M. Bulloch will also contribute an extended and revised collection of his interesting theatrical genealogical trees, under the heading, "Footlight Families."

THE past season at the Spa, Whitby, having exceeded all previous records under Mr. Payne-Seddon's management, the owner, Sir Charles Elliott, Bart., has leased the entire property, together with the tennis lawns, croquet grounds &c., to Mr. Seddon for a term of years.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—May I ask you to be good enough to state that the credit for the rendering of the Alderman in The Night of the Party at the Castle Theatre, Richmond, last week, should be given, not to Mr. Edward Sawer, as announced in the programme, but to—Yours faithfully, EDMOND T. SAVERS, Theatre Royal, Deal, Nov. 8, 1906.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H. M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six-foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon, and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr. Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Thursday, Nov. 8, the Farcical Comedy, entitled "CHARLEY'S AUNT."

"Laughter holding both its sides" and merriment pressed down and running over is the result of the visit to this popular comedy for the week-end. It is only fair to add that the result of all this may be traced to the excellent all-round performance of Mr. Brandon Thomas's company, of which Mr. Alleyn M. Hilton is the capable manager. Mr. Stanley Cook repeated his admirable impersonation of Lord Fancourt Babberley, and quite early in the evening became the favourite of everyone; the rôle fitted him like a glove, and throughout the performance he kept the house in roars of laughter. Mr. C. B. Keston was a capital Col. Sir Francis Chesney, and his proposal in Act 2 was a capital bit of acting; an experienced actor, Mr. Walter Beaumont, made the most of his opportunities as Stephen Spettigue, and elicited a good deal of merriment as the gentleman in quest of an heiress; Jack Chesney was excellently played by Mr. Hastings Lynn; nothing could have been better than the light-hearted young undergraduate who makes love with all the ardour of youth and wins the lady of his choice; as Charley Wykeham Mr. Richard H. Mason did remarkably well, and played with no little ability. A word of praise is due to Mr. Sydney Compton, who portrayed the college scout Babbett to the life, and did much with an unimportant rôle; Miss Eva Boyne was altogether charming as Ella; Amy Spettigue was pleasingly played by Miss Kitty Carew; Miss Lilian Lait as Kitty Verdun added to the success of the evening; and a capital performance was that of Miss Lena MacNaughton as the real Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez. The play met with an enthusiastic reception, and was mounted with scrupulous care. Mr. Arthur Howard remains at the head of the house here, and has done much to popularise the theatre; his "bookings" have left nothing to be desired. A good word is due to Mr. C. W. Dowell's capital orchestra.

THE hundredth performance of Amasis, at the New Theatre, last evening, was agreeably commemorated by the presentation to each member of the audience of souvenir copies of the full vocal score and the book of the words.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

The first production of Signor Umberto Giordano's three-act opera, Fédora, was given at Covent Garden on Monday night before a full house. Giordano, early in his career, was successful with his opera, Mala Vita, and still more so with Andrea Chenier and Fédora, produced in 1898 at Milan. The libretto, by Signor Arturo Colantti, is founded on Victorien Sardou's famous tragedy, and the first act takes place in Count Vladimir's house in St. Petersburg, where his servants are, in their master's absence, spending a lively evening. They are interrupted by the Princess Fédora, betrothed to Vladimir. Shortly afterwards her lover is brought in mortally wounded, at first it is thought by a Nihilist, but suspicion falls on Count Loris Ipanov. Féodora swears to avenge her lover, and the curtain falls on this dramatic scene. In the second act, which takes place in Paris, a ball is proceeding in Fédora's house, a waltz being played, and after that a polacca. A French diplomat, De Siriex, then sings an air descriptive of Russian ladies. Olga, Fédora's cousin, follows suit with a song, anything but complimentary to the fair sex of France. Louis Ipanow, who has escaped to Paris after killing Vladimir, then appears in the ballroom, and, of course, at once falls in love with Fédora. She leads him on to a confession of the murder, which, after the guests have departed, she writes down, and gives to a police-inspector, and orders him to arrest Louis as he leaves the house. Louis returns, and tells Fédora that he shot Vladimir because he wrote a letter to his (Louis's) wife, Wanda, who has proved unfaithful. Fédora then transfers her affections to Louis. The signal is not given to the police outside, as she tells Louis she loves him, and that he is to remain with her. A villa in Switzerland is the scene of the third act, where Fédora and Louis are dwelling in great happiness. News comes, however, to Fédora that Vladimir's father has killed the brother of Louis because of a letter received from Fédora, and that a friend will bring this letter to show Louis. Fearing all will be revealed, Fédora takes poison, and in a final duet between the lovers the opera ends. Enough is shown in this story that so involved a plot is not entirely satisfactory, from an operatic point of view, in spite of many really dramatic situations. The music in this opera, though unequal, contains some happy moments, such as the dramatic air in the first act, where Fédora swears to be revenged on her lover's assassin, and the beautiful melody, sung by the lovers in the second act. The music also at the beginning of the last act is well conceived, and the last scene in the opera very dramatic. The cast was excellent. Signora Giachetti made an ideal Fédora, and Signor Zenatello sang the music of Louis superbly; while the characters of De Sirieux, Gretch, and the lively Olga were capitally sustained by Signor Scandiani, Signor Thos, and Signora Garavaglia. Signor Mugnone conducted most skilfully. At the close of the second act, the composer, Signor Giordano, was called on the stage and warmly applauded.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Wednesday afternoon Sir Alexander Mackenzie gave the first of his series of lectures on "Bohemian Music." Sir Alexander, during his lecture, gave several examples on the piano of early and little-known Bohemian music, and he was also assisted by three lady students of the Academy, who sang and played some of the music. At the commencement of his lecture, Sir A. C. Mackenzie said Bohemia had a really remarkable school of music of its own, which had even played a political part, and dated from the tenth century, but in these early days the priests had tried hard to stop Bohemian music, and the Kings of Bohemia favoured German music, but in Charles the First's time Italian music prevailed. The music of the French trobadours differed from the German; a specimen of troubadour music was then sung, the lecturer remarking on the charming and quite modern tune. Sir Alexander then played a short example that he said might have been written yesterday. Although the Church at that time was so bitterly opposed to music, the love of secular music became so strong that they were unable to stem the tide. The oldest known hymn-book contained a war song. Sir Alexander played an Invocation consisting of six lines, and another, "Lord, love us," which the lecturer remarked was not so good. Music at that time was not barred. Sir Alexander then mentioned the fact that some of the beautiful Bohemian folk airs are to be found in the compositions of Smetana and Dvorák. So great had the apathy of the Church become that the choristers came late and chatted and told anecdotes, and the nuns sat sewing, and after that people were forbidden to sing in the church. Only towards the end of the fifteenth century did folk songs improve; then the Church authorities issued folk songs in their hymn-books. In giving an example Sir Alexander remarked that one hymn began in the major and ended in the minor key. About the year 1598 Palestrina was at the height of his fame, and some time after opera became a most important factor and an opera-house was established at Prague and Glück's operas produced. After Mozart's time Bohemian music was established, and the modern brass band, though called a German band, was really Bohemian, and the difference between that and the Italian organ player was, Sir Alexander quaintly said, as that between Mephistopheles and Beelzebub. The lecturer might also have added the picturesque young Savoyard at one time seen in our streets, with his fearsome instrument, popularly known as a hurdy-gurdy. Sir Alexander briefly referred to the improved musical condition of our streets, but did not mention the motor horn or the modern piano-organ. In 1774 the German language was taught only in the schools, and in North Germany the schoolmasters had to teach music and even conduct; while good instrumentalists became so scarce that in 1804 it was impossible to get a good orchestra together. Some pleasing folk songs at this part of the lecture were then given, the accomplished Principal of the Academy causing much laughter by saying his hearers were to listen to the songs but not the words, "as they were his own, and he was not proud of them." In speaking of the difficulty Weber encountered in trying to produce an opera in Bohemia, as they would only speak their own language, which he did not understand, the lecturer remarked on the great difference in our own country, where any language but English was preferred. The lecture concluded with the singing of the National Bohemian Hymn, justly characterised by Sir Alexander Mackenzie as beautiful music, and with a reference to the epoch-making composer Smetana.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Bernard M. Armstrong, nephew of the popular comedian of the same name, had a very nice compliment paid him the other evening on the occasion of his attaining his majority. At the close of the performance at the New Gaiety Theatre, Glasgow, on behalf of the entire staff, orchestra, company, leading patrons, etc., Mr. Jos. Baker, acting-manager, presented Mr. Armstrong with a handsome dressing case and a beautiful diamond scarf-pin.

PRESENTATION.—The ladies and gentlemen of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Silver King North company have presented Mr. Frederic Adderley, the business-manager, with a travelling writing-case handsomely fitted and suitably engraved.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, OCT. 31.—Mr. H. B. Irving appeared as Lesurques and Dubosc in The Lyons Mail during the third week of his engagement at the New Amsterdam Theatre. The drama was preceded by King Réné's Daughter, with Miss Dorothea Baird in the title-rôle. During the same week three performances of Charles I. were given. The final week of the engagement was devoted to the following répertoire:—Monday and Tuesday nights, Charles I. and Markheim; Wednesday afternoon, Paolo and Francesca; Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nights, King Réné's Daughter and The Lyons Mail; Thursday night and Saturday afternoon, Markheim and Mauricette. Mr. Irving and Miss Baird have been received with hearty appreciation and applause at every performance, and the critics, without exception, have recognised the high artistic merit and personal charm of their various portrayals. In fact, all signs point to this being the first of a series of very successful engagements in the Empire City.

"THE THREE OF US," a drama of Western life, by Rachel Crothers, has made a distinct hit at the Madison-square Theatre. The title refers to Rhy Macchesney, a young woman, and her two brothers, one of whom is on the verge of manhood while the other is a schoolboy. In a Nevada mining camp, where the three are trying to keep together until they can realise something on a gold mine, which has so far proved unprofitable, life grows irksome for Clem, the elder brother, and, in order to get away, he raises money by selling valuable information concerning the mine to Louis Berresford, a visiting Englishman. Steve Townley, who is in love with Rhy, has discovered a vein of gold. He tells his sweetheart, and binds her to secrecy; but Clem overhears the conversation. When Steve finds that his rival, Berresford, knows the value of the mine he suspects Rhy of treachery, and she, to shield her brother, cannot explain. The usual complications arise, the lovers are separated, and "the three of us" are on the verge of dissolution; but all the difficulties are finally smoothed away by Rhy Macchesney. Miss Carlotta Nillson as the self-sacrificing sister has scored a personal success of the first magnitude. Miss Eva Vincent is very amusing as an Irish servant; and prominent parts are well played by Messrs. Frederick Truesdell, Stanley Dark, and Henry Kolker.

"THE RICH MR. HOGGENHEIMER," the new musical play in which Mr. Sam Bernard is appearing at Wallack's Theatre, is built around the same character that made The Girl from Kay's so successful two years ago. Mr. Henry B. Smith wrote the book, and Mr. Ludwig Englander composed the music, there being interpolated numbers by Messrs. West, Kem, Jerome, and Schwartz. "Piggy" is now a married man, a happy, but at times a delinquent, husband. He has a son, and has chosen a wife for him; but young Hoggenheimer falls in love with a shopgirl during a visit to America. Consequently "Piggy's" plans are rudely shattered by a cablegram anouncing that his son is about to plunge into matrimony. So he pretends to have important business in America, and says good-bye to Mrs. Hoggenheimer. But when she finds that Flora Fair, an actress, is to be among the passengers, she secretly embarks on the same ship with her husband. Arrived in New York, "Piggy" disguises himself as a cabman, and undergoes tribulations whilst trying to drive his wife to her hotel. He fails in his efforts to separate the lovers, and finally gives his consent to the marriage. In this piece Mr. Bernard is even funnier that he was in The Girl from Kay's, which is saying a good deal.

"THE HOUSE OF MIRTH," a dramatisation of Mrs. Edith Wharton's novel of the same name, has scored a failure at the Savoy Theatre. The authoress had the assistance of Mr. Clyde Fitch in constructing the dramatic version of this widely-read story. Miss Fay Davis was personally most successful in her embodiment of the heroine; Lily Bart, and the other characters of the novel were ably represented, but the play as a whole was disappointing.

"THE MEASURE OF A MAN," a play, in four acts, by Cora Maynard, is the current attraction at Weber's Theatre. It depicts the shady side of "high finance," showing how Arnold King tries to "corner" the world's steel market by means of a certain invention and with the aid of Christopher Guthrie's millions. In the cast are Miss Percy Haswell, Miss Mary Hall, Mr. E. M. Holland, Mr. Robert Drouet, and Mr. George Holland, the latter being made up to resemble Mr. Pierpont Morgan.

AT the New York Theatre Mr. Chauncey Olcott is maintaining his popularity as an Irish singing comedian in a new play from the pen of Theodore Burt Sayre, called Eileen Asthore. The scenes are laid in and near Dublin in 1804, and Mr. Olcott appears as Richard Temple, a warm-hearted, impulsive young Irishman who has squandered his patrimony in extravagant living. Just as he is planning to enlist under Napoleon he meets Eileen O'Donnell, the typical Irish colleen of these compositions, and immediately falls in love with her. Deciding forthwith not to go to the wars in foreign parts, he sets seriously about the business of reforming, and after some months of probation wins the girl of his choice. Various other complications of a romantic character are introduced, but all ends in idyllic happiness.

MESSRS. KEITH AND PROCTOR have leased the "uptown" theatre known as the Harlem Opera House, long popular as a playhouse where the best attractions from the leading theatres could be seen after they had run their course on Broadway, and have converted it into a vaudeville house. The strong feature of the inaugural bill was Mrs. Langtry's appearance in the one-act play Between the Nightfall and the Light, which met with a very favourable reception.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

In the programme of the students' concert, given on Wednesday evening, the first item was a piano solo by Miss Ada M. Nicholas, the first movement from Beethoven's Sonata in A. Mr. C. G. Belle sang Coleridge-Taylor's air "Onaway, awake beloved" with a fair amount of success, and Miss Lilian Branston (one of Mme. Waldahoff's pupils) received much applause for her mandoline solo, "Witches' Dance." Miss Beatrice Weatherley neatly interpreted Mr. Orlando Morgan's song, "The White Dove," while Miss E. Barnes proved a skilful executant in her pianoforte solos of Max Vogrich's Staccato Caprice and the Intermezzo en Octaves, by Leschetizky. A very young vocalist, Master John Lowrie, was heard in Sullivan's song "The Chorister," and for his careful singing was warmly greeted by the audience. Teresa del Riego's pleasing ballad "The Waking of Spring" was admirably given by Miss Margaret Rumsey, and Mr. Henry F. Collett displayed skilful execution in his piano solo Scherzo (Brook). Another clever student, Mr. Bevington Rosse, sang Haydn's recit. and air "Rolling in foaming billows" (Creation) correctly and with good intonation, and Miss Edith Clapham's violin solos of Dvorák's quaint and charming Humoresque and Papini's Feu Follet were played in quite the right spirit and with great freedom of execution. Miss Inez F. Dicksee gave a song of Guy d'Hardelot's, and the concert concluded with the duet "Graceful Consort," from Hadyn's Creation. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Ruth Lincoln, the part of Veronique was taken at Nottingham on Wednesday night by Miss Beatrice Hodson, who was accorded a hearty reception for her pleasing rendering.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Play, by Paul Kester and Charles Major, entitled
"DOROTHY O' THE HALL."

Miss Julia Neilson, Mr. Fred Terry, and their West End company, with all the original scenery, furniture, and effects from the New Theatre, returned to London this week after their triumphal tour of the provinces, and have been drawing houses full to overflowing at the Marlborough. Holloway has accorded the talented pair the warmest of welcomes, the curtain having to be raised many times after each of the four acts, even to the last, when they received quite an ovation. In the title-rôle Miss Julia Neilson invests her performance with a welcome atmosphere of humour which serves as an admirable contrast to the more powerful phases of emotion which occur in the play, especially in Act 2, where, to save the life of her lover, Sir John Manners, she discloses the hiding-place of Mary Stuart, Queen of Scotland. Miss Neilson's interpretation is, in all its aspects, perfect. Mr. Fred Terry, versatile and resourceful, fairly revels in the part of Sir John Manners, whose buoyancy, ready wit, and geniality he presents with unfailing ability, and scores, it is almost needless to add, a marked success. Mr. Horace Hodges is admirably placed as the jester, Perkin, making every possible point with his lines and clever by-play. Mr. J. Carter Edwards, who has a commanding stage presence allied to elocutionary power of a high order, is a most capable Sir George Vernon. As Sir Malcolm Vernon Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw gives a capital rendering of the part; and the same remark applies to Mr. Frederick Groves as the Earl of Rutland. Mr. Malcolm Cherry, Mr. W. A. Haines, Mr. Walter Edwin, Mr. George Dudley, and Mr. Alan Borthwick give adequate renderings of their respective rôles. Miss Miriam Lewes is to be warmly congratulated on her impressive rendering of the stately Elizabeth Tudor, Queen of England; and Miss Lilias Waldegrave is no less successful as the ill-fated Queen Mary of Scotland. Miss Claire Pauncefort renders excellent service as Lady Vernon, and Miss Mary Mackenzie as Jenny Faxton and Miss Marion Sterling in the part of Bess, the cook at Haddon Hall, are also admirable. The scenery, staging, and appointments deserve high commendation, and the effective incidental music, specially written by Mr. Raymond Roze, is admirably performed by the Marlborough orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Sydney Faulks.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
Shakespeare's Comedy, entitled
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

A visit by the famous Benson company is an event anticipated with much interest in Hammersmith, and therefore no surprise was caused on Monday evening at this handsome theatre being well filled by an audience that followed Shakespeare's comedy with close attention and interest. And the reception on Monday was an excellent augury for the remainder of the week's business. Mr. Benson has surrounded himself with an exceedingly capable band of earnest Shakespearean students, although this particular play, farcical as it is, does not offer many opportunities for the display of elocutionary powers on the part of the performers. Mr. Benson evidently looks upon the whole as pure farce, and treats it as such, hurrying the action at headlong pace. By so doing the piece is rendered vastly amusing, and succeeds admirably. Mr. Benson makes a capital Petruchio, and wins applause by his vigorous treatment, both as lover and husband of the shrew, Katherine. As Baptista, Mr. E. A. Warburton gives a dignified representation, which is most acceptable. Mr. Murray Carrington is an excellent Vincentio; and Mr. George Buchanan affords every satisfaction as Lucentio. Mr. H. O. Nicholson plays well as Gremio; and Mr. Clarence Derwent represents Tranio with the requisite gusto. Mr. Percy D. Owen is an amusing Biondello; and Mr. Stanley Howlett acts well as Hortensio. Grumio, the servant, could be in no better hands than those of Mr. George R. Weir, one of the best of Shakespearean comedians. Mrs. Benson's Katherine is a performance of more than average merit, and well deserves the success gained. A charming embodiment of Bianca is presented by Miss Gwladys Wynne. The smaller characters are adequately filled. During the remainder of the week the other plays presented have been Macbeth, The School for Scandal, As You Like It, Henry V., and The Merchant of Venice.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Farce-comedy, in Three Acts,
by Michael Morton, entitled
"THE LITTLE STRANGER."

"Welcome, Little Stranger!" is the text that has been suggested at the Camden Theatre this week by the attitude of laughter-lovers towards Mr. Michael Morton's three-act farce, produced at the Criterion early in the year. The precocity and audacity of Tom Pennyman, who impersonates the precious infant, and scares all and sundry by his cigarette smoking and other practices of youth in the adult stage, have evoked shouts of merriment at the fine house facing the Cobden statue. Master Edward Garratt plays the part of Tom Pennyman and the baby with a comic audacity that evokes shouts of laughter, especially in the last act. Mr. Charles Goold has in the part of Eames, the butler, a character that enables him to score most unmistakably; there is a delightful air of comic terror about the nurse of Miss Louie Tinsley, one of the few really funny women we have on the stage; and the Mrs. Dick Allenby of Miss Mary Allestree is an impersonation of much charm and distinction. Mr. Charles Steuart has a light and agreeable style, which is of much advantage to him in his rendering of Captain Dick Allenby; Mr. Hubert Druce's portrait of Sir George Peacock is duly splenetic; Mr. Charles Hanbury is most effective in the part of the Hon. Alec Howard; Miss Daisy Atherton is a decidedly interesting Effie Peacock; the Paul Vronsky of Mr. George E. Bellamy is characteristically mysterious; and there is much merit in Mr. H. Athol Ford's General Allenby, Miss Mary Stuart being well placed as the elder Mrs. Allenby. Mr. Cecil S. Lamb is the acting-manager for Mr. Charles Steuart, whose company it is.

The rollicking piece of absurdity was preceded on Monday by a comedy in one act, from the pen of Mr. Barton White, and entitled

"THE SECOND MRS. GRUNDY."

Jerry Grundy .....Mr. Hubert Druce
Phyllis Hewitt .....Miss Daisy Atherton

This is a pleasant enough trifle, though it does not boast much originality. The young couple, separated by stress of circumstances, and reunited after years through an accidental meeting at an out-of-the-way place, are quite old friends in the theatre, and one may easily understand therefore the hearty welcome given to them on Monday by the Camdentonians. Mr. Barton White may, nevertheless, be complimented on his clever treatment of a familiar plot, his dialogue being at times smart and always amusing. Jerry Grundy, an artist, is staying at a two-roomed cottage on the Welsh mountains, in the vicinity of Snowdon, and when we are introduced to him he is foghound, and has to make the best of what promises to be a long evening. Suddenly he hears a cry of distress, and, peering out into the mist, he discovers a maiden in distress. It is none other than Phyllis Hewitt, his sweetheart of four years ago, who has sprained her ankle. He makes her as comfortable as the scanty furniture will allow. Realising that he is alone, Phyllis is in a state of agitation lest the proprieties should be outraged by her stay all night in the isolated hut. Jerry, in order to keep her by his side, tells a fib, and asserts the existence of a Mrs. Grundy, who is sleeping soundly in the next room. Eventually, however, he has to own up, and, with the arrival of a search party, he secures a promise from Phyllis that "the love of years ago is worth the taking," and she will become "the Second Mrs. Grundy." Mr. Hubert Druce played with a light touch the part of Jerry, and the little touch of seriousness that he occasionally put into his lines was quite in the right vein. Miss Daisy Atherton charmingly realised the rôle of Phyllis Hewitt, a breezy English girl, possessing the breeziness and independence characteristic of the race. The curtain-raiser was quite successful, and if the author will only print it, there should be a demand for it from amateur societies. It is far above the inane stuff that is so often made to do duty for "playing the people in."

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Musical Play,
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

The Belle of New York is an old favourite at Woolwich, and, to judge from Monday night's ovation, her popularity is far from being on the wane. Mr. George Musgrove has certainly got together a talented company, which is "presented" by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, and the play goes with a rush from start to finish. Miss Empsie Bowman makes a delightfully demure Violet Grey, acting nicely, and singing her songs with great expression. Miss Florence Hersee makes a great hit as the Pell-street Girl, throwing herself heart and soul into her work, and dancing and singing with a spirit and abandon really marvellous. As Fifi Fricot, Miss Lily Maxwell is supplied with a part admirably suited to her style, and certainly makes the most of her opportunities. Miss Winnie Brown has a striking appearance as Cora Angelique, and speaks her lines with distinction. Mr. Paddy Dupres is responsible for a richly humorous rendering of Ichabod Bronson, and though on Monday he was sadly hampered by a bad cold, he soon made himself a firm favourite. Mr. Max Copeland's polite lunatic is droll in the extreme, his elaborate broken English being as amusing as his weird gesticulations. Mr. John Doran is a manly Harry Bronson, and sings in good style, giving full effect to a fine resonant voice. Doc Snifkins is played with a good deal of dry humour by Mr. Alfred Sandor; and Mr. Walter Uridge is amusing as Mugg, the comedian. Finally, Mr. Frank Lawton repeats his never-to-be-forgotten whistling scene, and secures the most determined encores for every item in his programme, his fine performance with the "bones" in particular bringing down the house. The chorus is beautifully dressed and well drilled, and is as collectively tuneful as its members are individually handsome.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Play, founded by George Warren on Edgar Wallace's novel, entitled
"THE FOUR JUST MEN."

A thrilling melodrama has been evolved from this well-known novel with very little deviation from the original story, although the entire absence of any love interest, or, indeed, of even a single female character, has necessitated the introduction of two members of the fair sex. As is already known, the plot deals with the removal (as the Anarchists mildly put it) of Sir Philip Ramon, Bart., the British Foreign Secretary, in order to prevent the passing of a Bill for the extradition of foreign political offenders from England. The mysterious and self-constituted tribunal of the Four Just Men has already threatened Sir Philip with death if he will not withdraw his measure, but the baronet is obstinate, and although protected in every conceivable way by police, &c., his death is compassed by the conspirators sending a current of many thousand volts through his telephone at the time he is using it. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury is the chief of the four, George Manfred, and gives an impressive rendering of the part. He has a share in an extremely realistic duel in the first act, where he kills one of the Servian regicides, General Trelovitch, ably played by Mr. A. J. Hicks. Mr. Gordon Bailey is the taciturn Poiccart, chemist to the band, and he succeeds in making his rôle individual and convincing. As Leon Gonsalez, another of the plotters, Mr. Hubert Willis is a very Fregoli for changes of disguises, and the last of the four, Miguel Thery, is forcibly portrayed by Mr. E. H. Dobell. Mr. H. Elliott Ball makes the Foreign Secretary as sympathetic as possible; and Mr. Leonard Williams is an ideal lover as the revolutionary Manuel Garcia. Mr. Legai Robinson cleverly doubles the parts of Mr. Greenham, M.P., and Billy Marks, a pickpocket, the latter impersonation being especially good. Supt. Falmouth, the police officer who has charge of the safety of Sir Philip Ramon, is naturally acted by Mr. Charles Terric; and a good study of a senile legislator is given by Mr. Louis Scott as Sir Charles Barrington, M.P. Mr. Edward Russell as Mr. Blount, the editor of the Megaphone, an up-to-date daily paper, is well suited; the smart humour of the American widow, Mrs. Travers, is safe in the hands of Miss Alys Rees; and Miss Dorothea Desmond is agreeably girlish and impulsive as Juanita Ramon, the ward of Sir Philip, and in love with Manuel Garcia. The scenery is good, and the ingenious play receives the appreciation it well merits.

THE CORONET

On Monday, Nov. 5, the version of "The Vicar of Wakefield," by W. G. Wills, entitled
"OLIVIA."

Miss Winifred Emery and her strong London company are this week appearing in the pathetic play Olivia, which is very prettily mounted and cleverly interpreted. The scene of the Vicar's garden is full of charm and rustic simplicity, and presents an exceedingly pleasing picture of country home life among the roses and honeysuckle. Miss Winifred Emery acts with great emotional ability, and her deep, thrilling voice is exactly suited to the portrayal of extreme mental anguish. In the scene in the room at an inn, where the profligate Squire coolly informs Olivia of their mock marriage, she rises to the greatest height of dramatic expression, "And bitter shame has spoilt the sweet world's taste, That it yields naught but shame and bitterness." We see her heart-broken, hopeless despair as through the very mirror of nature. Mr. Brandon Thomas gives a fine, sterling embodiment of the dear old Vicar of Wakefield, and his assumption of ungovernable passion striving for mental mastery with his natural mood of meek and pious resignation, "when the pasture fence is broken and his favourite lamb stolen," is a most effective and realistic bit of character acting. Mr. Eillie Norwood is capital as Sir William Thornhill, masquerading as one Burchell, and acts with authority and distinction, delivering his scathing denunciation of the dissolute young Squire in most impressive style. As the dastardly seducer, young Squire Thornhill, Mr. Franklin Dyall acts with breezy bonhomie and youthful exuberance of spirits, and does very well in the part. Miss Keith Lytton is excellent as the good-hearted but self-seeking and ambitious Mrs. Primrose. Mr. Harry Ashford as fiery Farmer Flamborough, Mr. H. Cannon George as the bookworm Moses, Miss Morel as Phœbe, and Miss Harriet French as a gipsy woman are all well in the picture. Miss Isabel Roland is a pretty Polly Flamborough, Miss May Chevalier is a winsome Sophia, and little Maudie Andrews as Dick and Master Bobbie Andrews as Billy are delightfully natural youngsters; nor must we forget to mention Mr. M. A. Wetherell as the picturesque scoundrel Leigh. Mr. Harry Ashford stage-manages, and Mr. F. J. Richardson is the business manager of the company for Miss Winifred Emery.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Drama in Four Acts, by Frank Bateman, entitled
"THE SAILORS OF THE KING."

It has long been known that anything appertaining to life in the Navy was sure of the warm interest of the British public, and it therefore was not surprising to find a large crowd assembled at the Shakespeare on Monday night to witness the performance of the thrilling drama The Sailors of the King. A warm welcome was extended to the members of Mr. Charles Harrington's specially selected company, who must have been extremely gratified by the enthusiasm that greeted them at the close of the performance. The plot of the play is rather unique, inasmuch as the villain is a naval chaplain, but the piece abounds with stirring situations and thrilling incidents that hold the audience throughout. The scenery, too, is all that can be desired, and the final scene of the "Launch of the Ship" is very novel and realistic. Mr. Charles Harrington as Admiral Drake gives an admirable study of a retired naval officer, and acquits himself with great success. Mr. Frank Stephens is well suited to the rôle of the hero, Lieut. Dick Drake, and his breezy acting has made a deep impression. Orrel Drake is ably impersonated by Mr. F. R. Stacy, who submits a refined performance of the villainous chaplain; and Mr. A. D. Anderson is responsible for a satisfactory representation of Chief Engineer Dent. Mr. Kenneth Black, junr., causes much merriment by his clever acting in the part of Barnet Fair, and is ably assisted in this direction by Mr. Fred Owen as Harris Wilkinstein. In the exacting rôle of the adventuress, Rebecca Crosby, Miss Sylvia Stella plays very powerfully, and her acting contributes greatly to the success of the play. Miss Madge North, as the heroine, Felicia Phrynne, plays with charm and intelligence; Miss Lily Prescott wins the sympathy of the audience by her representation of Daisy Dent; and Miss Hero Hathaway cleverly assumes the part of the young Quakeress, Penelope Penn. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. C. Harrington, and Mr. B. De Hague Body is the courteous acting-manager for Messrs. Bennett and Bennett.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER."

The visit of Mr. Frank Curzon's London company has drawn full houses to the Fulham Theatre this week. This is the actual company from Wyndham's Theatre, with Mr. Hayden Coffin and Miss Isabel Jay in the cast, and there is the additional advantage that the orchestra is under the bâton of the composer, Mr. Howard Talbot. Miss Jay is acting with all her wonted charm, and sings very finely, having to repeat more than one of her songs. Mr. Hayden Coffin has taken a position quite at the top in his particular line, and he is well suited in the part of Charles Chetwynd. He made an ideal operatic lover; his costume in the second act suited him to perfection, and he made love in the most tender and persuasive manner, while his singing was delightful, and worthy of his great reputation. In particular, the love duet with Miss Jay was quite a triumph of artistic singing and acting. As General Willoughby, Mr. J. F. McArdle scored a success. He provided a never-ending flow of amusement with his speeches and his business, while one of his songs, that about Sir Walter Raleigh, pleased the house so much that he had to give, not one encore, but several. Another successful maker of fun was Mr. George Barrett, who has a quaint manner of his own that was admirably suited to the character, that of the typical English waiter of the old school. Mr. Fred Allandale overflowed with Gallic vivacity as M. Duval; and Mr. G. Davy Burnaby contributed a smart little character-sketch as the inane Gushington. Miss Violet Englefield put in some clever work as Millie Mostyn; and Miss Violet Crossley, as Lady Willoughby, Miss Helene Rose as Ninette, and Miss Kathleen Courtney as Susie, all filled their parts worthily. Mr. Lionel Victor, in an "Edmund Payne" part, as the office boy, also showed a good sense of humour; and Mr. Ernest Laceby was a delightfully Teutonic commissionaire. The play is most handsomely dressed and mounted, and the whole production is of the highest class.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Play, by Maud Hildyard and Russell Vaun, entitled
"THE GREAT AWAKENING."

Miss Maud Hildyard is playing her farewell visit to Dalstonians this week previous to her Australian tour, and is appearing with considerable success in the play The Great Awakening, of which she is part author. Miss Hildyard plays the part of Lola Selby, alias Lady Merton. It is a character the representation of which affords considerable scope to an actress of experience and resource, and it is only fair to Miss Hildyard to say that she does not give the most critical among the audience even half a chance of accusing her of missing any point that will tell. As Lola Selby is a lady whose career, in any case, it is most interesting to watch, it can be taken for granted that Miss Hildyard renders the part even more than ordinarily engrossing. Mr. Martin Sands as James Selby, an escaped convict, who is also known by the alias of Pierce, aids materially in sustaining the interest of the story; while others who assist the same desirable end include Mr. Bernard Copping, who plays Sir Henry Merton, of Merton Abbey, and as Jack Merton, the baronet's son; Mr. Charles Linney as Guy Rogan, an adventurer; and Mr. Howell Travis as Richard Wilson, Lola's father. There must be added characters who supply touches of everyday life and reality to the piece; and among this section remain to be noted Capt. Harry Lambert, well played by Mr. Herbert Evelyn; Molly Morton, who has a vivacious representative in Miss Doris Digby; and Selina Worts, Molly's servant, which engaging domestic has a most capable exponent in Miss Isa Bellington. The cast also includes Mr. Willie Scott, Mr. Tracy Barrow, Mr. Godfrey Sheldon, Mr. W. Newell, Mr. W. Jeans, and Mr. E. Gordon. Mr. Martin Sands fulfils the duties of stage manager.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Operetta, in Four Acts, entitled
"BLIMELE."

The operetta, Blimele, as performed by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company on Monday evening at the Pavilion, brought together a large number of patrons, who demonstratively received with enthusiasm the musical fare provided, and although there is nothing particularly brilliant either in the dialogue or composition, yet the piece is made most acceptable by the abilities of the Yiddish artists, who spare no effort to please their very large following. As regards scenery and dressing, the management deserve all credit for the liberal manner in which the operetta was staged, while the popular acting-manager, Mr. Fred Brown, displays his usual unremitting attention and courtesy to all. Mr. J. Goldsmith was well suited, and must be accorded great praise for his studied and careful rendering of Reb Lipe; and Mr. N. Hamburger elaborated a very satisfactory and consistent impersonation of King August; while Mr. J. Fineberg gave excellent assistance to the play by his finished assumption of Berele. As Daniel, Mr. M. Gusofsky was successful, eliciting hearty and frequent applause, both by his histrionic efforts and his vocalisation. Mr. Isaacowitch as Count Yablonowitch acted exceedingly well, his commanding appearance specially suiting him for the part. Mr. J. Scherman was in capital form, and gave a smart and clever performance of Zeligel; while Mr. S. Schilling caused considerable amusement with his portraiture of Papa Maxim. Mme. Rose Waxman as Blimele was a great success. Her conception was a thoroughly true one, and her acting graceful and natural. Mme. J. Kayzer as Miriam powerfully illustrated the varied feelings the part demands, and deserved the applause she received. Miss Bryh was an admirable Zirele, and shared the honours of the evening; while a page was ably sustained by Mme. Goldstein. The chorus worked well, although the male members should give a little more attention to "make up" and "business," and the excellent orchestra is carefully directed by Professor F. Staub. During the week, The Sailor in Danger, The Jewish Hamlet, Man and Devil, The Rich Beggar, and The Witch have been played.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Domestic Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

The experiment of having two performances a night has apparently not proved sufficiently encouraging to warrant its continuance after a three weeks' trial, and on Monday the management reverted to the old system. Mr. Arthur Shirley's drama, The Midnight Mail, which was originally produced at the Lyric, Hammersmith, contains all the necessary ingredients to render it pleasing theatrical fare to an audience that would not in the least appreciate the more subtle forms of the dramatist's art. An interesting story, presented with all the skill of a clever and experienced playwright, with a big sensation scene to spice the whole, and a strong flavouring of homely sentiment—these are the salient features of Mr. Shirley's drama, which, performed by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company, has met with a decidedly favourable reception at the Islington theatre. Mr. Alfred Goddard is well placed as Harry Steyne, the engine driver, who, after losing his situation and attempting highway robbery, turns over a new leaf, and makes amends for the past by preventing a terrible railway accident. Mr. Goddard is a natural and manly representative of the character, and loses no opportunity of scoring. Mr. Fred G. Evison, in the part of the drunken stoker, Billy Brewer, brightens the play by his truly humorous portrayal. At the same time, he cleverly and impressively portrays the man's terror-stricken attitude after accomplishing his plan for wrecking a train, having been tempted to do the treacherous deed by the gift of money from the adventurer, known as Hassan Padisha, a part played with sincerity and earnestness by Mr. Arthur Gilroy. Mr. Robert Grey gives an excellent embodiment of Leonard Royle, the African explorer; Mr. H. Dobell Lyle supplies a very clever character-sketch of the old signalman, Jasper Thornleigh; and Mr. R. S. Morley is a genial representative of the kind-hearted police officer, Sergeant O'Flynn. Miss Ada Oakley as Mary Steyne, the engine driver's wife, excites the sympathy of the audience by her touching expression of the mother's love for her child, and her joy when it is restored to her arms. Miss Phyllis Dailley is a graceful and pleasing exponent of the rôle of Lady Phyllis Eustace; Miss Dolly Gilroy is appropriately pert as the schoolgirl, Patty; and Miss Mildred Carr is successful in the part of Nancy Brewer. Mr. Charles McCann renders able assistance as Donald Craigg; Miss Grace Chesterfield is good as Mrs. Mildmay, matron of the Waifs' Home; and the numerous other minor rôles are carefully sustained. The scene in which Harry Steyne, by waving a red light, stops the oncoming passenger train, is remarkably realistic, and is loudly applauded; and the tableaux representing the Waifs' Home, where the children sing a Christmas hymn, is also worthy of special mention.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Musical Pantomimical Comedy, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

The attraction at this popular South London house this week is the evergreen Swiss Express, of which it may be truly said, judging by its drawing power, that "age cannot wither or custom stale its infinite variety." The chief burden of the piece falls upon Messrs. Charles and Frederick Renard, who as the two eccentric servants, James and John, are the life and soul of the production, never letting the fun flag for an instant while they are on the stage. Mr. Johnny McElroy plays with infinite humour as the quack, Dr. Gull. Mr. George Martin is a dashing Ralph Rollingstone, and Mr. Alec Wylie is a very amusing specimen of the "gilded youth" as the dude, Dudley Green. Mr. Harewood Cooper admirably doubles the rôles of Jack Gadabout and Admiral Boombshelli, Miss Ida Ernest is vivacious and pleasing as the bride, Virginia, and sings "My Bungalow in Borneo" with much success. Miss Dora Moorhouse is excellent as Mrs. Septimus Squeeze, while the four graceful little ladies who comprise the Edene Quartette contribute greatly to the success of the evening by their clever dancing. The "trick" scenery in the first two acts is very effective.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Musical Play, in Two Acts, by James T. Tanner, entitled,
"THE CINGALEE."

Mr. George Dance's principal company is here this week in a charming production of The Cingalee, a class of play that always commands good houses in the riverside town. The company is a thoroughly capable one, and the mounting of the play is quite up to the high standard that usually characterises Mr. Dance's efforts. Miss Georgina Middleton, who is already favourably known to Kingston playgoers, takes the part of Nanoya, and gives an interpretation of it that considerably enhances her reputation. A pleasant portrait of Peggy Sabine is given by Miss Gladys Guy; Miss Marjory Clarke makes an excellent Lady Patricia Vane; and Miss Essie Perrin as Angy shows herself an adept in the terpsichorean art. Mr. Jack Chrichton as the Baboo lawyer Chambhuddy Ram succeeds in keeping the house in a continual state of merriment; Mr. Cyril Dane acquits himself well as the Hon. Harry Verreker; Mr. Helier Le Maistre is good as the nabob Boobhamba; and successful impersonations are also given by Mr. Grafton Williams as Sir Peter Loftus, and by Mr. Ethelbert Edwards as Bobby Warren. An excellent chorus and an equally efficient orchestra are admirably conducted by Mr. Peter Flitcroft.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Lilian Clare Cassidy, entitled
"IN HOLY (?) RUSSIA."

Whenever the theme of Russian society forms the peg on which their drama is hung the Marylebone playgoers naturally look out for thrills, and in this respect In Holy (?) Russia in no way disappointed them. As Micky Nolan Mr. J. Rice Cassidy is the life and soul of the piece, his whole performance being punctuated with geniality and good humour; Mr. Frank Copeland is manly and dignified as Sir Harry Beresford; Mr. Carl Rovinelli is intensely earnest as the misguided Laurice Steragoff; Mr. Frederic Loyd plays carefully as Count Gregory Petrolski; Mr. Terence Nerney shows a properly vindictive spirit as Michael Natolski; whilst Mr. Arthur Stratton as Colonel Richard Forrest ("Dick of the Guards you know. What! What!") is responsible for an admirably acted conception of a part that might have been easily overdrawn. Miss Mavis Lee Anderson acts Catska Lavotski with plenty of fire and energy; Miss Alice Marsden does exceedingly well as Mme. Natolski, Miss Edie Norman is well placed as Natalie Natolski, and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy's embodiment of Reence Rubinoff is full of nervous energy and excitement, such as one would expect to find in a character so sorely tried as this unfortunate Siberian refugee. The play is carefully mounted and staged, and the company all round is an excellent one, Mr. Frank Copeland is the acting, and Mr. Carl Rovinelli the stage-manager for Mr. J. Rice Cassidy.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Play, in Four Acts, by Alfred Sutro, entitled
"THE FASCINATING MR. VANDERVELDT."

For the second week in succession a play by Mr. Alfred Sutro is being presented at the Alexandra by Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. V. Leveaux's company, The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt commencing a week's visit here on Monday. The company has evidently been selected with care and discretion, and a smooth and even performance of this clever and amusing play results. An admirable representative of the title-rôle is found in Mr. Reginald Dance, who gives a finished and highly artistic rendering of the part. The Lady Clarice Howland of Miss Gladys Mason is a very attractive impersonation, and this lady is to be congratulated on the skill with which she handles this by no means easy character. The Sir Bartholomew Cardick of Mr. George R. Seager and the Mr. Godlestone of Mr. Russell Barry are both in their way admirable studies of character; and Colonel Rayner is played by Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton in a quiet and incisive manner that is thoroughly effective. Miss Mary Weigall is a fairly dignified and imposing Marchioness of Hendingby; and Miss May Brooke is sufficiently tart and severe as Lady Clementina Desborough. Aggie Coles is played with delightful brightness and vivacity by Miss Eve Titheradge; and the little that Mr. Edward Coutts has to do as Lord Woolham is done well. Other parts are successfully filled by Messrs. George Percy, F. Vernon Travers, and Gerald Henson, and Misses Agnes Gunn, Dorothy Haigh, Helen Tytler, and Muriel Mason. Mr. Austin Strong's strong and effective little drama The Drums of Oude precedes the longer play.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Play, in Five Acts, by Haddon Chambers and B. C. Stephenson, entitled
"THE FATAL CARD."

The patrons of the Elephant and Castle have indeed a great attraction this week in the popular Adelphi play The Fatal Card. The members of the stock company continue to work together with a will, and they are individually accorded a flattering reception here, and right well do they deserve it. Mr. Albert Ward as Gerald Austin, Mr. W. H. Hatchman as George Forrester, Mr. Horace Pollock as James Dixon, Mr. Alfred Holles as A. K. Austin, and Mr. Teddy Coleman as Harry Burgess all do excellent work; whilst amongst the ladies Miss Kathleen Russell as Margaret Marrable, Miss East Robertson as Mercedes, and Miss Agnes Paulton as Cecile Austin. Mrs. Calhaem as Miss Penelope Austin gives a performance of remarkable merit, replete with all the excellent qualities of this experienced actress. The scenery is all that could be desired, and some pretty incidental music also contributes to a really enjoyable evening.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Romantic Servian Drama, by Sydney Spencer and Clarence Burnette, entitled
"A DESTROYER OF MEN."

We have at the Terriss this week A Destroyer of Men. Just the sort of exciting drama intermingled with laughter and tears, which is dear to the hearts of the patrons of that popular resort. The talented stock company, to whom no dramatic production seems to come amiss, gives an excellent interpretation. Mr. Ashley Page as the handsome, white-haired convict, Karl Mischla, who is so cruelly buffeted by fortune, has a part which he renders ably, and he is often called before the curtain. Miss Marion Denvil plays with much sweetness and grace as Vida Ravol, and shares with Mr. Page the dramatic honours of the evening. Mr. Johnny Chippendale has a good fat part as the nervous Coco Totchoski, and the numerous scrapes into which he gets compel uproarious laughter. Miss Mattie Everett as the saucy Nina Pattakake ably aids Mr. Chippendale in the fun-making. Mr. Tom Tayler acts with his usual ability as the stern Chief of Police, and Mr. C. A. Chandler is praiseworthy as Michael Mischla, a part quite out of his usual line. Miss Georgie De Lara Cook is very handsome as Olga, and ably illustrates the characteristics of the beautiful but wicked "destroyer." Mr. Alfred Harding does all that is possible with the rôle of Paul Starevitch, and Mr. John Sargent makes the most of the grim police spy, Feder. The scenery and effects are beyond reproach.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Nov. 5,
the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"AN UNWEDDED WIFE."

Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty with their powerful company are at this theatre during the present week with the very interesting play above-named. Miss Van Praagh enacts the title-rôle in a very able manner, and clearly shows she is possessed of great dramatic ability. In the final scene of Act 2 she plays upon the feelings of her audience until they are wrought to a pitch of great emotion. Mr. J. Edward Whitty as Frank Armstrong earns considerable applause for his rendering of the part, and quickly becomes the favourite of the audience. As the sorely tried John Hawthorne Mr. Logan Darra wins golden opinions, his acting being very commendable; and as Philip Blackstone Mr. St. Clair Forbes is a cool and calculating villain. He is ably seconded by Mr. Wilton Bedford as Christopher Lennox, who shows himself to be a merry sort of rogue. Mr. Henry Nisbet does good service as David Drummond, and as Inspector Grabham Mr. Fred Allen could not be bettered. Mr. Richard Purden as Napoleon Bloomer, Miss Jessie Gillette as Caraway Crumpet, and Mr. Henry Townley as Pimple all provide plenty of amusement in the lighter parts of the play. Miss Violet Wilson as Elsie Langham both looks and acts well, and Little Ella in her performance of Reggie shows herself to be a marvellously clever child. The play is well mounted, and the incidental music ably rendered under the direction of Mr. Stephen Blythe.

Mme. Medori, one of the most famous opera singers of the period extending from 1850 to 1880, lost her life on Saturday in a serious fire, which broke out in her lodgings in Brussels. Mme. Medori was a personal friend of Wagner, Rossini, and Gounod, and had a brilliant career, a street in Brussels being named after her.

NEW ENGLISH AND FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we are publishing from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purpose. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playwrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"DRIVEN FROM THE ALTAR."

Romantic Play, in Five Acts, by Frank L. Bixby. (All rights reserved.)

Count Ludwig von Stein married beneath him, and his son Bruno, ignorant of his parentage, is being educated for the priesthood, under the name of Benedict Metz, at the Abbey of Clementia, in Germany, the Prior of which is the Prelate Oswald, Count Ludwig's brother. Later in life, Bruno's father has married Anna, his present wife. Lieutenant Carl von Stein is the son of this second marriage and the heir intended by his parents to supplant Bruno and succeed to the whole of the Stein estates. Arnold Sedlmayer is a rich peasant and successful farmer, whose land, called Dobra Farm, adjoins the Stein and Clementia estates. He has a sister Meta, who loves Bruno, and is loved by him in return, although Carl has seen her, and pays her attentions which are distasteful to her. The Countess Anna is proud of her lineage and social position, treating all humbler folk with contempt. Bruno is grateful to his supposed patron, Count Ludwig, but would prefer military life to the tonsure. However, his father, unable to get rid of him in any other way, in order to further his beloved second son Carl's succession, keeps him in the seclusion of the Seminary. Græco is the steward of the Clementia Abbey estates; but Bruno, during the course of his studies, has had access to the Abbey archives and accounts, and has discovered the gravest defalcations on the part of Græco, who knows of these discoveries by Bruno, and lives in constant dread of exposure. The Countess Anna overhears Carl's advances to Meta, and offends her deeply by accusing her of intrigue. Bruno, too, has witnessed them, and is prepared to take up arms, if necessary, in defence of Meta's honour, although he does not know that Carl is his brother. Later, there is a consultation at the Abbey between the Prior Oswald and his brother, Count Ludwig, about Bruno, and it is decided to send him to read with the priest, Father Joseph, in the mountain village of Norweiss, as his character is developing into a masterful and independent one. Bruno warns Græco again about his dishonesty, and the latter determines to further Benedict Metz's removal to the mountain village. Carl pesters Meta again, and is surprised by Bruno, and they quarrel. Count Ludwig arrives and separates them, and Bruno tells his "patron" again how abhorrent the studious life has become to him. Arrived at the village of Norweiss, Bruno finds his restlessness increasing. Græco visits the village, and endeavours to purchase from Bruno silence about his false stewardship by promising to influence the Prelate to change Bruno's lonely surroundings for more congenial scenes; but Bruno refuses resolutely. Carl arrives, wearing a cloak very much like one usually worn by Bruno. Count Ludwig tries to affect a reconciliation between Bruno and Carl; but the former refuses, as peace overtures do not come voluntarily from Carl, who regards this refusal as an insult to his father. The Sedlmayer party arrive on an excursion. Carl tells Meta that her brother Arnold has written to him to cease his attentions to her. He attempts to embrace her, but Bruno comes between them again, and turns Carl out of the village church precincts, where the scene occurs. Soon afterwards, Carl, wearing his cloak, is about to cross the rustic bridge over the mountain torrent. Græco, imagining that he is saving himself from exposure by Bruno, and being misled by the similarity of the cloaks, throws Carl over the bridge into the water below. Bruno emerges from the church, and is a horrified witness of the deed. In the Prelate's room at Clementia the details of Carl's obsequies are discussed and arranged. Arnold Sedlmayer's letter to Carl has been found on the body, and leads to his arrest on suspicion. The Countess Anna visits the Prelate, and is loud in her demands for vengeance. Bruno arrives, and tells the Prelate who really committed the murder, adding that he witnessed the deed. As the honour and existence of the Abbey may be at stake, the Prelate enjoins silence. Later, Meta meets Bruno, and entreats him to save her brother. She, too, knows who committed the murder, and tells Bruno that she knows. This decides Bruno to further the attainment of justice, irrespective of all other interests. Arnold is visited in prison by Bruno, who brings news of his immediate release. Arnold tells Bruno the secret of his birth, and informs him that he is really Count Ludwig's legitimate son and heir. Carl's obsequies are being celebrated in the cathedral at Clementia; Bruno interrupts the procession at the doors, and denounces Græco as the murderer. The doors open, revealing the Prelate in his robes. Græco runs towards him, but is struck dead by a flash of lightning, which momentarily illuminates the large hanging cross over the chancel steps, and Ludwig is rendered totally blind by the flash. Later, in the conservatory of a Heilbrunn hotel, reconciliations are effected, and Bruno and Meta obtain the blind Count Ludwig's consent to their union.

MISS ADELAIDE RIND AND MISS KATHLEEN RIND'S RECITAL.

At Bechstein Hall on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 1, Miss Adelaide and Miss Kathleen Rind gave a vocal and dramatic recital. They were assisted by Mr. Sigmund Beel and Signor Ernesto Baraldi, and the recital proved a great success, the hall being crowded. Miss Kathleen Rind's first recitations were "My Ships," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "Little Boy Blue," and "The Wind," by Eugene Field. Miss Rind is an accomplished reciter, as she has a good voice and capital enunciation, which greatly added to her attractive delivery of Shakespeare's scene from A Winter's Tale, in which the characters of Leontes, Perdita, Paulina, and Hermione appeared. Other recitations given by Miss Rind were "A Year's Spinning" (E. B. Browning) and "The Minuet," Austin Dobson's "Before Sedan" and "Ladies of St. James," her last example being the epilogue from Shakespeare's As You Like It. Miss Kathleen Rind has a leaning to the more serious and pathetic side of her art. Miss Adelaide Rind, who has a pleasing and well-trained mezzo-soprano voice, was very successful in three quaint "Bergerettes du XVIII. Siecle," by J. Weckerlin, and Georges Hüe's "J'ai pleuré en rêve." Other excellent work done by Miss Rind was a brilliant and much-applauded rendering of Rossini's "Una Voce," from Il Barbiere, and Massenet's impressive "Les Larmes," from Werther. Miss Rind also gave Max Meyer's "Nera's Song," and Elgar's "Sabbath Morning at Sea" and "Where Corals Lie." The violinist, Mr. Sigmund Beel, greatly pleased his hearers in Handel's genial Sonata in A, Wilhelmj's "A Swedish Melody," and "Scene de la Csárda," by Hubay. He also played the violin obbligato to "Le Nill," sung by Miss Rind. Signor Ernesto Baraldi presided at the piano. The talented sisters were well received by the audience and had many hearty recalls.

THE WILLIAM MORGAN JUBILEE CELEBRATION.

In August last Mr. William Morgan, managing-director of the Scarborough Aquarium, entered upon his fiftieth year of service as a public caterer, and the celebration by a banquet and testimonial at Scarborough, is fixed to take place on Friday, Nov. 30.

In his long and distinguished career as a provider of entertainment Mr. Morgan has done much to advance the cause of healthy popular amusement. He has been a noted pioneer in the development of dramatic and musical enterprise, and has achieved a success that it has been given to few to equal. Mr. Morgan was the first to introduce complete London companies into the provinces, the first to give concerts by the greatest artists at popular prices, and the first to open all-day entertainments for a covering sixpenny admission.

In Bradford, Blackpool, Scarborough, Morecambe, Preston, Bridlington, and elsewhere Mr. Morgan's active, varied, and extensive managerial efforts have been greatly appreciated. In Scarborough he has enjoyed the distinction of filling the position of mayor for three successive years.

Such a long and honourable career as this, it was felt by Mr. Morgan's host of friends and admirers, was worthy of some special recognition, and the hearty co-operation of many well-known gentlemen in promoting a testimonial was obtained.

The following influential committee has been formed consisting of the following gentlemen:—The Right Hon. the Earl of Londesborough, Sir George Sitwell, Bart., and Messrs. Lea Priestley Edwards, J.P., George Lord Beeforth, J.P., Alderman E. H. Gawne, J.P., Councillor Ascough, George Padley, Francis Goodricke, C. B. Bradley, Alderman J. Grime, J. H. Huddlestone, Thomas Sergenson, Alderman Fish, G. H. Harrop, Ralph Rushton, John C. Smith, Alderman D. Wade, J.P., John Hart, T. C. Hope, Charles Lund, Frank Johnson, W. H. Clough, Edward Terry, James Burnley, E. Schutt, and Dr. Handcock; hon. treasurer, Mr. Wm. Sayner, York City and County Bank, Scarborough; hon. secretary, Alderman V. Fowler, J.P., Huntriss Hall, Scarborough; hon. treasurer for London, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, London, W.C.

Sir,—"Lest they forget," will you kindly permit me, through the medium of your columns, to call the attention of the many friends of Mr. William Morgan to the forthcoming celebration at Scarborough, when, as a recognition of fifty years of management, he will be entertained at a banquet, over which the Earl of Londesborough will preside, and be presented with a testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the dramatic and musical professions and other friends?

Mr. Morgan, as manager of the early Bradford theatres and proprietor of the Aquarium at Scarborough, of which city he has twice served the office of Mayor, is so well esteemed that I feel sure his friends only need this gentle reminder to make them anxious to participate in this interesting celebration. Mr. Valentine Fowler, of Scarborough, as hon. secretary, will be pleased to give all further particulars.—Yours faithfully, EDWARD TERRY.

MR. WILLIAM MORGAN.
Thrice Mayor of Scarborough.

"HELD APART" is being played this week at Jersey. Mr. A. Clifton Aldersen ably takes the rôle of James Douglas, and is well supported by Miss Ruby Loncraine as Sybil Grey. Mr. Leonard Laurence figures to advantage as John Douglas, Mr. A. W. Norman is good as Captain Ford, Mr. Ernest G. Batley makes a success as Hugh Trevor, and Mr. Robert B. Drysdale is excellent as Andrew McPherson. Miss Ethyle Murray makes an impressive Countess De Castre. Miss Emily Levette does well as Lady Grant, and Miss Winnifred Lovell ably sustains the part of Lily Granville.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. ARTHUR McCULLOCH.

Mr. Arthur McCulloch, whose unfortunate connexion with the Russian Passport case is still fresh in the public mind, was educated by private tuition for the Army, but the Fates proving unpropitious, he started life as a tutor. The scholastic profession, however, proving uncongenial, he determined to adopt that of the stage. The first part he attempted was Captain Couteau in H. J. Byron's comedy, War to the Knife, at the old King's Cross Theatre. After a useful experience of some time as an amateur at this theatre, he was engaged to play Bassanio in The Merchant of Venice at St. George's Hall to the Shylock of the late Major Rudkin, at that time associated with the Army and Navy Magazine. The performance was under the auspices of the Somerville Club, headed by Lady Sebright. This may be said to have been his first professional engagement. About the same time he became associated with a Miss Aurora Leighson (a lady of Irish extraction) in the management of the Garrick Theatre, Whitechapel. Their united efforts, however, were scarcely successful in raising the falling fortunes of that playhouse.

MR. ARTHUR McCULLOCH.

Mr. McCulloch was engaged to play Peter Sharpley in the original provincial production of Mankind at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham. Mr. Joseph Eldred was the Daniel Groodge, and Mr. Fred Latham the acting-manager. When at Leeds with Mankind, Mr. McCulloch was engaged by Mr. Alfred Hemming to play Major McTurtle in Mother-in-Law, a part previously played by Mr. Julian Cross. Following this engagement, he sailed for India to join Herr Bandmann in a round of the legitimate. This was contrary to the advice of his friends, and proved unfortunate, as Mr. McCulloch was obliged to break his contract, and in consequence was sued for damages and mulcted in 1000 rupees. On returning to England he was engaged for stock season and pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, from which he was released during the run to rehearse in Fedora at the Haymarket in a company formed by Miss Laura Villiers. Included in the cast were the late Messrs. Arthur Dacre and A. M. Denison, both, as he expresses it, the most charming of men, and who both, alas! committed suicide. Mr. William Greet was the manager. He afterwards played in succession the following parts on tour:—Sir Fulke Pettigrew in The Parvenue, Tom Potter (Mr. Dacre's original part) in The Silver Shield, and Keife O'Keife (Mr. John Drew's part) in Nancy and Co.

Mr. McCulloch then produced The Mikado for the Llandudno Amateur Operatic Society, and at the following Easter The Pirates of Penzance. He was next engaged to play Fordham in the original tour of The Still Alarm; and following this he played Shylock, and produced The Merchant of Venice for the Liverpool Irving Dramatic Society at Hope Hall under the patronage of the Mayor. He then toured with Turned Up, playing General Baltic, Jaracoff in Siberia, &c. In conjunction with Mr. Basil West he toured the late Clement Scott's piece, Sister Mary. Then followed a long association with Mr. Frederick Mouillot, first of all playing in a répertoire including The School for Scandal, Pygmalion and Galatea, The Lady of Lyons, &c. He was then engaged for a long tour of The Dark Continent under the same management, followed by a tour of A Woman of No Importance as stage-manager. His next engagement was to open and manage the Eden Theatre, Brighton. Following this came a long engagement in The Shop Girl, in which he played the Colonel; then the Duke of Gloster in Jane Shore and Buckingham in The Three Musketeers.

After some general management for Mr. Hill-Mitchelson, Mr. McCulloch was engaged for Abernethy Rupeprshaw in the original tour of In the Soup, a part he played some 400 nights. He was engaged by Mr. Leigh Lovel for The Duke of Killicrankie tour, but was obliged to relinquish the engagement owing to his unfortunate connexion with the Passport case, which occupied his time for practically two months. Mr. McCulloch is married, his wife being known professionally as Miss Lelgarde Atheling.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

At the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday evening, Nov. 1, the Royal Choral Society, in the presence of a very large audience, opened their thirty-sixth season with a performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah. There were this season some new names among the principal artists, Mr. Herbert Brown, who sang for the first time, achieving a marked success in the part of the Prophet. Mr. Brown is gifted with an excellent resonant voice, which he uses with great dramatic effect; indeed, his singing of "Is not his word like fire?" so greatly pleased the audience that he received loud and long-continued applause. Another newcomer was Miss Phyllis Letts, whose beautiful contralto made a most favourable impression Miss Lett has been trained at the Royal College of Music, and does great credit to the artistic teaching she has received. The principal soprano music fell to Miss Agnes Nicholls, and was admirably rendered. Miss Edith Kirkwood, who was absent owing to indisposition, was represented by Miss Edith Patching. Miss Maria Yelland, Mr. Vivian Bennetts, and Mr. Graham Smart gave useful assistance; while the tenor solos were capitally sung by Mr. William Green. The splendid chorus of the Society were extremely effective in the familiar choruses, producing a fine body of tone in "Thanks be to God," one of the finest numbers in Elijah. Sir Frederick Bridge conducted with his usual ability, although at times the orchestra somewhat overpowered the vocalists. Mr. H. L. Balfour presided at the organ.

MR. WILL EDWARDS-SPRANGE (part author with Mr. Bowyer of The New Barmaid) will produce his new four-act play, The Scientist, and a three-act comedy, Aunt Agatha, in America, at the beginning of next year.

DEATH OF MR. MARK KINGHORNE.

We regret to record the death on Sunday last of Mr. Mark Alexander Kinghorne, the well-known comedian. On Tuesday, Sept. 18, last, while witnessing a performance of The Shulamite, by Miss Lena Ashwell and company, at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, Mr. Kinghorne was suddenly seized with paralysis. He was conveyed home to his residence in Dagmar-road, Camberwell, and was progressing very favourably until a few days before his death, when he had a second stroke, from which he never recovered.

Mr. Mark Alexander Kinghorne was born in London in 1851, of Scottish parents. He studied music and elocution at the Birkbeck Institute, and made his first appearance on the stage at the Strand Theatre on April 20, 1867, under the management of Mrs. Swanborough, "walking on" in a burlesque by William Brough, entitled Pygmalion; or, The Statue Fair. On the advice of the late Mr. David James, the young actor sought a provincial engagement, and obtained one with the late Mr. James Rodgers, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham. A second "stock" engagement was at Plymouth, under the management of the late Mr. J. R. Newcome. Mr. Kinghorne had the curious experience of playing the Gravedigger in a series of living pictures that formed the background to a performance of Hamlet by the late Mr. J. C. M. Bellew.

After a long spell of hard work in the provinces, Mr. Kinghorne returned to London in the spring of 1873, as a member of the company supporting Miss Virginia Blackwood at the Surrey Theatre. He also sang and played his own compositions. An engagement at the Oxford Music Hall, then under the management of Mr. Syers, followed. In association with the late Mr. George Lash Gordon, Mr. Kinghorne produced a number of pantomimic and political sketches. During 1874 he played Trenitz with Mrs. Liston's Madame Angot company. In the following year he went to America with the Alice Oates opera company. He acted as stage-manager, and was principal comedian on tour, under the direction of Mlle. Cornelie D'Anka. Then he joined Mr. Edward Terry, with whom he was associated six years in the various capacities of stage-manager, musical director, and comedian. During 1884-85 Mr. Kinghorne toured India, Tasmania, Australia, and New Zealand, with Miss Marie de Grey, playing in old comedy, but notably Touchstone, in As You Like It, and Tony Lumpkin, in She Stoops to Conquer. In July, 1886, he appeared at the Haymarket, supporting the late Miss Kate Vaughan, and subsequently toured with the Vaughan-Conway comedy company. When Mrs. Brown-Potter produced Loyal Love at the Gaiety on Aug. 13, 1887, Mr. Kinghorne appeared as the gaoler, Antonio. He was the Hezekiah Cranberry in the ill-fated Bridget O'Brien, Esq., at the Opera Comique, on Oct. 29, and subsequently toured with Mr. John F. Sheridan in Fun on the Bristol. In August, 1889, the New Theatre Royal, Bristol, was opened with a performance of As You Like It, in which Miss Wallis played Rosalind. Mr. Kinghorne was the Touchstone. He played Fitzjohn in The Balloon, on a tour under the direction of Mr. Warren Wright. Then he was engaged to play the principal bass part in M. Jakobowski's opera, Paola, on tour. In The Judge, produced at Terry's on July 24, 1890, Mr. Kinghorne was the judge's valet, Mowle. He played John Canty in Mr. Joseph Hatton's Prince and Pauper, tentatively produced at the Vaudeville on Oct. 12, 1891.

MR. MARK KINGHORNE AS TOUCHSTONE.

In 1892 Mr. Kinghorne sailed for South Africa in charge of the Globe burlesque company, which produced a fresh three-act Gaiety burlesque every week. Mr. Kinghorne fell ill, and had to return to England. He played Catchpole in The County Councillor, reproduced at the Trafalgar-square Theatre on Feb. 4, 1893. In the travesty entitled The Babble Shop, produced on March 30, and played in conjunction with The County Councillor, he was the W. Sykes, Esq. In Mr. Meyrick Milton's play, The Adventures of a Night, produced at the Strand Theatre on July 21, he appeared as Pedro. Mr. Kinghorne rejoined his old manager, Mr. Sheridan, at the Vaudeville in August, succeeding to a part in A Trip to Chinatown. At the Strand Mr. Kinghorne played Terence in A Loving Legacy, produced on March 12, 1895. In The Chili Widow, produced at the Royalty on Sept. 7, he played Macpherson, and at the same theatre was the Michael Kinsman in Harmony, by Henry Arthur Jones, produced Sept. 25, 1895; and acted Monsieur de Paris in the play of that title, also produced at the Royalty, April 16, 1896. He played Reddie, in The Queen's Proctor, produced at the Royalty June 2; and the Duke, in Donna Diana, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Nov. 4. He was Drake in All Alive, Oh! produced at the Strand Theatre on June 16, 1897; and Soaper, in "Miss Francis" of Yale, produced at the Globe on Sept. 7.—He successfully appeared as Snecky Hobart in The Little Minister at the Haymarket in 1898, and was John Barton in Are You a Mason? produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Sept. 12, 1901. He represented Simkins in Merrie England, at the Savoy, April 2, 1902, McTodd in Captain Kettle, at the Adelphi, Oct. 23, 1902, Karl, in The Vikings, at the Imperial, April 15, 1903, and Munkittrick in Billy's Little Love Affair, at the Criterion, Sept. 2, 1903, MacSherry in Madame Sherry, at the Apollo, Dec. 23, 1903, McDougal, in The Money Makers, at the Royalty, May 13, 1904, and Sir Gavin Mackenzie, in The Garden of Lies, at the St. James's, Sept. 3, of the same year. The deceased gentleman's last character on the stage was the Scotch doctor in Mrs. Patrick Campbell's unsuccessful production of The Macleans of Bairness at the Criterion in the summer. Mr. Kinghorne had, in the course of his stage career, played in pantomime at Drury Lane and in many other theatres, and appeared in sketches at the Metropolitan, the Middlesex, and various other music halls.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at Forest Hill Cemetery, the principal mourners being Mrs. Kinghorne (widow), Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kinghorne (brother and sister-in-law), Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Plowman (daughter and son-in-law), Mr. A. F. S. Beard (cousin), Mr. Edwin Barwick, Mr. H. W. Mote, Mr. G. Grey, and Mr. J. W. Lennard. The coffin, which was of polished oak, with heavy brass fittings, bore an inscription giving the deceased's name and his age—55.

"ADRIENNE LECOUVREUR."

Maid to Adrienne	Miss Constance Raymond

That Miss Nethersole is held in high esteem by Bradford theatre-goers, and that considerable interest was aroused in her latest venture, are facts which were clearly demonstrated by the crowded audience which greeted the gifted actress so cordially as Adrienne Lecouvreur in her own version of the famed French play. The alterations Miss Nethersole has attempted with the text are clearly in the way of lucidity, and the somewhat revised situations are in the direction of affording her the finest possible scope for her undoubted histrionic gifts. The staging of the play is irreproachable. The Paris of 1736, with its magnificent salons and the grand dames and the quaint and costly costumes of the period, are reproduced with marvellous fidelity. The play is in five acts. Adrienne, a great and beautiful French actress of the time, is loved by the French General and conqueror of Fontenoy, Maurice de Saxe, who also numbers amongst his conquests the Princess de Bouillon, the wife of Prince de Bouillon, a supporter of the Comédie Française, and a dabbler in science. Adrienne with all her soul loves Maurice as a poor lieutenant in the army, his real identity being later revealed in a most dramatic scene at a reception given by the Prince. The vindictive Princess is dominated by her jealousy of Adrienne, and she vows to ruin the actress and overthrow her lover by means of political intrigue. There are mislaid and intercepted letters which lead to most dramatic results, and Maurice pleads earnestly with Adrienne to save the Princess from a compromising situation in a villa at Grange Batelliere before her husband's arrival, and this is accomplished in the dark without the identity of either of the ladies being revealed. Eventually, however, at a reception where Adrienne recites, they recognise each other, and the actress, selecting Racine's Phèdre, hurls these lines at the Princess: "Those bold women who in the midst of crime can command a shameful calm, and have schooled their countenances to forget the habit of blushing." The climax to the scene is intensely dramatic, affording Miss Nethersole perhaps her greatest opportunity. Maurice is arrested for debt, and Adrienne sells her jewels to secure his release. this magnanimity he attributes to the Princess, only to discover his mistake when too late, for in the meantime the Princess has sent to Adrienne a casket containing flowers which she has treacherously saturated with poison. Adrienne recognises the flowers as a gift from Maurice, and she presses them to her lips; her reason departs, and she dies in the arms of Maurice and in the presence of her faithful friend Michonnet.

These are briefly the principal incidents in Miss Nethersole's version of the history of the ill-starred heroine, and her conception is sublime, full of ardour and dignity, and her all-absorbing passion for her fickle lover is expressed with a tenderness and emotion which visibly arouse the sympathies of her audience, and in the more tragic scenes she is most impressive. The keynote of tragedy was touched in the recital of Racine's lines, and her death scene was powerfully portrayed. There was more of the courtier than the warrior about the Maurice de Saxe as represented by Mr. Frank Mills, yet he was not lacking in ardour in his love scenes with Adrienne. Mr. John Nesbit looked the Prince, and bore himself with dignity of the robust type. Mr. Eric Maturin as the Abbé was courtly in his bearing, and in his clandestine meetings with the Princess he was fervent and not without a sense of humour. Michonnet, the prompter at the Comédie Française, and faithful friend of Adrienne, had in Mr. Julian Royce a clever exponent whose acting was earnest and convincing. In the old stilted style of declamation Mr. William Clark as M. Quinault, and Mr. A. T. Hendon as M. Poisson, gave some amusing examples as actors of the Comédie Française. Mr. Ashley did the little he had to do as the Call Boy well; and Mr. Carter Bligh was suited in the part of servant to the Prince. In the character of the jealous, intriguing Princess, with her hopeless love for Maurice, Miss Rosalind Ivan displayed subtlety and intense force. Nothing could be more effective than the airy grace and courtly bearing of Miss Molly Pearson as the Duchess D'Aumont, Miss Ina Goldsmith as the Marquise de Saucerre, and Miss Mary Relph as the Comtesse de Beauveau, and their Court gossip was a delightful relief; Miss Field as Molle Juvenot and Mrs. Clark as Mlle. Dangoville, actresses of the Comédie Française, were very good; and Miss Nina Wood as maid to Duclos and Miss Constance Raymond as maid to Adrienne filled minor rôles acceptably.

At the initial performance the rapt attention of the deeply interested audience culminated at the fall of the curtain in loud and prolonged applause and calls for principals, and for Miss Nethersole, who in a speech of thanks made a touching reference to the change from 1736, when the French actress she had represented was refused Christian burial, to Oct., 1905, when Sir Henry Irving was laid to rest in Westminster Abbey.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

At the College Concert given on Friday evening, Nov. 2, the programme commenced with Mozart's refined Quartet for Strings, in D Major, of which a smooth and finished performance was given by Lorna Downing, Frank Bridge, Beatrice Jones, and Goldie Baker. In her piano solos of two pieces from "Clavierstücke," Op. 5, by Eugène D'Albert, Miss Cordelia Montgomery greatly distinguished herself, while Armin Laubach's violoncello solos of Davidoff's "Romance sans paroles" and Saint-Saëns' "Allegro Appassionato" gained for the performer two hearty recalls. The vocal items included in the programme were "Gleaner's Slumber Song," by R. H. Walthew, admirably sung by Miss Maud Wright; Stradella's "Queste Lagrime," sung by Miss Enid Gabell; and Liszt's "Mignon's Song," by Miss Elsie Williams. Schumann's "Trio for Piano and Strings," in F Major, skilfully executed by Mr. James Friskin, Miss May Harrison, and Miss Marion Harrison, concluded the concert. The accompanists were Miss Alice Cotton and Mr. James Friskin.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham, whose absence from the London stage may truly be said to have caused the hearts of his admirers to grow fonder, will reappear with Miss Mary Moore at the New Theatre on Thursday, the 22nd, at a special matinée of David Garrick. It is said that in all likelihood this will be Sir Charles and Miss Moore's only appearance in London this year, but it may be hoped that the warmth of their reception will induce these eminent artists to extend the period of their stay indefinitely. Sir Charles is at present in Paris, and will not, therefore, to his great regret, be able to take part in the Emily Soldene matinée at the Palace on Tuesday.

Fortunately for our Provident Funds the demand for autographs of theatrical celebrities is still increasing. Mr. Huntley Wright has sent Mr. Coltson five pounds, which he has collected by means of his autograph, and devoted to the Actors' Benevolent Fund. Mr. Lewis Waller has also forwarded a further sum of £4 16s; while Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree daily sends batches of postal orders which he receives in exchange for his autograph.

The Irving Memorial Committee nominated by the Actors' Association has decided to submit their proposals to a meeting of the entire dramatic profession early in December, when it is hoped that many actors and actresses now engaged in the provinces will be able to attend. As will be seen from a letter which we print on another page, leading members of the profession have joined in hearty support of the movement.

Mr. Lewis Waller has been honoured with the King's command, and, together with Miss Evelyn Millard and the Lyric Theatre Company, will give a performance of Robin Hood at Windsor Castle, on Friday, on which evening the Lyric Theatre will be closed. Mr. Herbert Bunning's music will be rendered by the Windsor Castle Orchestra, the composer conducting.

The whole musical profession is joining in the tribute to be paid to Mr. T. P. O'Connor on Sunday, Nov. 18, for which date the dinner to commemorate the passing of the Musical Copyright Act is fixed. The Duke of Argyll will take the chair, and the committee, which is headed by Sir C. A. Mackenzie, is representative of the most influential members of the music world as well as those of dramatic and literary circles. The Act is operating effectively in all parts of the kingdom, police and magistrates joining vigorously in the determination to exterminate the evil against which it is directed. In only two places—namely, Leeds and Sheffield—is any leniency being exhibited towards the offenders, one of whom, at the latter town, was convicted for the third time, and let off with the preposterous penalty of 5s.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will appear for the first time as Macbeth and Lady Macbeth at Stratford-on-Avon, on Tuesday and the following day. The interesting event is under the auspices of the governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Association, at whose invitation the eminent actor will produce the tragedy.

Mr. W. S. Gilbert has been telling the Daily Mail a story of The Mikado, that has a piquant flavour. "It was suggested to us," said Mr. Gilbert, "that it would be a proper thing to introduce the Mikado's entrance with appropriate music. A friend at the Japanese Legation suggested, 'Why not the Japanese National Anthem, words and music?' A capital idea, I thought. 'You dictate the words to me,' I said, 'and hum the air to Sullivan.' So it was done; and that air and those words have been sung and played somewhere almost nightly for many years in theatres and respectable drawing-rooms, and several church bazaars. But a year or two after the production of The Mikado, a correspondent sent me a German newspaper containing an interview with a Japanese diplomatist on the recent production of The Mikado in Berlin. 'Yes,' said the diplomatist, 'there is much to admire in the accuracy of detail in gesture, costume, and scenery, but I am quite at a loss to understand why the author chose to introduce the sacred person of the Mikado with the music and the words of the most ribald song ever sung in the most reckless tea-houses of Japan.' A practical joke on the part of my Legation friend."

Mrs. Patrick Campbell will follow up her success in The Bondman with a visit to America. She has been engaged by the Messrs. Shubert to appear in New York late in the season in several new plays and some of her old successes. A tour of the chief American towns will follow.

Miss Lily Brayton (Mrs. Oscar Asche) was unhappily the victim of a carriage accident on Tuesday. She was returning home with her sister, Miss Agnes Brayton, from the Adelphi Theatre, and had just reached Portland-place, when a hansom cab collided with the vehicle in which they were riding. One of the shafts penetrated the window, and the broken glass severely cut Mrs. Asche on the right temple. She was taken to the Langham Hotel, where medical attendance was obtained, and subsequently Mr. Asche, who had received the alarming news, hurried to the hotel and took his wife home. It is confidently anticipated that no marks of the accident will remain. The popular actress became very weak from loss of blood, and has been obliged to retire temporarily from the cast of The Virgin Goddess, her part being played in the meantime by Miss Gertrude Scott.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, the veteran entrepreneur, has been compiling some interesting figures with regard to his enterprises in Australasia. He and his partners, Messrs. Ramaciotti and Tallis, pay in salaries £100,000 a year to 650 persons on the permanent staff—in fact, it reached £110,183 in 1905, mostly paid to Australian-born artists, musicians, mechanics, stage hands, and managerial staffs. Printing cost £22,469; rent, £19,428; and lighting, £9,783. For scenery, fourteen square miles of canvas and nine and a half miles of new timber were used, £6,627 was spent in properties, costumes cost £5,390, royalties to authors exceeded £5,000, and passages and freight took up £12,825. Nearly 77,000 miles were travelled by the companies dominated by the "firm." These figures will convince English managers that Australian playgoers demand much, and that "much" must be of the best.

The O.P. Club have determined to celebrate the revival of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, and incidentally to pay a tribute of admiration to the works of Mr. W. S. Gilbert and the late Sir Arthur Sullivan by a dinner to be given at the Criterion, on Sunday, Dec. 30. The President, Mr. Sidney Dark, will be in the chair, and Mr. W. S. Gilbert will be the guest of the evening. Invitations have also been issued to many of the leading Savoyards.

The marriage took place at St. Barnabas Church, Clapham Common, on Wednesday, of Mr. E. de Hague Body, acting-manager of the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, to Miss Ada Dorothy Young. Amongst the many presents given were a chest of cutlery from Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dudley Bennett (proprietor of the theatre), also handsome ebony pianoforte from the staff of theatre and numerous associates. The happy couple left Waterloo by the 12.15 train bound for Shanklin, where they will spend their honeymoon. They were recipients of a great number of congratulatory telegrams.

Miss Annie Hughes, who finishes a very successful provincial and suburban tour under Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's management at Birmingham this week, is herself producing Mr. Jerome K. Jerome's new comedy-drama, entitled Tommy, at Manchester, on Nov. 26. The following week it will be seen at the Camden Theatre, and if the play succeeds Miss Hughes hopes to arrange for a West End production. The comedy is simple in tone, and written in Mr. Jerome's well-known fascinating style.

Mr. C. W. Somerset will produce his new melodrama in Liverpool on Nov. 26. It promises to be an extremely powerful play, with a sensation of a startling kind, and a weird doctor by the name of Whitmarsh who does terrible things in the fourth act. Should the play obtain the success anticipated, it may be expected soon to find a home in London.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland, whose connection with Hammersmith has not yet extended to quite four years, has nevertheless just been offered the Mayoralty for the ensuing year, an honour which for the present he feels obliged to decline. It is more than probable, however, that a seat upon the Aldermanic bench will be offered to him, and this he will possibly accept. In common with many other boroughs, Hammersmith has been groaning under the ever-increasing burden of the rates, and in the early part of this year a Ratepayers' Association was formed, with Mr. Mulholland as president. This body ran a full list of candidates at the recent municipal elections, the president throwing himself whole-heartedly into the fight, and those who know Mr. Mulholland (and the County Council may be included among the number) will understand what this means.

Mr. Mulholland addressed many public meetings, occasionally two on the same night, and the result has been a striking victory for the new policy and the complete overthrow of the party which has controlled the borough for so long. It is in acknowledgment of his services in these respects that the honours referred to are now being almost "thrust upon him." Other theatre managers might be recommended to "go and do likewise." Bumbledom would then be less aggressive where theatre interests are concerned.

At the London Musical Club, Hart-street, Bloomsbury, on Friday evening next, a musical and dramatic performance will be given, under the direction of Mr. Gerald Stevens, who was for many years closely associated with the late Sir Henry Irving. The programme will consist of scenes from Shakespeare's plays, Mr. Norman Wrighton, a clever young actor, who has for some time been zealously engaged in assisting to keep the gems of Shakespeare before the public, appearing as Shylock and in other rôles. Mr. Wrighton will be supported by Miss Daisy Murch. Mr. Francis Böhr will be responsible for the musical portion of the entertainment, which will consist, in addition to pianoforte solos by himself, of renderings by first-class artists of songs from As You Like It and other of the poet's plays. The proceeds will be devoted to one of the leading theatrical charities.

"A Chaperon Extraordinary," a new one-act comedy by Mr. R. B. Salisbury, had its first production at the Grand Theatre, Bloemfontein, on Oct. 5 last. The plot deals in an amusing way with a struggling artist, who is served with a writ for debt, and on the arrival of an art patron induces the bailiff to pose as the chaperon of the young painter's fiancée, with the result that a prepaid commission is secured, and the young couple's happiness assured. The play met with a favourable reception, and Mr. Salisbury has in consequence been commissioned by Mr. Leonard Rayne to dramatise a well-known novel for his next season.

The performances of The Minstrel and A Simple Sweep, announced for yesterday and to-day at the Scala Theatre, in aid of the Little Sisters of the Poor, have been unavoidably postponed to the following Friday and Saturday. All tickets issued for Nov. 9 and 10 will be available for the subsequent dates.

An epidemic of doctors is imminent in Mr. Bernard Shaw's "tragedy," The Doctor's Dilemma, which is to be produced at the Court Theatre on the afternoon of Nov. 20. The elucidation of the plot requires the services of an old-fashioned medical man of forty years ago, a fashionable physician of to-day, a medical scientist whose latest discovery has won him a knighthood, a surgeon who calls himself Mr., not Dr., Walpole, a wealthy Jewish practitioner who is proud of his race, and a "poor man's doctor" who works for sixpenny fees. The cast of the play, which we gave fully last week, is one of the strongest yet seen under the Vedrenne-Barker management.

Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is this week proving a great draw at the Prince's, Poplar, with the new drama, An Unwedded Wife. The immediate popularity of their latest venture has far surpassed all the expectations of this well-known firm.

Miss Minna Blakiston has been engaged by Miss Winifred Emery for her forthcoming new production at Glasgow, and will thus practically make her return to the stage since her marriage to Captain Gunter. She will be remembered as having played in The Night of the Party at the Avenue Theatre, and also as Sophie Fulgarney in The Gay Lord Quex.

The new play which Mr. Arthur Bourchier has entrusted to Mr. Edward Michael for production by the Répertoire Theatre Syndicate at the Theatre Royal, Margate, on the 26th inst., has been named The Nun and the Barbarian. It is an adaptation from Senor Galdos' Spanish play, La Loca de la Casa, by Osmond Shillingford.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present:—Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Saba Raleigh, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Norman McKinnel, M. R. Morand, A. B. Tapping, Spencer Trevor, Hubert Willis, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Muriel Juin and Ethel Newman were nominated for election. Mr. F. J. Arlton was elected as a commissioner. A question concerning ventilation of dressing-rooms at a provincial theatre was under discussion, and the secretary received instructions. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received.

Mr. H. F. Maltby, who has been touring throughout the year with his successful play of the Regency period, The Youngest of Three, has just completed a new comedy, in four acts, entitled Sir George of Almacks. As may be gathered from the title, the scene is laid in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and the author believes that in the conception of the character of Sir George he has broken entirely new ground. The piece will be produced early next year, and will be played in conjunction with The Youngest of Three at several return dates. The business arrangements will remain in the hands of Mr. Wyn Weaver.

Mr. Sydney Bacon, of Gateshead and Newcastle, was elected a Councillor of the first-named town last week by the large majority of 375. Mr. Bacon's opponent had been a member of the Council for nine years.

Mr. Seymour Hicks will preside over the sixteenth anniversary dinner of the Eccentric Club, which will take place at the Hotel Cecil, on Sunday, the 25th inst. Mr. Alfred Ellis will occupy the vice-chair. Eccentric clubmen are notoriously a merry set, and a jovial evening may be relied upon by all who are privileged to be present.

In the Court of King's Bench, on the 2nd inst., Miss Florence Byron, who appeared as a Court Chamberlain in The White Cat pantomime at Drury Lane, sued the theatre company for damages sustained in the course of the performance. At a matinée on Jan. 24, 1904, Miss Byron was wearing a head-dress consisting of a bronze helmet with a little ball at the top and a spike coming down inside the crown. On leaving the stage she had to pass under a piece of canvas, which two men lifted. Something fell on her in passing under the canvas, and the spike in the helmet was forced into her head. She fainted, and was laid up for a considerable period. It was argued on behalf of defendants that there was no ground of action inasmuch as there was common employment, and the employer was not therefore liable. His lordship said he was very sorry, but he had to support the submission that there was common employment, and therefore in law the plaintiff could not succeed. He had to enter judgment for the defendants, but expressed the hope that they would do something for the plaintiff.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia witnessed the performance of The Merveilleuses at Daly's Theatre on Saturday.

Mr. Leo Montague writes contradicting a report that has been circulated to the effect that a Gardner-Brown vaudeville company has been stranded in Egypt. He says: "The company was engaged to play in India, not Egypt. Business is exceedingly good, and there is no danger of a company under the direction of Mr. D. Gardner-Brown being stranded; any company under his management is sure of a comfortable tour and a safe return to England."

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Kingston-on-Thames Theatre Company (Limited) took place on Wednesday, when an interim dividend of 6 per cent. per annum on the Preference shares was declared. The report stated that the autumn season of 1905 and the winter and spring seasons of 1906 were more than ordinarily satisfactory, but the hot and long summer had had a most disastrous effect, and the receipts during the last three months of the financial year fell to considerably less than had been experienced at any period in the history of the theatre. The report and accounts were adopted, and the retiring director, Mr. William Millwood, who presided, was re-elected.

Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director, paid a high tribute to the theatre staff, most of whom had been in the service of the company since the theatre was opened eleven years ago, and said, although the year had been a bad one, it was in their favour that, while the majority of other suburban theatres had gone down or had changed hands, the Kingston Theatre had always been able to keep its head above water.

Mr. Robert Milstead, who was a member of the company supporting Miss Ellen Terry in Captain Brassbound's Conversion at the Court, has been compelled, through the ill-health of his wife, to give up the theatrical profession and take up his abode in the country. He has obtained a lease of The Poplars, a large old-fashioned cottage at Riverhead, near Sevenoaks, where he proposes after Christmas to receive members of the profession as "paying guests." The enterprise should find warm support among those who like to spend week-ends out of town, as the surrounding country offers excellent facilities for hunting, fishing, golf, tennis, river bathing, and every kind of sport. Mr. Milsted also hopes to make the breeding of Great Dane dogs a paying hobby. He has secured two very fine puppies from the famous Lockerbie Kennels, and has christened and registered one of them under the name of "Ellen Terry," with that popular lady's kind sanction.

A record attendance may be anticipated at the concert at the Crystal Palace this afternoon, when a violin and pianoforte recital, by Lady Hallé and Mr. Leonard Borwick, will be given. The programme includes excerpts from Beethoven, Schumann, Schubert, Chopin, Liszt, and other famous masters.

On behalf of the committee of the Mr. R. W. Allum Testimonial Fund. Mr. Henry Dann, the hon. secretary and treasurer, wishes to thank those who responded to the appeal, those who supported the concert at Brixton Hall, and the numerous artists who generously gave their services. The efforts to recognise Mr. Allum's courtesy during his eight years in Brixton resulted in a cheque for £40 3s. being handed to him.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard was amongst those invited last Monday to meet His Majesty on the occasion of the opening of the new Grammar Schools at King's Lynn, and afterwards at the luncheon given by the Mayor.

Miss Mabel Adair, who has just been engaged by Mr. Tree to understudy in Antony and Cleopatra, is one of the many young actresses to whom Mr. George Alexander has given their first opportunity. After playing a one-line part in The Wilderness, she toured with his répertoire company, "learning her business" before joining Mrs. Langtry to play Marie Louise in Mademoiselle Mars. The daughter of an American, Miss Adair was born in South Africa, educated in Belgium, and has travelled in all parts of the world, her many experiences including a shipwreck off the coast of Australia. She recently ended a two years' engagement at the Adelphi, her best part having been the widow in The Taming of the Shrew. Miss Adair is a sister of Miss May Congdon, who is now starring in Australia under the management of Messrs. Magnell and Gunn.

"The Beauty of Bath" still continues to attract large audiences to the Aldwych Theatre. The popularity of the piece has this week been enhanced by the introduction of new songs for Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss.

Mr. Alfred Manners, the popular proprietor and manager of the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, met with a painful accident on "Guy Fawkes' Day." He was entertaining his children and some of his friends to a display of fireworks, when a "Roman candle" burst full in his face. A doctor was in attendance at once, and found Mr. Manners in dreadful pain. His face was badly burnt, but happily no serious consequences, as far as his eyesight is concerned, are to be feared.

Little Marjorie Gummerson, a very clever child, has been engaged by Mr. Brydon-Phillips for the rôle of Cupid in Victor Stevens' Little Red Riding Hood pantomime. This little girl has seen only nine summers, and has never appeared on the regular theatrical boards, but Mr. Phillips speaks with confidence of her strong dramatic qualities.

Mr. Maurice Farkoa leaves London on Saturday next for New York, where, as we stated months ago, he will originate a part in a new musical comedy. His stay there is fixed for twenty weeks, after which he returns to London for Mr. George Edwardes's production of Die Lustige Witwe, a light opera of Continental origin, to which the title of The Merry Widow will probably be assigned.

The Imperial Theatre is to come under the hammer on the 22nd inst., when, by order of Mrs. Langtry, Messrs. Marler and Marler will offer at auction, at Tokenhouse Yard, E.C., the remainder of her lease of eight years, with immediate possession, arrangements having been made with Mr. Lewis Waller to terminate his tenancy. The Imperial was rebuilt for Mrs. Langtry by Mr. Frank Verity, who transformed it into one of the most beautiful playhouses in London. It may be added that the terms under which Mrs. Langtry holds it are such as to make it one of the cheapest theatrical properties in the West End.

Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, the proprietors of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, who lent their theatre last week for a concert to enable the Leicester Licensed Victuallers to endow a second cot at the Children's Hospital, are to be heartily congratulated in initiating in that town a system which cannot be too highly commended. The whole of the staff, back and front, from Mr. Henry Dundas, the business-manager, downwards, willingly gave their services free, in return for which the proprietors received 15 per cent on the takings, the amount totalling £16 10s., which they will hand over to the Actors' Benevolent Fund without any deduction. We should add that the Licensed Victuallers cleared £80 odd by the concert, which was held on a terribly wet night and in face of the opposition of another charitable concert at which Mr. Winston Churchill was present as a speaker.

"Sindbad the Sailor," due at Old Drury as usual on Boxing Night, will be in two parts, the "book" again being provided by Hickory Wood and Arthur Collins, the music by J. M. Glover, the whole being produced by Mr. Collins. The story proper starts in a Persian garden—a beautiful scene—when Sindbad begins his fourth voyage. Mrs. Sindbad and daughter decide to accompany him, disguised as sailors, on an expedition to the Treasure Island. How they are shipwrecked and find a refuge on a whale, which they mistake for a desert island, and how the party all eventually arrive in the wonderful Valley is shown in a series of scenes. Part II. is equally exciting and amusing, the authors, as far as modern requirements will permit, adhering to the original story in the "Arabian Nights," and the children will be further delighted by the return to the old-fashioned harlequinade, presented by a clown new to the National Theatre, with some original and wonderful tricks.

Miss Muriel Ashwynne, after a long holiday, has just returned to London, and is understudying one of the principal parts in Robin Hood at the Lyric Theatre, having obtained an engagement and begun work only three days after her arrival in London. With youth, enthusiasm, and sincerity, to say nothing of being very pretty and winning, Miss Ashwynne's career has been most felicitous, although she went into the profession without the backing of money or influence, and has herself to thank—and other people's appreciation of her talents—for all her success. She not only acted, as a child, in Theatre Royal, Back Drawing-room, but made several appearances on the entertainment platform, choosing, on her own initiative, the sleep-walking scene from Macbeth, when she was only nine years old, as the pièce de résistance in her répertoire. Later on, after studying a couple of years with Mr. Charles Fry, the clever little novice made her début at the old Globe Theatre in Hogmany, and since then she has played many important parts, made her mark more than once with the Stage Society—notably in Mrs. Bernard Shaw's translation of Maternité—and always had the satisfaction of knowing that one engagement has led to another.

Miss Ashwynne's recollections of Stephanus in The Sign of the Cross are serio-comic. She learned how to give the screams of agony of the unfortunate young Christian martyr by stabbing her own arm with a strong needle—a cruel method, but effectual—in the privacy of a room at the top of the house. One night, in struggling with the jailors in the torture scene, her wig came off, and when she fell on the ground there was a space of a foot between Stephanus's "proud young head" and his "rich dark locks." Many unknown admirers of Miss Ashwynne used to wait at the stage-door when she was playing in The Sign to see how she looked after being tortured. On one occasion an old lady, who had been much impressed with the play, said how much she would like to go behind the scenes, to see "the machine that did the screaming." The young actress told her quietly that Miss Ashwynne was the only machine employed by the management.

Miss Evie Greene, as the chief of the Merveilleuses in the new comic opera at Daly's, wears a pretty dress of palest blue satin draped in a very statuesque manner. The bodice is arranged similar to a Zouave coat, and is edged with gold braid. Her dark hair is bound with a pale blue bandeau, and in it she also wears a large aigrette, while at the back is a dainty cap covered with silver paillettes. In her hand the Merveilleuse carries a pale blue silk bag suspended by long silken strings. The second scene reveals Miss Greene in a pink satin dress, made very much after the fashion of the first. It is worked with a very handsome gold pattern, and round the neck and shoulders is introduced a narrow piece of jetted insertion.

The costume worn by Miss E. Souray is also strikingly handsome. It is a Princess dress of white mousseline over pink, with two wide pieces of lace insertion carried down each side of the front, and two more down the back. A piece of broad pink ribbon is stretched across the bust and tied behind in a bow with long ends; and on her head Miss Souray wears a large white hat, with pink flowers and white feathers. A pretty picture is formed in the earlier scene by a group of bridesmaids, each one of whom is costumed in soft white silk edged with green, and carries a garland of flowers in her hand. The dresses are made with short-waisted bodice, which is crossed and tied with pale green ribbons, and on their heads the bridesmaids wear wreaths of white roses. The garlands are tied with green ribbons and are held by long streamers to match.

Mrs. Leonard Hornsey (née Delia Hunt, who played the part of the "San Francisco" girl during The Prince of Pilsen run at the Shaftesbury Theatre), presented her husband with a son and heir on Sunday last. The happy event has been made the occasion of hearty congratulations from numerous friends.

Friends of Miss Eva Moss will be sorry to learn that she has been compelled by doctor's orders to remain away from her duties for a few nights owing to a severe cold and loss of voice. She wishes to thank Mr. and Mrs. Powell for their extreme kindness to her, and hopes to resume her part of Gertrude Hunt in their play, When It Was Dark, in a few days.

The New Stage Club is organising two performances for the end of the present month. On Thursday evening, the 29th inst., and on the afternoon of Saturday, Dec. 1, the members will play at the Bloomsbury Town Hall, Hart-street, The Simoom and The Stronger Woman, by August Strindberg, and Norreys Connell's Time.

Mr. Henry George, stage manager for The Prodigal Son company, who was taken ill on Oct. 25, and has been in the Manchester Infirmary two weeks, is now, we are glad to learn, convalescent. Under doctor's orders, Mr. George intends going abroad shortly, and hopes to return in the spring well and fit for work.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier travelled by the night mail from Edinburgh immediately after his final performance on Saturday last in order to deliver his lecture, "William Shakespeare—Maker of Men," to the Adderley-road Mission at Saltley on Sunday. The chair was taken by the Vicar of Saltley (the Hon. and Rev. James Adderley), who alluded to the great confederacy that exists between Church and Stage, and made the interesting announcement that he and Mr. Bourchier had acted together at Oxford University in their undergraduate days.

When Mr. Martin Harvey, Miss de Silva, and companies opened their three weeks' season at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Monday, the occasion was graced by the presence of the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland and the Countess of Aberdeen, and marked his Excellency's first visit to a Dublin theatre since he took office. During the evening Lord Aberdeen expressed himself in enthusiastic terms concerning the interest of Mr. Harvey's revival of The Corsican Brothers. A crowded audience gave the popular actor a tremendous welcome, and huge houses have been the invariable rule throughout the week. Public and Press gave Rosamond Langbridge's The Spell most appreciative greeting last week at Manchester Theatre Royal. In striking parts in a wholly striking play, Mr. Harvey and Miss de Silva combined to make a great impression, whilst the elaborate and characteristic accompanying music by Norman O'Neill materially enhanced the effect of the play.

Mr. Harvey was recently the recipient of a letter written by a delightfully ingenuous firm of shipping agents, who addressed their communication to "Messrs. the Corsican Brothers." The writers call attention to the fact that, "having an extensive theatrical connection with our steamship business, we are positively able to offer you the best possible accommodation on any vessel leaving any port of the British Isles, also from the Continent."

"Peter's Mother," the successful play now running at Wyndham's Theatre, is the latest acquisition of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, with whom Mr. Otho Stuart has arranged to send out two companies. This makes the twenty-ninth London success secured by the enterprising management during the last twenty years—truly a remarkable record. So great has been the prosperity of the Hutchison tours this autumn, that they will not finish until the week before Christmas. To this statement an exception must be made in the case of Miss Annie Hughes' tour, which closes to-night in Birmingham to enable the popular comedienne to rehearse and produce her new play at Manchester. This makes the fourth season of Miss Hughes in The Country Mouse under the Hutchison management.

Miss Mabel Love will be seen in the suburbs in The Freedom of Suzanne in the course of the next few weeks. The tour has proved phenomenally successful since it started at Brighton, where all previous records were broken. Miss Love and Mr. Percy Hutchison are scoring heavily in the principal parts at Croydon this week.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has arranged with Mr. A. D. Vernon to book the Theatre Royal, King's Lynn, in conjunction with the Theatre Royal, Peterborough.

Miss Ellaline Terriss is nightly scoring heavily with Messrs. Davis and Darewski's charming number "Au revoir, my little Hyacinth," in The Beauty of Bath.

A matinée to be given at the Royalty on Tuesday, the 27th inst., on behalf of Jews in Russia, will introduce a new comedy named Wasps, by Muriel Carmel Goldsmid, and a one-act play, entitled Daughters of Shem, in which the same writer has collaborated with Mr. Samuel Gordon. Miss Nancy Price, Miss Margaret Bussé, Mr. Matheson Lang, Mr. Daniel McCarthy, and Mr. Hubert Harben will assist in the entertainment.

The recent matinées at the Richmond Theatre having proved so successful, the management have decided to repeat the experiment at intervals. For Thursday next Mr. George Dance's principal Cingalee company is underlined to appear.

Miss Gertie Millar, who was unable to create the character originally designed for her in The New Aladdin, owing to her husband's illness, will take up the rôle on Saturday next, when she will most assuredly have a cordial welcome from her numerous devotees at the Gaiety. Two fresh numbers were introduced into the play on Wednesday night, one for Miss Kitty Mason and the other for Miss Olive May, and Miss Lily Elsie, the charming young comedienne who has so excellently acquitted herself in Miss Millar's part.

Sir A. C. Mackenzie occupied the chair at the banquet given on Tuesday at the Trocadero Restaurant to Mr. Joseph Bennett, and delivered an eloquent speech in eulogy of the veteran musical critic, who is retiring from active work. Among the company were Lady Mackenzie, Lord Alverstone, Sir Frederick Bridge, Dr. Cowen, Dr. Cummings, Sir Edward Elgar, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Charles Manners, Mme. Fanny Moody, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fry, Miss Olive Kennett, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Davies, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Colonel Mapleson, and Mr. Dan Godfrey.

At the conclusion of an entertaining speech, Mr. Bennett said that with regard to the future of music he was not in the least anxious. He was one of those obstinate optimists who never gave up hope and faith, and never should. He was very sure that with music, through all the changes it had to pass between the shadows in which it was now enwrapped, and the great age which would swallow up all disturbances, all would be well. His reading of musical history, and his experience of musical doings during the last fifty years—for that really was the measure of his experience—convinced him that all was well; that music, however much it might be distracted and thrown aside by passing events, would eventually steady itself and take from all that came to it what was good and send the rest streaming down the flood.

The first production of the Incorporated Stage Society this season will be Gerhart Hauptmann's drama The Weavers, translated by Mary Morison. The performance will take place at the Scala Theatre on Dec. 9 and 10. Don Juan in Hell: a Dream, from Bernard Shaw's Man and Superman, and Our Little Fancies, an original English play, by Miss M. M. Mack, will be produced in the course of the season.

A new drama, entitled Comödianten, by MM. Misch and Roda, will see the light for the first time at one of the principal Berlin theatres shortly. The plot depicts—as the title implies—scenes in the life of comic actors. The action passes in Berlin. A rehearsal at a local theatre and the interior of a Berlin theatrical agent's office form two of the most important scenes.

Herr Louis Hermann, a well-known Berlin farce-maker and writer of patter-songs, has just celebrated his seventieth birthday, and been made the subject of many honours. A banquet was given at one of the principal hotels, in which all the leading lights of comedy and literature participated. The hero of the hour was toasted in many appropriate and humorous speeches, and Frau Schneider-Nissen and Herr Engels contributed to the general entertainment by some comic scenes. Herr Herrmann is still a healthy, if not robust, man, and his working days may be numerous still.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

THERE is a well-known anecdote of a transpontine manager in the bad old days lamenting to a grand opera entrepreneur that he—the transpontine one—would have no gallery patrons on the following night, the first of the opera season. "Why not?" enquired the West-end-ian. "They'll all be round picking pockets outside your place!" was the reply. Part, at least, of the audience at the Theatre Antoine on Saturday last, at the première of Biribi, was similarly composed. The house was packed, not only with the usual audience, and with men and women known for their writings upon social subjects, with politicians, lecturers, historians—but with ex-gaolbirds, who had come to inspect the work of a fellow-sufferer. Georges Darien, part author of Biribi, a white-haired man of forty, who looks sixty-five, served three years in the "disciplinary battalions" in Africa, and had his head shaved, as is customary in such cases.

MR. RAYMOND BLATHWAYT, in his lecture on "People I have Met," at Blaenau Festiniog, the other night, told how, during his recent provincial tour, Mr. Beerbohm Tree was entertained at a big public luncheon by the Lord Mayor of Manchester, and sat next to Bishop Welldon, the new Dean. Said Dr. Welldon. "Well, Mr. Tree, what have you been doing to-day?" "Oh," replied the famous actor-manager, "I went for a long motor ride this morning, and I lost a bet." "Indeed," answered the Dean. "May I ask what the bet was?" "Certainly," said Mr. Tree. "I made a bet that we would pass through four hundred different odours, and we only encountered three hundred and ninety-nine." "Ah!" swiftly replied the witty Dean, "you missed the odour of sanctity!"

WILLS have often supplied the "motives" of dramas, but Mr. John Ernest McCann's play, The Wooing of Mrs. Van Cott, of which we have received a synopsis, certainly contains an original use of a testament in a plot. The late husband of an American widow leaves her over a million dollars, on condition that she marries a Chinaman or an "Afro-American." An Irishman, who wants to wed the "relict," induces a surgeon to transfuse a quart of "crimson fluid" from a black's veins to his—the Irishman's—venal system. Thus he is able to swear that he has "negro blood in his veins."

WHEN a clergyman devotes a portion of the collection at his church to a theatrical charity, he indeed gives evidence of the good feeling between "Church and Stage." Last Sunday evening, the Rev. George Osborne, Vicar of St. Michael's and All Angels, Neepsend, Sheffield, who is chaplain to the Sheffield and district branch of the Actors' Church Guild, devoted a portion of the offertory at his church to the Actors' Benevolent Fund. In recognition of the special character of the service, several members of the Moody-Manners Opera Company were present. Mr. Charles Manners, who occupied a seat in the choir stalls, gave a beautiful rendering of Gounod's "Nazareth," Mr. W. M. Chapman-Huston read the lessons, and Mr. J. Currie was at the organ. The Rev. C. W. N. Ivens was the preacher. Mme. Fanny Moody and Miss Hilda Moody were amongst the congregation. The choir sang the anthem, "What are these?"

MISS EMILY SOLDENE, whose matinée on Tuesday at the Palace is certain to be successful, has some interesting reminiscences of great singers. "Mme. Tietjens' corsets were dreadfully stiff, laced dreadfully tight, and audibly creaked. She never appeared without a lace pocket-handkerchief, princess or peasant it was all the same; alike in the agonies of Donna Anna, in the grandeur of Fidelio, in the dungeon of Marguerite, clinging to the Cross in Robert le Diable, or frantically entreating her lover in The Huguenots, she carried her costly mouchoir, and her coiffure, under any stress of emotion or danger, was always perfect, not a hair disturbed. On the other hand, Mme. Grisi, so inimitable and careful in her art, was careless to a fault as to her personal appearance, and never, even at a morning concert, had her bonnet quite straight."

AN anecdote of John Ryder shows the ease with which that important artist could produce the evidences of grief. Says Miss Soldene:—"On Feb. 10, 1868, I, by appointment, met Mr. John Ryder on the stage of the Queen's Theatre, to hear his opinion. He asked me what could I do? I said, 'Nothing.' He gave me the Porita speech, "The quality of mercy," &c., to read. After I got through, he walked up and down for a minute or two, then stopped. 'You have tears in your voice,' he said; 'are your tears near the surface? Can you cry easily?' I could not tell him. 'Look at me,' said he, smiling, and, reciting a few lines, the tears ran down his face as freely and as miserably as possible."

THE difficulties of a manager who is also actor, acting-manager, and money-taker are illustrated by Miss Soldene in an anecdote of Mr. Harry Webb, of Two Dromios fame, who filled all these positions in a company on tour under his management. "One night (the bill was Macbeth), during a lull at the receipt of custom, he ran up, and peeped through the bull's-eye window of the centre boxes, to have a look at the Witches scene. Horror! He could only see two witches. Rushing round to the stage, he shouted, 'Where's the third witch? Where on earth's the third witch? Fine him, fine him.' 'You're the third witch, sir,' replied the stage-manager."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has been speaking words of wit and wisdom to audiences by whom he is being enthusiastically received on tour. In response to the demand for a speech at the conclusion of his visit to the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, on Saturday night, Mr. Bourchier said:—"Thank you—we all thank you from the bottom of our hearts. A newspaper once gave a prize for the best answer to how a chairman at a public dinner can respond without using the words, 'Thank you for the kind manner in which you have drunk my health.' I did not see any of the answers, but my experience to-night convinces me that no truly grateful man could possibly say anything else. During the pleasant week we have passed in your charming society, we have heard many little stories about The Walls of Jericho. One friend of mine told me that it was a great pleasure to him to see a play that was such a notable exception to the usual inane productions of a frivolous age. I heard that he had just lost very heavily while playing bridge at the club."

"Two policemen," continued Mr. Bourchier, "were overheard outside the theatre. Said one, 'I hear the smart set are getting a fine bit of talking to inside.' 'Yes,' replied the other, 'I've sent my wife there to-night, and I'm thinking it will do her a power of good.' A clergyman told me that if he dared preach half the home truths which Jack Frobisher does, his offertories would be very small. Well, ladies and gentlemen, I was able to assure him that such was not the case with us. We have been rehearsing Macbeth very hard all this week, and one line of the guilty Thane's has struck me as being open to the earnest student who is keen to discover deep, hidden meanings to everything Shakespeare wrote. It is, 'Time, thou anticipatest my dread exploits.' What a lot of readings that one line, taken away from its context, might have. One is, 'If I go on talking, I shall miss my train!' On behalf of my wife, my company, and myself, I thank you for the encouragement you have given us to come to you again next year."

HALL CAINE ON THE CLAQUE.

The O.P. Club held its 7th Annual Dinner at the Criterion last Sunday evening. The President, Mr. Sydney Dark, was in the Chair. The guest of the evening was Mr. Hall Caine, and among those present were Mrs. Hall Caine, Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, Miss Lilah McCarthy, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Granville Barker, Miss Margaret Halstan, Mr. Pett Ridge, Mr. Harry Fragson, Mr. Landon Ronald, Mr. James Glover, Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Eily Malyon, Mrs. Sydney Dark and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hentschel.

MR. SYDNEY DARK, in proposing the toast of "The Drama," said a community which was sane and in its right mind would provide itself with a theatre before it worried itself about the main drainage system. He declined to believe that the drama was either dead or dying. It was a great art which brought imagination into everyday life and helped to take our eyes away from the dull earth and fix them upon the stars. The members of the O.P. Club were the apostles of the open mind: all they asked was that each new play should be good of its kind. It was a great pleasure to him to couple with the toast the name of Mr. Hall Caine, and with Mr. Caine's to couple the name of the Playgoers' Club.

MR. HALL CAINE, in the course of his response, said: I congratulate the dramatic profession on the prosperity of the O.P. Club as witnessed by this large and influential gathering to-night. I think nothing could be better for any profession than that it should excite a large public interest, nothing so bad as that it should be the subject of intellectual apathy.

I will venture to tell you a few stories from my own experience of the theatre during the last twenty years, and leave you to draw your own conclusions. Twenty years ago, when I was an almost unknown author, I produced my first play. The conditions under which it was produced were as unfavourable as can be imagined. In spite of this we had on the first night a triumphant success. I do not remember a play which was received with what seemed to be more genuine enthusiasm. The papers the next morning reviewed it with delirious rapture. I fondly imagined I had opened up a new career, my manager thought his foot was on the rung of fortune's ladder. The second night, in a house capable of holding £250, we opened to receipts amounting to £27, and after dragging on a miserable existence for eight weeks we "shut down" to a loss of £3,000. This illustrates the general unreliability of a first-night verdict. Sixteen years later I produced a play under the most favourable conditions of leading West-end management, and it brought me more money than I should care to reveal to the income-tax collector. All the first-night audience said my play was an utter and abject failure. The next morning the newspapers, without any exception, tore my play to rags. On the second night we opened to the record takings of the theatre, and for eighty nights we played to the utmost capacity of the house. I think that we have some reason to be downhearted, not only as to the verdict of some first-night audiences, but also on the development of the claque on first nights in London, although within certain limits the claque may be necessary, if only as a set-off against the stolid indifference of the occupants of the stalls, or the booing of the boys in the gallery. Two or three months ago I came to London to produce a new play, and, on my arrival, I received a letter from a stranger which ran something like this: "Dear Sir,—Perhaps you remember that I was a super at such-and-such a theatre so many years ago, when you produced such-and-such a play. I am now out of a billet; but I know a lot of good men, and if you think you would like to make it worth my while, on the first night of your new play I shall be glad to give you a hand." I handed that letter to the manager of the theatre at which my play was produced, and I have excellent reason to believe that it was my correspondent and not my play who got the benefit of the hand.

MR. A. F. ROBBINS, in proposing the toast of "The Ladies," coupled with the name of Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, said the members of the Club were specially delighted to welcome Miss Matthison among them to-night, if only to show their gratitude for the address which she had delivered to the O.P. Club early this year. Miss Matthison had won the admiration of all playgoers, and that without the advantage of preliminary puffing or personal influence. He could say of Miss Matthison what one of our greatest dramatists had said of one of his characters—"she has a mind as calm as she is fair." She was one who had done worthy work, and he believed would do still worthier.

MISS EDITH WYNNE MATTHISON, in responding to the toast of "The Ladies," said: "I have to thank you, on behalf of my sister-workers and myself, for your kind encouragement and sympathy. Indeed sympathy and encouragement are very precious to us in our failure and in our success from the public and from the Press. It is perhaps trite to speak of the difficulties of our profession, but indeed they are very many and very real, requiring courage, purpose, patience, hard work, and not even excluding considerations of the bread-and-butter kind. All these, of course, are shared in common with other people; but, unlike other people, we have to bear the stress of them in the full light and glaring publicity of day. Thus our failure is not an ordinary failure, but has a special sting of its own. We depend so much upon the goodwill of our audiences and our critics; and by goodwill I do not mean indiscriminate and fulsome praise, but I do mean the introduction of a little loving sympathy just at the right moment—an attitude of generous expectancy; the recognition of noble attempt which may have partly failed; kind discrimination between the player and the part. I speak to you as members of the Press and the public. You have never failed us, and you certainly do not fail us to-night, and I hope on our side and for our sakes we may never fail you. If we do, may we repent speedily and mend our ways, and do better in the time to come."

MR. T. MCDONALD RENDLE, in proposing the toast of "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Mr. Granville Barker, congratulated Mr. Caine upon his speech. We have here to-night, said Mr. Rendle, a gentleman who is as good an actor to-day as he was forty years ago, if not better. I refer to my old and valued friend Mr. Henry Neville. When we have such a subject as Mr. Neville we feel that no words of ours are required to express the services he has rendered to the English stage to which we hope he will be spared for many years to come.

MR. BARKER, in responding to the toast of "The Visitors," said: I hope for once you will let the artistic side of the drama take care of itself, and devote a little of your attention to its financial position. It has got into a very bad way because very little attention is paid to it. You become very interested in the photos of actors and their salaries when they rise above £200 a week; but you should take an interest in those whose salaries do not rise above £20, and some not above £10. I think that the thing which matters is not the position of the leaders but the position of the mediocrity." Mr. Barker, in continuation, thought that the difficulties of the case were to be met chiefly by organisation. He said an actor was generally supposed to be extravagant. It was all very well to live below one's income. It was the tendency of the average man to live in an average way on what he imagined his income was going to be; but the actor never knew what his income would be—one year it might be £1000, another £800, another £50.

The toast of "The Chairman" was proposed by Mr. Mostyn Pigott, Mr. Sydney Dark responding

ASAPHIANS AT WORK.

The Installation meeting of the Asaph Lodge (1319) was held on Monday last at the Gaiety Restaurant, when Mr. Edward W. Whitmore proceeded to install Mr. E. H. Bull to the much-coveted chair, after which the newly-made Master proceeded with the investiture of his officers, who were:—Herbert Chenery, S.W., Ernest H. Paterson, J.W., C. Wellard, P.M. (treasurer), James W. Mathews, P.M. (secretary), A. B. Tapping, S.D., Chris. Hilton, J.D., Albert Le Fre, I.G., W. Lestocq, P.M., D.C., J. E. Hambleton, P.M. (organist), Rev. W. P. Besley (chaplain), Frank Lister, W.S., E. Wesley Woolhouse, W.S., Tom C. Clare, W.S., Clement Smith, W.S., and J. Gilbert (tyler).

Grand Officers who were present were—Messrs. John Strachan, Henry Neville, J. P. Baptie, Henry Times, and W. Ganz.

Past Masters who were present were—Messrs. James Weaver, W. J. Holloway, Chas. B. Powell, Algernon Syms, J. E. Hambleton, Chas. Cruikshanks, and Herbert Leonard.

After the ceremony of installation was complete the brethren proceeded to the Banquetting Gallery, partaking of the hors d'œuvres promenade, and then descended to the recherché Dining-hall to enjoy a sumptuous repast.

Thirty-six Masters have occupied the chair since the founding of the Asaph Lodge, of which the following is a list:—

E. Stanton Jones (founder), 1870; Charles Coote (founder), 1871; John M. Chamberlin (founder), 1872; James Weaver (founder), 1873; Edward Frewin, 1874; Charles S. Jekyll, 1875; William A. Tinney, 1876; Edward Terry, 1877; George Buckland (founder), 1878; Edward Swanborough, 1879; Charles Wellard, 1880; W. Meyer Lutz, 1881; John Maclean, 1882; Frederick Delevanti, 1883; Charles E. Tinney, 1884; William J. Kent, 1885; Henry J. Tinney, 1886; William Lestocq, 1887; James D. Beveridge, 1889; Tom de Brunnow Holmes, 1890; Alfred E. Bishop, 1891; William Sydney Penley, 1892; James Edward Hambleton, 1893; Francis Henry Macklin, 1894; Charles Christopher Cruikshanks, 1895; Samuel Johnson, 1896; William John Holloway, 1897; Luigi Lablache, 1898; Charles Blount Powell, 1899; James W. Mathews, 1900; Algernon Syms, 1901; Louis Honig, 1902; Akerman May, 1903; Herbert Leonard, 1904; E. W. Whitmore, 1905; E. H. Bull, 1906.

MR. E. H. BULL,
Worshipful Master Asaph Lodge (1319) 1906.

Each course on the menu list was preceded by some appropriate, and in some applications, decidedly humorous Masonic motto. Thus the brethren were told to "Let prudence direct them" when partaking of "Faisan en casserole," "Salade"; while "Cotelettes d'Agneau de lait à la Florentine," "Suprême de Poulet à l'Ecarlate" were designated "Mysteries of Nature and Science."

The list of toasts and music was interwoven with appropriate quotations from the Bard of Avon, whose disciples all good Asaphians are acknowledged to be.

The musical arrangements were under the skilled direction of Mr. James E. Hambleton, who introduced for the delectation of the brethren a number of clever artists:—Miss Leila Bull, Mrs. May Walker, Mrs. E. H. Bull (wife of the W.M.), Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, Messrs. T. Powley, Tom Clare, Maurice Garland, and Archibald Evans.

An amusing speech was made by Mr. Charles C. Cruikshanks, who has recently been promoted at Grand Lodge to the rank of Assistant Banner-Bearer.

A complete alphabetical list of the large company present is as follows:—Allworth, A.; Anderson, Peter C.; Appleford, Charles; Baker, W.; Baptler, J. P.; Barrett, W. L.; Barnett, Thomas J.; Bentley, L. C.; Besley, Rev. W. P.; Birch, Jesse J.; Boothby, Charles Norton; Brook, H.; Brown, Edgar J.; Bull, E. H.; Calcott, H. J.; Carrodus, J. "THE COLLABORATORS."

A Play, in One Act, by W. Kingsley Tarpey, from a Story by Mrs. Kingsley Tarpey, Produced at the Criterion Theatre, on Monday, Nov. 5.

Lucy ..... MISS MINNIE TERRY
Hacker ..... MR. O. P. HEGGIE
Ethel Berners ..... MISS LILIAN BRAITHWAITE
Miss Greatorex ..... MISS HENRIETTA COWEN
Edward Cahusac .... MR. P. H. CLAYTON GREENE
Robert Curtice ..... MR. F. PERCIVAL STEVENS

The author of The Amateur Socialist, which is running its merry course at the Criterion Theatre, has written a curtain-raiser based on a story by Mrs. Kingsley Tarpey, and the new play was successfully produced on Monday evening. Ethel Berners writes stories and plays, but when it comes to the management of her own love affairs she is evidently much more puzzled as to the right course to pursue than the heroine of one of her tales would be under similar circumstances. She has, it appears, two strings to her bow, Edward Cahusac, an artist, and Robert Curtice, a playwright; but the difference between the two men is so plainly marked it is rather surprising to find the girl has any difficulty in making a choice of a husband. But Ethel has some curious ideas respecting matrimony, and these she expresses in the course of a conversation with her maiden aunt, Miss Greatorex, a lady endowed with a large amount of common sense. Ethel has been having a very happy time with Cahusac, who has presented her with the pictures from his own brush which adorn the walls of her West-end flat; but she suddenly resolves to send back all the paintings, and give the artist to understand that the pleasant companionship which has been formed is at an end. She has come to the conclusion that, in choosing a partner for life, love should not be the chief consideration, the important point being that the man and woman should have a common interest. She therefore decides to give the preference to Robert Curtice, with whom she collaborates in the writing of plays. He is a singularly matter-of-fact personage who, one may reasonably suppose, regards sentiment only as an asset in the making of a play. And so the poor painter is told to take his pictures away, and the hint which this request evidently conveys. Curtice arrives, passing his disappointed and dejected rival on the landing outside the door. The dramatist and Ethel discuss the art of playwriting, and eventually he hints at marriage in the most matter-of-fact way. It would be, he remarks, a great saving of time if they were married. The girl experiences a sudden revulsion of feeling, and says she would prefer that their present relations remained unaltered. The playwright accepts the lady's decision without protest; he only says he is very sorry, and departs. Then Ethel sends for Cahusac, who happily has rooms in the same building, and he comes at once, not even giving himself time to take off the old jacket, all smeared with wet paint, which he is wearing. Ethel gives him to understand that she has changed her mind, and the painter is overjoyed at the altered aspect of affairs, while the maiden aunt is also delighted at the course things have taken.

Miss Lilian Braithwaite gave such a charming embodiment of the part of Ethel Berners that one could readily forgive that young lady's curious reasoning and abrupt change of front in her affaires de cœur. Mr. P. H. Clayton Greene admirably portrayed the sincerity and earnestness of Edward Cahusac. Mr. F. Percival Stevens deserves warm praise for his really clever study of the cool, business-like playwright. Miss Henrietta Cowen presented a neat, natural sketch of the practical spinster, Miss Greatorex. Mr. O. P. Heggie was good as a porter at the chambers; and Miss Minnie Terry gave able assistance in the part of the maid-servant.

In The Amateur Socialist, Mr. Eric Lewis's performance in the character of the amusingly eccentric Sir Hubert Pennefeather continues to afford the utmost delight; and capital character-sketches are submitted by Messrs. E. Y. Rae, E. Dagnall, Louis Goodrich, and F. Percival Stevens. Excellent support is also given by Messrs. Rawson Buckley, Percy H. Jackson, and the Misses Lilian Braithwaite, Carlotta Addison, Margaret Busse, and Ethel Matthews.

THE persuasive powers of Charles Mathews were well exemplified by an anecdote told by the late Henry Russell to Henry Irving, quoted by Mr. Bram Stoker in his "Reminiscences." "Russell told his story thus:—'I was at that time tenant of the Lyceum, and had let it for a short season to Charles Mathews. He did not pay my rent, and, as I suppose you know, the freeholder, Arnold, was not one to let me off my rent on that account. The debt ran on till it grew to be quite a big one. I wrote to Mathews, but I never could get any settlement. He was always most suave and cheery; but no cash! At last I made up my mind that I would have that money, and finding that letters were of no avail, I called on him one forenoon. He was having his breakfast, and asked me to join him in a cup of chocolate. I said no! that I had come on business—and pretty stern business at that; and that I would not mix it up with pleasure. I had come for cash—cash! cash! He was very pleasant, quite undisturbed by my tirade; so that presently I got a little ashamed of myself and sat down. I stayed with him an hour.' 'And did you get your money?' asked Irving quietly. Russell smiled. 'Get my money! I came away leaving him a cheque for three hundred pounds which he had borrowed from me; and I never asked him for rent again!'"

"BOTH authors and actors," said Mr. Hall Caine, in his speech at the O.P. Club dinner on Sunday, "would perhaps do well to pay less attention to the verdicts of first-night audiences, and, whether favourable or unfavourable, should accept the verdict of the Press as the verdict of individuals—no less and no more. The public is the best judge, and the public finally decides the fate of the play. When a play succeeds, it succeeds because it is generally right, and when it fails, it fails because it is generally wrong; therefore it is best and safest that everybody concerned should take his heart in both hands, and trust absolutely to the voice of the people."

INTRODUCING Mr. Arthur Bourchier to those assembled at the Carlton Theatre, Saltley, on Sunday, to hear his lecture on "Shakespeare," the Vicar of Saltley mentioned that Mr. Bourchier had been a personal friend of his. They had appeared on the stage together made up as Gladstone and Disraeli respectively; he left them to guess which was which.

THE volunteer commentators who have found difficulty in understanding the lines in the third act of Antony and Cleopatra, describing the Queen's desertion of Antony at Actium, have evidently never lived in the country. Scarus, in anger, cries—

Yon ribaudred nag of Egypt,
The breese upon her, like a cow in June,
Hoists sails and flies.

Everyone who has noticed the sudden and frantic rushes of cattle in summer when tormented by the gad-fly, or "breese," must appreciate the graphic simile.

MR. EDITOR.—SIR,—Your Aberdeen correspondent announced me as Harry Wilson, extempore vocalist, &c. It should have been, yours truly, HARRY WRIGHT.

THE TOOLE RELICS.

The sale-room at Sotheby's could scarcely be said to be filled to its utmost capacity on Thursday afternoon when the effects of the late Mr. John L. Toole were put up for auction. No doubt the extremely wet weather deterred the mere curiosity-seeker from being present, so that the majority of those who did attend were there for the very definite purpose of securing a portion of the "effects." Among the visitors were Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Burdett-Coutts, M.P., Mr. E. Yates Lowne (one of the executors), Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Frederick Toole and Mr. Young (nephews of the late comedian), and Mr. Frank J. Arlton (cousin).

The total amount realised by this, the first day's sale, amounted to £722 3s., the highest price for any one lot being £38, which was obtained for the autograph letter of Lord Nelson to Lady Hamilton. This fell to the bid of Mr. J. Stoddart, of Fleet-street, who secured most of the albums of autographs and photographs. Mr. Frank J. Arlton purchased for Mr. Fred Terry the gold and tortoiseshell snuffbox once in the possession of Joey Grimaldi, as well as E. M. Robson's snuffbox, the former going for ten guineas. "With all good wishes to dear John Toole." It was the handwriting of the late Dan Leno underneath a portrait of the King's Jester; £2 2s. was the sum given for it. A picture of Mr. Toole as John Rimple in Thoroughbred—the character in which he brought his acting career to an end—was bought by Mr. Young for £1 14s.. Mr. Merton Russell Cotes, the well-known collector, secured a large number of playbills, portraits, autograph letters, and programmes, in which the names of Charles Dickens, Bulwer-Lytton, Sir Walter Scott, "Ouida," Leigh Hunt, and Robert Buchanan figured; and Mr. Lowne gave £28 10s. for an album containing the autographs of Thomas Hood, Charles Mathews, Garrick, Liston, Macklin, Kean, and other actors, actresses, and literary folk contemporary with them. A pair of ironstone wine-coolers, once belonging to Charles Dickens, went for £9 10s.

The playbill announcing Mr. Toole's first appearance on the stage, which, with the King's congratulatory telegram on the actor's jubilee, formed one lot, sold for 35s., although it was fully anticipated that the bidding for these would reach a sensational figure. The playbill is an interesting document at this day. It is dated "Theatre Royal, Haymarket, July 22, 1852." The management gave plenty for money. There was The Merchant of Venice, with King as Shylock and Buckstone as Gobbo; there was Mind Your Own Business, by Mark Lemon; there was that ancient friend of our forebears, The Spitalfields Weaver; and a further advertisement says, "Simmons—J. L. Toole, his first time on any stage." A small part of Thackeray's MS. of The Adventures of Philip sold for £30 to Mr. Sabin, who also got a sketch by Cruikshanks, "Omnibus," for £17. No great prices were realised for Mr. Toole's oil and water-colour paintings.

IRVING MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—We should esteem it a favour if you would make it known that the Irving Memorial Committee, nominated by the Actors' Association, has decided to call a meeting of the entire dramatic profession early in December, when many actors and actresses now playing in the provinces will be able to attend. To this meeting the committee will submit the form of memorial which they advise, and the means for raising such funds as may be required.

The Actors' Association has received a very large number of most gratifying assurances of support.

Amongst others, Mr. John Hare says:—"I quite agree that the Actors' Association is the only fit and proper body to take in hand the Irving Memorial scheme. I am immensely interested in your scheme, and will support it by every means in my power."

Mr. F. R. Benson says:—"I will support any scheme that worthily embodies the love and pride our profession feel for Henry Irving."

Miss Ellen Terry writes:—"I will support any good proposition that is made."

Mr. Beerbohm Tree says:—"Command me in your decisions."

Mr. Cyril Maude says:—"Any scheme for an Irving Memorial will have my cordial support."

Mr. Arthur Bourchier says:—"I shall be only too pleased to do anything in my power to assist."

Mr. A. W. Pinero says:—"I am willing to help in the promotion of an actor's memorial."

Mr. Edward Terry says:—"The proper body to act is the Association. I shall be pleased to help in any way."

Mr. H. B. Irving says:—"I agree . . . that the Association would be a very proper body to take up the question of a memorial to my father, and I am very glad to hear that they intend doing so."

The committee further cabled their conclusions to Mr. H. B. Irving, who cabled in reply, "Delighted."

All communications regarding the memorial should be addressed to the secretary of the Actors Association, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, W.C.—Yours faithfully, CYRIL MAUDE, ACTON BOND, LAWRENCE GRANT, LEWIS CASSON, CECIL RALEIGH (Irving Memorial Committee), CHAS. CRUIKSHANKS (Secretary).

THE condition of the teeth has an important effect on the health as well as on the appearance, and a sure means of arresting decay and keeping them pure and white is furnished in Rowland's Odonto. The preparation contains no grit, but thoroughly cleanses the teeth and leaves a delightful fragrance in the mouth. It is supplied by Rowland and Sons, of Hatton-garden, and at all chemists.

ACCORDING to a New York newspaper, about seventy-five million dollars are invested in theatrical property in the "Empire City," and the annual box receipts amount to nearly twelve million dollars, exclusive of opera receipts, of nearly one million. There are seventy-four theatres in New York, and the managers expend each year over a million dollars on productions. It is estimated that there are twenty-five thousand actors in the United States, including those of high-class vaudeville. Sixty per cent. of all dramatic productions in America are made by managers in the city of New York.

THE eighteenth annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Hastings Gaiety Theatre was held on Wednesday. The chairman, Dr. Gray, J.P., congratulated the shareholders on the greatly improved state of the affairs of the company since the previous meeting, the theatre receipts showing an increase of £1,454 over the previous year, and an improved net result of £608 in favour of the company. Speaking of the general manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland, the chairman referred to him as the physician whom they had called in, in their hour of extremity, and under whose fostering care the theatre had reached an advanced stage of convalescence, with every prospect of regaining its full bodily vigour before the expiration of another year. Mr. Rowland's efforts have been ably seconded by the resident manager, Mr. C. R. Scutt, whose devotion to the comfort of both patrons and players has earned for him a high reputation.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

Other works of note just added by Mr. "Sixpenny Pops" Smith to his lengthy catalogue are "The enchantress waltz," Mark Sheridan's celebrated comic song "At the football match last Saturday," and that charming ballad "When love comes knocking at the door," by Evelyn Baker, which Miss Madoline Rees has so ably helped to make popular. Miss Rees has just secured a pretty song, by H. F. Greenfield, entitled "The goldfish and the water lily." That fine artist Miss Lelia Roze has a delightful number from the same pen in "I'll be your gondolier."

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday, at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered drawings submitted by Mr. W. M. Brutton, showing how it is proposed to construct a pass staircase from the grand circle to the balcony of the Alhambra Palace of Varieties, Leicester-square, and to fix an iron door between the wardrobe room and the staircase.

They recommended—That Mr. Brutton be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawings submitted by him provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with: That the openings leading to the pass stairs be not increased to a width greater than the stairs to which they lead, and that distinct "no exit" notices be provided to the openings; that the door to the box on the grand circle be hung to close with the stream of traffic going down the staircase and made self-closing; that the iron door to the wardrobe-room be hung to close with the stream of traffic going down the staircase, provided with a frame lapping three inches over the door and made self-closing without a spring, and that a second handrail be provided.

The recommendation was agreed to.

THE PLAY-HOUSE.

The committee having considered drawings submitted by Mr. E. Wingfield-Bowles, recommended that he be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the seven drawings submitted with regard to the electrical installation at the Play-House, Northumberland-avenue.

Approved.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The committee having considered drawings submitted by Messrs. Vaughan, Brown, and Cook, recommended that they be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the two drawings submitted with regard to the fire curtain proposed to be erected at the Putney Hippodrome, Felsham-road, Putney, subject to the gearing and construction being to the satisfaction of the Council.

Agreed to.

THE TIVOLI.

The committee having considered a drawing submitted by Mr. G. H. Dyball recommended that he be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted with regard to the proposed isolation of the main electric switches, fuses, etc., fixed to the walls of the pit lavatory at the Tivoli Music Hall, Strand.

Approved.

REVISION OF REGULATIONS.

The consideration of recommendations of the committee as to the question of the revision of the regulations made by the Council on March 25, 1902, with respect to the electric lighting and heating installations in theatres and other places of amusement in London was postponed.

COUNTY COUNCIL LICENSING.

The Licensing Committee of the London County Council sat on Monday, in the Sessions House, Newington, to hear applications for music, music and dancing, and stage-plays licences for the district of the metropolis south of the Thames. The committee present included Mr. H. J. Greenwood (chairman), Mr. Jocelyn Brandon, Mr. E. Brown, Mr. J. A. Dawes, Lieut.-Colonel Rotton, Mr. B. S. Strauss, Sir A. E. West, and Mr. H. J. Williams.

Mr. Percy Ford, of Denmark Hill, applied for a music and dancing licence for the Camberwell Empire (formerly the Metropole Theatre). The application was opposed by the Lambeth Borough Council, but on its being stated that the premises were previously licensed, the committee decided to recommend the County Council to renew the licence.

On behalf of Mr. Walter Gibbons, Brixton Oval, Mr. Gill, K.C., applied for a music and dancing licence for the Brixton Hippodrome, which was formerly the Brixton Theatre.

The application was opposed on behalf of the Lambeth Borough Council, on the grounds "That the Borough Council is of opinion that, as there is now, and for some years past has been, in existence within a very short distance from the proposed Brixton Hippodrome, a music hall or theatre of varieties—namely, the Empress Theatre of Varieties—another music hall in Brixton is wholly unnecessary; and, secondly, that the performances, whether one or two nightly, which would take place, would lead and tend to a lowering of the standard of thought and morals of the persons who would frequent such hippodrome, and of the neighbourhood generally."

Mr. Gill stated that the applicant represented the Empress Theatre Company, and owned a music hall in the same neighbourhood, and who had acquired the Brixton Theatre, where they proposed to provide entertainments similar to those now being given in the Empress Theatre. He submitted that the Lambeth Borough Council had gone too far in the grounds which they alleged for their opposition. The question whether a music hall was wanted in the district, or whether it was likely to be a financial success, was entirely one for the persons who proposed to carry on the business. The only matter for the committee to consider was whether the premises complied with the requirements, whether the site was suitable, and if the applicants were responsible people in a position to carry on the enterprise in a suitable manner. He submitted that all these conditions were fulfilled in the present case.

On behalf of the opponents, it was pointed out that in the opinion of the Lambeth Borough Council the site was quite unsuitable, inasmuch as it was next door to a public library, immediately opposite to the new Lambeth Town Hall, now in course of erection, and within one hundred yards of an existing music hall. It was also in close proximity to Brixton Church.

Opposition to the application was also made by the Vicar of St. Matthew's, Brixton, who said a petition against the proposed new music hall had been extensively signed in the district, and it was also opposed by the Brixton Association, an influential non-political organisation.

After consultation, the chairman announced that the committee had decided to grant the application, subject to the condition that no intoxicants were sold or consumed on the premises.

The remaining business was unopposed.

FOOTBALL.

Bristol X.L.C.R. A.F.C. v. Harry Hare's Orchestral Band and Music Hall Athletic Clubs.

Played on Clifton Downs Oct. 27. Messrs. H. Belding and F. B. Nicholls played splendidly in goal. The following were the teams:—

Harry Hare's Band.—F. B. Nicholls, goal; A. Hamlin (captain) and H. Walenn, backs; F. Stevens, J. Lacey, and T. Neagle, half-backs; P. Reardon, H. Edwards, F. Hansford, E. Bowman, and D. O'Connor, forwards.

Referee, A. Rossiter (St. Michael's Res. A.F.C.); linesmen, H. Hare and E. Smith. No goal was scored on either side.

CHAT WITH MISS SYRIA LAMONTE.

The name of Miss Syria Lamonte is pretty well known to playgoers and music hall habitués by this time. She, like many other famous artists of her own sex, was born in Australia; in fact, Mr. Harry Rickards' Tivoli Theatre in Sydney stands on the precise spot where Miss Lamonte first saw the light of day. Miss Lamonte, who at an early age gave evidence of histrionic ability, made her first appearance with Mrs. Bernard Beere in As in a Looking-glass, in which she played the part of Felice, the French maid. After appearing in concerts and opera under the management of Williamson and Musgrove, she was engaged by Mr. Harry Rickards to sing operatic songs and ballads. Coming to London, she was secured by the late Mr. Vernon Dowsett for the Tivoli and Oxford, where her rendering of such numbers as "Sing, sweet bird," and "The cows are in the corn" made her extremely popular. Following her London work, Miss Lamonte went into pantomime at Birmingham, taking principal girl in Dick Whittington, Miss Marie Loftus being in the title-rôle. She next entered into a contract with Messrs. Edgar and Sydney Hyman to go to South Africa, where she sang ballads and operatic songs.

Miss Lamonte tells us that she was the first to sing "The Holy City" out there, and her doing so raised a controversy in the newspapers. One clergyman stated that he did not think she should sing this song amongst what he called exhibitions of legmania and farcical business, and he endeavoured to prevent the verses being rendered. Miss Lamonte, however, was able to defy him, and defy him successfully, for the song proved a tremendous triumph vocally, and enhanced the young lady's reputation. Before quitting South Africa she was made the object of a popular demonstration at a benefit given in her honour. Flowers to the value of £100, and jewels to the value of £1,000, she tells us, were presented to her. Back again in London, she was seen once more at the halls of dance and song, singing, as usual, songs of a refined character. An introduction from Mr. Henry Tozer to Mr. Waldman, of Konacher's, Vienna, resulted in Miss Lamonte making her Continental début. In the Austrian capital she sang operatic songs and American ditties, her work being so much admired that she was retained on the Continent for over three years, touring in Hungary, Roumania, France, and Russia. Curiously enough, Miss Lamonte has not yet appeared in Germany. In America, the subject of this sketch performed in Veronique. She would have remained in that country longer had not the heat been so oppressive that her health almost broke down under it, and she had to return to this country. She is, by the way, booked to go to Russia, but owing to the internal troubles and disturbances, she has been compelled to postpone her visit, so that Londoners should have an opportunity of seeing her for some time. Miss Lamonte opens at Chatham on Oct. 29.

As a soprano character vocalist, Miss Lamonte has made no small name for herself. Of late years, she informs us, she has found that the public prefer the brilliant ditties from America and the good chorus songs of home manufacture better than operatic performances. The music in the case of the former is lighter, and catches the ear much more quickly than in the case of the latter.

"A much more simple kind of song is preferred nowadays," is the opinion to which Miss Lamonte commits herself. "American songs are very fine indeed," adds the lady, "and they have undoubtedly helped a lot of artists to become successful quickly. Let me instance Miss Victoria Monks."

Miss Lamonte received a compliment of no small significance when playing one night in Bucharest. She had to appear at a high-class concert and at a variety hall the same evening. At the former, the accompanist, who, by the way, performs similar duties at the Royal Palace, refused at first to play to Miss Lamonte's singing, because he considered it beneath his dignity to accompany a music hall artist. However, after he had heard her in the mad scene from Lucia di Lammermoor, as well as in the "Jewel" song from Faust, he confessed himself astounded that a lady with such a wonderful voice and such a wonderful vocal range should be content to entertain music hall audiences. He congratulated her, and remarked that he had been proud to accompany so talented an artist. In Austria Miss Lamonte's fame reached afar, and people who would never dream in the ordinary way of visiting a variety establishment went to the Bucharest music hall to hear her.

Miss Lamonte tells us that she would like to appear in pantomime at Christmas, if she could get a suitable "principal boy-ship."

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

Mr. John Lawson and company in Humanity are topping the bill for the current week, and this "tabloid" story of love and treachery, with its terminating desperate fight and scene of wreckage, not forgetting Sylvani's song "Only a Jew," retains a remarkable hold on the public, and is as enthusiastically received as ever. A mystifying turn is contributed by Buddha's Backboard. "How is it done?" is involuntarily asked when questions from the audience are immediately answered on the Blackboard, apparently without human aid. Buddha's Blackboard is never nonplussed, not even when such questions as "the winner of the next big race" and "the duration of the present Government" are asked. Eadie and Ramsden's contribution is both interesting and clever. The gentleman excels as an eccentric legmania dancer, and is besides a very capable pianist, while the lady is a pleasing vocalist. Their turn is enlivened with many touches of humour, and the applause bestowed on this smart young couple is thoroughly well merited.

Arthur Reece, looking bright and débonair, wins a cordial reception on singing "When there isn't a girl about," the answering line, "You do feel lonely," being taken up by many in the chorus with that avidity which betokens a ready assent. His second item is a smart topical ditty with unlimited up-to-date verses, and his third song, of more serious import, is a dissertation on "Romance and reality," the sentiment of which exactly suits the audience. Amy Sullivan creates a favourable impression with "All that glitters is not gold," her distinct enunciation enhancing the sterling advice conveyed in the maxim. Right worthily represented is the "Land of the Leek" by Ted and May Hopkins, a Welsh comedy couple, who appear in Cambrian Courtship, their turn being highly entertaining and amusing.

Barton and Ashley provide some merry moments during their occupancy of the stage. The broadly comical methods employed by the gentleman combined with his grotesque appearance make him an odd contrast to his prepossessing partner, and their witty sayings and burlesque business, clever dancing, and vocalism gain unstinted applause. The Stein-Eretto Troupe contribute a jumping and leaping act, which is decidedly novel and skilful. An astonishing feat is performed by one of the quartette, who jumps over the heads of a number of the theatre attendants standing in a row, alighting on his hands on the uppermost of three tables. Mezzetti and Mora, in their horizontal bar act, perform with much skill and dexterity. The overture is Meyerbeer's "Dinorah," rendered with admirable precision by the orchestra under the able bâton of Mr. Augustus Greco. The crowded audiences attracted at both houses nightly have their comfort well studied by the indefatigable manager, Mr. T. S. Mayne, who has an alert assistant-manager in Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.

HOCKEY.

Norman V. Norman Co. v. Aldrington Hockey Club (Mixed), Brighton.

A return match, played at Filsham Park, Hastings, on Oct. 16, and resulting in a loss for the Norman V. Norman Co. by 3 goals to 6. At half-time the scores stood thus—Aldrington 5, Norman Co. nil, but in the second half matters were greatly improved by the Norman Co., who obtained 3 goals while their opponents increased their score by only 1. The 3 goals for the Norman Co. were secured by W. Howard Ashley.

Norman V. Norman Team.—Sybil Ruskin, Sam Wilkinson, and Betty Stannard, backs; Brember Wills, W. Roberts Marshall, and Bernard Elliott, half-backs; Norman V. Norman, Dorothy West-Symes, W. Howard Ashley, Hilda Gregory, and Kenneth Bruce, forwards.

"The Beast and the Beauty" Co. v. Middlesbro' Y. Club.

Played on Tuesday, Oct. 16, on the Middlesbro' Y. Club ground, and, after a well-contested game, resulted in a win for the home team by 7 goals to 5.

"Beast and Beauty" XI.—Miss Bowes, Miss Camp, Messrs. Eric Campbell, Wm. Fraser Brunner, H. Talbot, H. Winlpenny, S. Vivian, A. Wood, W. H. Gainsford, Chas. Russell, and W. B. Passmore. H. Winlpenny and Wm. Fraser Brunner scored 2 goals each and W. H. Gainsford 1 goal.

Mrs. Barsby, the widow of the late Frank Barsby, died at Junction-road, Upper Holloway, on Thursday, the 1st inst., and was interred in Finchley Cemetery last Tuesday. Mrs. Barsby, who had been in receipt of a small weekly allowance from the Actors' Benevolent Fund, had some years ago addressed a letter to Mr. Coltson, the secretary, and had desired a friend not to post it to him until after her death. The following is a copy of the letter:—

137, Junction-road, Upper Holloway.

To the Gentlemen of the Benevolent Fund.

Gentlemen,

When you receive these few lines I shall have passed away. Please accept my sincere and heartfelt thanks for all the kind help I have received from you. God bless and prosper the Fund, and follow with His blessings and prosperity each one belonging to it, is the earnest prayer of—

Yours gratefully,
E. A. BARSBY.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Alfred Saker, of the firm of musical and dramatic agents bearing his name, has just been the recipient of a handsome 18-carat gold club medal of the Manchester Harriers, suitably engraved, a presentation from the members of that noted organisation, in acknowledgment of his interest and generosity. Mr. Saker was the president of the club at its formation in 1896, and continued in that office for the succeeding nine years, during which time the club achieved many honours. Mr. Saker, being now resident in London, has consequently had to relinquish his presidential position.

MR. BERT WESTON has been scoring heavily in the North with Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.'s bright comedy song, "There's always room for a girl." It is not generally known that this song is absolutely free for halls and pantomimes. Permission must, however, be first obtained.

"THE ERA" LETTER-BOX.

A Stamped Envelope, plainly addressed, must be enclosed with application for each Letter. Letters, after lying at this Office for One Month, are forwarded to the Postal Authorities, to be returned to the Senders.

A TESTIMONIAL SMOKING CONCERT is to be given to Mr. Edwin Croueste, the veteran jester and late circus proprietor, in celebration of the fiftieth year of his first appearance in the circus profession. This compliment to Mr. Croueste, who is about to visit Australia and the East as manager of Fitzgerald's Circus and Menagerie, will be paid in the club room of the "Fish and Quart" Hotel, Churchgate, Leicester, on Thursday next. A strong committee includes Mr. Harry Rickards, the famous Australian entrepreneur, who has headed the subscription list with five guineas, and the hon. secretary and treasurer is Mr. John White, of 224, Fosse-road, Leicester.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.—"The Era" Annual again makes its welcome appearance. I say welcome because, as a work of theatrical reference, it is always handy to have in the house—or office. In this connection I am glad to note that the lists of play-productions for the past year are given in better type and altogether in a much clearer manner. As of yore, there are sundry stories in prose and verse. The best of these include "Stage Superstitions," by Charles Warner; "Boy Bob at Sea," a poem by Louie Freear; "The Last Muster," a weird tragic military story, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, who has been a soldier himself; and "Nellie Bligh's Notices," a capital theatrical story, by Mr. Frank Desprez.—Referee, Jan. 28, 1906.

THE CHARACTER OF CLEOPATRA.

Mr. BEERBOHM TREE'S forthcoming revival of Antony and Cleopatra at His Majesty's will be an event of intense interest to all lovers of SHAKESPEARE. The play has never been performed "for all that it is worth," for a rather curious reason. The leading female character is an exception to most of SHAKESPEARE'S women. They are, as a rule, simple; CLEOPATRA is very various, subtle, and complex. The station and fate of the creature have given a false grandeur to ideas of her. The result is that the part of CLEOPATRA has always been approached from the stately tragic point of view. The ideal of its impersonatresses has been—to put it as decently as possible—that of a Royal Nautch-Girl or Favourite of the Harem. ANTONY is conceived as a common sensualist, one of CIRCE'S swine, who wallows in the trough of Egyptian luxury till he is physically and mentally debased. It is the word "Egyptian" combined with the blank verse in which much of CLEOPATRA'S dialogue is written that has led our actresses astray. "Egyptian" is the equivalent for heavy majesty, thick-lipped, languorous dignity. Mrs. YATES, for instance, so good as Lady Macbeth—Lady Macbeth, from the heavy tragedienne's point of view, bien entendu—made no impression at all as CLEOPATRA; and most of those who followed her, from the SIDDONS downwards, fell into the same error and attained the same inadequacy.

The error is the more extraordinary because the facts are so plain. CLEOPATRA was not an Egyptian at all, but a Greek, the daughter of the 12th PTOLEMY, called Auletes. The PTOLEMYS were pure Greeks, descendants of the first of the name who invaded Asia in the army of ALEXANDER. CLEOPATRA, therefore, was no more an Egyptian than the present Viceroy of India is a Hindoo. In the vestibule of the British Museum is a bust of CLEOPATRA. It is the exact opposite of the Oriental type, having small, refined features, the lips being distinctly Greek in the refinement of their modelling. It is not especially beautiful. As a matter of historical fact, CLEOPATRA was not so. PLUTARCH tells us that her appearance was not strikingly handsome, but that "her company and conversation were so sweet that a man could not possibly be taken." She never wearied her lovers. SHAKESPEARE emphasises this early in the play, saying:

> Other women cloy
> The appetite they feed; but she makes hungry
> Where most she satisfies.

And he explains, in terms, the secret of her success: "her infinite variety."

The reason why the part has never been played in a way to get all out of it that can be extracted lies, chiefly, in the difficulty of getting an actress with enough of the comédienne in her for the earlier passages of the drama, and at the same time sufficient weight and tragic grandeur for the later scenes. The peculiar suppleness of CLEOPATRA'S character—the way in which she plays upon every trait in ANTONY'S character, and turns and winds with every alteration in his mood, as a greyhound does in following the course of a hare—cannot be represented by an actress occupied only with the purely pompous and tragic portion of the part, and who takes TALFOURD'S view of CLEOPATRA as a "figure of voluptuous majesty." The fact is, CLEOPATRA, till towards the end of the play, is neither voluptuous nor majestic. She "chaffs" ANTONY, she teases him, she shows now and then for a moment the genuine physical passion she feels for him, she makes indelicate jokes, she thrashes ANTONY'S messenger, she plays "the giddy goat," she joins in the desperate debauch with which he drowns reflection in the course of his downfall; but, until the approach of her suicide, she is nothing more or less than an exquisitely skilful manageress of men, understanding them with instantaneous insight, and acting on that understanding like the artist in craft and cajolery that she is. No doubt part of the spell exercised by CLEOPATRA was animal; but it was only a small part compared with her great gift of interesting and amusing the individual, flattering and irritating her victims, and keeping them always excited and diverted. All this is lost when the part is approached from the SIDDONS point of view, and not at all from the standpoint of REJANE.

The idea of a King not as a First Citizen and Father of his People, but as a magnificent animal of prey, was strongly prevalent in Tudor times. In the earlier part of the play, SHAKESPEARE'S tremendous knowledge of the class to which CLEOPATRA belongs made him draw her and ANTONY realistically as the shallow-brained professional soldier and the ultra-cunning courtesan that they were. But, on the Elizabethan stage, kings and queens could not die like ordinary people; they must speechify, orate, and pretend—in short, play a part as Royalty in real life was expected to do. The fault, however, of misconception is not SHAKESPEARE'S, but our own. We take all the "high-falutin'" speeches of CLEOPATRA before her suicide as genuine; he shows us that its real motive was the petty one of vanity—she would not be "exhibited" in Rome. It is our own fault if we are blind to the obvious meaning of the great realist, and, dazed by the "queenly" airs and graces of his great histrionic hetaira and her tragic end, overlook the absolute truth of his depiction of the consummate comédienne and charmeuse.

THEATRICAL MASONRY.

The members of the Green Room Lodge No. 2,957 met at the Imperial Restaurant on the 2nd inst. Mr. Herbert Leonard, Worshipful Master, raised Mr. Arthur Hatherton to the third degree, and initiated Mr. Matheson Lang into the mysteries of the Order. Mr. Harry Nicholls, P.G. Std. Br., assisted Mr. Gerald Maxwell as I.P.M., and the officers of the day, Messrs. Akerman May (S.W.), E. Vivian Reynolds (J.W.), Charles Cruikshanks, A.G. Std. Br. (Sec.), E. H. Bull (S.D.), Charles Macdona (J.D.), Jas. W. Mathews (D.C.), Edward Jones (Orgt.), and Geo. Grossmith, jun. (I.G.), officiated in the most accomplished and accurate style. Messrs. W. Lestocq (P.M.), Fredk. Annerley, A. E. George, J. Cooke Beresford, Sydney Lawrence, Thalberg Corbett, Gerald du Maurier were present as members of the Lodge; and Messrs. Dr. W. Wilson, Welton Dale, A. Lyall, and C. E. Wright (P.G.D.), visitors. Messrs. Wilfred Draycott and Welton Dale were nominated as joining members, Mr. Leslie Stiles being nominated as a candidate for initiation. At the dinner which followed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk. The manner in which the ceremonial was carried through in the earlier part of the evening reflected the highest credit on those concerned, and the utmost good fellowship prevailed at the dinner, which was a most pleasant one.

The second meeting of the session of the "Earl's Court" Lodge of Freemasons was held on Thursday evening at the Trocadero Restaurant, under the presidency of Mr. Shirl Mussell, P.C., J.S., W.M., assisted by Lieut.-Col. Blunt, Messrs. A. J. Taylor, C. Hutt, and W. S. Lyon, Past Masters; E. S. Jones, S. W. Gilbert, S.W., A. J. Taylor, J.W., O. Saunders, J.G., C. Betts, P.M., secretary, and John Worth P.M., treasurer. After the minutes of the last Lodge meeting had been confirmed, the W.M. invested Mr. T. Leete P.M. of the "City of London" Lodge, and one of the founders of the "Earl's Court" Lodge as J.W., he having been absent on the night of installation through domestic affliction. The W.M. initiated Mr. G. P. Turner, and raised Messrs. Mosely and Burdock. After some discussion as to the form it should take, it was unanimously carried that a ladies' invitation night should be held on the second Thursday in January, the entertainment to consist of a banquet and concert. Members and visitors, amongst whom were Messrs. Hunter, F. H. Pedgrift, Shaw, &c., adjourned to the Connaught Rooms and partook of a well-served banquet. The evening was enlivened by a musical entertainment, contributed by Messrs. Arthur Bates, Robert Shaw, Leon Atkinson, Arthur Newton, John Gill, and that clever character vocalist, Mr. Harry Sims.

BLOEMFONTEIN, OCT. 15.—GRAND THEATRE (Proprietors, The Grand Hotel and Theatre Co., Ltd.).—Mr. Leonard Rayne and company concluded a most interesting season on Wednesday, the 10th inst. The initial performance in Bloemfontein of The Prodigal Son evoked much interest. The mounting and all-round excellence of the production were keenly appreciated by large audiences. Mr. Frank Beresford in the title-rôle, and Mr. Leonard Rayne as Magnus, scored heavily. Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, also seen for the first time here, with Mr. C. Howitt as Raffles, proved highly popular. The Christian was presented on the 8th, and Mr. Leonard Rayne's excellent portrayal of John Storm again gained the highest encomiums. Such old favourites as The Harbour Lights, The Two Little Vagabonds, East Lynne, and A Royal Divorce were played during the visit, and elicited much enthusiasm. Mr. Rayne was ably supported in the various pieces by a capital company, which included Messrs. Frank Beresford, C. Howitt, Fred W. Carter, Harry C. Paine, G. Clifton Boyne, and Mesdames Gertrude F. Godart, Constance Elgin, Freda Godfrey, and Maude Stewart Drewry. Mr. Rayne produced for the first time on any stage a curtain-raiser, from the pen of a local playwright, Mr. R. Brighten Salisbury, entitled A Chaperon Extraordinary. It is of the farcical order, brightly written, and was followed with considerable merriment, and lost nothing in its portrayal by Messrs. Harry C. Paine, Frank Beresford, and Misses Constance Elgin and Maude Stewart Drewry.

A NEW version of Nell Gwyn by Mr. Alaric Burton was produced on Friday, the 2nd inst., at the Athenæum, Glasgow. It rejoices in the imposing title of Nell Gwyn, the Orange Girl of Drury Lane; or, A Heart of Gold, and the various parts were played by members of the Henry Talbot Dramatic Club.

THE Pioneers will begin their season with a four-act piece, entitled On the Side of the Angels. It is a play of modern life, by Mr. W. L. Courtney, and will be given at the Royalty Theatre on Sunday, Dec. 16.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 8.—Herr Herzog holds a high place among our writers as a novelist, a "feuilletonist," and a writer of plays. He is always interesting; his language is always far above the average, and at the same time never stilted. In his latest work he gives us some very dramatic pictures of Venice towards the end of the Middle Ages. The equestrian statue of Coleone by the famous sculptor Andrea del Verocchio, which stands before the church of San Giovanni e Paolo at Venice, evidently gave the author his motif. Round this most brutal and powerful of all the Condottieri, Bartolomeo Coleone, Herr Herzog has built up his play, with some historical accuracy, but more powerful imagination. The hero, having lived his life and drained the cup of enjoyment and power to the dregs, feels his end is near. Two great ambitions still govern him, one to be immortalised in bronze in St. Mark's Square, the other to gain the love of Dogaressa, Princess of Ferrara. In the latter he is successful, and in the former matter he fights with all his wonted tenacity. Weak as he grows, he at length becomes the prey of Giovanni Nemo, his natural son, whose existence he has hitherto ignored, and who hates him in consequence. Giovanni compels his father to attend the Council of Ten—although he cannot stand—to serve his own sinister purpose. During a speech made by Coleone, in which he fights for his own monument with convulsive energy, death overtakes him. Giovanni manages to conceal the catastrophe from the others, and finishes his father's speech, advocating, and finally gaining, the rank of generalissimo for himself. This scene is the most powerful in the play, and made a deep impression upon the audience. Giovanni also becomes his father's successor in Dogaressa's favour, having inherited the greater part of Coleone's vices and characteristics. The interpretation of the piece was a good one, the best renderings being those of Herr Schmidt-Hässler and Frau Reisenhofer. Author and artists were compelled to appear repeatedly in response to the very cordial applause.

THE Spanish Cycle at the Neues Theatre is continuing at intervals its successful course—successful, at least, as far as public interest goes. Artistically speaking, one is tempted to ask why the manager has selected Spanish plays. The one chosen for last Saturday was Perez-Galdos' five-act serious play The Grandfather. At the opening of the piece we are tempted to think it is a comedy that is set before us, and the illusion overpowers us not infrequently throughout the evening. The grandfather is Count von Albeit, a grandee of very ancient lineage, but without any fortune whatever. Where he lost his money we do not learn; in fact, there are many details of which we are kept in the dark. His eldest son has died and left two little daughters, one of whom is supposed to have no claim to her father's name. The mother is a beautiful, but erring, American. The old Count spends his time in trying to discover which child is the rightful heiress. In the end it is proved that the one for whom he does not care is the legitimate grandchild, while Dolly—the little girl who has crept into his heart—is a waif and stray. The two are evidently meant for each other, in spite of adverse circumstances, and Dolly forsakes her wealthy mother to cast in her lot with the penniless old man. A good deal of pains has been expended on the performance, Herr Schildkraut (our latest Shylock), of the Deutsches, giving the name-part.

MISS GERALDINE FARRAR, the young American prima donna of our Royal Opera, has left Berlin for the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Seldom has a foreigner found so firm a footing in German hearts as has this handsome young artist, who came here quite unknown five years ago. Whereas Miss Farrar then sang only in Italian, she has now mastered the difficulties of the German tongue, and sings all her rôles in that language. Her farewell performance was the same as her opening one—Gounod's Margarete, as the Germans always call the opera to distinguish it from Goethe's Faust. The Opera House was crowded to the last place, their Imperial Majesties the Crown Prince and Princess and Princess Eitel being present. Miss Farrar was in splendid voice, and looked as lovely as ever. She was bidden to the Imperial box, and overwhelmed with flattering and kindly words and presented with jewelled souvenirs. It will be difficult to fill her place here.

"TRIPLEPATTE" has passed its fiftieth consecutive performance at the Residenz, and, judging from the storms of hearty laughter that shook the house, it will certainly see at least another fifty. Herr Richard Alexander is exquisitely funny in the rôle of Vicomte Houdan, and—well supported as he is—the success of the piece is due in great measure to him.

THE Bernhard-Rose Theatre—known under its former management as the Carl Weiss—is doing good business with a sensational play called Ausgewiesen, while, as an afternoon performance for juveniles, Robin Crusoe is holding the boards on Saturdays and Sundays.

THE Freie Volksbühne gave a performance at the Berliner on Sunday before a fairly large and very appreciative audience. Two plays that were given here some years ago had been selected—Heyerman's Ora et Labora and Gustav Wied's Eine Abrechnung—each of which was detailed in your columns at its first production. The pieces were admirably interpreted on Sunday, Herren Merten, Benzinger, and Heyse, and other esteemed artists taking part.

THE No. 2 Gardner-Brown company of vaudeville stars arrived at Bombay on Sept. 13, per S.S. Sydney. The company, which was engaged in England by Mr. Leo Montague, on behalf of Mr. D. Gardner-Brown, has already scored a distinct success, and at present is playing in Lucknow. Bert Swan and Marie Vesta are doing well in the duologues, In Nelson's Days, &c.; and Miss Jeanette Latour's fine voice has created a great impression. Mr. Leo Montague, comedian, repeats the success achieved by him on previous tours; Miss Marie Robin scores with catchy songs and smart dancing; and Miss Florrie Farren is cordially received. Mr. Sam Ives, ball puncher, is an interesting turn; the illustrated songs are as popular as ever; and the Gardner-Brown Bioscope, with new pictures, is an ever favourite feature. The programme is under the stage-management of Mr. Leo Montague, and Mr. C. E. Mumford is a capable musical director.

THE Bandmann Opera Company, after an extremely successful season in Calcutta, is now playing to crowded houses in Bombay.

WARREN'S circus, at Calcutta, and Abel's circus, at Jubbulpore, both report big business.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, NOV. 8.—Bright, witty, and a bit sentimental, the new comedy brought out at the Variétés met with a reception that augurs well for its future career. Mme. Grandier, widow of a Government official, keeps a tobacco shop in Chateau-Thierry, and Miquette, her only daughter, assists her in the business. Miquette is of a romantic disposition. She reads poetry, and her delight is to go to the play when Monchablon, the famous impresario, comes with his company to the small provincial town. Urbain, who has been adopted by his uncle, the Marquis de la Tour Mirande, has fallen in love with her. But Urbain is a timid youth, and he has to make an heroic effort to ask Miquette to become his wife. And when she tells him that she likes him, he is intensely happy. His happiness, however, is not shared by his uncle. The latter wants his nephew to marry an heiress, and, with the view of putting a stop to this love idyll, he calls on the Grandiers. Poor little Miquette is overcome with grief when she hears that the uncle will not consent to her marriage with Urbain; but she has made a deep impression on the Marquis, an old beau, who has his own design on her. Miquette promises not to see Urbain again, and speaks of leaving Chateau-Thierry. The Marquis advises her to do so, and, as she is anxious to become an actress, he places his house in Paris at her disposal. Miquette accepts his offer, and starts off for Paris. In the second act we are in the capital, in the Marquis's house. We find there the Marquis, and also Mme. Grandier, who followed her daughter. Miquette accepts presents from the old beau, but refuses to become his mistress; and as she is more than ever decided to join the "profession," she sends for Monchablon, the impresario, and the scene wherein the latter makes the girl recite is intensely funny. He finally engages her at a salary of eight shillings a day, and her mother at three shillings. Miquette makes an excellent début, and the Marquis is delighted, although his protégée still keeps him at a distance. Every week, however, she receives a bouquet of violets, with a letter, wherein the writer declares his love. Miquette wonders who this unknown lover can be, not guessing it is Urbain, who remains faithful to her. And when at last she discovers it is Urbain, and wants to see him, Monchablon dissuades her from engaging herself to the youth, and she writes Urbain a letter of farewell. But the Marquis sees clear into everything. Moreover, he has learned to know and appreciate Miquette, and he is ashamed of the rôle he wanted to play in the affair. He pleads his nephew's cause with Miquette, and, having engaged them to one another, he offers his hand and his title to Mme. Grandier, who is still very handsome, and whose beautiful arms he admires. The authors owe much to their exponents. There are only two important woman's rôles in the piece: those of Mme. Grandier and of her daughter, and they were in the able hands of Mme. Marie Magnier and Mlle. Lavallière. Both acted admirably. Mlle. Laporte supplied an amusing sketch of Périne, Mme. Grandier's servant, a native from Brittany, who looks shocked when she is called "Miss" after Miquette has become a "star." MM. Brasseur, Prince, and Max Dearly were also in great form.

"BIRIBI,"
Play, in Three Acts, by MM. Georges Darien and Marcel Lauras, Produced at the Théâtre Antoine, on Nov. 5.

Jean	M. GEMIER
Colonel Bernard	M. COLAS
Commandant	M. GODEAU
Capitaine	M. MONTLOUIS
Lieutenant	M. MAXENCE
Sergeant Caponi	M. JARRIER
Sergeant Hartmann	M. DALLEU

Nancy	MLLE. EVEN
La Comtesse	MLLE. IRENE MUZA

Biribi is the slang name by which soldiers allude to the terrible "disciplinary battalions" in North Africa, to which not only the French criminal classes are sent, but also those guilty of a breach of discipline. One of the authors of the piece—M. Darien—has had a practical experience of Biribi. Having given a saucy reply to a corporal who had insulted him, he was sent out to Africa, and, after his return to France, published a book, describing all he had seen and heard in that fearful country, where, as he poetically put it, "the shadows are mauve and the nights red." His disclosures created a deep impression, and, in the play just brought out at the Théâtre Antoine—or, as it will be known in future, the Théâtre Gémier—we witness several scenes described in the book. Jean is the son of Colonel Bernard, a sort of martinet. Jean is a dreamer, a poet, and when he goes off for his military service he soon gets from his superiors a bad character for not attending to his duties. One day he breaks out of barracks to see his cousin, with whom he is in love. But his father—a kind of modern Brutus—denounces him. Jean is arrested, tried by court martial, and sent to the disciplinary battalions, to "Biribi," to be banded with the very worst characters. And then follow a series of tableaux, wherein we witness such fearful cruelties that we begin to hope that these pictures of life in these awful battalions are a little overdrawn. Those who try to escape are tortured in the most inhumane fashion, and, to the poor wretches of soldiers, suicide seems the only way out of their trouble. On the night of the première the audience became fearfully excited, and the authors, in response to the loud applause, were compelled to make their bow to the audience, which is rarely if ever done in a Paris theatre. As Jean, M. Gémier had a great opportunity of displaying his great histrionic powers, and the remainder of the cast rendered excellent service. The drama is followed by Chez les Zoaques, an amusing sketch by M. Sacha Guitry, son of the actor-manager of the Renaissance. Henri Cordelier, five-and-twenty years older than his wife, discovers that the latter is the mistress of his friend Gustave, a famous explorer. But the resourceful Gustave gets well out of the difficulty. He speaks of his travels, and narrates to Henri that the Zoaques—a tribe of his own invention—consider that all women are public property. They are highly respected, but nobody troubles about their actions. And he succeeds in convincing Henri that the best thing is to do like the "Zoaques." The smartly-written piece was received with much laughter.

MR. TOM LEO has made a good impression with his song "Too lazy to live" at the Chelsea Palace during the week. He has placed a special commission for what promises to be a laughable novelty with Maurice Scott, who, by the way, is on the point of opening an establishment for the sale of popular music in High-street, Camden Town.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

SIR WILLIAM PURDIE TRELOAR, the new Lord Mayor of London, has endeared himself to all hearts by his kindly thought of the little suffering cripples of the metropolis. His charity has expanded in other directions, too, and he was chairman at the Music Hall Benevolent Fund dinner in 1906, when he made a successful appeal on behalf of the chief professional charity.

MR. WALTER GIBBONS is getting along famously, and sends cheery messages daily from Banstead to his staff in Durham House-street through the assiduous Mr. Reed, his chief. Though he will, of course, be unable to be present at the grand inauguration of the Brixton Hippodrome (late Theatre), on Dec. 1, he will be very far on the road to convalescence.

MISS ADA REEVE has signed a contract to go to America, and will leave these shores early in January, to fulfil an eight weeks' engagement at £400 a week. The business has been done through Mr. Harry Day, who was also instrumental in obtaining for this famous comedienne her recent lucrative engagements in the provinces.

THE Oxford and the Tivoli are doing particularly well, and it is not surprising to hear that the directors of the former house have declared an interim dividend at the rate of eight per cent., and that the price of Tivoli shares is rising.

MR. GEORGE ROSEY ostensibly went to the Cape in quest of health, but has apparently been persuaded to appear at the Empire, Johannesburg, where his great London reputation was immediately confirmed by the Rand burghers on his opening night.

MR. JOE O'GORMAN, who has concluded his most successful engagements at Johannesburg and Capetown, will arrive at the old country on Saturday next, in time to take part, we hope, in the matinée given on the 19th at the London Pavilion by the Water Rats, of which fraternity he is a very popular member. He has discovered that Irish comedy is just as popular on the Rand as it was in the palmy days of Dion Boucicault's Hibernian plays at the Adelphi and the Princess's.

MR. HENRY TOZER, one of the directors of the Syndicate halls, has again been elected as councillor for the City of Westminster, for the Covent Garden ward. Mr. Fred McAvoy, the manager of the Euston had a busy time canvassing, but felt himself fully rewarded for his exertions by the handsome majority secured by his candidate.

MR. TOM CRAVEN has arranged to collaborate with Mr. Will Evans in the production of more sketches, which are to be of a dramatic as well as farcical order. The instantaneous and pronounced success of The Mystery of the Cliff, for which these two popular comedians are responsible, is the cause of this collaboration.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS sailed from New York on Tuesday per s.s. Caronia for Liverpool. On his arrival he will have one or two days in London, arranging business, before rehearsing pantomime at Glasgow. He has had three very flattering offers, one of them to star in a play, and another to head a company and travel in vaudeville. On Monday, the night before he sailed, the young actor-vocalist was entertained at a big Dickens dinner, at which many notabilities were present, among them Dr. Leipzeger, one of the first scholars in New York, and the supervisor of lectures on the Board of Education there.

IT is an everyday occurrence now for an actor or actress to desert the legitimate for the variety stage; but when Mr. Mark Kinghorne—whose death is announced in another column—went to the Oxford in the early 'seventies to sing and play his own compositions the practice was rare. In the 'eighties Mr. Kinghorne was seen in a sketch founded on the legend of "Rip Van Winkle," and produced at the Middlesex. In the days of his youth Scotch comic songs were not the vogue, or else he was so delightfully quaint that he might have been the Harry Lauder of his time. In the character of an English rustic he was also very fine; and his David in The Rivals was ripe and genuine low comedy.

THE theatrical chronicler of a halfpenny daily informs the public quite seriously that Mr. W. Farren, jun., is by way of appearing in the new ballet at the Empire as a dancing master. The actor we know is decidedly versatile, but he certainly is not an expert dancer. Mr. Fred Farren is. Mr. W. Farren is not, however, entirely a stranger to the variety boards. We remember him years since as the captain of the Kaikoura in the earlier presentations of The Little Stowaway at the Paragon, when the unapproachable Jenny Hill played the title-rôle of Mr. Fred Bowyer's popular sketch so magnificently. An even more interesting appearance of Mr. W. Farren's was when he played Sir Peter Teazle in a tentative production at the Canterbury of the "Screen" scene from The School for Scandal—an unsuccessful experiment.

WHEN the new East Ham Palace is opened—which is expected to take place about the end of the year—it will be found that the event will materially affect the gentlemen at present connected with the Walthamstow Palace. Mr. Arthur J. Barclay is entrusted with the joint management of both houses; Mr. A. E. Hill, who has been head of the box-office at Walthamstow since the day the house was opened, has been appointed acting-manager at East Ham; while Mr. Geo. F. Slatter, Mr. Barclay's coadjutor from the beginning, remains at Walthamstow as acting-manager, with plenary powers in Mr. Barclay's absence.

MR. FRED TRUSSELL, universally known as one of the most popular and respected managers of note in London, was the recipient of some quite unexpected presents from the members of his staff at the London Hippodrome on Monday. Although he had forgotten it was his forty-eighth birthday, the "boys" had not, and the latter raided his office in the early morning, and without ceremony forced upon him the following gifts:—Mr. H. C. Wild (treasurer), Mr. Arthur C. Hicks (assistant-manager), Mr. W. A. Redfern, &c., a very handsome gold and amber cigar-holder in morocco case. This present from his immediate confrères was supplemented by a magnificent gold watch, subscribed for by the uniformed staff, and inscribed with the names of the donors. From the officers controlling the interests of the box-office came a silver shaving set. The after proceedings included impromptu speeches and other good things.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES COLLETTE were amongst the Lord Mayor's guests at his banquet at the Guildhall last night.

DELIBES' delightful ballet Coppélia is still proving so attractive at the Empire that there may be some further delay in the production of Mr. Wilhelm's new ballet, although the rehearsals are so far forward that the original date for the first performance, November 15, may still be adhered to. No title has yet been given to it, although the inventor is inclined to The Odalisque, which is the name of the supposed ballet being rehearsed at the opera house in which Mlle. Genée as a novice, steps into the place vacated by the première danseuse. In this scene Fred Farren is Pirouette, maître de danse, and Mr. Sundberg a foreign Baron—a patron of the ballet. In the second part of the ballet—a typical scene representing the gardens of the Seraglio—Mlle. Genée is the chief Odalisque.

MR. A. RISD is succeeding Mr. J. A. Newton as resident manager at the Empire Theatre, Coventry.

THE wife of Mr. George Saphrini, lessee and manager of the Palace, Boston, is, we regret to say, dangerously ill.

MR. F. V. ST. CLAIR must have been much chagrined at having to cancel his London engagements this week through severe catarrh. He is recuperating in the delightful air of his new estate near Whitchurch, Salop.

THE committee of inspection appointed by the shareholders of the Coliseum at their recent meeting at the Empire, Cardiff, Mr. Edw. Nicholl presiding, proposed a scheme of reconstruction involving the issue of new debentures and the creation of new ordinary shares. In the event of the scheme being accepted there will be about £30,000 working capital.

AMONG Miss Vesta Tilley's successful songs at the Manchester Palace this week are "I am a bachelor'" and "Jolly good luck to the girl who's fond of a soldier," which have been fitted with tuneful melodies by Mr. Kenneth Lyle, a rising young composer who hails from Cottonopolis.

AT the Hippodrome, Liverpool, on Tuesday, an accident to the fireproof curtain, by which one of the suspending wire ropes gave way, prevented it being raised. This occurred just before the commencement of the first performance, and, in consequence, Mr. Walter Hassan, the acting-manager, closed the house for the night. On Wednesday evening the curtain had been repaired. An attendant named Roberts, whose toes were injured by the falling of one of the balance weights, was taken to the Royal Infirmary.

MR. HARRY BOWERMAN, acting-manager of the Queen's Theatre, Glasgow, recently closed by a magisterial order, was on Friday evening, the 2nd inst., accorded a complimentary benefit in the New Gaiety Theatre there. It extended over both performances, and very large audiences testified to the popularity of the gentleman named.

THE fine drama, The Two Orphan Girls, was presented, and a galaxy of well-known artistes testified to the esteem they held for Mr. Bowerman, who very neatly acknowledged his indebtedness and thanked all who assisted in the success achieved.

AMONG those who assisted were the following:—Barney Armstrong, N. C. Bostock, The Three Prestons, Cosgrove and Burns, Jos. Barker, Alf. Gibson, Vesta Ray, The Daniels, Nellie Elliene, Sisters Bathurst, Lizzie Leaver, Minnie Thornton, G. Leyton, Ethel Loftus, A. Lester, T. E. Conover, Barney Kane, and several well-known local performers.

AT the Palace, Bristol, on Monday evening, the 52nd anniversary of the battle of Inkerman, a number of veterans attended on the invitation of Mr. Horace Livermore, and £11 14s. 3d. was collected for their benefit, in addition to about £19 derived from services held in the Palace on Sunday. The Rev. J. Wain, on behalf of the veterans, thanked Mr. Livermore for the interest he had taken in the matter.

AT the Putney Hippodrome the barring clause has been enforced in the case of Miss Kate Carney by the management of the Granville, Walham Green, which is run under a working agreement with the Moss and Stoll companies. Mr. Justice Bucknill granted an interim injunction on Wednesday.

MR. JOHN H. STRINGER, the late manager of the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Sunderland, was, at the Bells Hotel, Sunderland, on Saturday, presented with some gifts at the hands of theatrical and other friends, as marks of the great esteem in which he is held by them. Many of the officials of Messrs. Rosen and Bliss were present. Mr. Stringer has left the North to fill a more important position with the firm in London.

CLOWN ZERTHO, whose address was given as the Hippodrome, Huddersfield, was summoned at the Bolton Borough Court on Monday, at the instance of the Board of Agriculture, for that, being the owner or person in charge of performing dogs, he did not have the licence for the removal of the dogs endorsed. The dogs, numbering twenty-seven, had been removed from Stockton to the Grand Theatre, Bolton, where they were to appear, having been imported into the country on Aug. 22 for performing purposes. The accommodation suggested in the town was not approved of by the Board of Agriculture. In imposing a fine of 1s. for each of the twenty-seven dogs, and costs, the justices considered defendant had acted ignorantly in the matter. On the application of the inspector, half the fine was ordered to be paid to the Board of Agriculture.

THE friends of Mr. John Duncan will be interested to know that he has given up his appointment at Dundee, and is now installed as assistant-manager of Mr. John Henry Cooke's Circus, Edinburgh.

BOLTON, it is understood, will, before long, possess another music hall. The matter is stated to be in the hands of a Rochdale company, and the site spoken of is the westerly end of Deansgate.

MR. EDWIN CROUESTE'S complimentary and testimonial smoking concert, to be held in his honour previous to his departure for Australia as manager for the celebrated Fitzgerald Circus and Menagerie, will take place on Thursday evening next, Nov. 15, at The Fish and Quart Hotel, Leicester. The subscription list, full particulars of which will be published in The Era, has been liberally patronised by Mr. Croueste's numerous friends, professional and otherwise, in every part of the kingdom. We wish him every success.

MRS. ARTHUR AISTON being indisposed the latter half of last week at the Hippodrome, St. Helens, and the first half of this week at the Hippodrome, Ashton, Mr. Fred Willmot and Mr. W. B. Broadhead kindly allowed her husband, Mr. Arthur Aiston, to perform his ventriloquial act instead of presenting the well-known double act (Ruby and Arthur Aiston). Mrs. Aiston is now quite convalescent, and resumed business again on Wednesday.

MR. MICHAEL NOLAN has bought the music-hall rights of that great Irish recitation, "Murphy must not sing to-night," from Mr. J. L. Shine.

MR. W. F. FRAME, who has been winning success in Yarmouth this week, plays the Dame in Howard and Wyndham's pantomime, Dick Whittington, at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, this season.

MR. WILL CORNISH, the popular handbell soloist, to-night concludes twenty-eight weeks' tour of Moss's Empires, and is re-booked for the whole tour next year. He returns to London at Christmas.

"THE DANDY DUKE; OR, THE MAN WHO WASN'T," a two-act musical burlesque, by Vere Smith, will be given at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, for a week, beginning on Dec. 17, in aid of the Sussex County Hospital. The cast will include the popular Miss Margaret Cooper, who is now singing at the piano at the Palace Theatre. The piece was very successfully given at a Vaudeville matinée in June of last year.

MR. JACK EDGAR, we may again remind our readers, will take his complimentary benefit, by permission of Mr. Henri Gros and the directorate, at the Metropolitan on Thursday next, when a programme of considerable attractions will be given. There will, as usual, be a large muster of the beneficiaire's friends, both in front and behind.

THE historic Canterbury celebrates the fifty-fourth anniversary of its opening and the twenty-fourth under the present management on Thursday, Nov. 22, when Mr. G. A. Payne and the directors, with Mr. Fred Miller the manager, will be "at home" to an immense crowd of friends and well-wishers.

MR. ARTHUR LLOYD (of the Arthur Lloyd Trio) was presented by his wife with a fine daughter on Nov. 1, and both mother and child are doing very well indeed. Mr. Lloyd is the youngest son of the famous Arthur Lloyd, and, in company with his sisters, Lilli and Dulcie, starts another tour of the Moss and Stoll circuit, at the Empire, Sheffield, on Monday, in Little Charlie; or, The Twin Sisters.

MME. LYDIA YEAMANS TITUS and Mr. Fredk. J. Titus returned to England on the 2nd inst. by the North German Lloyd steamer Schornhorst, after a most successful tour through Australia and New Zealand. They have both greatly benefited by their trip, and are in the best of health.

THE usual weekly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held on Wednesday next at the York Hotel, when the illuminated address to the president (Mr. Pat Carey), on the occasion of his marriage, will be on view.

MR. HARRY CALDEN, of Calden's Comedy Company, produced on Oct. 1 a successful musical skit, in three scenes, entitled The Dandy Duke. As that title has already been appropriated, it has been decided to rename the piece The Deputy Duke.

MR. FRANK SEDDON has been appointed acting-manager at the Cambridge, where he is making himself very popular by his courteous manner and business-like methods.

"THE MYSTERIOUS CROSS," a novel and most puzzling illusion, will be introduced by Carlton, the comic card manipulator and conjurer, for the first time in London at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, it having been secured by Mr. G. Adney Payne. Mr. Hugh Jay Didcott is the pioneer.

MR. ALFRED BUTT invites every reader of The Era to send him a stamped addressed envelope to the Palace Theatre for a set of artistic postcards of Miss Maude Odell, the Sandow Symmetrion girl. All envelopes should be plainly marked in the top left-hand corner "Galatea."

WE regret to hear that Mr. Gerald V. O'Connolly, of the Publicity Department of Moss's Empires, has been confined to his bed by a severe attack of pleurisy. His friends are now rejoicing at his satisfactory progress on the road to convalescence.

MR. MAURICE A. HYMAN, sire of the popular Sydney, Edgar, and Aubrey Hyman, of South Africa and London, is happily completely recovered from his long indisposition. He was at the recent Licensed Victuallers' Asylum matinée at the Oxford, his first visit to a music-hall since July.

THE McNaughtons, at the finish of their pantomime engagement at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, will start for New York, where they are due to open at Percy Williams and Oscar Hammerstein's theatres, their engagement on the other side commencing on Feb. 25, 1907.

MISS LILY ARTHUR, who made her début at the Empress, Brixton, on Saturday evening last, was at once proclaimed a decisive success. The find is one of Mr. Billy Henderson's, father of May Henderson, who has visions of a big future for his juvenile protégée. Miss Arthur's father has appointed Mr. Henderson her sole business representative.

MR. CHARLES CASTLE (who has lately been representing Mr. Rosen's agency) has now joined forces with Mr. Richard Cass, of 30, Maiden-lane, as business-manager. Mr. Castle's late clients are asked to kindly make a note of the above change.

LAZERN, the Mystic, is giving at the Empire, Camberwell, this week, a clever and novel performance, his manipulation of water, handkerchiefs, flags, watches, bank-notes, &c., being well worth seeing. His turn is one of the chief items on the programme.

CONDENSED opera appears to have taken a firm hold at most variety theatres, and Mr. Ernest C. Gittins, the acting-manager of that old-established concern the Carl Rosa Company, is going right ahead with his bookings for his répertoire of grand opera sketches. Mr. Frank Pemberton will be the tenor, Miss Therese Gilbert the contralto, and Mlle. Adele Prescott the prima donna in Il Trovatore, Maritana, and The Bohemian Girl.

MR. HARRY RUSSON, who distinguished himself as a clever character actor in the late Revue at the Coliseum, has produced this week at the Euston a clever entertainment, which may be entitled "Character Studies," à la Chevalier.

MR. DAMER, stage-manager of the Palace Theatre, applied to Mr. Denman at Marlborough-street, on Monday, for licences to permit eight boys to take part in a song-scena, called The Sweetest Little Apple on the Tree. No objection being offered on the part of the Commissioner of Police, the licences were granted. The boys, Mr. Damer added, would appear at about 9.20, their performance lasting about fifteen minutes.

MENTAL telepathy is creating quite a sensation at the Alhambra, where Julius and Agnes Zancig present remarkable thought-reading experiments. The redoubtable Mr. Stead paid a visit to the house on Saturday to witness the show, and, in a chat with Mr. George Scott, confessed to having made a study of mental telepathy for many years past, and expressed himself as deeply interested in the feats of the Zancigs.

MR. HARRY GLYNN, of Messrs. Glynn's sketch company, was severely injured in the motor and tram collision last Saturday in Kennington-road. His medical attendant fears serious internal injuries, and it is not likely that Mr. Glynn will be able to fulfil any engagements for some time to come.

MR. GEORGE C. DOUGHTY on Saturday night last scored a brilliant and instantaneous success with Mr. W. P. Sheen's comedy sketch Captain Cupid, which is being rapidly booked by Mr. Ernest De Vere at the chief halls.

THE latest quotations of Music Hall Shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1¼; Canterbury, ⅜; Empire (15s pd), 1½; Do. (10s pd), 1; Lon. Pav. Ord., 4⅜; Do. Pref., 5; Lon. Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss Empire, 5; Do. 5 p.c. Pref., 3⅞; Oxford, 6¾; Palace, 11s.; Tivoli, 6½; Var. Cons. Theas., 15s.

LAVATER LEE, the Hippodrome droll, was amusing some children on Wednesday, at a lady's house, by playing the fiddle, when an expert who was present casually examined the instrument and discovered inside it the name of the great Stradivarius, with the date 1796. A close inspection convinced him that it was a genuine "Strad"; and the Hippodrome management is arranging a performance in which both Lavater Lee and his now much-valued possession shall play a part.

FOR the brilliant success of the recent banquet given to Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., by the Music Publishers' Association of the United States, the bulk of the credit must be awarded Isidore Witmark, head of the great house of M. Witmark and Sons. He looked after the details and the beauty and appropriateness of the souvenirs; the elegant table decorations, &c., were his work, and it kept him busy night and day for a week.

MR. HORACE JONES, who is appearing at the Empire, Cardiff, needs not to plead for a proper understanding of Welsh comedy, as he found by his recent pleasant experiences in Liverpool, where his phenomenal success secured for him bookings on the Stoll Tour, and five dates with Mr. D. J. Clarke, of the Argyle, Birkenhead. Mr. James Fioni, of Liverpool, is fast filling his date book.

REX KING is delighting Brixtonians at the Empress with his clever characters. In turn he appears as a French ventriloquist, a miser, a coster, a yokel, and a Chinaman. In the two first especially he appears to the greatest advantage, his make-up, voice, and gesture stamping him as an impersonator in the very front rank. His technique in his ventriloquial act is remarkable; and his fine command of facial expression, his vocal gift, and his versatility as an actor call for the highest praise. Applause of the heartiest character at the conclusion of his entertainment proclaims that he has made a decided hit.

AT the Chelsea Palace Cricket Club dinner at the Horseshoe on Sunday, in the absence of Mr. Edward Swanborough, the president, Mr. Leon Zeitlin took the chair, with Mr. J. Norman Berlin, the acting-manager, and Mr. Angelo A. Asher, chef d'orchestre of the Chelsea Palace, as vice-chairmen. After the various toasts, including that of "The Chelsea Palace," had been honoured, a capital concert followed, Mr. Zeitlin giving an enjoyable violin solo.

THE South London Palace is now undergoing the process of redecoration. The complete transformation of the appearance of the interior will be secured by the elaborate scheme of embellishment in progress.

FRAGSON has introduced a new song at the Tivoli, which is an English version of the wonderfully popular "La Petite Tonkinoise," which has been sung and played all over France. "Chin Chin Lu," which is the name of Fragson's song, bids fair to be as much the vogue in England as the original is on the Continent.

THE Alhambra on Monday exhibited a remarkable cinématograph picture, taken by Mr. Charles Urban, of the recent contest at the Sporting Club for the heavy-weight championship of England, between Gunner Moir, of the Royal Marine Artillery, and Jack Palmer, of Newcastle. To get this picture, an almost endless quantity of film was used, and a special installation of lighting had to be arranged.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD H. LUCAS have ended their successful South African tour, and open at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, on the 19th of this month. The two Dickensonians have every reason to be satisfied with their journey to the other side of the world, for they leave behind them a host of friends, and will be sure of a hearty welcome if ever they pay a return visit. Mr. Lucas was presented at Johannesburg with a bronze bust of Dickens, from an unknown admirer in the audience, and Mrs. Lucas has received any number of floral tributes.

MLLE. ADELINA GENÉE will be sorry to take leave of the delightful character of Swanilda, the Slav maiden in Coppélia, though her new part is full of interest. The famous danseuse thinks the work of the prima donna to-day to be far more elaborate than that of the old school. Taglioni and the rest of them had their poses and their slow movements. That would not satisfy modern audiences. They demand—as in the play—action, action, action; and, "believe me, the work is very fatiguing," says the star of the Empire. "But the future of ballet is assured. You can't do without dancing. It is eternal." But what are we to do without our Genée when she departs for America?

THE death is announced of Mr. George Burney, father of Mr. W. H. Burney, a director of Collins's and the London, Shoreditch. The deceased gentleman, who passed away on the 1st inst., was the chairman of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum for 1891, the anniversary festival of that year being presided over by the late Mr. Hamar Bass, M.P.

"Is our variety stage to be Anglicised completely?" asks an American paper. "At Hammerstein's, Victoria, last week were Mr. Bransby Williams, the Eight English Primroses, and Mr. Harry Tate." The Yankee journalist is unnecessarily exercised in his mind. Three American turns are often to be seen in one evening at the Palace Theatre, and yet no British newspaper sounds a note of alarm.

SENOR SARASATE is announced to play at the Soldene matinée at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday next. Sir Charles Wyndham will be unable to appear. A programme of remarkable interest will be given.

THE success of Gipsy Woolf on the Continent is quite phenomenal. The clever little lady and her troupe of piccaninnies are performing in the Norwegian capital. Writing from Christiania, Miss Woolf expresses her great regret at being unable to accept London offers for pantomime.

AT the London meeting of the International Artists' Lodge on Sunday Brother 176 took the chair, and welcomed a large number of members. Much correspondence was dealt with referring to legal and arbitration cases in hand. Letters were received from the solicitor of the Lodge stating that there were some members of the Lodge who had a dispute with an agent, and that the agent was willing to submit to arbitration. It was decided that the brothers be written to, and asked to agree to this for the honour of the Lodge.

THE following important proposition was made:—"That brothers and artists in the provinces be apprised of the vigorous manner in which London proprietors are applying the barring clause. By its working many London contracts now existing are not worth the paper they are written on." The proposer instanced himself as an example. On coming to London with the expectation of fulfilling engagements of very long standing, he found he was barred by one manager after the other. The seconder of the resolution expressed the opinion that a modified monopoly was a necessity, but when it threatened the livelihood of artists it was time it was looked into. The chairman thought the matter one of the utmost importance.

THE chairman deprecated the inclination of many members of associations to resign directly any small thing went wrong. It should be remembered that we all join societies to gain strength and unity, and that when we do that we agree to abide by a majority rule. Even if we do not believe in some point carried by the majority, outside we must behave as if we were absolutely one, and fight for the whole. Otherwise every society would become disunited, and therefore useless. One might enter a protest, but not threaten resignation at every moment. The legal committee for the month was then chosen.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS

MR. HARRY DACRE retired from the song-writing arena in 1904, in disgust at the wholesale piracy of his successful compositions. To mention only two songs out of many, over a million copies of his "I want to see the old home again" and "Good-bye, Mignonette," were sold by the street thieves. At the time of his retirement a greater number of Harry Dacre's songs than those of any other composer appeared on the seizure list.

His reappearance in his favourite rôle of "pantomime protagonist" is consequent upon the passing of the new Copyright Act, which, it is hoped, will completely stamp out the scandalous piracies. A small combination, trading as the Successful Song Syndicate, will issue his future works.

HARRY DACRE'S latest effort, the refrain of which appears on another page, is entitled "My Sugar Plum." The story it tells is delightfully fresh, and the music is certainly the catchiest that we have heard for some time.

MISS ANNIE PURCELL is a great attraction at the Oxford and Paragon this week. At the latter hall especially the whole of the audience, and even the attendants, are singing her chorus of "By the side of the Zuyder Zee." At the Aldwych Theatre, where Miss Maudie Darrell makes a hit with this song, they have some very taking business for the chorus of Dutchmen. Messrs. Feldman have undoubtedly secured a great winner in this number, which, needless to say, is being specially featured in every pantomime in the kingdom.

TOM COSTELLO is, as usual, a great favourite at the Metropolitan, where during the past week crowded houses have been the rule. Mr. Costello, attired as a smart Naval lieutenant, sings with great spirit a rousing march-time number "Nelson from his monument," which deals with the reduction of the Navy. Both apart from its topical significance, the melody of the chorus is so catchy that even those who fail to realise the seriousness of the subject matter nevertheless give vent to the words as though they were all members of the "Navy League." Tom predicts this refrain will become as popular as his famous song (by the same composer) "Sail away." Copies may be had from Mills and Scott.

MR. WHIT CUNLIFFE continues his triumphal march through the big provincial cities, where his popular chorus song "Hello, hello, hello! it's a different girl again" is becoming a positive rage. In towns like Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, &c., one has only to whistle the first two bars of the chorus in the vicinity of a pair of lovers and the young lady looks askance at her escort, and he will turn with a look of indignant denial that is pathetically humorous. Mr. Cunliffe, whose rendering of the song is beyond praise, is fortunate in having secured the sole music hall rights of such a big number. Mr. Lester Barrett (of Francis, Day, and Hunter) has fixed it with nearly every pantomime producer.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY'S publication, "Mignon," is likely to be one of the hits of the forthcoming pantomimes. It is a stirring march-time song, and is composed by Percy Ashdown.

AMONG the "eleventh-hour" novelties for pantomime which Messrs. Francis and Day are now issuing may be mentioned "Fighting for their King and Sireland," a patriotic song which will enhance the glories of many a palace scene when used as the finale; also an original Irish song, which embodies a well-carried-out and quaint idea wherein an Irishman makes love to an Indian maid, and which is named "Arrah Wanna," the said number having a catchy chorus full of "go"; and likewise another patriotic number, treated in a refreshingly original way, and entitled "The good old Union Jack."

A VERY special forthcoming addition to Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops" series is the charming song known as "Radoo," which has enjoyed quite a vogue in its more expensive form, and which is the graceful handiwork of "Bessie" O'Connor (Mrs. T. P. O'Connor).

MR. GEORGE BROOKE'S new song "Happy land," by T. W. Connor, is in the press, having been acquired by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter for publication. Mr. Harry Castling's fine march song "Boy Blue" will be a strong card in many forthcoming annuals judging by the portentious list of provincial towns that have applied to Messrs. Francis and Day for the song.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd. have just accepted for early publication three songs, entitled "The Dragoon Guard," "Good old Saturday afternoon," and "Jack's ashore," which Miss Hetty King has been featuring. Also two new songs, entitled "Queen of my English home" and "I want a Gibson Girl," which Miss King will produce next week. All principal boys should hasten to apply at once to the publishers for pantomime rights.

CROWDS of managers and artists at their offices and shoals of letters of application for song permissions attest the popularity of the "Witmark" publications. Although the "house of Witmark" has always been celebrated as having the songs for pantomime, the numbers they now present are far away above any assortment they have yet presented. All of the leading managers have made their selections with positive assurance of placing the numbers in their productions. No manager or artist who seeks success in the coming pantomime should overlook the "gems of melody" now on view at the "Witmark building."

A SONG that will be greatly in evidence in the Christmas annuals is "In Dreamland." The Witmarks have arranged with a leading manager for its production in no less than six pantomimes.

A QUAINT idea and an infectious melody are the two elements that have made "Bill Simons, or, I've got to dance till the band gits through," a world-beater for the admirers of what may be termed the "whistling organ" song. This is another gem from the Witmark catalogue.

MISS WINIFRED HARE'S most successful song, which she has been singing all round the Stoll tour recently, "One little lonely star," by John P. Harrington and the late George Le Brunn, will form one of the principal features of the forthcoming pantomime at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, in which she plays principal boy. This charming number is being issued to the trade next week by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., who are including it in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

MISS DAISY DORMER'S popular song "My rickshaw queen," by Lawrance, Mellor, and Gifford, is in great demand among pantomime producers and artists, and looks like as big a winner as their former successes from the pen of those talented authors and composers.

MISS VIOLET LORRAINE, who has been engaged for principal boy at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, will specially "feature" two of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s publications, viz., "Bamboo bungalow" and "When the band played 'The men of Harlech,'" both by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford; and Miss Alice Lloyd, the principal girl, will have a special production in the same pantomime of the song she is so successfully singing in the halls, Mr. J. F. Lambe's "Queen of Old Samara."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

The strongest attraction in Mr. Alfred Butt's programme at the beautiful theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue is Miss Margaret Cooper, whose selections from a voluminous répertoire include that delightful song of Edward German's, "Love is meant to make us glad." Miss Cooper has a sly humour all her own, and her realisation of comedy in song is worthy of the highest artistic traditions, which are mostly to be discovered in the French school. In his catering for the Palace patrons Mr. Butt has often relied with complete success on the efforts of distinguished artists of the musical comedy stage in specially arranged scenes, and the Palace has been filled in turn with admirers of Miss Millie Legarde and Miss Kate Cutler. Now we have Miss Billie Burke in two numbers, "Paddling" and "The first post in the morning," both from the accomplished pen of Mr. Paul Rubens, the famous librettist and composer. In the first song, Miss Burke looks pretty in a glorified bathing costume, but her weak voice prevents her getting in touch with the house, and the scene therefore goes tamely, in spite of the assistance of the shapely and clever Palace girls. These young ladies, dressed as nymphs of the shore, are none too well treated in the matter of costume; but they look pictures in some Parisian creations, when appearing earlier in the evening, entirely on their own, and without a star to lead them.

"Galatea," otherwise Miss Maudè Rundell, "Sandow's Symmetrion Girl," has quite recovered from her temporary indisposition, and is posing with much success in such artistic creations as Sappho, after the antique statue in the Villa Albané; The Dancer, after Tadolini, in the Villa Borghesi; Artemis, after Hamo Thornycroft, R.A.; Venus Victoriosa, after Capua; The Bath of Psyche, after the late Lord Leighton; Le Matin, after Lemaire, in the Luxembourg; Salambo, after Antoine Idrac, in the Luxembourg; Musique Profane, after the French sculptor, Allouard; La Vérité, after Jules Lefebre, in the Luxembourg; and Galatée, after L. Marqueste, also in the Luxembourg.

Miss Vesta Victoria, who made a sucess here before her recent triumphal tour in the States, now possesses a song that will certainly increase her already high reputation as a comedienne. It is again the bobby—callous-hearted Robert—who is responsible for Miss Victoria's lament. She tells us in a quaint chorus, does this Mary Jane of the area, that "a policeman is a rosser, a rosser is a slop, a slop is a copper, but a copper ain't no cop." She proves her case, too, in her imparted confidences, which set stalls, circle, and balcony in a roar. For her second song the popular artist chooses the favourite, "Waiting at the church," which has supplied tuneful merriment for the Old World and the New.

A decidedly attractive novelty was introduced into the scheme of amusement on Tuesday evening by Miss Clarice Mayne, whose stage business hitherto has been mostly concerned with mimicry of famous stars. She has now been entrusted with a very pretty scena, from the versatile pen of Mr. James W. Tate, the well-known composer, which, in its way, is quite a little pastoral. The scene is an apple orchard, which is invaded by a number of boys, and one tomboy of a girl, who scales the wall. A handy ladder enables the girl to seat herself in a tree loaded with fruit, and to help herself. Of course, Strephon comes along in the person of a young sportsman, who immediately starts serenading Chloë in the branches. The chorus is taken up at regular intervals by the boys, and a dance concludes. Miss Mayne shows decided ability, and will no doubt do greater justice to herself after a night or two. She looks particularly neat in her becoming shooting costume. She prefaces her appearance in the scena by imitations of Miss Connie Ediss, Miss Victoria Monks, Miss Vesta Victoria, and Miss Marie Lloyd. She also gives an impression of Miss Camille Clifford as the Gibson Girl. Mr. Charles Norton, another mimic, appears earlier in the evening, and realises for us the peculiarities of Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Wilkie Bard, and others. Other turns in the bill are Mamie Iris, the Two McNaughtons, Howard and Harris, the Creo Brothers, and Malcolm Scott.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

Record numbers must have been reached this week at the South London, the spacious interior of which has been crowded from area to gallery, while row upon row of people have lined the space allotted to standing-room. A well-assorted programme, full of interest, is presented, the chief attraction being the dramatic sketch, The Mystery of the Cliff, in which Mr. Tom Craven and Mr. Will Evans, both comedians of renown, collaborate as authors. The sketch surpasses in many ways the ordinary melodramatic piece. The dialogue is terse and pointed, the action swift and strong, and the mounting on a scale of completeness seldom attempted at the variety theatre, the representation of the cliffs by the margin of the sea being especially to be praised. A "biographic camera" is the chief instrument in the unravelling of the mystery alluded to in the title, and by its means an original and deeply thrilling scene is reached at a church bazaar. It would be difficult to find artists better adapted to their work than those engaged in the representation. Mr. Ernest Leicester, whose artistic performances at a neighbouring theatre are a treasured memory with playgoers in the vicinity, receives a warm welcome, and in his embodiment of a young midshipman electrifies the audience by the power and energy of his performance. Miss Cissy Farrell, also an old favourite in the district, takes the part of a young schoolmistress with all her usual charm and romantic power. A forcible rendering of a vindictive adventuress is given by Miss Violet Fulton, who imports an adequate amount of venomous spite into her acting, and Mr. Archibald McLean carries through his dramatic scene as the ill-fated parent with admirable effect. Mr. Syd Craven makes a very humorous personage of the Rev. Peter Crabb, whose eccentric behaviour leads to many laughs, and Miss Jessica Lait is very diverting as Peter's intended. The sketch is nightly received with abundant approval, keeping the audience glued to their seats till the very end.

A little duologue, entitled The Chambermaid, introduces Miss Clara Reid and Mr. John Power as a "slavey" and an actor respectively, and much fun is made out of the latter's endeavours to induce the unkempt little servant to assist him in acting a play. Her attitudes are very grotesque, and much laughter is the result. Merriment also arises from the "curtain lecture" administered by a wife to her doting spouse—parts in which a couple known as Cole and Wood figure. The lady storms and raves realistically while the gentleman says little, but puts plenty of meaning into his facial play, and altogether there is much humour in the little piece. The fame of Jordan and Harvey, the Hebrew dialect comedians, is great in South London as well as in other parts of the Metropolis, and the drollery of their comic exchanges, much enhanced by a stolid demeanour on the part of one comedian and a jovial air on that of the other, exacts many a roar of laughter. De Vere and Kenwick import novelty into the programme by the presentation of a series of comic Hibernian pictures thrown on a screen while a lady sings the popular song "Molly" meanwhile. The comedienne also dances merrily to the accompaniment of a violin played by her partner, who appears as a comic sailor.

Dancing in its most practised form is furnished by Mr. Frank Leon, the well-known champion dancer, who submits the belt which carries with it the title and gives a specimen of the steps with which he won the trophy. There are no more appreciative spectators of the art than patrons of the hall under notice, and they grew enthusiastic over Mr. Leon's performance. Mr. Dick Kendal, dressed as a convict, accompanies a humorous song with a speciality dance of great variety and neatness; and Mr. Dan Kirton, who has somewhat the style of the "lion comique," also supplements his lay with an elaborate dance. Miss Lottie Govell, a comely young vocalist, exhibits no little low comedy talent in a song with the refrain "Don't cry"; and the programme has admired contributions in Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo Piccaninnies; Miss Lottie Goodman, dancer, and Ruffell's Bioscope, with the latest pictures. An "extra turn," which contains an acceptable element of novelty, has been contributed by the Brothers Zitto, a trio of young Spaniards, who do an act in which rifle and club spinning is conspicuous. The manner in which the performers, who appear in national uniform, twist the cumbersome weapons, passing them from one to the other with marvellous precision, won the hearty admiration of the audience. A touch of the picturesque is given at the end, when a realistic fight for the colours is performed, to the accompaniment of cheers. Mr. William Payne, the manager, overcomes the manifest difficulties of his position with a combination of tact and authority, and is rapidly gaining in the estimation of all.

THE METROPOLITAN.

The current list of attractions at that palace of the people familiarly known as the "Met." bristles with the names of favourites who have won an enviable position on the variety stage—not only by their conspicuous ability, but by an industrious application to the study of the art of entertaining. Mr. Tom Costello possesses this art in the fullest degree, and knowing his audience thoroughly, gets in immediate touch with everyone, from gallery to stalls. The "Suffragette" question at the halls is of course treated only from the humorous point of view, and Mr. Costello's impersonation of one of the gentler sex who inveigh against Mr. Asquith in particular and Members of Parliament in general has just that humorous touch of extravagance that appeals to the many-headed. Make-up and business are after the true Costellan methods, which savour of distinct originality. In his opening item—a naval song with a patriotic text—he again makes us understand his many-sidedness, and wins hands down.

A very big favourite with audiences in the Edgware-road is Miss Lily Burnand, whose gracious and winning personality makes one realise that for beauty of form and feature English womanhood is hard to beat. Miss Burnand, indeed, is divinely tall and divinely fair, and in a principal boy's dress of rich-hued velvet embellished with silver, from which hangs a magnificent cloak, she looks superb. Her first number describes, in a tale of piquantly-worded and saucily-rendered verses, the good fortune of Sally, who, from the ranks of the ballet has risen to the possession of a motor and other appanages of luxury. Miss Burnand then excites much interest, and thoroughly engrosses her audience from gods to stalls by the pleasantness of her voice and the distinctness of her articulation in that tunefully-written and highly-popular number, "In Zanzibar." The refrain resounds through the house, and so catchy is it that the chortlers aloft are listening with all their mind to "ear-mark" the tune, which is, at the time of writing, being sung from Paddington Green to the Marble Arch.

Such a genuine comedian is Mr. Joe Elvin that it is as well occasionally to listen to one of the sketches on which his fame as a laughter-maker was founded. It is many years since he ran through with his lamented father that piece of farcical extravaganza, entitled Touched, which is based on similar lines to Loose Tiles, produced nearly twenty years ago at the Vaudeville. Mr. Elvin as Billy Bangham again causes shouts of laughter; and is well assisted by Mrs. Bennett in the rôle of the distraught lady. Topical items occupy the attention of Mr. Fred Herbert, who sets the ball rolling; the Bostons have a successful form of entertainment in their popular burlesque bull-fight; good singing, comic cross-talk, and acrobatisms are the chief constituents of Terry and Bentley's act, to which the title of "The Hunt" is given; Mr. Rex Fox interests us in his novel ventriloquial and musical act on the wire; and Pierce and Maizie are decidedly entertaining in their quick-change act, Maizie appearing as a Gibson Girl, and in a gorgeous gown as a burlesque actress given to cake-walking. Lauri Wylie imitates the stars of the variety world in his mannikin entertainment, which is cleverly worked; Mr. Sam Mayo, whose face gives one the impression that his spirits are weighed down by melancholia, again sings his Japaneasy song; Clark and Hamilton bustle through a variety act that has been a strong card in music hall programmes for some years now; and Hardeen, in a number of sensational feats, shows that he has honestly earned the title of "Handcuff King." Other turns in Mr. Jack Edgar's fine programme are Miss Anita Ediss, Miss Rosa Rosetta, Mr. Andie Caine, and Duncan's dogs.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

A programme that may be well described as interesting and attractive is presented here this week by Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, and business is brisk. Mr. John F. Preston's company has achieved an immense success in their exciting sketch, Rogues of the Turf, written by Mr. Max Goldberg. The play, as its title suggests, is, to use a famous expression, "redolent of the Turf," and is as full of interest as a piece of the kind can be. Mr. John F. Preston himself gives a vigorous interpretation of the honest old trainer, Joe Flaxman, whose grandiloquent speeches rouse the enthusiasm of the house. A performance that at once wins over the audience is that of Mr. Horace Custins as Sam Flaxman, the trainer's son. The young man is brimful of spirits, looks the part to the life, and acts in a capable manner. Mr. Geo. Harvard is a capital villain as Captain Dudley Clifton; and he has an amusing confederate in the Moses Solomans of Mr. Hardy Macro. Miss Hilda Shirley is very engaging as Nellie Somerton; and Miss Mabelle F. Barlow looks delightfully wicked as Marion, the Duchess. The piece is finely mounted.

Miss Agnes Hazel, looking very handsome, sings about what a girl said, and is warmly received. Mr. Chas. Faning gives his amusing patter about a well-known London magistrate with immense effect. The Royal Korries are well received in their musical entertainment, of which the gentleman's performance on various—and curious—instruments is admirable. The lady sings sweetly and dances gracefully. One of the biggest successes of the week is achieved by Mr. J. P. Ling in his mimetic monologue. The artist goes out of the beaten track, and introduces us to an imitation of the doings at a village "penny-reading," his reproductions of the vagaries of the performers being capital. Miss Madoline Rees sings with a cultured voice, her most popular song being "Any old place where the lights are low." Boyd and Gilfain give their amusing scena and sing artistically, Mr. Boyd's clear tenor voice blending well with the soprano of Miss Gilfain. A great popular success is made by Mr. Michael Nolan, whose "real Irish" songs, notably that of the "Irish Brigade," simply bring the house down. A turn that at once catches on is supplied by the Australian Twin Andersons, two young ladies who display an amount of energy that is surprising. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope sends everybody away in good humour.

MISS CISSIE CURLETTE IN ABERDEEN.

"Miss Cissie Curlette headed the bill. As a mimetic vocalist this talented young lady made a welcome first appearance in Aberdeen some six months ago, only eighteen months after she made her début on the music hall stage. On her former visit Miss Curlette, although meeting with great success, took the stage under difficulties, as she was then suffering from a very bad throat, for which she has since undergone an operation. Last night the throat trouble seemed to have ceased altogether. In her magnificent conception of a farmyard she brought down the house, but what people were waiting for was 'The Adventures of Farmer Giles in London.' This original song, rendered in a broad Devonshire accent by such a bright and vivacious actress, is one of the best on the music hall boards at present, and Miss Curlette had to add four encore verses before the audience were satisfied."—Aberdeen Free Press, Oct. 23, '06.

PIRATED MUSIC STORES RAIDED.

Piles of music copies were spread out on the solicitor's table in the Manchester City Stipendiary's Court on Wednesday afternoon, when Lazarus Gotliffe and Jacob Gotliffe, 36, Lord-street, Red Bank, Manchester, were charged with unlawfully having in their possession 3879 copies of pirated music. We give an illustration showing the extent of the haul of pirated music.

Mr. Hockin, who prosecuted on behalf of the Music Publishers' Association, told an extraordinary story in outlining the case for the prosecution. For some time, he said, the prosecution had arrived at the conclusion that somewhere about 47, Cliff-street, Red Bank, there had been established a kind of depôt for the receipt and distribution of pirated music, but owing to the care and ability of the defendants, who were father and son, and their friends, they were not able until the 24th of last month to locate the exact spot. On the 24th ult. the police and a representative of the prosecuting Association went to No. 47, Cliff-street. They found that it was occupied by Mr. Isaac Cohen, greengrocer, and his wife. The place was in darkness. The inspector explained the object of his visit, and Mr. Cohen denied all knowledge of any pirated music. The inspector searched the house, but found no music

On returning to the top of the landing from the cellar a very peculiar thing happened. Mr. Isaac Cohen blew out the light and left the inspector and his friends in darkness. That aroused suspicions, and the candle was lighted again. Further searches of the cellar were made, with a like result, and each time when they got to the top of the stairs Cohen blew out the candle.

The warrant officer struck a match, and found a cupboard or secret door leading into an unknown room. It was fastened with a padlock, and upon this being broken and admission obtained, a room was discovered which contained shelves, table, &c., and hundreds of copies of pirated music. To all intents and purposes the room was under the roof of the adjoining house, but it had evidently been used with this house. On the floor were three bags, two of which contained a thousand copies of pirated music, and the third bag contained three parcels which had been carefully made up and labelled. One addressed to a man in Dublin contained 196 copies, another for Wolverhampton contained 85, and the third, for Edinburgh, contained 50 copies.

The door had a bolt on the inside, and a window, in addition to which a loose brick could be taken out of the wall, so that by means of the window and the peephole the defendants were able to evade the police. While the raid was taking place a constable was on duty outside, disguised as a ganger of some corporation workmen who were engaged in the street.

Inspector Cubberly said that altogether 4529 copies were seized, a bundle containing 650 copies being obtained in course of delivery by the railway company. The defendants, he explained in reply to questions, rented the room at 2s. 6d. per week off Mrs. Cohen.

The charge against the defendant Lazarus Gotliffe was dismissed, and the defendant Jacob Gotliffe was fined £10 and costs, ten guineas being allowed as special costs.

HAUL OF PIRATED MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

BOW PALACE.

The management here are performing a goodly service this week. It has been their custom for some years past to arrange collections in aid of the National Lifeboat Institution, the fund in connection with which has benefited by the Bow Palace contributions to the extent of £15 annually. On the night of our visit, Mr. Charles Harvey, the able manager, appeared in front of the curtain, and announced that collections on behalf of the admirable institution referred to would be made that evening and throughout the week, and in a capital little speech he referred to the excellent work performed in the past by the N.L.I. His words were received with loud applause, and we understand that the donations are likely to exceed those of former years. The entertainment is of the usual sound order. There are, in addition to a couple of sketches, ten turns. Messrs. Corrie and Dereve's musical comedy trifle, Office Hours, written by Mr. Edgar Dereve, with music by Mr. Clarence C. Corri, finds great favour with the audience. There is plenty of amusement to be got out of it, and the acting of Mr. Edgar Dereve as William Hurry, a stockbroker, and of Miss Jessie Wilton, as the stockbroker's daughter, as well as of Messrs. Frank A. Wood, Geo. Danvers, jun., Edward Raymend, and Arthur White, in their several rôles, is distinctly commendable. Messrs. Grey and Welford appear in a boxing act which causes roars of laughter; and Mr. Guy Ryder is heard to singular effect both as a vocalist and as a whistler. Miss Elna May is an interesting and engaging comedienne, and her song, "My dada's a colonel," is sung with appropriate expression and feeling.

Another singer of sweet songs comes along in the person of Mr. James H. Reynolds, whose rendering of "Old sweetheart of mine" and "Bright eyes are my queen," affords immense delight to his hearers. Mr. Mark Merry makes merry, even with a doleful countenance and a doleful delivery. He possesses a distinctive style, and uses it to good advantage. His "No, no, no" and "Me" are items which are not to be missed. Then we have a charming chorus vocalist in Miss Edna Latonne, in whose performance there is not a disagreeable note. It is a distinct pleasure to hear her sing "I love you" and the other lyrics in her répertoire. The Three Coopers—a boy, a girl, and a man—sing sentimental verses in the way they should be sung, and their scena concerning an honest match-boy and how he prevented his benefactor from being robbed, is appreciated by the house. Upon their second appearance the trio deliver in sympathetic strain some lines beginning "Come back again." Mr. Robbie Roy, a Scots comedian, attired as a kiltie, treats us in his inimitable manner to a laughing song, and another about one "Piper Jack," and succeeds in taking the fancy of the public. Mr. Wal Phillips excels as a raconteur. What he has to say is decidedly funny, but he is equally funny in his way of saying it. The Vaudeville Dramatic Company are presenting the romantic playlet, The Gay Deceiver; or, The Journey's End, the production of which has already received favourable notice at our hands. The company includes such clever actors and actresses as Messrs. Herbert Pearson, Reginald Wells, Ernest Wingfield, F. Fellows Bassett, and Misses Marguerite Trevosper and Helena Walbran, and the mounting and dressing of the piece are superb. Raymond and Son's Bio-tableaux submit some attractive pictures, the series, "Waiting at the Church" being particularly praiseworthy.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

Capital and most appreciative audiences are testifying to the excellence of the fare provided at this people's palace. At the top of the bill is Dr. Walford Bodie, who is making his second visit during the last month to this hall. His interesting entertainment still continues to mystify most of those present, and to the uninitiated the amount of electricity that he can take into his body seems to border on the impossible. He starts his performance with some experiments with electricity, which are quite wonderful in their way, and then proceeds to have some fun with various members of the audience who have accepted his invitation to come upon the stage. As a means of keeping the house convulsed with laughter these are certainly a great success, and are enjoyed to the full, excepting by those who have to unwittingly provide the fun. Later he proceeds to the more serious side of his show, and the good he appears capable of doing to those who have been given up as hopeless by our leading medical experts is nothing short of marvellous. At the conclusion of his performance he has many times to bow his acknowledgments.

Undoubtedly one of the greatest successes of the evening is Herbert La Martine, who, though the recipient of deafening applause, is only able to render one song. The number which he gives is entitled "Have you seen my Mamie Brown," and in this he appears to the greatest advantage, the chorus being taken up in a most spirited manner. Before leaving he treats us to some of his original and quaint dancing. Fred Eustace and Company are presenting their comedy drama, An Amber Light, which is meeting with as much approval as when it was last here. The four characters are all in most capable hands, but unfortunately the programme does not provide us with the names of the cast. Frank Dalton, the scheming secretary, has a most capable exponent, and his clever acting certainly calls for a word of praise, and the same may be said of Sir John, a member of the aristocracy. Undoubtedly the success of the piece is Fred Eustace, who in the guise of an American is exceedingly funny, his voice and make-up being capital. Miss Mary Eustace as the niece of Sir John, also acts her difficult part in a manner that leaves no cause for complaint.

Lieutenant Travis, the well-known and clever ventriloquist, is making another of his periodical visits to this hall, and it is evident that he has lost none of his old popularity. A new character has recently been added to his puppets—that of a coon—in which he is quite as successful as in his others. Miss Daisy Davidson, the talented New Zealand vocalist, is the lucky possessor of a fine voice which she uses to the utmost advantage, and her songs are much appreciated. Los Rupertos, two clever equilibrists, are nothing if not original, and their interesting feats are performed with an ease that is surprising. Stewart and Morgan are the lucky possessors of most tuneful voices, and in their rendering of the "Old Folks at Home" they are certainly heard with the greatest pleasure. They bring their turn to a conclusion by singing "Home sweet home" in a most feeling manner. One of the most pleasing items on the programme is the Bioscope—no longer the last turn. Many interesting pictures are being shown, that of "The Suffragettes" causing shrieks of laughter. Mr. Harry Ketteman is a popular manager, and receives every assistance from Mr. Charles Lurring, his acting-manager.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Humorists, in all ages, have each had a favourite method of enforcing conviction for their comicalities, and Mr. Joe Elvin touches the spot of appreciation in his own particular way. In his hilariously amusing sketch, Touched, the fun is fast and furious, the new keeper's terror at finding himself accidentally imprisoned in the padded-room being indicrous in the extreme, and hearty laughter is the result of his abortive efforts to prove to another keeper that he is not "balmy." Ably assisted by his company, Mr. Elvin raises peals of merriment from all parts of a crowded house. Mr. Dennis Drew strikes a martial note in his military musical sketch, Back to Barracks. "Back to the Army again" is given with splendid effect, but "Come, boys, come and be a soldier" has a tunefulness entirely its own. The melody is endowed with a lilting rhythm, and it is to a swinging quick step that eight bright little lads enter, and support the chorus. Mr. Drew reserves the bonne bouche of his spirited scena for the last verse of his song, when there enters surely the most delightful petit caporal ever imagined.

The Wilton-Heriot Trio present a scena representing the wooing of an American heiress, which is admirably staged, and met with a flattering reception. Hayman and Franklin, in the sequence of ridiculous arguments and contradictions, entitled A Matrimonial Agency, extract the maximum of fun out of the curious situations which they naturally create. A song, "Flirtation," wedded to a medley of well-known tunes, is melodiously rendered, while not a line of the many witticisms is lost. The Matrimonial Agency is responsible for much merriment, and is deservedly applauded.

Baker and Balfe are xylophone experts of the first order, and the lightning-like rapidity of their instrumentation is marvellous. The lady of the duo is ably assisted by her partner, who is also an excellent dancer. A smart mirth-provoker is found in Mr. Charles Chardow, who is supplied with two amusing numbers, "When you are down at Covent Garden" and "The things of every-day life." In the latter song the comedian essays to hit off the characteristics of the funny man and the heavy villain of the play, and in this effort he is most successful. Ventriloquial entertainers are always welcome, and Mr. Jay W. Winton is especially so, his McGinty being amusing and never vulgar. The ventriloquist's efforts in throwing his voice in various directions, and especially into a box, are perfect examples of his art.

Mr. Jack Pleasants very much belies his name in dubbing himself "a man with a terrible temper." Nevertheless, his first number, "I'll be cross, Arabella," proves the reverse of doleful, while his second song is a hilarity-raiser indeed. Miss Katie Marsh is versatility personified. As actress, singer, and dancer she is an entire success, and wins much appreciation, while her make-up as Harry Lauder's sister provokes much merriment. Miss Sybil Montague, who appears early in the evening, secures admiration with her fine ballad singing. The Ealing orchestra is always notable, and under the direction of Mr. W. Neale the overture, a selection from Zampa, is given with much spirit. Mr. E. W. James, the able manager, is to be congratulated on the very fine programme he is able to present and upon the crowded houses which it attracts.

THE latest contributions to the "Fred Locke" Fund, which has now almost reached £100, are as follows, and are gratefully acknowledged by the treasurer, Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow:—Per Barney Armstrong, £1; W. Abercrombie, 2s. 6d.

PARIS ECHOES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A new and charming ballet was produced this week at the Olympia. Its title is Towards the Stars. It is a most artistic and refined production, and it made an instantaneous success. The authors of the libretto are MM. Paul Ferrier and Bertol-Graivil, and the music, which is most catching, has been composed by Henri Hirchmann, a young and rising composer. He has displayed so much ability in his score that he has been commissioned by the management of your Alhambra to compose a ballet, which will be produced in the course of a couple of months.

Briefly put, the following is the scenario:—A poor shepherd falls in love with a star—an evening star, of course—the beautiful Venus. He thinks that by coming to Paris he will find the means of getting closer to his loved one. He takes train and arrives on the 14th of July. The various amusements of the gay city have no charm for him. His sole thought is his beloved star. He meets an astronomer, who shows the star to him through his telescope, and gives him an idea how to go up in a captive balloon, by which means he will get yet closer to the object of his dreams. The shepherd, the astronomer, and a soldier take their place in the car, but the rope which holds it breaks, and the detached balloon floats speedily into limitless space above the clouds. After many extraordinary adventures, our travellers reach the moon, and at last the shepherd finds himself in the presence of Venus, who seems very kindly disposed towards him. Mars, the God of War, however, asserts his presence, and, threatening the shepherd and his companions, compels them to return to earth.

The scenery and costumes of this most artistic production are very fine. Mlle. Vette de Brémonval as Venus, thanks to her sculptural form and charming smile, captivates the audience. Mlle. Darson is a graceful and clever pantomimic artist. The arrangement of the dances by M. Sicard is very good. Altogether, this ballet has made a decided success.

Raku and Mlle. Moto, exponents of the ju-jitsu, are the feature of the bill at the Alhambra. The ensemble of the troupe is, as usual, the acmé of perfection. Mlle. Lucette de Verly, the Paris nightingale, warbles to an enthusiastic audience; Roma and Romani, the clowns, in their refined musical act, are going strong. Amongst other first-class numbers, there are:—Rebla, the comic juggler; Les Levaille, equilibrists on the silver cord; Les Niards, an acrobatic troupe of ladies and gentlemen; Ricardo Salving; the Three Seldoms, in their remarkable poses plastiques; Tiny Arnold; Gustave Baru; and a most interesting boxing contest between the French light-weight champion, Edouard Salmon, and the English light-weight champion, Caller Pepper. Altogether a delightful and most varied programme, which does the greatest honour to Mr. Neighbour, the active and enterprising manager of this magnificent music hall.

Messrs. Houcke and Bostock, directors of the Hippodrome, are doing well. Several changes have taken place in the programme. Amongst the current attractions are Les Perez and their wonderful ladder act; Rossow, with his fighting midgets; the Abbas Abdallah Troupe of Arabs, &c. Rehearsals are being pushed rapidly forward of the grand production, India, in which will appear Mlle. Loïe Fuller, surrounded by a hundred ladies of the ballet.

Wrestling is the main attraction at nearly all the halls at the present moment. Munro, the English constable, has certainly a great chance of securing the victory; moreover, the public is decidedly sympathetic to him, and should he win the championship of the world at the Folies-Bergères it would certainly be a most popular victory.

The first performance of the Revue du Moulin, which is produced every year at the Moulin Rouge, and which was to have taken place on the 7th inst., will now be produced on Monday next, the 12th.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

The entertainment here maintains its high standard of excellence, and refinement is the keynote of the programme submitted. It would be difficult to find a more diversified menu than that provided by the hard-working and always courteous manager, Mr. Kay Draco. Boasting a voice of exceptional range and compass, Miss Teresa da Sylva has won a premier position as a charming chanteuse; her interpretation of "Always" proved one of the hits of the evening. The Five Figaros introduce a highly interesting series of Continental types, and very admirable they prove; perhaps the gem of their illustrations is Switzerland, but all are acceptable and refined, a Spanish shadow dance being specially well received, and the way the tame duck took its "call" at the close of the act is also irresistibly droll. A tuneful ballad is ever a welcome item at this house, and Miss Violet Ray's interpretation of Tosti's "Dear heart" proved one of the daintiest efforts of the evening; Miss Ray's 'cello solo of Mascagni's "Intermezzo" is as effective as it is melodious.

There is plenty of fun in the comedy sketch, The Peacemaker. The story of a recalcitrant motor car and a lady who scoffs at obedience results in quite a bright little piece. Miss Marion Mathey is altogether delightful as the disobedient wife; Mr. Alfred Wellesley gives a clever character sketch as the uncle; and Mr. W. T. Ellwanger is unobtrusively funny as the husband. The Peacemaker is a welcome addition to the bill. Mr. Fred Daniels's topical ditty, "It's rather a serious matter," is greatly applauded, and he dances with much skill. The Cape Girls, described as long boot dancers, introduce various excerpts from their répertoire. Mr. Phil Ray meets with an hilarious reception, and tells of a love affair in which the lady enjoyed a perennial age of "only 17." A friendly hint that all the chaps out of work should interview the Rt. Hon. John Burns is followed by the story of a Sunday joint with several resurrections which sends the audience into fits of merriment, and he was called before the curtain again and again. Picitt and Lizetto are clever illusionists; the turn is essentially a novel one, and is deservedly and heartily applauded by the audience, who are still wondering "how it's done." Vernon's Bioscope continues to provide admirable examples of art. The excellent orchestra plays a capital selection from The Spring Chicken under the capable bâton of Mr. Norfolk Megone. Mr. Kay Draco cannot be too highly complimented on the success that is attending his efforts.

The Monckton's (Fred and Lillie) produced on Monday at the Hastings Hippodrome, for the first time on any stage, a new and original musical farcical episode, written by Mr. E. C. Matthews, entitled Are Wives Dummies? The plot is concerned with a husband's cure for jealousy. Mrs. Merry has received a letter from a lady friend, advising her never to engage a pretty servant. Being of a jealous disposition, Mrs. Merry immediately discharges her maid, unknown to the Colonel. He is on the point of going to a mess dinner, when he is confronted by his wife, who forbids him to go out, falsely accusing him of flirting, to his great dismay. He treats the affair as a huge joke, much to the discomfiture of his wife, who refuses him a kiss. The gallant officer makes a bet that he will kiss her half-a-dozen times before the night is out. He penetrates her disguise as an Irish servant, to whom he instantly makes love, giving her six sovereigns for an equal number of kisses. Mr. Fred Monckton is alert and amusing as the Colonel; and Miss Lillie Monckton makes a good character of Mrs. Merry, singing with success a tuneful song entitled "Bridget."

OPENING OF THE PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

Amid scenes of great enthusiasm, London's latest variety theatre was opened to the public on Monday evening. Everybody expressed the opinion that the Putney Hippodrome was a fine building, and even those who were unable to get a glance at the interior admired the fine exterior proportions of the edifice.

Inside, shortly after the clock struck half-past six, the curtain was raised before the eyes of the expectant audience, and revealed a group of gentlemen on the stage. There were Mr. W. J. Grimes, (the managing-director), Mr. James Fortescue (the chairman), Mr. Leon Bridgman (the director), Mr. Jesse Sparrow, Mr. Nelson Francis, Mr. Fredk. Wm. Hingston (the architect), Mr. T. H. Kingerslee (of Oxford, the builder), Mr. Jack de Frece, Mr. Arthur Golding, Mr. George Golding, Mr. Joe Lyons, Mr. L. Lyons, Mr. Will Oliver, Mr. Howard Smith, Mr. Fred Neiman, Mr. Teddy Giles, Mr. Jack Gardner, Mr. A. Hampel, Mr. George Frazar, Mr. Ernest Cazman, Mr. F. Napoli, Mr. Tom Pacey, Mr. Fred Reeves, Mr. W. Edelsten, Mr. W. Sergeant, Mr. Fred Higham, Mr. Carl Hooper, Mr. Sam Hart, Mr. Joe Aarons, and many others.

Mr. W. E. Grimes, in declaring the building open, made a very brief speech, in which he promised to give the inhabitants of Putney and district the very best available turns that could be secured. The Putney Hippodrome would be conducted in the most efficient manner possible. The comfort and convenience of the public would always be studied, and they could always rely upon a refined and attractive entertainment. Subsequently Mr. Grimes introduced Mr. Fredk. Wm. Hingston, the architect, whose maiden effort at theatre design and construction was to be found in the Putney Hippodrome, and Mr. T. H. Kingerslee, of the firm of builders of that name.

The National Anthem was sung by Mr. Herbert Sims Reeves, the entire audience standing up and heartily joining in. Later on in the evening, Mr. Sims Reeves gave a fine rendering of "The jolly young waterman," whilst surrounded on the stage by the Doggett, Putney, and other coat and badge winners of a quarter of a century past. The remainder of the evening's entertainment we give exactly as printed on the programme:—Overture, "Poet and Peasant"; Bert Dansie, character vocalist; Carl Rosine, the great magician; Serpentello, high-class contortionist; Queenie Lawrence, chic comedienne; Phil Bransby, coster comedian; Alice Yorke and company in an original duologue, A Yacht for Sale; Marie Straba, ballad vocalist; Edwards and Dacre, in a comedy duologue, What a Life; Davis and Gledhill Trio, the world's champion roller cyclists; Billy Hobbs, coon comedian; Princess Pauline, comedienne; Herbert Sims Reeves, tenor; Florence Yaymen, coon comedienne; Kate Carney, in a funny skit, Brighton Promenade; Frank Leon, comedian and champion clog-dancer; Speedwell, demon painter; Herald Comedy Four, comedy vocalists and duettists; Ruffell's Pictures, in up-to-date subjects.

The Putney Hippodrome has a frontage of 110ft. in the Felsham-road, just off the High-street, Putney, and is completely isolated from the surrounding buildings by a footway 20ft. wide. The front is of red brick and stone, and a fine ornamental tower marks the corner nearest the High-street. The interior is beautifully decorated in the Renaissance style, in rich, soft colours and gold, which have a very pleasing and reposeful effect. There is a large, handsome dome over the auditorium, in the centre of which hangs an elegant electrolier of fifty electric lights. The house will accommodate about 1,500 people, and is one of the prettiest, safest, and most compact halls in London. The exits are ample and well arranged, and the house can be emptied in a very few minutes. The upholstery is of rich, warm crimson and old gold, and the seating is luxurious and comfortable. The stalls, circle, and pit are carpeted with a rich red carpet, which harmonises with the seating and draperies. The building is fireproof throughout on both sides of the fireproof curtain. The stairs, floors, and tiers, and every part, are of fire-resisting material, and fire hydrants are fitted throughout the building. The entertainment will be of the highest class, under the able direction of Mr. W. J. Grimes, the managing-director, Mr. Clifford King being the acting-manager. Messrs Waring and Gillow are responsible for the beautifully embroidered silk plush curtains, with shaped embroidered permit, the magnificent carpet of Wilton pile, and the seating arrangements.

"THE LADY OF THE ROSES."

An Old English Costume Comedy, in One Act, by Hubert Bartlett, Produced at the Camberwell Empire on Monday, Nov. 5.

Sir Peter Ferrars ..... Mr. Geo. Arbuthnot
Charles ..... Mr. Cecil Lane
Waiting Maid ..... Miss Dora Macdermott
The Lady of the Roses .. Mrs. Hugh De Beera

The Lady of the Roses, a dainty and merry old-world comedy sketch, forms an agreeable entertainment. Sir Peter Ferrars' beautiful rose garden in the year 1721 is the scene of the meeting of the baronet's nephew, Charles, with the lady of his choice, who overhears her lover reading a portion of the contents of a letter, in which Sir Peter forbids his union with anyone connected with the stage. The veteran, in his younger days, had been jilted by an actress, hence his enmity to the calling. The actress, however, means to win the old man's favour, and bids Charles hide when his voice is heard calling on his nephew. Catching a glimpse of petticoats, Sir Peter is in no way startled when later he finds a young and pretty girl plucking his favourite flowers. He guesses this is his nephew's fiancée, and, to pay them back in their own coin, he makes violent love to the maiden, eventually offering her marriage. Charles and the actress both come on the scene, and tell Sir Peter that he has been making love and proposing to a deaf and dumb waiting-maid. Sir Peter is pleased that his little scheme has not entangled him, and rejoices also when he learns that the actress is also an enthusiast on roses. Readily he gives his consent to their union, and this happy termination is joyously celebrated by a charmingly executed minuet. As the Lady of the Roses, Mrs. Hugh De Beera looks bewitching in her old-world costume, and invests her part with grace and brightness. Mr. George Arbuthnot as the irascible Sir Peter Ferrars does well; Miss Dora Macdermott merits praise in a wordless part; and as Charles, Mr. Cecil Lane is effective. Mr. W. B. Robinson's scenery is pretty.

Miss Florrie Bray, the chic comedienne, has secured an excellent chorus song, "Show him a lady fair," from the pen of Mr. George A. Stevens, which bids fair to be one of the best songs she has sung.

Mr. Will Dalton (of Dalton's Agency) recently paid a visit to the Silksworth Colliery, Sunderland, on the invitation of the mine manager, and heard a pit-worker there, whose singing and musical abilities prompted him to place him on the music hall stage. Mr. Dalton went immediately to London and booked this artist—whose name is Geo. Yuong—with Mr. Oswald Stoll for his tour, and has also booked him elsewhere at Glasgow, Greenock, Wolverhampton, Dublin, Belfast, Oldham, Rochdale, Portsmouth, Grimsby, Coventry, Wigan, Chatham, Leeds, Hanley, &c. He opens next Monday at Blackburn, Mr. W. B. Broadhead, Hippodrome, Hulme, Manchester, has also secured him for several dates.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE fairs ahead for next week are—Chelmsford, on the Great Eastern Railway; Maryport, on the Metropolitan and Carlisle; Cockermouth, on the Cockermouth, Keswick, and Penrith, and Maryport and Carlisle; Epping, on the Great Eastern; Kingston-on-Thames, on the London and South-Western; Penrith, on the London and North-Western; Stamfordham, on the North-Eastern; Stockton-on-Tees, on the North-Eastern; Brampton (Cumb.), on the North-Eastern; Chesham, on the Metropolitan; Ulverston, on the Furness; Warkworth, on the North-Eastern; St. Colomb, on the Great Western; Andover, on the London and South-Western; Horsham, on the London, Brighton, and South Coast; Malton; Richmond (Yorks), on the Great Central; Shaftesbury, on the London and South-Western; and Yeovil, on the Great Western and South-Western. In Scotland we have—Dumbarton, on the North British; and Govan, on the Glasgow and South-Western and Glasgow and Paisley joint. In Wales—Llandovery, on the North-Western and Great Western.

THOSE enterprising lessees Messrs. John Green and H. J. Wallis are organising a Christmas and New Year Carnival at Wigan.

THE forthcoming International Fair and Carnival at Olympia at Christmas will accommodate about as representative a gathering of English showmen as has ever been found under one roof. Amongst well-known exhibitors who will make Olympia their winter headquarters are Pat Collins (of Walsall), Relph and Pedley, W. Biddall, W. Le Neve, A. Letts, Stacey and Co., Sam Mayne, Frank Wilson, W. Manning, Harry Peters, H. J. Rowe, E. Hussey, F. Brown, J. Sanders, H. J. Birch, T. Bolesworth, Fred Woolgar, Thomas Knighton, John Stroud, Alfred Bond, J. Caddick, W. Bibby, Fred Tower, jun., C. White, Alf. Head, Arthur Traylen, Barron Bros., L. Franklin, Miss Van Pragh, J. Fairlight, E. Cartwright, Joe Waugh, J. Matthews, W. Henson, H. F. Wright, Swales Bolesworth, Oliver Holt, George Bradley, J. Wingate, Leon Gould, T. White, Harry Spark, F. Sanders, and R. Rock. The British American Novelty Co. will show their automatic machines, the Whirligig Switch-car Co. a novel development in roundabouts, the New Electric Rifle and Target Co. will have several ranges, the World's Manufacturers Co. will erect the Helter-Skelter, and the Harper Co. will place their automatic pianos wherever possible. The free shows will include the circus, menagerie, and the aerial performances. The price of admission to the "Mammoth Fun City," which will be open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., will be sixpence.

AT the Lye wakes were P. Collins's wheeley-whirley, flying yachts, and slipping-the-slope; Frank Gess's assault-at-arms, or exhibition of self-defence; P. Collins's No. 2 cinematograph exhibition; together with numerous stands and minor stalls, cocoanut shies, and Aunt Sallies by Cooper, Dobson, Ford, Hughes, Humphreys, and Stokes.

WEST BROMWICH annual wakes were held on the 2nd inst. and the following Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday. Here were seen P. Collins's racing cockerels, racing motor-cars, rolling gondolas, No. 1 cinematograph; and stalls by Mercer, Cordwell, Wright, Dobson, George Ford, and Humphries; cocoas by Cooper, B. Dobson, C. Dobson, Humphries, Wagstaffe, Whyatt, and Beach; shooting saloons by Wright, Whyatt, Ford, B. Dobson, Oxford, and Turner; also a variety of minor stalls and novelties. There was very good business all round.

HARRY BURTON, the Australian club swinger, who last week at Reynolds's exhibition, Liverpool, undertook to swing 5lb.-weight Indian clubs for eight continuous hours daily during six consecutive days, accomplished his task, and so won £50. Burton maintained an average of 130 revolutions to the minute.

AT the Fleece Meadow, Evesham, Alexander's Circus and Hippodrome, on a one-day's visit, gave some high-class performances. The combination has also paid a visit to Turner's Fair Ground, Astwood Bank. This ground is a good place for a portable theatre or marionettes for the winter months.

MR. W. HAGGAR'S ten days' visit to Ton-y-pandy with his bioscope concluded on Wednesday. The pictures are most real, and several are new. Mr. Haggar's popularity is also great. Danter's motor-cars are also here for the week.

THE honoured president of the Showmen's Guild, Lord George Sanger, with his usual zeal for the welfare of his poorer brethren of the road, has taken up the question—now so long before the showman world—of the efforts of local bodies to abolish fairs. We have had serious work this very year to defend fairs at Mitcham, Horsham, and Writtle, Chelmsford, and now Burslem Wakes is also in danger.

UNDER these serious circumstances the Empire's greatest and most respected showman, the veteran George Sanger has entered the lists. He has addressed the following striking personal appeal to the present Home Secretary, the Right Honourable H. J. Gladstone:—

"Park Farm, East Finchley, N.,
"Oct. 29, 1906.

"To the Home Secretary, Mr. Gladstone.

"Honoured Sir,—I am addressing you on the part and in behalf of the 70,000 travelling showpeople of the Empire (represented by the Vandwellers' Association), whose business is threatened by some troublesome people, who are always to be found. I ask you, Sir, to kindly look at the past career of these showmen. They are an honourable, industrious, and sober people. There is not a case on record wherein they have committed crime or taken pestilence into any locality. They live their life and do their work in the sight of the whole nation. In many large cities of the Empire they are received by the authorities with much favour—Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Glasgow, Edinburgh, and a hundred other cities and towns.

"A great number of these men have served under their country's flag. They are not German gipsies defying the law.

"We ask you, Sir, to play the part of the wise judge, and not by the stroke of the pen take from us the means whereby we live.

"Allow me, Dear Sir, to remain your most obedient servant,

"GEORGE SANGER,
"President of the Showmen's Guild."

A TERRIBLE accident, followed by a panic, occurred at Busch's Circus, Berlin, during the last Sunday afternoon performance. The dompteur, Willy Peters, had just concluded his turn with sixteen wild beasts—lions and tigers—when his foot slipped, and he fell. A huge lion, Leo, who had been untractable all the time, struck him a blow in the face with his paw, tearing open the cheek, and—as if at a given signal—the sixteen brutes fell upon Peters, wounding him horribly. He was rescued by four of his men, and had the pluck to bow to the audience, covered with blood as he was, in response to the thundering applause. Just off the arena he fainted, and it took two doctors an hour to treat the wounds. Luckily no bones are broken, but the invalid will be confined to bed for some weeks. Hundreds of people crowded to the doors of the circus amid the screams of frightened women, but happily only a few slight accidents occurred.

DEATH OF A WELL-KNOWN FRIEND OF TRAVELLING SHOWMEN

Known throughout Lancashire, Yorkshire, and Cheshire, Mr. Alfred Smith, of Salford, horse dealer, died after a short illness, and was interred amidst many manifestations of respect at the Rode Wheel Cemetery, Salford, on Thursday in last week. In addition to the large gathering of the immediate friends and relatives of the deceased gentleman, many showmen (his life friends) attended the last solemn obsequies. The followers were:—Mrs. Alfred Smith, the wife of the deceased; Mr. Alfred Smith, Mr. Joseph Smith, Mr. Peter Smith, Miss Gertrude Smith, Mr. Frederick Smith, Master Jack Smith, sons and daughters; Mr. Peter Smith, brother; Mr. Joseph Smith, brother; Mrs. Alfred Smith, Mrs. Joseph Smith, daughters-in-law; Mrs. Joseph Smith, sister-in-law; Mr. Alfred Smith, nephew; Mr. Frank Cox, son-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Mellor, cousins; Mr. and Mrs. R. Fletcher, cousins; Mr. J. Fletcher, cousin; Mr. Harry Kelly; Mr. Steve Butler, nephew; Miss N. Butler, niece; Mr. James Allcock; Mr. and Mrs. Halligan (Liverpool), Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, Miss and Mr. Wm. Sedgwick, oldest friends; Mr. Joe Bowker, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Joe White, Mr. Norman, Mr. Mitchell, Mr. J. McMahon (Birkenhead), Mr. S. Delves (Birkenhead), Mr. and Mrs. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkman, Mr. and Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. B. Holben, Mr. G. Willas, Mr. Hy. Williamson, Mr. Alex. Charlestown, Mr. James Grantham, Miss Nelly Stead, Mrs. Boardman (cousin), Mr. J. P. Byrne, Mr. James Fitzgerald, Mr. R. Hood, and Mr. Arthur Cox. Wreaths were sent by the following:—Mr. Smith and family, Mr. Joe, Peter, and Miss Nona Smith (sister and brothers), friends from the Cattle Market, Mr. and Mrs. Mellor, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and family, Mrs. Williamson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Holben (2), Mr. and Mrs. O'Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Halligan (2), Mr. and Mrs. Holmes (2), Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. G. White (Woolwich), Mr. and Mrs. Bowers and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sedgwick, Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick, Mr. and Mrs. Joe White, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkman, Mr. Joe Bowker, Mr. James Allcock, Mr. Arthur Cox, Mr. John Moran, Mr. Thomas Brown, Mr. Frank Cox, Miss R. Sedgwick, Miss Nellie Stead, Mrs. Slaney, Sedgwick's staff, one nameless, also artificial wreath from his comrades in the Market.

THE death is announced, at the age of eighty-one, of Thomas Samwells, an old English animal trainer of international fame, who died last month at Shreveport, Louisiana. He was born in Maidstone in 1825, and, as his parents were showpeople, was literally brought up in the business. He was for years with Sanger's Circus, and went to America in 1872 with Jarrett and Palmer's famous Black Crook company. Afterwards he toured Mexico, South America, and South Africa.

HENGLER'S Hippodrome continues to do good business at Plymouth, the attractions for the past week including the Vampires, Sisters Hypatia, and Tom Brown (American comedian).

GUILD MEETINGS AT ROTHERHAM FAIR.

In no town in England is the Guild better known than it is in Rotherham. Thirteen years ago, the hon. chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, was a well-known clergyman in the immediate neighbourhood, and for six years before breaking his connection with the town meetings of the Guild were held at the recurring statute fairs. For three years past there has been a break in these annual gatherings of Yorkshire showmen at the "Slatties," as the fair is locally termed, and the resumption of the meetings was hailed with much pleasure, not only by showmen, but also to a large extent by the old friends and parishioners of the chaplain. At Rotherham Mr. Horne had the support of the vicar of the town, and also the vicar of St. Michael's, who for many years past has acted as hon. local chaplain to the Guild. The vicar, the Rev. Canon Goodall, presided over the public meeting, and was supported by the Rev. H. Greenway, hon. local chaplain, Councillor Jarvis, and other local gentlemen. A number of other friends were prevented by the extremely inclement weather from attending, but sent apologies to the convenors of the meetings. Despite the bad weather, the afternoon attendance was really a good house, Mr. George Kemp's beautiful pavilion booth being fairly well filled; but in the evening, at the Guild service, the large booth was crowded.

The Rev. Canon Goodall opened the afternoon meeting by expressing the pleasure he felt in taking part in so excellent a movement as that of the Showmen's Guild. He had known Mr. Horne for quite twenty years. He remembered his former work in that town and district, a work that had endeared him in the heart of the people of Rotherham, and of his particular parish of Whiston. He, however, felt sure that the great work and the great ambition of Mr. Horne's life and many-sided activities was the interest (all-absorbing and so transparently sincere) in travelling showmen. He knew that it was to hear an address by Mr. Horne on the objects and work of the showmen's society that they were gathered together. His work, therefore, was clear and most simple—to preside over the meeting, and to be the mouthpiece of the people present, to heartily welcome Mr. Horne in their midst once more, and listen to him tell the story of the remarkable movement amongst the people who provided fairs for their own advancement, and, he confidently hoped, the better provision of amusements of the kind that they knew and welcomed at the fair. (Applause.)

The hon. chaplain, on rising to speak, was received with cheers. First of all he said that he must express his great joy at being amongst his old friends and neighbours again at Rotherham Statutes Fair. The vicar said kind things about his former work, and had made especial point of the fact that the great and all-urgent work of his life was amongst these, his own people, who travel the fairs, and cater for the nation's delight and amusement at all times of national and local festivity. To tell over again in Rotherham town the oft-told story (ancient history to Rotherham people) of the rise and progress of the Showmen's Guild would be like unto "carrying coals to Newcastle," a work of supererogation. (Cheers.) However, he must bring the living record of a real movement of unique interest up to date, and he would refer to the past only in order to make clear the importance of the work of the Guild today, and the prospects so satisfactory at every point, of useful work in the years to come.

About the year 1889 the showmen of the Empire were driven (as all the organised industries of the United Kingdom have been driven), to organise and to protect their avocation in life. The story of the Guild lies mainly in the fact that that organisation was successfully accomplished. Think, he said, of that movement, and all that it means. Here we have a business that is essentially individualistic. The showmen's main point is that, by his special talent, by his special and novel attractive powers, he draws the people to patronise his show. It is, in business hours, his show (the most friendly but keenest rivalry) against the whole fair. In that "wonderland of make-belief," a fair, every man makes his appeal for patronage because "his show is the best show in the fair."

This strenuous clash of individual character, individual genius, is the very spirit of the business. To get such workers to combine is no small achievement. He instanced a case in point. A fire broke out at a show on Hull Fair Ground. In an instant every showman on the ground rushed to the rescue. The fire was speedily put out, but the heavy tilting of the roof was destroyed. Immediately a showman who fortunately had a new tilt in stock sent the tilt to his unfortunate neighbour, and in a very short time, even before the crowds had time to realise that a fire had broken out, the new tilt was over the show, and business was resumed. That is brotherly kindness, that is practical fellowship; yet, in business hours, the trade rivalry of the people concerned is of the keenest character. (Cheers.)

The showmen have learnt, as all the skilled traders and workers of the land have learnt, that combination for mutual benefit and for trade defence is a first condition of life and success. To-day, after eighteen years' hard, persevering, building-up work, their Society was the widely-recognised and respected representative body in the eyes of the nation of the complex industry and up-to-date enterprise of the British fairs. (Applause.)

They had three main objects to engage their working energies as a trade protection society:—(1) To vindicate, whenever unjustly assailed, the character of show people; (2) they were concerned to defend their business in life, when attacked either by individuals or by public bodies; and (3) they combined to better their status in life, and to lift up the character of popular open-air amusements, such as provided on the fair-grounds of the country. (Cheers.)

In the early days of the Guild their hands were quite full in doing the defensive and protective work. Now, and for some years past, the betterment of the entertainments of the people, and the uplifting and recognition of shows and showmen by the public, was closely identified with all their multiform work as an organised body of skilled craftsmen and traders.

They had successfully prevented the passing into law of mistaken and pernicious proposals to hinder and to penalise their business. Scores of corporations had tried to get powers in excess of the general laws of the realm to prevent them carrying on their legitimate business. Since their Parliamentary defence work commenced they had persuaded dozens of public bodies to withdraw their penalising proposals. By the justice of their case they had convinced corporations that such restrictive legislation was quite unnecessary, and that the ordinary law, common to all traders alike, was quite ample for all reasonable and just control. (Cheers.) Wherever they had failed by persuasion they had carried their cause to the floor of the House of Commons. He was proud to say that in every instance—over forty in number—they had successfully opposed stubborn corporations, and, on the Guild's petition, these public bodies had been defeated, and their pernicious and penalising clauses expunged from their private Bills.

They had succeeded in building up in the public Press of the country a more accurate estimate of the position and importance of the fair-ground industry. They had gathered around them a quickened sense of appreciation, and a more intelligent and informed public opinion. All these were elements of great good to them as a class, and, he ventured to assert, to the nation, and to even growing life. (Applause.)

Many years ago, when he first felt impelled to stand out as a friend and champion of the showfolk, they wished to confer upon him the high honour of the presidency of their society. He felt then, and still feels, that that position ought to be held by a real working showman—that as a cleric he could help more than by doing work that could be better done by a layman. They immediately made him their first hon. chaplain, and in that capacity he had done some of the best work of a busy life.

His great hope and ambition was to further extend that work of education and of direct spiritual ministry in their midst. In this great endeavour they had enlisted the co-operation of clergy and ministers of religion in many parts of the country. The presence of Canon Goodall in the chair that afternoon, and the presence and kind help of their hon. chaplain for Rotherham, Mr. Greenway, vicar of St. Michael's, Northfield, was eloquent testimony of the awakened interest in the life of the showman felt by all good and thoughtful people.

They had hon. local chaplains in Lancashire, Yorkshire, the South and the West of England; they had chaplains in Wales, and now that the greater possibilities of organised work amongst show-people was becoming known to the men of God, most encouraging offers of co-operation were coming in to the executive of the Guild. He had made the Guild better known to his own diocesan, the Bishop of London. The good Bishop had commissioned him to submit a practical scheme of mission work amongst the show people. This he was now doing, and he confidently anticipated that, in the near future, he would be wholly free from parish responsibilities, and able to give all his time to the ever-increasing activities of the Guild. (Great applause.)

He wished, before finishing his address, to clearly set out what the Guild meant by educational work. As practical men they desired to supplement (not to supersede or overlap) already existing educational agencies. What he asked was that the real truth about the education of the showman's child might be more widely known. He wished them never to forget that show people had just as much love and affection for their home life and for their little ones as all other parents in the community. They desired for their children as good an education as could be possibly obtained. (Cheers.) That, then, being granted, they would, he felt sure, permit him to detail how, in the vast majority of cases, the show child got educated. Most of these people have permanent homes in addition to their homes on wheels. At the permanent home, in the great majority of cases, the children reside until they have passed the necessary standards at our elementary schools. But that is not all: a great number are left at good middle-class boarding-schools, and receive a good, sound education. Sometimes you see bright, joyous children dancing on the show-fronts. You notice some of them as being of school age. Well, do as I have done. Ask the parents why they are not at school. You will find in almost every instance that it is holiday time at their schools, and the children are enjoying a perpetual joy of holiday, helping the show. What more fitting or more delightful holiday task for a son or daughter of the show?

You may find here and there a child too weak constitutionally to be away from the mother's love and fostering care, and so travels with the show; but that very child would be readily certified by a medical man as unfitted for the mental strain of regular school. Our contention is, he continued, that, taken class for class, trade for trade, the children of the show will compare favourably with the other children of the Commonwealth. We do intend, because education general and technical is essential for our children, to supplement school agencies, where defective, by a system of travelling schools. (Cheers.)

Such were the objects, such were the methods, of the Showmen's Guild. He asked for showmen the same justice, just the same kindly forbearance and broad Christian charity, as was accorded to all other industries and classes in the nation. Grant them this meed of common justice, and all else would settle itself. The showmen were well aware that the very breath of life to them was the growing affection and esteem of shows and fairs by the people. To voice their highest aspirations, and to help them to higher possibilities of usefulness, was the one all-absorbing ambition of his life. In an age of specialisation and the rapid regimentation and speeding up of industry, it was becoming more and more necessary to provide for the machine-driven workers just the kind of amusement provided by our modern fairs. It was to meet this demand for healthy, open-air entertainment that fairs and showmen increased and prospered. The great governing body for the metropolis—the County Council—had recognised that it is wise for corporations to provide such wholesome fun and recreation at holidays, so we find at Hampstead Heath, Blackheath, Wanstead Flats, Wormwood Scrubs, and other open spaces in Greater London popular fairs provided by the hearty co-operation of the Council and the organised showmen. Shall it not be thought wise, he argued, for provincial towns to follow the good lead of London?

He ventured to hope that the old prejudice and misconception of the show people was rapidly dying down, and he expressed the conviction of himself and others, who know what showland really is, that the dawn of the twentieth century was the beginning of brighter and happier days for the men and women of the fair. (Great and continuous applause.)

The Vicar of Rotherham, in highly complimentary terms, moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer.

This was seconded by a splendid speech by the Rev. H. Greenway. He, too, had known Mr. Horne and his work for twenty years, and bore warm testimony to the reality and importance of that work. When the fair was held in his own parish (which it was until quite recent years), he had done all that could be done to help the showmen. He was proud to be their chaplain, proud to be their friend, and was always a welcome guest in their vans.

His first experience of van life was rather a dramatic occurrence. The little girl of the van, by some mischance, whilst he was seated in the van, caught fire. He did at once what anyone else would have done in the emergency—he wrapped the child in a rug which was lying to his hand on the bed. The child was really more frightened than hurt; but this was his point, and only reason for telling the incident, the gratitude of the showman and his wife was most touching—most overwhelming. Never had he experienced such real, heartfelt gratitude as was lavished upon him in that caravan. That was a peep behind the scenes—a real revelation of the genuine character of show folk that would never leave him. He felt for show people very warmly, and he heartily endorsed all that their good organising chaplain had said on their behalf. He had, therefore, peculiar pleasure in seconding the vote of thanks to Mr. Horne. (Applause.)

Canon Goodall then put the resolution to the meeting, and it was carried with acclamation.

In acknowledging the vote of thanks, Mr. Horne concluded by moving a vote of thanks to Canon Goodall for presiding. Mr. Wm. Gibson (proprietor of Gibson's occult illusions), in a characteristic speech, seconded the vote of thanks to the worthy Canon. He remarked that after their reverend friends had so exhaustively dealt with the question before the meeting very little was left for him to say. He should, however, like to add his testimony as regards the feeling of Rotherham towards showpeople in general. He knew that they had a very warm spot in their hearts for those who came year by year and provided entertainment for the people at the fair. That being so, he was very proud to be the mouthpiece of his brother-showmen in acknowledging the unvarying kind treatment that the clergy, gentry, and the people in their mass numbers had shown the showpeople. It was only a few years ago that he, with other showpeople, was approached on behalf of one of their noble local charities. He alluded to the Convalescent Home at Whitby, provided by the people of Rotherham that the poor children, after serious illness, might recruit their health at the seaside. Well, as my dear friend Mr. Horne has informed the meeting, they—the fathers and mothers of the road—were just as fond of their children as other parents were, and to ask them to help the children was to touch a quick and responsive chord in their hearts. The did help the children, and every show and every stall in the fair contributed to that worthy object.

This was a pleasant memory to him, and he doubted not a binding link between the showpeople and the people of the town. He well remembered how their friend, the Vicar of Rotherham, appreciated their effort, and he was more than pleased that Canon Goodall and Mr. Greenway were present with them, and he had great pleasure in seconding the vote of thanks to the Vicar, as their chairman, for that interesting meeting.

Mr. Horne then put the vote to the meeting, and it was passed amidst great cheering. Canon Goodall, in response, said that it gave him great pleasure indeed to co-operate with the work of the Showmen's Guild, and to identify himself with Mr. Horne's most encouraging work.

After the townspeople left the show a private meeting of members of the Association was held, and matters of pressing moment to the trade defence movement were discussed. A telegram was read, sent by Mr. P. Collins, explaining that nothing but the orders of his medical man would have kept him from the meetings. He ventured to suggest to the showpeople that a benefit performance be given on Tuesday night (the last night of the fair) to strengthen the funds of the Guild. He said that he would give one good hour's full takings from the three machines that he was running at Rotherham, and he hoped that the other proprietors would follow suit. The suggestion was warmly approved, and the one or two show proprietors not present were sent for, and it was unanimously agreed that the full takings of one hour's business—between seven and eight on the Tuesday—be given by all the machine proprietors, and that the net proceeds on one full house be given by the large shows.

It was also resolved that a subscription list for small donations be taken round the fair from stall to stall, and that everyone should be given the opportunity of helping the good cause forward. We give in another place the detailed figures of the remarkable success that attended the first benefit performances ever given by showmen for the funds of their own Society.

There was a slight improvement in the weather in the evening, and a crowded and most attentive congregation attended the Guild service in Mr. Kemp's beautiful show. The pavilion was filled from end to end, every seat being occupied and people standing on the run-down and in the side aisles of the temporary church. A great number of Mr. Horne's old parishioners from Whiston were present, and strong contingents from the mining villages in the immediate neighbourhood. The honorary chaplain conducted the service throughout, and preached a most impressive sermon, dividing it in two parts, with the singing of a hymn from the Guild Service book in between. The first half of the discourse (which was founded on the Marriage Feast in Cana of Galilee) was applied in general terms to the daily life of the whole of his congregation, the second half was the special application of the subject to the daily life of the travelling showpeople. During the service a number of rousing hymns were sung, and after the Benediction Mr. Horne acknowledged, in suitable terms, the great obligation the Guild was under to Mr. and Mrs. Kemp and the staff of their portable theatre. He particularly referred to the magnificent galaxy of electric lighting, both inside and out, and to the comfort and brightness of the beautiful show booth, which had been placed at their disposal with the greatest possible readiness and without any charge for working expenses by Mr. and Mrs. Kemp. He felt sure that in tendering this measure of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Kemp he was uttering not only the gratitude of the congregation, but also of the members and executive council of the Showmen's Guild, an organisation that Mr. and Mrs. Kemp have supported from its very commencement.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE FOR THE GUILD FUNDS AT ROTHERHAM.

During the past few years, when the Guild has been experiencing considerable financial strain, it has been more than once suggested that benefit performances at a certain number of the fairs be arranged during the season. There has always been unanimity of desire to further this excellent object, but up to a week ago it has been practically impossible to carry it out, the difficulty being the indispensable "man on the spot," not burdened with the work of the fair, to carry through the detailed work of the necessary arrangements. Mr. Horne, assisted by Mr. T. Hurst, was able to do this, and so the idea was carried to a most gratifying conclusion. Mr. P. Collins, the originator of the Rotherham benefit, gave the takings of his three machines as follows:—Motor-cars, £6 5s. 4d.; farmyard set, £2 12s.; helter-skelter, 11s. 8d. Mr. John Collins:—Horses, £3 1s. 6d.; wheely-whirly, £2 4s. 10d.; steam yachts, £2 0s. 4d. The shows were:—Kemp, £2; Relph and Pedley, £1 18s. 0d.; Enoch Farrer, £1 17s.; J. H. Chipperfield, £1 9s. 6d.; W. Gibson, 5s. 7d. The following amounts were taken in small subscriptions:—S. Mercer, 5s.; J. Ingham, 5s.; W. Shaw, 5s.; G. H. Cornwell, 2s. 6d.; S. Braham, 2s. 6d.; F. Towers, 2s.; Mr. Ratcliffe, 1s.; Mr. Houldsworth, 1s.; Mr. Gunthorpe, 1s.; Mr. Wright, 1s.; Mrs. Lee, 1s.; Mrs. Middlebrook, 1s.; Mrs. Cooper, 1s.; Mrs. Mulhearn, 1s.

Guild subscriptions for 1906.—Per Mr. Hurst: Arthur Gibson, Esq. (hon. member), Wigan, £1.

For some years the matter of entertaining passengers, as a means of relieving the monotony of a long voyage, has received attention. Steamship owners have again and again been approached, with a view to bioscope installation, but have turned a deaf ear to every project. Once more has it been left to the foreigner to show us the way, and it is an Italian steamship company that has initiated a new movement to popularise its route by the aid of the cinématograph.

The usual ship's concert requires much effort to organise; passengers tire of bands; but nobody ever wearies of pictures: they appeal to all, whether saloon, intermediate, or steerage passengers. Any liner known to possess a good bioscope installation, with a nightly change of pictures, would, from this cause alone, do great things in the way of booking passengers of every class. A judicious selection of film subjects would not only serve the purpose mentioned, but would also educate emigrants by informing them, through the medium of the eye, of the conditions of life awaiting them in their new environment. Such, at any rate, seems to be the idea of the Veloce Navigation Company, who have made arrangements to this effect, the Urban productions largely predominating in their répertoire of subjects. In the more costly film preparations, for photographic results, we are far and away ahead of other countries.

CHAT WITH MISS MAY BEATTY.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

From the Antipodes there have come to us many actors and actresses of fine calibre, and we should imagine that not the least of these is Miss May Beatty, who visits these parts with excellent credentials. Miss Beatty, who is a native of New Zealand, having been born in Christchurch, considers that she can claim to be an Irish woman, because her father was a thorough-bred Hibernian. And, apart from her undoubted talents, her Irish parentage may stand her in good stead, when, at Christmas time, she appears as a principal boy before Dublin playgoers. For she has been engaged by Mrs. Michael Gunn to appear in the title-rôle of the pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor, which is to be produced at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin.

Miss Beatty, who has only been in London for three months, and whose first visit it is to this country, has had a remarkably busy and successful career—considering her youth—in Australia and New Zealand. She commenced theatrical life in Mr. Pollard's company, and for nine years played with him in comic opera, musical comedy, pantomime, and burlesque. She made her way from the chorus upwards, and has appeared in all the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, taking the leading soprano parts. Leaving Mr. Pollard, Miss Beatty was engaged by Mr. George Musgrove as lead for his English musical comedy company. She took part in The Fortune Teller, The Serenade, Fra Diavolo, Daughter of the Regiment, and created in Australia the character of Fifi in A Chinese Honeymoon. It here also might be mentioned that Miss Beatty was the first actress in the Antipodes to play the part of Carmenita in A Runaway Girl. The rôles we have enumerated do not by any means exhaust the list of this clever artist's successful impersonations. Her versatility seems to be unbounded. She tells us that she has taken no less than one hundred "leads." She was with Mr. Musgrove for two and a half years, and when leaving New Zealand three months ago had just concluded three years' connection with Mr. George Stephenson, with whom she took lead in such pieces as The Rose of the Riviera, The Dandy Doctor, The Skirt Dancer, and A Chinese Honeymoon.

In London she has engaged in what was to her quite a new department of stage work. During the last two or three weeks she has played the part of a boy in a burlesque sketch, entitled In Her Boudoir, which has been produced at various music halls. Her acquaintance with the metropolis and with the theatres of variety here is, of course, so limited at present that she does not care for the moment to venture an opinion upon either. One of her sisters, by the way, who was known as Miss Maud Beatty, was the principal girl in the Drury Lane pantomime three years ago, but she is now no longer connected with the stage, having some time ago joined in the bonds of holy matrimony, and quitted professional life.

Miss Beatty's father built the Theatre Royal, Christchurch, before the subject of this sketch came into the world. The young lady has, however, appeared in her father's playhouse on numerous occasions, and it may be the parental association with theatreland that was partly responsible for Miss Beatty becoming an actress. She is exceedingly fond of her work, and quite enthusiastic as to her future prospects. Miss Beatty possesses a charming personality, and one can safely predict that the Dublinites at Christmas will find in her a most engaging "principal boy."

Terrier Fred Larola, comedy juggler, who recently returned from Australia viâ India, has presented Mr. Harry Lester, the popular secretary of the fraternity, with a miniature ebony and ivory elephant, and two cases of rare butterflies, as a mark of appreciation.

The Terriers gave their second social of the season on Sunday at the head-quarters, the Dover Castle, Westminster Bridge-road. The attendance was again a large one, considering the weather. The artists who contributed to the entertainment were Mr. Tom Packer, Miss Alice Meier, Mr. F. W. Millis, Miss Ada Norman, Mr. Andie Caine, Miss Elsa Douglas, Mr. George Cooper and Miss Cooper, Mr. Frank Gee, Mrs. Sam Stockton, Mrs. Harry Gage, Mr. W. L. Murray, and Miss Alice Gillman. Mr. Tom Packer acted as M.C., Mr. J. C. Moore presided at the piano, Mr. John Moore was the chairman, Mr. Tom Burnetti occupied the vice-chair, and the arrangements were successfully carried out by the secretary, Mr. Harry Lester.

ROTHERHAM STATUTES FAIR.

This fair stands well between Hull and York, and occurs at a time when the big concerns making either for York, Wakefield, or enterprising for private business, find that they have something like a fortnight at their disposal. Before the enterprise of Mr. John Collins (on the failure of the Corporation to carry on their fair) made Rotherham a good business centre for something like ten or twelve days, the Statutes at Rotherham only extended at the most for four days. It is a very gratifying sign of the adaptation of the show business to modern requirements that you find in very great centres of population that, where the Corporations have failed to rise to the necessities of the case, the showman lessee has stepped into the gap, and provided a fair which fits in much better with modern requirements.

On our visit to the fair we were much impressed by its splendid order, variety, and arrangement. The principal shows, and, indeed, all the shows, formed one line, occupying the complete stretch of the length of the ground at its widest point. Along this line, all in a row together, were the superb cinématograph theatres of G. H. Kemp, Relph and Pedley, and Enoch Farrer. These shows were a perfect galaxy of light, beauty, and sweetest music. Continuing the line, we had Chipperfield's wild beast menagerie, with the lion performances of Lowtazno, the prince of animal tamers; W. Gibson's temple of occult mystery and exposure of spiritualism, the professor having with him that famous mystic Syko; Sid. Braham's perfect ground booth—the trained birds, and Miss Braham, the most charming and expert lady conjurer on the road; J. Hastings, with two ground booths, exhibiting Mme. Lambert, the giant lady, and the midget marvels; and E. Farrer's two side shows—the distorting mirrors and fine art academy.

In the centre of the fair-ground, and well displayed, were the following high-class machines:—The lessee's (J. Collins) three sets, the galloping horses, the wheely-whirly, and the steam yachts in the air; P. Collins's three machines, the farmyard set, the motor-cars, and the helter-skelter; Wilson's big wheel, W. Shaw's steam swings, and sets of juvenile horses, motor-cars, and swings, by Messrs. S. Mercer, J. Gavan, and Mrs. Middlebrook. There was a long row of shooting concerns, and amongst these were G. H. Cornwell, with two concerns; Fossett, with two galleries. Marsden, with two concerns; and batteries and tubes by Messrs. Ratcliffe, Lever, Pullan, and Hughes and Martin. There were three bazaars, those of Messrs. Seed, Gledstone, and Pullan; and the gingerbread stalls were provided by Messrs. Wright Bros., A. Dearing, Rylands, Pullan, and Mrs. Mulhearn, with local caterers.

There were also two long avenues of throwing game, dolly frames, ring and dart boards, strikers, and variety stalls, chiefly provided by Messrs. Mercer, Whatmore, Ingham, Steward, Smith, Illingworth, Calver, Smith, Middlebrook, Lever, Cooper, Houldsworth, Ratcliffe, and Lee. With these were associated a number of enterprising local caterers. The photo. saloon was provided by H. Gunthorpe.

Those who remember how straightened the space available for shows became towards the close of the period covered by Corporation management will recognise that only under such excellent conditions as those now provided by Mr. Collins could the fair hope to grow and to meet the constantly increasing demands of an industrial centre for the open-air entertainment provided at our popular fairs.

Mr. John Leopold will produce on Monday, at the Hackney Empire, a new sketch in two scenes, entitled The House Boat, from his own pen and that of Wilfred Vaughan. Eighteen artists are engaged in this sketch. The scenery is excellent, the house-boat on the Thames picturesque, and the dresses are also very pretty. The efforts of the comedians should result in roars of laughter, as the whole production goes with a bang. Frank Elliston also brings his laughable sketch, Aunt Matilda, and a delightful combination will be seen when Miss Millie Hylton and Decima Brooke take the stage.

We announced in last issue the death of Mrs. Webb, wife of the veteran comedian, J. J. Webb, and mother of the world-renowned Brothers Webb. The funeral took place on the 3rd inst., at Tooting Cemetery. The hearse and coffin were covered with floral tokens of sympathy from the family, from relatives, and from brother and sister artists. Wreaths were sent by Mr. Gerretti and daughters, Jean Seul and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McNaughton, Miss Jessie Preston, Mr. G. Preston and family, the Wootons Family, the White Family, Mr. and Mrs. Mattocks, and the Chamberlain Family. The grave, which is a family one, is next to that of Mrs. Gerretti, and is in close proximity to that of Dan Leno.

Miss Kathleen Cogan, a very young and very talented comedienne, has come all at once to the front. Given an "extra turn" at the Euston last week, she so pleased the management that she was at once placed on the bills, and "starred" for this week. Miss Cogan's success has been remarkable, every audience receiving her with uproarious applause.

"Moses and Son," with the inimitable Fred Kitchen, owing to the great success it achieved at the Duchess Palace, Balham, last week, has been retained for another week at that charming house.

Mr. Jack Lorimer, the well-known Scottish comedian, accompanied by Mrs. Lorimer and the "bonny bairn," will shortly be proceeding to New York, where the former is under engagement to appear at Hammerstein's. The party will leave London on the 21st inst., proceeding to New York per the Oceanic. Mr. Lorimer's latest song is entitled "A sprig of heather."

A most emphatic "hit" has been achieved by Miss Clarice Mayne at the Palace, Hammersmith, this week, with Paul Pelham, Newton Butts, and Herbert Rule's new comedy song "She didn't come from Borneo," the "catchy" chorus being sung all over the house by her delighted auditors. The publication of the song is being hurried forward in order to keep pace with the imperative trade demands, and the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., who are bringing out this successful number, hope to issue it at a very early date.

The demands for the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s Christmas Budget of good things in the shape of songs proves unabating, and pantomime producers and artists are not only eagerly snapping up such tried and proven successes as "Bamboo bungalow" and "Tiny firefly," but they also evince a keen desire to annex "Old Calabar," "Look out, boys, there's a girl about," and that dainty number, so suitable for "fairy queens," "Waterfall."

Mr. Ernest Shand is making a "hit"—a palpable "hit"—with two of Harrington and Tate's songs at the Oxford and his other "turns" nightly. The titles of these numbers are "Oh, dearly beloved brethren," and the old favourite "Look at the weather," the latter of which has been brought right up to date. The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. issue both of these successful songs in their "Sixpenny Successes" series, and they are enjoying a huge sale.

That prolific author-composer, E. W. Rogers, has recently placed a budget of his very best with Messrs. Feldman and Co.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE ANNIVERSARY.

A whole week is being devoted, as in former years, to the celebration of the anniversary of the Hammersmith Theatre of Varieties, which a few years ago was reconstructed and handsomely redecorated by the present proprietor, Mr. J. C. Coe, and brought into line with the most palatial halls of the metropolis. The enterprise has enjoyed continuous prosperity, and Monday, the first day of the anniversary, saw the building crowded to its utmost capacity in the full enjoyment of a programme expanded far beyond its usual size, which is being presented throughout the week with occasional "extra turns." The chief item of the bill is La Main, the weird episode taken from the French, which has already won success alike in theatre and hall. The part of the actress is played with thrilling intensity and power by Mlle. Camilla D'Alberg, who keeps the audience thoroughly engrossed; and the Baron and the Burglar are characteristically portrayed by Mr. George Wright and Mr. Cecil King respectively.

At an early period of the evening the house is put into a merry humour by Rezene and Robini, whose new entertainment gives opportunity for one little comedian to indulge his quaintness at the expense of the other. His appearance as a little girl who exercises her precocity on a London policeman is very droll, and the query, "Shall I?" which so closely affects the comfort of his partner, always arouses an answering peal of laughter. Barnard's marionettes receive a large share of approval, what is described as "a really wonderful performance" being carried out to the letter. The coon songs so smartly rendered by Miss Gladys Mavius have become famous for their tunefulness and novelty, and the rhythmical skill of her dances gives the finishing touch to a turn over which the house grows enthusiastic. The McNaughtons, who are heartily welcomed, put the audience into throes of merriment with their burlesque boxing match, during the progress of which there is no end to the mirth.

A renewal of popularity long since acquired is made by Miss Carlotta Levey, whose performance as principal boy in last year's pantomime at the King's Theatre is also pleasurably recalled. Miss Levey is enabled in her songs to hit public sentiment at its most vulnerable point, and the feeling she puts into the refrain, "Don't tell the world your troubles," as well as into that of "All I got was sympathy," quite carries the audience away. The Abdullah Arabs go through their whirlwind evolutions with wonderful agility and precision, their pyramid building evoking the heartiest applause; and the acrobatic feats of the Moxon Trio, combined with a deal of humour, cause laughter and admiration by turns. The clever juveniles schooled by Miss Carrie Lawrie go through their kindergarten exercises, which consist principally of singing and dancing, to the delight of all; and in The Butler Knows, by the Brown and Kelly company, the head of the combination is seen in his inimitable impersonation of the elderly butler, whose endeavours to conceal a fugitive baby are made irresistibly amusing.

A first appearance in England is made by Phil and Nettie Peters, whose forte is comedy. The gentleman reaches the highest point of eccentricity in his attire, and his manipulation of a dilapidated trombone, and his comic conversation with his partner—a lady with a fascinating appearance, a merry laugh, and a tuneful voice—result in mirth which is continuous throughout their stay. Mr. George Mozart, the "one-man" drama, and the sketch, Black Justice, played by Brown and Le Clerq, are great attractions of the festival bill, which also includes Mr. George Bastow, of "Farmer Giles" fame; Miss Clarice Mayne, mimic; Miss Billie Burford, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Jack Pleasants, comedian; Miss Blanche Holt, comedienne; and the Edisonograph. Mr. J. C. Coe was present in the hall on Monday to welcome an overflowing house; and Mr. Lewis Vincent, the efficient and courteous acting-manager, was able, with the best grace, to greet the more belated visitor with "Standing room only!"

Quite a number of "bungalow" songs are offered for pantomime, but the one that seems to have caught the present fancy is Messrs. Scott, Mills, and Castling's "Bungalow in Borneo." So great has been its success in Bolton that Mr. Elliston arranged a special matinée, and during the week held singing contests, which aroused much enthusiasm.

The Shapiro Von Tilzer Music Co. have numerous demands for their "biggest winners"—"Take me back to London town," Sweet Saturday night," "Moonbeam," "Little girl," "Little grey eyes," and "Lola in my gondola."

The Shapiro Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have secured the publishing rights of Jock Whiteford's two successful songs, "The Banks of Allans Waters" and "My Bonnie Jessie does not come from Borneo," both of which are written and composed by Mr. J. F. Lambe. They will be issued as soon as possible. The same firm also have in the press a Scottish edition of Mose Gumble's highly successful song "Mariar," by the same author, called "Mary the Flower of Inverary."

The Shapiro Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have now issued professional copies of Miss Jessie Preston's phenomenally successful song, "Be advised by your father." This song is free for pantomime, and is admirably suited for such parts as "Dick Whittington," "Robinson Crusoe," "Sinbad," "Jack and the Beanstalk," &c. A limited number of free permissions will also be given for provincial music halls, for which early application is necessary. The author and composer is Mr. J. F. Lambe.

"What has become of our songs?" a comic ditty sung by Joe Archer, also published by Messrs. Feldman, is in great demand for pantomime. The same firm has secured Arthur Lennard's great success "If I had been born a girl," of which great things are anticipated.

Miss Maude Mortimer, daring a well-earned rest after a successful tour of the provinces, has been rehearsing her répertoire for South Africa, the numbers being supplied by Messrs. Feldman, whose songs she has been singing with phenomenal success on her recent tour.

At this season of the year inquiries fall thick and fast as to when Warwick Williams' grand selection of popular airs will be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day, and we learn from that firm that this year the selection will be entitled "The Season's Plums," and that band parts of the same will be positively ready the first week in December.

Those well-known people Percy Ashdown and Arthur St. George have joined hands, and have opened an office at 56, Clapham-road, for the supply of songs and sketches to the profession. A speciality of the new firm is the arranging of band parts guaranteed to time.

Miss Daisy Morrell is scoring a big success on the Barrasford tour with two big numbers from the pens of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, namely, "Ballooning" and "Nelson from his monument."

Home songs, with heart sentiment, always appeal to the public. A charming number of this kind is "Will you love me in December as you do in May?" This pretty song achieved the greatest possible popularity in America, and bids fair to duplicate its success in England.

THE

IMPERIAL THEATRE, WESTMINSTER.

SHORT NOTICE OF SALE BY AUCTION.

By Direction of Mrs. LANGTRY,

MESSRS. MARLER & MARLER

will offer for

at the MART, Tokenhouse Yard, on THURSDAY, Nov. 22, 1906, at 1 o'clock precisely, the Valuable Lease of the above House, with Immediate Possession. The Theatre was built by Mr. Frank Verity six years ago for Mrs. Langtry, regardless of expense. Since then it has been re-upholstered and re-decorated, and a new and exceptionally complete electric installation has been made. The stage is exceptionally large, and is furnished with the most modern appliances, and to it is attached a large Paint-room and Scene-dock. The house is ready for immediate occupation, and can be opened at a few days' notice for a Production. Held on Lease at a moderate rental.—Printed particulars and conditions of sale may be obtained from Messrs. Sutton, Ommanney, and Rendall, solicitors, of 3 and 4, Great Winchester-street, London, E.C.; from Messrs. Chantrey, Chantrey, and Co., Accountants, of 57, Moorgate-street, E.C.; and, together with permits to view, from the Auctioneers, at their offices, 176, Sloane-street, Belgravia, S.W.

CAPITALISTS.

THE THEATRE ROYAL, STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

Messrs. R. & W. MACK
are instructed to offer

FOR SALE BY AUCTION,

at the Theatre Hotel, Stockton-on-Tees, on Tuesday, the 20th day of November, 1906, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all that commanding measuring 988 square yards, or thereabouts, situated in Yarm-lane, Stockton-on-Tees, being the site of the Theatre Royal, recently partially destroyed by fire.

The situation is unique for a theatre or music hall, having a long frontage to Yarm-lane, convenient access for scenery, &c., from Yarm-lane and Bridge-road, and being within fifty yards of the electric tramways running from Norton, through Stockton, Thornaby, and Middlesbrough, to North Ormsby, giving expeditious and inexpensive access to the population of an extensive and populous district.

The main halls, including the handsomely-designed front in Yarm-lane, remain standing, and are practically intact.

The Theatre Royal was fully licensed by the county magistrates representing the Durham County Council.

Apart from the special value of the site for a theatre or music hall, its situation and extent render it well adapted for shops or for wholesale business premises.

For further particulars apply to Messrs. Thomas and Malkin, solicitors, Stockton-on-Tees; to Messrs. Criddle and Criddle, solicitors, 2, Collingwood-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne; or to the auctioneers, 73 and 77, Pilgrim-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

FOR TWENTY-FIVE SHILLINGS.

TO THE PUBLISHER, "THE ERA."

Sir,—

It may possibly interest you to learn that a Quarter-Column Advertisement in "The Era" (One Insertion) resulted in over £1,000 Bookings for an Entertainment with which I was connected some little time ago. The Entertainment was entitled

"THE CRUISE OF THE OPHIR,"

Cinématograph Show, and the Bookings were effected within a week.

BRIDLINGTON.

TO BE SOLD
by Auction
by Messrs. CRANSWICK and CRANSWICK, at the People's Palace, Quay-road, Bridlington, on THURSDAY, Nov. 29, 1906, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon precisely. (Subject to the General Conditions of Sale of the Hull Incorporated Law Society and to such special and other Conditions as will be then and there produced).

The whole of the Valuable Freehold Estate of the

BRIDLINGTON PEOPLE'S PALACE COMPANY, LTD.

(In Voluntary Liquidation),

Situate in Quay-road, Prospect-street, and Palace-avenue, Bridlington,
and consisting of:—

LARGE CONCERT HALL OR THEATRE (licensed); good stage, 29ft. opening, 20ft. deep, and 20ft. high, with large gallery and a seating capacity for about 1,500 people.

LARGE REFRESHMENT ROOM (fully licensed), 50ft. long, 30ft. wide, 22ft. high, with two good Tea Rooms attached, each being 24ft. long and 18ft. wide; boiler, heating apparatus, and lift to kitchen; good cellarage.

EXTENSIVE BALL-ROOM, 90ft. by 50ft., in basement; lavatories and w.c.'s.

LARGE ROOM adjoining Ball-Room, 50ft. by 30ft., used at present as a Shooting Gallery.

GOOD BOWLING GREEN in Palace Grounds.

TEN THOUSAND YARDS or thereabouts of Valuable BUILDING LAND surrounding the Palace.

FOUR GOOD LOCK-UP SHOPS (at the front of the Palace), recently built. Three let.

THREE SHOPS IN PROSPECT-STREET (adjoining the Palace Grounds), also commodious Dwelling-house and out-offices known as "ROSEN-DALE."

ELEVEN GOOD HOUSES IN PALACE-AVENUE, nearly new.

The Estate has a frontage to the main street, leading from the Railway Station to the sea, of about 125yds.

The Gross Annual Rental of the Houses and Shops (all of which have been recently reduced) is £401 10s., and £11 per annum is also received from advertising boards in front of the Palace. Such rents are quite exclusive of the Palace itself, from which alone the sum of £335 has been received in rentals this year.

All the Properties are Freehold and in the centre of the town (which is rapidly increasing in popularity), and would form a most desirable investment.

For further particulars apply to the Auctioneers, Messrs. Cranswick and Cranswick, Quay-road; Miss Morgan, 40, Tennyson-avenue, Bridlington; to the Liquidator, Mr. W. Kitchingman, The Aquarium, Scarborough; or to

Messrs. RICHARDSON and SON,
Solicitors, Bridlington.

FRANCIS, DAY, & HUNTER'S

11th HOUR PANTO. NOVELTIES.

"FIGHTING FOR THEIR KING AND SIRELAND."

(A Grand Patriotic Song),
Written and Composed by Edward Montagu.

There's a mighty little island, where the west wind blows,
Where the oak tree grows, and the red, red, rose;
And her native sons have never failed to thrash her foes.
The whole world knows it well.
Though her rivals always envy her, and try to claim
That she's not the same at the fighting game;
Her sons throughout the world will still uphold her name,
And win anew the glories of her fame.

Chorus:—
At duty's call in line will fall, whenever danger's nigh,
The boys who'll waste no time in idle brag;
From colonies beyond the seas the men who'll do or die,
Underneath the same old flag.
The gallant Scotch, the old Black Watch, those fighting Highland boys,
And then that dear dare-devil Pat from Ireland,
Tommy Atkins tried and true, sailor lads in navy blue,
Fighting for their King and Sireland.

"ARRAH WANNA."

(An Original Irish-Indian Song).
Words by Jack Drislane, Music by Theodore Morse.

'Mid the wild and woolly prairies lived an Indian maid,
Arrah Wanna, queen of fairies, of her tribe afraid.
Each night came an Irish laddie O, with a wedding ring,
He would sit outside her tent, and with his bagpipes loudly sing.

Chorus:—
Arrah Wanna, on my honour, I'll take care of you;
I'll be kind and true.
We can love and bill and coo.
In a wigwam built of shamrock green, we'll make those red men smile,
When you're Missis Barney Michael Carney from Killarney's isle.

"THE GOOD OLD UNION JACK."

(A Dramatic Story and Stirring Refrain).
Words by Jack Drislane, Music by Theodore Morse.

Tell me, daddy, tell me, why those men in that big crowd,
Won't you tell me why they're cheering, what makes each one look so proud?
Listen, lad, he answered, it's the tune the brass band plays,
It's the song, "Britannia Rules the Waves," and you'll know one of these days.

Chorus:—
Makes no diff'rence where you wander, makes no diff'rence where you roam;
You don't have to stop and ponder for a place to call your home;
When they ask where you were born, lad, speak right up and answer back,
That you're proud of your own dear Motherland, and the good old Union Jack.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously

The CHRONOPHONE AT THE ALBERT HALL.

NEW ZEALAND GRAPHIC, July 7, 1906.
GAUMONT'S CHRONOPHONE at the ALBERT HALL, ALBERT ST., AUCKLAND.
M. Gaumont's Chronophone, now showing at the Albert Hall, Albert Street, Auckland, is, without a doubt, the finest Machine ever brought out to the Colonies, and its set of subjects is unique. The Chronophone is the first of its kind seen in New Zealand, and thoroughly realises the wish so often expressed when one sees a really fine living picture, "If the picture could only speak." By a clever adjustment of a huge talking machine and the picture machine, the CHRONOPHONE shows the singer singing, and one hears the words with wonderful distinctness—words and artist's lips synchronising perfectly. The effect is striking, and the enthusiasm of the crowded audiences which have been attracted to the Albert Hall, augurs well for the Chronophone's tour of the Colonies. Some of the best subjects were:—"Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," "Ticklish Reuben," "Coster's Serenade." The entertainment is a first-class one, and will not be missed by those in search of something good and something new.

WALSORT TO ANSEREMME

This is an excellent panorama of the scenery along the banks of the river Meuse. The winding of the river gives delightful surprises, as one travels from Walsort to Anseremme, and the country is most picturesque, being quite equal to that of the Rhine. Huge rocks tower up to a tremendous height, some quite bare and others very woody. Every curve of the river seems to show some fresh pleasant sight, the view being always unexpectedly altered. Here and there small villages show up, nicely tucked up in their own little valley between the tremendous hills.

The quality throughout is splendid and is a lovely reproduction of nature at her very best.

Length 275ft. Price £6 17s. 6d.

No. 1181.

ANSEREMME TO DINANT.

This film is a continuation of views taken in Belgium along the river Meuse. The river between the above mentioned towns winds through a succession of stately old mansions and very pretty houses half hidden in masses of foliage. The sharp curves of the river are still very noticeable, and the continually changing view gives an added interest to this panorama. As the city of Dinant comes in sight, a quaint old church is seen, with a bulb-shaped steeple standing quite close to the water's edge. Dinant is situated at the foot of a very high rock, on the top of which is a fort. The city is a very interesting one, being composed of exceedingly pretty and clean old-fashioned houses.

Length 250ft. Price £6 5s. 0d.

This river panorama can be supplied all in one length if required, making a most exquisite view of the finest scenes in Belgium.

INTRODUCTION EXTRAORDINARY.

American visitor enters the hotel lobby, and proceeds to the enquiry office and books a room, hands his luggage to "boots," and departs. He is followed by a young lady, who also requires to book apartments. She likewise hands her bag to the chambermaid, and leaves. Next view shows the lady's and the gentleman's bedrooms, each dismayed at finding the wrong bag, which contains the other sex's clothes, which gradually become animated. Becoming scared, they pull their respective bell-ropes. When maid and "boots" arrive the lady and gentleman demand an explanation. As the maid and "boots" come forward, the garments fall into heaps on the floor, and go into the bags themselves. They take up the bags, and exchange them. Gentleman meets the lady, and explains the matter, which ends happily.

SCENE II.—AT HOME. Notson worries his wife for money, but she is penniless. Notson leaves, bent on getting money from somewhere.
SCENE III.—OUTSIDE A BANK. Notson trips up an old gent, and steals his bag.
SCENE IV.—BACK HOME. The bag is opened, and Notson shows his wife and child his ill-gotten riches. His wife will have nothing to do with it. He quickly loads his pockets, and in reply to his wife's entreaties, knocks her down and departs.
SCENE V.—IN THE STREET. Notson meets a lady of his acquaintance, and suggests a visit to the Carnival at "The Bull and Bush."
SCENE VI.—ON THE WAY TO THE CARNIVAL (toned night blue). Notson and his lady friend are followed by his wife and child. The lady friend is put into a cab and sent on to the Carnival. Notson demands of his wife her reason for following him. Once more she entreats him to return the money and come home. Her entreaties are in vain. He fells her to the ground and rushes off to the Carnival. A Salvation Army Captain and Lassie find mother and child on the roadside. The S.A. Captain, the child, and a policeman go in search of Notson, who left his stick in the road.
SCENE VII.—AT THE CARNIVAL (stained gas light). Here is seen Notson and his lady friend enjoying themselves. His child comes in and points out her father to the S.A. Captain. The Captain proffers the stick. "Thanks," says Notson. "Then you are the man we want," says the Captain. "Off with that Domino."
SCENE VIII.—THROUGH THE GARDENS (stained gas light).
SCENE IX.—OUTSIDE THE BULL AND BUSH (toned night blue).
SCENE X.—IN THE STREET (toned night blue). Notson is given in charge.

EIGHTEEN MONTHS LATER.

SCENE XI.—OUTSIDE WORMWOOD SCRUBBS PRISON. A gang of prisoners are marched out. Notson gets his release. He is met by the S.A. Captain and hands Notson his stick once more. Notson will not listen to the Captain at first, but eventually agrees to go in a cab home to his waiting wife and child.
SCENE XII.—HOME ONCE MORE. Notson's wife is prepared for the event by the S.A. Lassie. The Captain enters, as does Notson, who clasps his little daughter to his breast. Notson is, indeed, a repentant and reformed man, and receives his wife's forgiveness.

A strong tale, well told, and runs easily, without straining to follow the story. Holds the audience right up to the last moment, when thunders of applause break out from all parts of the House.

ANOTHER URBAN TRIUMPH

THE GREAT MOIR-PALMER PRIZE FIGHT

For the HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP of ENGLAND, at the National Sporting Club, King Street, London, on Monday Evening, Oct. 29th. at 10 o'clock.

BY COURTESY OF THE NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB we received SOLE CONCESSIONS enabling us TO DEPICT THIS GREAT FIGHT in all its stages.

A Special Private Exhibition of the Film was given on Nov. 1st, at which were present the Leading Sportsmen of England, as well as Representatives of the Sporting Press, and the unanimous verdict at the conclusion was—"MOST EXCELLENT—BEST WE EVER SAW—HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS—THE FINEST PRIZE-FIGHT FILM EVER TAKEN, EVEN INCLUDING FORMER 'DAYLIGHT' PICTURES."

Absolutely no point of the Great Fight was missed, and the whole is reproduced—IN A PICTURE OF PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY EQUAL TO THE BEST DAYLIGHT EXPOSURE—without a break, from preliminaries to conclusion.

The Grand Result of our perfect arrangements, a close and uninterrupted view of the Ring, and a Special installation of powerful Arc Lamps of 30,000 c.p. brilliancy, is

Of this Film, 'THE SPORTSMAN' of Nov. 3rd, says:

"So fine a picture has been taken of the Boxing Match of Monday last that the hundreds and thousands who follow the sport and were not present at headquarters will in the near future be able to see the struggle presented, with everything that took place, to the most minute detail. . . The best pictures of a Boxing Contest ever produced here, or it may be, anywhere. Clear films and a wonderfully steady action enable every movement to be followed. . . Not a point is lost . . in fact, the affair is placed before the eye as it actually occurred."

Of this Film, 'THE SPORTSMAN' of Nov. 3rd, says:

"EMPIRE" CINEMATOGRAPHS.

More Improvements than have been put into a Cinematograph for years.

BALL BEARINGS.

Best London Workmanship.

The "EMPIRE" No. 2.

Price (Complete, without Illuminant) £30.

Every exhibition given with an EMPIRE Cinematograph secures another engagement, for the picture shown is bound to please.

BUTCHER'S "EMPIRE No. 2" CINEMATOGRAPH gives a rock-steady picture, without flicker, owing to the unique and simple arrangement of the springs in the gate and the position of the shutter.

Ball bearings to every spindle save the operator a lot of work, and ensure the machine working smoothly.

spaces the picture without altering the optical centres, and a smaller, and therefore brighter, disc of light can be focussed on the film.

IF YOU ARE IN LONDON, PLEASE LET US SHOW IT TO YOU.

THE "EMPIRE" No. 1 CINEMATOGRAPH

is a machine modelled upon the lines of our No. 2 pattern, but is lighter, runs in plain bearings, and has no automatic cut-off.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.

Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present isue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual is published from the offices of the old-established organ of the theatrical profession, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. As usual, it is a carefully-compiled record of notable events of the year 1905. A pleasing feature is the selection of short stories, after recounting strange experiences, by "stars" of the dramatic and music-hall professions, these being in every case accompanied by photographs of the writers.—Newcastle Daily Journal, Jan. 27 1906.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.
EARLY TRAINS.
The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 15.—The new work met with an enthusiastic reception, as was to be anticipated. Both authors are known for their bright humour, and—in addition to this—a military "milieu" would draw a full audience anywhere and at any time in this country. The farce reminds one of many others of a like character, from Gustav von Moser downwards; but if there is little originality there is plenty of innocent fun, and that, after all, is the chief qualification. The plot—which is very meagre—is as follows:—We are introduced at once to the Blue Hussars, who are stationed in a God-forsaken hole on the Russian frontier rejoicing in the name of Jakschéwo. These brilliantly-attired sons of Mars feel themselves absolutely thrown away; there is nothing with which to pass the time; they are even reduced to catching the flies on the walls. Suddenly the news of their release comes. The regiment has been ordered to Kirchhain—an important town of some 30,000 inhabitants, where there are wealthy manufacturers' daughters and all kinds of attractions. The ebullition of joy takes the form of all sorts of boyish pranks; it was so natural and contagious that the audience broke into storms of applause, and the piece won in a canter. In the next act we see the excitement into which the little town is thrown and the triumphant entry of the Hussars. The women, from the highest to the lowest, have taken the Hussar fever very badly, and the civilians have to content themselves with a back seat. The all-conquering charm of the soldiers—they are really a most amiable lot—smooths all difficulties in time. Even the margarine-manufacturer Nippes, who has set his face entirely against the invasion, is forced to give in; and the farce ends, as all farces should do, with nearly half a doen betrothals. Among many well-drawn characters those of Nippes and Lieutenant Diet von Brentendorpff stand out conspicuous. These are particularly happily conceived, and that Herren Engels and Schönfeld didevery justice to them, it is not neccessary to say. The whole cast was just as good as it could be, and artists and authors shared the never-ending applause. It was the greatest succese the Lustspielhaus has as yet recorded.

SIGNORA DUSE'S season at the New Royal Opera (Krolls) is proving another series of triumphs for the great actress. Her impersonation of Hedda Gabler has gained the unbounded admiration of the critics, although her supporters came all more or less short of the required demands. One of the most successful performances was on Friday, when Mme. Duse appeared in both tragedy and comedy—in Renan's Abbess of Jouarre and Goldoni's La Locandiera. The former made its customary profound impression, while the latter completely fascinated the delighted audience. Mme. Duse looked charming in rococo costume, and her voice and laugh seem even more beautiful than last year. To-night Magda will be given, and Gioconda finishes the set of nine performances, Rosmersholm being sandwiched in between. In the rôle of Rebecca West—which many persons declare to be the test-stone of Ibsen—Signora Duse was magnificent, every phase of the enigmatical character being illumined by her strong individuality. It was with Rosmersholm that she commenced her season.

"DER HOCHTOURIST," Herren Kraatz and Neal's laughable farce, has taken on a new lease of life at the Schiller N. The piece enjoyed an exceptionally long run here some years ago, and, after an interval of rest, has come forth victoriously. Its interpretation at the Schiller was very good, Herr Max Kirschner in the name-part displaying the quaint dry humour for which he is known to the best advantage. His supporters also came well up to the demands made upon them. A tremendously cordial reception was accorded to the farce, and "calls" were the order of the evening.

AT the Luisen a once-popular musical burlesque by Leon Treptow was revived on Wednesday, but it is scarcely likely to catch on again. The title is Flotte Weiber, and the piece ran to nearly two hundred performances at the Adolf Ernst (now the Thalia) Theatre many years ago. The experiment was hardly worth the trouble it entailed. The traces of time are too apparent, and, notwithstanding a capital cast, the applause was of that painful type known here as "respectful."

A NEW Christmas juvenile play is in rehearsal at the Theatre des Westens. It is called Kindestreue und Weihnachtssegen, and is by MM. Cossmann and Adolf Philipp. The play will be produced on the first Saturday in December. On Friday evening a new drama—Die Hochzeitsfackel, by Max Dreyer—will be given for the first time at the New Schauspielhaus. Another forthcoming novelty is Millöcker's operetta Cousin Bobby, to be given at the Theatre des Westens.

THE much-talked-of "Kammerspiele" (chamber plays) at the Deutsches Theatre began on Saturday. The opening piece was Ibsen's Gespenster (ghosts), which was so admirably acted that, if it be a specimen of the whole of the series, success is certain. Frau Agnes Sorma gave a faultless impersonation—original as it was characteristic—of Frau Alving, and Herr Merini, in the rôle of the ill-fated Oswald, appealed deeply to the hearts of his audience. Director Reinhardt himself played the part of Engstrandt, in which he is well known.

SHAKESPEARE'S Midsummer Night's Dream is still running at the Deutsches, drawing—principally by reason of its fine mounting—large audiences. On Sunday evening the Crown Prince and Princess, with Prince and Princess Eitel and a numerous suite, witnessed the performance. Their Imperial Highnesses at the close of the play complimented Director Reinhardt upon his success.

A PRETTY little fairy-play—Rotkäppchen, by Oscar Will—a variation upon the ever-popular Cinderella, met with the entire approval of an audience composed chiefly of juveniles at the Lortzing Theatre on Saturday afternoon. Being brightly acted and well staged, the piece will doubtless run well into the Christmas holidays.

MR. LIONEL BROUGH made his first appearance on the stage in the December of 1854 at the Lyceum Theatre, then under the management of Mme. Vestris and Charles Mathews, in an extravaganza by his brother, William Brough, entitled Pretty Pet, and in a farce called My Fellow Clerk. Since then, with brief intervals devoted to literary pursuits, the veteran actor has practically traversed the whole range of the theatrical profession, earning an unrivalled reputation in Shakespearean parts and in rôles of the legitimate order, his appearance in the character of Tony Lumpkin aggregating nearly 800 times.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

Provincial Correspondents are requested to forward with their next week's Reports a full list of the Theatres and Music Halls in their respective towns, also the names of the present Lessees or Managers, for insertion in The Era Annual, 1907.

ABERAVON. — Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Jones.—Mr. Stanley Carlton's company is presenting two dramas here this week, A Marriage of Vengeance and A Life's Story. Mr. Stanley Carlton takes the principal part in both productions, and he is well supported by a very good company, including Messrs. Edward Pryer, J. W. Henson, Geo. Porteous, Victor Raymond, and Misses Alice Wood, Lizzie Burgess, Alice De Lacey, Susie Bevan, and Miss Ruhie Maude as the heroine.

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—The play this week is An Actor's Romance, American and sensational. There are some strong scenes in the various acts, and on the whole the piece is very favourably received. Messrs. E. Hardley Howard, C. E. Clive, Harry Agar-Lyons, and Harry Wren form a good combination, and Mr. Percy Warlow makes an excellent appearance as Ikey Isaacs. Miss Lillian Besant as Dotty Dillingham; Miss Florence Nelson as Florence Hastings, and Miss Beatrice Hono as Louise Davenport, play very effectively; and Miss Marian Ryder is exceedingly attractive as Phyllis Davenport.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Harry Lauder continues his triumphal career, and hundreds have to be turned from the doors every night. The other members of the company are nearly all of first-class rank. The Four Jumels give a really admirable turn, and the audience are also delighted by the Les Valdos' comical act, The Eccentric Motor-'Bus Men; Acland is a dexterous and expeditious caricaturist and portrait painter; Major Moss and his son sing with exceptional taste; and among the other artists are Miss Ethel Loftus, a charming comedienne; Little Rose Pink, who sings tunefully and dances daintily; Carlile and Walker, resourceful comedians; and Mr. T. C. Callingham, a clever comedian with a distinctive style. The Bioscope pictures, "Love Wins Out," are provocative of much merriment.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The Midnight Wedding is the attraction here this week. Mr. Alfred Paumier must be highly complimented on his powerful and artistic portrayal of the leading part, Paul Valmar, and the rôle of Capt. Von Scarebuck is skilfully rendered by Mr. Clinton Baddeley; the Crown Prince Leopold is a good performance by Mr. Fred W. Freeman; Mr. W. S. Hardy's Gerrard is a careful and painstaking study; Mr. Ulick Burk depicts Lieut. Strelburg with success. The comedy element is well handled by the three comrades in war but rivals in love, Messrs. James E. Page, Percy Compton, and Algie Spalding, ably assisted by Miss Ada Compton as Kathie. Marie is well played by Miss Prudence Laurence. A high compliment must be paid to Miss Amie Laker for her admirable reading of Princess Astrea. Rozel is in the safe hands of Miss Florence Hunt.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—The bill here includes the Ringling Trio, American eccentrics; Cardo, a clever magician; the Sisters Arndon in their musical speciality; the Brothers Hannaway, smart patter artists; the Violas, in their clever second sight entertainment; W. H. Downs, Gus Harris, Clark's Nippers, and some capital pictures.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Soanes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The boards here have been occupied by the Aldershot Operatic Society in a representation of Erminie. Miss Susie Belmore has given professional aid. The society has the advantage of having Mr. Henry Sims and his famous Royal Artillery Band as conductor and orchestra respectively. Thursday night was military night. The proceeds go to help swell the funds of the Union Jack Club and other charities.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn. — The thrilling drama In Holy (?) Russia is being played here by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company. A good all-round company has been secured. A prominent personage in the domain of humour is Micky Nolan, an Irish servant, to which Mr. J. Rice Cassidy gives a peculiarly well-flavoured and racy impersonation. Col. Richard Forrest, of the Guards, is played with considerable fervour as well as humour by Mr. Arthur Stratton; Mr. Carl Rovinelli as Laurice Steragoff, a Nihilist leader, reaches a high level of excellence; Mr. Robt. Cockroft as the Czar of Russia displays dignity and command; Renée Rubinoff is well placed in the hands of Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy; Mr. Frederick Loyd is quiet but forcible as Count Gregori Petrolski; Mr. Terence Nerrey is sufficiently stern and unbending as the Russian Guard Michael Natolski. As the Baron Von Pleve, Chief of the Russian Police, Mr. Joe Cuthbertson meets with success; very forcible and fearless is the delineation given by the Russian spy, Catska Lavotski, by Miss Mavis Lee Anderson; and the Englishman's courage in the face of danger is vividly exhibited by Mr. Frank Copeland as Sir Harry Beresford.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech. — The week's programme includes Ted Lowan, comedian; Edie and Coons; Zertho's Dogs; the Smarte Bros., in an acrobatic speciality, The Jolly Sportsmen; La Belle Lillian, trick cyclist; Maude Vera, descriptive song and coon artist; David Poole, ventriloquist; Avon and Crest, in an amusing comedy act; and Little Dando, a smart eccentric comedian; "Kitchen Arguments" are depicted on the bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Picture entertainments are still the attraction here, a well-assorted selection of films being shown, whilst the illustrated songs are especially popular.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—Wild, Willie, and West, described as the "bounding navvies," in a comedy, acrobatic, and trap scene, are hugely appreciated here, both for their ability and laughable by-play; Miss Grace Langley, prettily costumed, is an acceptable comedienne; Lord, Murray, and Lord provide a smart turn; Mr. W. J. Webber, basso, wins hearty applause; Conway and Garland appear in a laughable scena, in which they display the true spirit of burlesque; the Two Errolls are excellent in a leaping and acrobatic speciality; Mr. R. C. Clayton maintains the high reputation of the "Attergraph" pictures; and Mr. Herbert Rule appears as a comedian.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On the first three nights of the present week the theatre was occupied by Mr. Herbert Ralland's company, in the comic extravaganza, La Poupée. Mr. Harry Brayne was hilarious, and he did not belie the name of his part. He had admirable support from the other members of the company. The Lancelot of Mr. Arthur Cozens was made appropriately innocent; Father Maxim was well played by Mr. Walter Balfour; Baron Chanterelle had an able exponent in Mr. Fuller Allen; Miss Edith Hunter appeared to advantage in the part of Mme. Hilarius; Miss Doris Dickens made an admirable Henri; while Miss Mysie Devine as Alesia (the doll) was charming.

BACUP. — New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is the attraction here this week in the social drama Her Fatal Past. Mr. Stewart Lomath, as Mark Desmond, is conspicuously heroic; the sinister traits of Gilbert Fernside are vividly depicted by Mr. Wilson Coleman; and Mr. Victor Rowland is efficient as Leonard Fernside. Mr. Sydney Bryant's impersonation of Dickey Bird is very droll; Mr. T. Edward Ward introduces considerable humour into his performance of Jonathan Nobbs; Mr. Claude Paget makes a very funny character of Reuben Treadaway; Miss Ward acts with much feeling as Honour Symes; and Miss Adeline Raby is seen to advantage in the dual rôles of Ruth Fernside and Bella de Lara. Miss Kate Newman submits a carefully studied rendering of Sal Jenkins; Kitty Sprigwell is vivaciously portrayed by Miss Gertie Reid; and Miss Ettie Spalding is amusing as Martha Sprigwell. Miss Audrey Sutherland, as Little Leonard, is highly commendable.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company is here in the popular musical comedy Sergeant Brue. The title rôle is divertingly enacted by Mr. J. Harold Carson. Miss Reydon Dallas is a pleasing exponent of Lady Bickenhall, her singing winning much applause. Mr. Maitland Dicker is responsible for a great deal of irrepressible mirth as Crookie Scrubbs. Mr. Robert Selby as Michael, and Miss Florence Spurgeon as Aurora Brue, contribute largely to the success of the play. Mr. F. Laceby is capable as Mr. Crank and others who achieve success are Mr. Harold Godwin as Inspector Gorringe, Miss Dora Taylor as Daisy, and Miss Cathleen V. Grey as Mabel Widget.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. William Greet's company, in The Earl and the Girl, is paying a return visit here. Jim Cheese is amusingly done by Mr. William Cromwell; and Dick Wargrave has a typical exponent in Mr. Herbert Hyett; while Mr. Stanley Harrison is good as the Hon. Crewe Boodle. Mr. A. E. Coleby is a characteristic A. Bunker Bliss; and Miss Gertrude Simpson a pleasing Elphin Haye. Mrs. Shimmering Black has a good exponent in Miss Nellie Grant; and the 'Liza Shoddam of Miss Florence Wix is particularly attractive.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Baron H. Harris's company, in The Prince of Pilsen, is here. Mr. Harry Kilburn is a most amusing Hans Wagner; and the Carl Otto of Mr. Frank Crimp, who sings admirably, is good. Mr. Bernard Russell's conception of the dude, Arthur de Willoughby Rossmore, is clever; and the versatility of François, as played by Mr. Ernest Gifford, is conspicuous. Miss Sophie Harriss, as Mrs. Maddison Crocker, is very successful; Miss Mollie Wynne is a smart Minnie; Miss Dorothy Wynne is a winning Nellie Wagner; and Miss Connie Leon a piquant and smart Sidonie.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—The chief attraction here is Ella Shields, in her coon songs, and Mr. Alf. Gibson, the quaint comedian. Charles Mildare, the king of whistlers; Barington, who plays well; Bishop and Hanlon, comedians; Walter Stanley, comedian, are also popular turns.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. William Greet's company is paying a return visit in that bright and amusing musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Arthur Donohoe retains the important part of Jim Cheese, and right well does he provide the low comedy element, while his dancing is neatness itself. He still has Miss Lina Hicks to support him as 'Liza Shoddam, and the two create endless hilarity. Mr. Thomas Kennard is now seen as Dick Wargrave, which he portrays in the necessary light-hearted fashion. His sweetheart, Elpin Haye, is undertaken successfully by Miss May Yates, who has had to battle with a severe cold in rendering her musical numbers. Daisy Fallowfield has a charming representative in Miss Ida Stratham, who gives the popular "Freddie" song in capital style; Mr. Leslie Owen essays the rôle of Crewe Boodle, and assists to keep the ball rolling; Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton, Mr. Sam Lyson, Mr. Greville Hayes, and Miss Kathleen Gerard continue to create merriment in their respective parts. A special meed of praise is due to the hard-working chorus.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—In a strong bill this week the Æolians, a sextet of high-class vocalists and dancers, give a delightful turn, that receives due reward; an immense favourite is W. J. Churchill, of "Uncle Willie" fame, whose songs and racy patter always command laughter; another comedian that secures a splendid reception is Fred Land; the Sivronis, comedy artists, are much appreciated for mirth-provoking work and vocalism; the Leotard Brothers do marvels as hat throwers; Chas. F Best, in his quaint act, Macbunker, the Mountebank, is on a successful return visit; Andie Caine shines as a step dancer, and sings a song with acceptance. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are fully up to their high standard of excellence.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—The visit of The Spider and the Fly has proved acceptable to Batley theatre-goers. The play is admirably staged, and Messrs. Carpenter's and Cooper's company is a strong one. Mr. Stanley S. Gordon does infinite justice to the part of the hero; Mr. H. C. Lancely is a model stage parson; Mr. Frederick Ross gives a sound interpretation; and Messrs. Fred Terris and Charles O. Preece are distinctly successful in the comedy scenes. The heroine is played by Miss Nina Vaughton with great care and feeling; Miss Amy Venimere is realistic and powerful in the rôle of villainess; Miss Lucy Murray is a captivating and vivacious Irish servant; and Miss Ada Palmer gives a good character study of a lodging-house keeper.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. E. Lockwood and Mr. R. Crossman's company opened here on Monday with the capital musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. In the title-rôle, Mr. Arthur Reynolds caused roars of laughter; another capital impersonation was that of Crookie Scrubbs, by Mr. Chas. McLagan; a delightful impersonation of Lady Bickenhall was furnished by the charming ingénue, Miss Hebe Bliss; and Mr. E. Percy Rogers gained much approval for his impersonation of Michael Brue, his dancing being exceptionally good. Miss Mary Hay is worthy of much commendation for her impersonation of Aurora; Mr. Ernest Mozart was excellent as Gerald Treherne; Mr. Chas. Sims acted the magistrate, Mr. Crank, with the peculiar laugh, with much skill; and Miss Marion Hargrave was a capital Daisy. Other rôles were sustained by Miss Mabel Keith, Miss Lilian Pickering, Mr. Cecil Hood, Mr. Harry Soutar, &c. The augmented orchestra was under the able direction of Mr. Norman Latham.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The star here this week is the popular Belfast favourite, Mr. George Lashwood, who has been most successful with his capital rendering of several songs; Virginia and piccaninnies appear to great advantage in their entertainment, entitled Koons Cutting Kapers; Miss Bertha Stuart sings Scotch ballads with taste and expression; and the favourite comedians, Ike Scott and Son, score with their character songs. Cavalli is aptly described as a clever young ventriloquist; and others appearing are Mr. V. L. Granville, character impersonator; Mr. Tom Moore; and Miss Mollie Doon, comedienne and dancer.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—A capital sketch, entitled The Dandy Duke, is the leading attraction here, and has been ably performed by a clever company; Miss Beatrice Willey is a charming balladist; and a hit has been made by Ford, a marvellous legmania dancer, and the Barres Trio, clever bone soloists and vocalists. The Mezzettis appear in their comedy gymnastic act, The Raw Recruit, their performance being exceedingly smart; and the Eight of Hearts are exceptionally clever lady vocalists and dancers. Also appearing are the talented Darnton Sisters, splendid duettists; Mr. Gus Dallon, entertainer; Miss Marie Neilsen, comedienne and dancer; and Mr. Harry Herbert, comedian.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—This week the capital Alhambra Dramatic Company is appearing in the drama, A Woman's Honour. Mr. Horace Denton must be commended for his fine acting as Ruel Jant; and Miss Nina Blake-Adams impersonates Mona with no little charm. Mr. Cyril Grier renders good service by his skilful impersonation of Dr. Ross Cowling; Mr. Elmore Frith deserves special mention for his finished embodiment of Sir Rowland Rawson; as Peter Puffkins, Mr. Tom H. Solly exhibits much humour. He is ably assisted by Miss Alice Clark as Sally Perks. Miss Belle St. Clement gains much approval for her really admirable impersonation of Mercy Mayne. Owing to the indisposition of Mr. Percy M. Stevenson, the rôle of Guy Thiel was, at short notice, undertaken on Monday by Mr. Arnold Allen, who was thoroughly successful. Miss Effie Macintosh is a delightful Fay. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits a capital picture, entitled "A Night Out."

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Battersby.—The Way of the World is being presented here by an acceptable company, with talented Miss Sidney Crowe at the head, as Adele de la Roche. Mr. Malcolm J. Cummings makes a gentlemanly Cecil Montague; Miss Marie Fontaine as Kate is excellent in her rendering of the heroine; Mr. Victor Gordon's Captain Slade is effective; the disgraced clergyman, Malvon, has an emphatic exponent in Mr. Herbert Skardon; and Mr. Augustus Hammond scores in his work as Horatio Bluff.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company, in The Walls of Jericho, is paying a first visit to this town, and large audiences have been attracted. The performance of Mr. A. E. Anson, who as Jack Frobisher secures the interest of the audience throughout, is admirably supported by Miss May Taverner, who plays the important rôle of Lady Alethea Frobisher with great skill and judgment. Mr. Alfred S. Barber is a capable and amusing Hankey Bannister; the Marquis of Steventon is irreproachably enacted by Mr. Cecil Warde; and the thankless part of Harry Dallas is suitably assumed by Mr. A. W. Tyrer. Miss Mona Wynne makes the most of her opportunities as Lady Lucy Derenham; and the less promienent characters are all suitably represented. The production is carefully staged.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Few greater favourites come to the Argyle than Miss Lelia Roze, the charming comedienne, and her reappearance here on Monday last was hailed with acclamation, her clever and attractive act, A Dressing Room Dream, taking immensely. Jack Lorimer, Scotch comedian, is renewing previous successes; as also are Park's Eton Boys, who are always well received here; George Spry and Florrie Austin, variety artists, have again made an unmistakable hit; Dusty Rhodes, comedian, is a favourite turn; and Dawson Sewards, comedian, Miss Alice Blanford, soprano vocalist, Bob Hamilton, comedian, and Brown's Royal Bioscope are also interesting features in a capital programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company contrives to go one better every visit, and this time vouchsafes two important novelties, Gounod's Romeo and Juliet, and Nicolais' The Merry Wives of Windsor, both of which have packed the house. On Monday Tannhäuser gained impetus by the inclusion of Wagner's ballet-music from the original score, and the whole performance was one of the utmost magnificence. Mr. Wilson Pembroke was successful, dramatically and vocally, as Tannhäuser; Madame Fanny Moody as Elizabeth sang with exquisite purity of tone; Miss Toni Seiter was an alluring and a most melodious Venus; Messrs. Chas. Magrath, William Dever, and the others were in excellent voice; and the chorus and orchestra, under Herr Richard Eckhold produced an effect which has never been excelled here. Lohengrin, with Mr. Joseph O'Mara in the name part, and Madame De Vere as Elsa; Faust, in which Madame Fanny Moody and Mr. Wilson Pembroke take the leads; Cavalleria Rusticana, which includes Mr. John Child and Madame De Vere; and Pagliacci, with that sweet singer, Miss Kate Anderson, and Joseph O'Mara in the cast, have completed the feast of good things.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Girl from Kay's, flowing with mirth and melody as of yore, is once more in our midst. Miss Nancy Hervyn assumes the title-rôle, Winnie Harborough, with the utmost charm and success, being thoroughly alive to the possibilities and opportunities of the part; Mr. Arthur Stigant as her vis-à-vis, Hoggenheimer, is highly entertaining, and is winning much popularity on his first appearance here in the rôle; Miss Aimee Grey displays fine taste as Norah Chalmers; Miss Chrissie Ralland elicits high encomiums as Ellen; and the Misses Clarice Cartner, Dora Gray, and Cruickshanks display much ability in their rôles. Mr. Herbert Franklyn acts in an irreproachable style as Harry Gordon; Mr. Tom Shelford shines cleverly as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr. S. Major Jones scores as Joseph; Mr. Buchanan Wake is successful as Quench; Mr. Chas. Lupton acts well as Mr. Chalmers; and the chorus and augmented orchestra, under Mr. Basil Horsfall, acquit themselves admirably.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager Mr. Victor Turner.—The Lights o' London has lost none of its effulgence, judging from Monday's performance of the play, which evoked much applause. Mr. Herbert Hollister, who is responsible for this company, plays the part of Seth Preene on commendable lines; Mr. C. F. Collings makes a manly and popular hero of Harold Armytage; Miss Jennie Burgoyne invests the rôle of Bess with irresistible pathos; Mr. Raymond Thomas exerts himself with fine effect as Clifford Armytage; Miss Constance Davey is meritorious as Hetty Preene; Mr. Herbert Lewis as Jarvis; and Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis, enjoy much popularity; and Miss Renee Douglas gains favour as Shakespear Jarvis. Messrs. Sydney N. Hallows, F. V. Lloyd, H. W. Forster, Tom Raymond, George Wallace, F. H. Waters, E. H. Dolby, and also the Misses (little) Rita Wallace and W. Eves add to the success of the play. On Wednesday Madame Pollack gave a special matinée performance of Lady Windermere's Fan, under the auspices of the Garrick Amateur Dramatic Society. The house was full, and appreciated the many good points scored.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company appears here in Bound to Win. In the part of Gladys Orme, Mrs. Kimberley shows the exceptional resource and power; Mr. Kimberley gives a clever portrayal of Harry Lyndon; Mr. Charles Vivian wins excellent opinions as Phillip Ayre; Mr. Edward Bikker appears to eminent advantage as Squire Forbes; Mr. J. Franklin does smart service as Ned Oakley; Mr Allen Charles imparts zest to the rôle of Horatio Buffit; and Messrs. Dick Seddon, Sidney Rudge, Harry Hont, and John Clipper support in the most able manner; Miss Violet Langley acts with fine skill as Marion Forbes, and Mrs. J. Franklin as Harriet Forbes; Miss Annie Lee as Flo Searching; and Miss Trixie Toole as Winnie Oakeley fare well. The thoroughbreds, St. Elise and Dorothy Lee, excite tremendous enthusiasm in the race-course scene, and the entire play kindles genuine interest.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Flying Scud is revivified here by the proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville, who, as Nat Gosling, pleases his patrons immensely, and scores a notable success. Mr. Percy Dawsone's qualifications are well suited to the rôle of Tom Meredith; Mr. Montague Lane proves a most satisfactory Lord Cecil Woodbie; Mr. J. Milne Taylor magnetises the audience with the machinations of Capt. Grindley Goodge; Mr. F. A. Mackenzie plays a useful part as Col. Mulligan; Mr. Fred C Imbert is successful as Mr. Davis, and other able supporters are Mr. Edward Finlay as Bob Buckskin; Mr. Harry J. Worth as Mr. Quail; Mr. Tom Lidworth as Chousur; Mr. Arthur Hall as Ned Compe, and Mr. Francis Everard as Jerry Cobler. Of the ladies, Miss Rose Ralph charms with her brilliant and expressive acting as the devoted girl, Julia Latimer; and the Misses Jessie Yatman, Nelly Graham and Meta Jailsby impress the audience with their talents.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—A Destroyer of Men is being played here by Mr. James Hare and his company. The hero, Michael Mischla, is enacted with praiseworthy spirit by Mr. Chas. Bickell; Mr. Harold B. Lewis shines in the opposite rôle. Count Starevitch; Mr. Hill Cremer acts creditably as the son, Paul Starevitch; Mr. Jas. Hare shows much art in his handling of the rôle of Carl Mischla, the exile; Mr. Frank Orchard gives a capital version of the police spy, Strellitzke; Mr. Arthur Swain is successful as the governor, Linievitch; Miss Gladys Lloyd proves an able and a sympathetic heroine as Vidal Ravel; Miss Irene Clifford appears with the utmost success and ability as her antithesis, Olga Mischla; and Mr. Ross Warren as Coco Tachoski, and Miss Alice Buckland as Nina Pattakake present the bright side of the picture in a most amusing manner.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth is represented here to crowded houses by Mr. Fredk. Melville's well-known company. Miss Beatrice Homer, as the veiled heroine, acts her trying part with her usual grace and ability, winning widespread sympathy for the character; Mr. Philip Darien is manly and popular as Jack Morriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor acts as the leading villain, Hubert Gold, in a thoroughly finished manner; Miss Nell Oliver plays admirably as his associate, Rose Courtenay; and Messrs. C. Barrett and W. Wallace-Aston participate as Antonio and Raggles respectively. Mr. Allan Devonport as Tom Redvers; Mr. Cecil de Lee as Griffiths; and Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Dr. Carr, display able qualities; and Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown, and Miss Margaret Watson as Merita succeed; Mr. Tubby Edlin gives good support with his clever comicalities as Tubby Herrick.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Vesta Tilley is here. The audience accord her a remarkable welcome, her songs being loudly applauded. The De Wynne Brothers have a clever hand-balancing act; the Airdos Troupe of Japanese acrobats are very daring; Sydney Dolf is a juggler of exceptional ability; Adler and Sutton's Pierrots are a popular troupe; Marion Scott, comedienne; the Brothers Redmond, Bugler Carr, and Holma complete the bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Tom Foy and company delight the audience with a comedy sketch, A Yorkshire Lad in London. Arthur Lennard, an old favourite with several new songs, is well received; Lennie and Hast, in The Sea Nymphs, are successful; and the Brothers Ashley are funny in their boxing sketch; Florence Esdale, Lizzie Fletcher, Nellie Martell, and the New York Nippers complete a good all-round programme.

Hippodrome. — Managing Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—Harry Ford has a trio of smart songs, which are well received. A laughable burlesque on La Mattchiche is presented by Gus Garrick; the Waldrons, in a sketch, entitled The Silly Burglar, are funny; Rex Fox gives a clever ventriloquial and musical turn whilst performing on the slack wire; Bickhelle, the clay-modeller, is an artist of merit; Johnny Holland and company, Harley and Harden, The Wilfords, Helen Martin, and Cissie Dryden are also in the bill.

Harborne Institute.—The Nevada Troupe have scored a big success here, headed by Mr. W. E. Newman, a clever and popular humorist, and Mr. C. A. Jackson, whose adroit playing on the one-stringed violin is much appreciated; Mr. Bert Errol, in some realistic female impersonations; Mr. Ernest T. Jones, the talented Welsh zither-banjo virtuoso; Mr. R. Leonard Brown, the eminent tenor; and Miss Dolly Summers, in a smart humorous interlude, have been loudly applauded. Miss Grace Ivell, contralto, is also successful, and Mr. Leslie Bartlett shows much ability at the piano.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company opened here on Monday with Lady Godiva. In the rôle of Peeping Tom Mr. F. B. Woulfe was seen to great advantage; as Leofric, Earl of Mercia, Mr. R. Seath Innes gave a capital interpretation; and Mr. A. E. Dunstan is to be commended for his painstaking efforts in the character of Edgar, the foundling. The despicable Algar, Earl of Northumbria, was powerfully delineated by Mr. Wm. McCready; whilst mention should be made of Mr. Ernest Hamilton as Unwolf. Miss Ethel Griffies undertook the difficult part of Lady Godiva in a very praiseworthy manner; and Lady Aldyth had a capable artist in Miss Katharine Brook. The comedy was well supplied by Miss Edith Lorraine as Elfrida and Mr. B. Anderson as Robin. On Tuesday The Three Musketeers was played to a large audience, and on the remaining nights Nell Gwynne, Hamlet, and Jane Shore respectively.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—This house is given over to variety this week. Chief amongst the attractions is the Pichel troupe of acrobats, who perform some clever feats in a finished fashion; Will McIvor, a character vocalist; the Three Sisters Kilner, singers and dancers; George Young, the blind miner musician; Goeye, a comic juggler with his trained dog; the Three Deveres, equilibrists; Harry Nelson, comedian; and Bromby and Fontein, in their sketch, The Lady and the Professor.

New Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—A strong attraction is provided by Mr J. W. Whitehead's company of Irish players, including the well-known comedian, Mr. James O'Brien, in a repertoire of Irish plays. Willy Reilly was given on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and on Wednesday, The Irish Dragoon. On Thursday Sarsfield was played, and on Friday The Colleen Bawn.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — Unstinted praise is due to Mr. Harold V. Neilson, Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, and company for their very artistic performance of The Perfect Lover here this week. A more charming portrayal of Lilian Tremblett than that presented by Miss Forbes-Robertson it is impossible to imagine. Martha Tremblett has an admirable exponent in Miss Dorothy Milne, and Miss Elizabeth Watson plays with complete success the part of Susan Lesson. Miss Renne de Lestrade is suited to the rôle of May, and Misses Helene Forest, Hilda Sims, and Elsie Saville faithfully play their parts as society ladies. A very striking impersonation of Lord Cardew is presented by Mr. Lewis Willoughby. Mr. Neilson gives a convincing study of Joseph Tremblett, and Mr. W. Lemmon Warde as William Tremblett also contributes a very finished performance. Mr. John Detliv's depiction of John Collis is likewise deserving of commendation.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Miss Grace Warner and company are paying a return visit here this week. The Scarlet Clue was the attraction on Monday with Miss Warner and Mr. George Gordon in the principal parts. The Little Widow, My Artful Valet, and East Lynne are also in the week's bill.

Palace. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Variety is the feature of this week's bill here. Mason and Keeler present an amusing sketch; Henri Bekker gives a clever conjuring turn; Robb Gilmore is a quaint comedian who sings and dances well; Les Rallis appear in an acrobatic sketch; W. B. Raby is popular as a musical comedian; Flockton, Foster, and company submit a very amusing farce; Neville Jolly and Beatrice Neilson contribute an enjoyable musical sketch; the Three Celtics are capable musicians; Ern Sparks scores with his singing and dancing; and the Brooklands give pleasure as comediennes and dancers.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Reuben Payne's company has paid a successful visit here with the popular drama, entitled The World's Verdict. Mr. Albert Guyon is a capital Jasper Woodleigh, and Mr. Harry Stuart gives a powerful rendition of the part of George Ashford; Sammy Carretts, in the hands of Mr. W. G. Wesley, is made an amusing character; Mr. Eric Hudson, as the maniac, Nathan Black, is a prominent figure; whilst the Jeremiah Screw of Mr. W. Reuben Payne is satisfactory. Mr. Cecil R. Thompson is successful as Sir Geoffrey Woodleigh; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh, as Florence Woodleigh, acts well; Miss May Avon being worthy of praise as Nellie Ashford; Miss Anend Walton creates much fun as Sally Jenkins; Miss Lily Roselle, as the adventuress, Cora Casillis, is a decided success.

The Gaiety.—Proprietor, Councillor John Grantham, J.P.; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur James. —Appearing here are the famous Henderson, the blind genius, who plays on the concertina in a marvellous manner; Gus Granville, comedian; and the Ashursts, in a farcical comedy sketch, entitled The Dramatic Agent. The Gaiety Bioscope displays several new pictures of an interesting description.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. William Tudor.—The chief turn here is that of the Five Saxonias in a high-class musical act; Mons. Carlos also renders a pleasing turn; whilst Mr. Tudor's series of pictures continue to prove a strong attraction.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company are presenting here this week the sensational drama, entitled The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Geo. Beverley is a manly Jack O'Malley, and Mr. Alarie Burton is good as Cuthbert Leigh; Mr. Chas. Burdon gives a capital performance of James Inderwick; and Miss Elsie Capell makes a pleasing Bessie Leigh. Miss Evelyn Walton deserves special mention for her rendering of Letitia Leigh. The comedy portion is well sustained by Mr. Horace Stanly as Sam Wagstaffe, ably assisted by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—The marvellous Craggs top the bill here in a humorous and acrobatic sketch, entitled Billy, and score a huge success with their combination of comedy and skill. Dale and O'Malley, comedians, are a clever pair; the Two Hartfords give a wonderful performance on a bicycle; Jack Crawley, vocal and instrumental mimic, is excellent; Ruby and Laws, vaudeville entertainers, give a pleasing turn; Frank Harwood, actor-vocalist, gets a good reception; Rita Resdan, character comedienne, contributes two songs; and the Hippodrome pictures are amusing.

BOSTON.—Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—Another capital bill is delighting large audiences here this week. The Albano troupe, who are the chief attraction, give selections on various musical instruments; Juan and McQue are excellent comedians; the Mays, in a comedy duologue, The Maniac's Child, are clever; the Sisters Beatrice, duettists; Pulo, Carl Osmond, and Jennie June, together with Mark Anthony, a clever comedian, conclude an enjoyable entertainment.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Beauty and the Barge, which has been here twice previously, was presented by Mr. Arthur Hardy's company on Monday. Mr. Blake Adams repeats his clever performance of Captain Barley, and is well supported by Mr. Edward Coventry as Lieut. Boyne, Mr. Walter Pemberton as Major Smedley, Mr. Fred Knight as Tom Codd, Miss Ruby Wyndham as Mrs. Baldwin, Miss Mary Pemberton as Lucy Dallas, Miss Mona Robin as Mrs. Smedley, and Miss May Fairclough as Ethel.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager,

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is a capital company here this week. Ian Colquhoun, baritone vocalist, achieves great success; Fred Daniels, comedian, is well received; Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene win hearty applause for the able manner in which they submit the domestic episode, His Birthday; Charles Ulrick performs unique tricks with barrels and trunks; the Three Rubys are very successful in their equipoise and trapeze act; Charles Fraser and company are highly entertaining in The Enchanted Iona; the Allisons are pleasing ductitists and dancers; the Three Sisters Chester are effective banjoists, vocalists, and dancers; Ryder Davis sings in good style; and effective turns are given by Marie Empress and Maud Prenton, comediennes. The Alhambrascope furnishes an admirable series of pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An attractive programme is sustained here this week. The performance of the light operetta, The Romany King, by four excellent vocalists, is warmly appreciated; Austin Rudd, comedian, achieves distinct success; Oswald Williams, American illusionist, performs some astonishing feats; the Mackways are very amusing in their "mad whirling on the wire"; Frank Hartley well deserves his title of "the juvenile juggling wonder"; Barton and Franklin contribute a good turn including vocal and instrumental music and dancing; Mac and Hill are entertaining patter comedians; Gracie Taylor is a pleasing comedienne; Babs Lloyd wins favour with her dancing and singing; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company is here this week with A Soldier of Fortune. Mr. Norman Macowan as Rupert Clive displays finished and convincing acting; Mr. Murray Hathorn gives an admirable impersonation of the Earl of Annandale; whose daughter, Lady Phyllis, is charmingly portrayed by Miss Violet Sterne; and Mr. Sydney R. Palfrey is very effective as the traitorous Sir Stephen Cunningham. Mr. Robert Entwistle's Dr. Thorn and Mr. A. Conybeare Gough's Phineas Sturge are well played; and other parts are ably sustained by Mr. Eric Forth (Col. Ferrars), Mr. Franc Stoney (Jerry Dobbs), and Miss Emil Leslie (Grace). The play is well staged.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute. — Mr. William Greet's principal London company is here with The Earl and the Girl. The musical comedy is staged with much liberality, and the company is a highly competent one. The chorus is strong and tuneful, the augmented orchestra being ably conducted by Mr. Evelyn Baker. Mr. William Stephens scores heavily in the part of Jim Cheese, being always amusing, and he is capitally supported by Miss Jennie Richards as Liza Shoddam. Miss Frances Earle is pleasing as Elphin Haye; Mr. Arthur Harrold is highly satisfactory as Dick Wargrave; Miss Beatrice Anderson is stately and effective as Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Gertrude Melville is successful as Daisy Fallowfield; Mr. H. Courtin is sufficiently blustering as A. Bunker Bliss; Mr. Percy E. Wright makes the most of the part of the Hon. Crewe Boodle; the two solicitors, Downham and Talk, are cleverly taken by Mr. W. Norman and Mr. Greene Taylor; Mr. Tom Redmond is a typical host of the Fallowfield Arms; and Miss Mary Morison displays becoming dignity as Miss Virginia Bliss. The smaller parts are all carefully taken, and some excellent dancing is introduced by the Misses Beatrice Ford, Enid Beverley, Lilly Doran, Blanchette Grand, Natallie Grant, and Geraldine Scott.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. P. Crowe.—The French Spy is here for the week, the drama being staged well, and capitally played by Mr. Fred Benton's company. Miss Madge Devereux evinces considerable power in her impersonation of the Countess Andre; Miss A. Harrison-Tate does full justice to the part of Olga; Miss Cissie Cleveland makes a capital part of Julie; Mr. Beresford Lovett presents a fine exposition of Captain Somers; Mr. Fred Benton is amusing and effective as Fritz; Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe displays dignity in his rôle of General Trepoff; Mr. Claude Aymond is well placed as Lord Aynsley; and Mr. George Sherraton is effective in the heavy part of Petross Romanoff. The torpedo boat and effects in the fourth act are effective, the same being invented and made by Mr. Fred Benton.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Jack McKenzie and company head the bill with their amusing musical comedy burlesque, The Belle of Barcelona. There are about twenty artists on the stage, and clever dancing is introduced by the Barcelona troupe. The Marlo-Dunham Trio present a fine gymnastic speciality on a newly-invented style of triple bars; the Vivians score with a pleasing musical playlet, entitled A Reverie; Harry Freeman, comedian, obtains considerable applause for his latest London successes; the Jalvans, Oriental entertainers, do a very smart and pleasing speciality turn; Nina Gordon is highly successful as a mimic and society entertainer at the piano; and Walter Clyde, tenor vocalist, obtains considerable appreciation. The performance concludes with animated pictures by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Dr. Carl Hermann (U.S.A.) is giving here his hypnotic and electrical entertainment with considerable success. The Little Stowaway is being performed here with Miss Eva Lumley in the leading part, the playlet being well staged and capitally played by a competent company; Colby and May do a pleasing speciality turn, The Ventriloquist and the Dancing Doll; Frank Leon, an expert in clog dancing, obtains much applause; the Three Bostonians score as singers and dancers; Ted Saunders presents some acceptable impersonations of popular artists; and Mary Glenn, Scottish vocalist, presents a pleasing and artistic turn. The performance concludes with some new animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The attraction here this week is Blue-Bell in Fairyland, introduced to this district for the first time by Mr. Edward Graham Falcon. Miss Lily Eyton, in the title-rôle, has a part which is suited to her style, and she makes most of her opportunities. Dicky is well presented by Mr. Lawrence Emery; Mr. Harry Vernon and Mr. Will L. Clement as Blib and Blob, do some clever and amusing work; Jack Cromo makes a comical reigning king; and a good performance is that of the Sleepy King by Mr. Frank Leonard. Miss Constance St. Bride, as the Water Lily, and Miss Nellie March as The Autumn Leaf, sing well.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A hearty welcome is accorded Sergeant Brue, performed here this week by Mr. E. Lockwood and Mr. R. Crossman's excellent company. Mr. E. Russell is responsible for much fun as Sergeant Brue; Mr. T. A. Shale repeats his excellent performance as Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy is an able Michael Brue; and a charming person is Aurora Brue as played by Miss Kitty Dale. Miss Lilly Lingard is a dignified Lady Bickenhall; Mr. Henry Chichester is good as Mr. Crank; Miss Constance Berkeley is vivacious as Daisy; and Mr. Clarence Napier does well as Inspector Gorringe. There is an excellent chorus and orchestra under the baton of Mr. J. H. Yorke.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A programme full of good things is submitted here this week, foremost of which are Signor and Madame Borelli, in comic duets; the Steinway Quartette, in Songs of the Sea, are deservedly applauded for several fine renderings; Mozzetto is a smart juggler, and Bert Williams gives a smart ventriloquial performance; Harry Conlin is a comedian of no mean order; Les Marsumas are very funny on cycles; Harry Raley, boy singer, scores; the Prince and Milner Trio give a good athletic turn; Rosie Coleman, comedienne, does well; and the New Empire Theatroscope projects several interesting pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. G. Arkell.—A special engagement of Mr. F. R. Benson's (North) company this week is meeting with genuine success, opening on Monday with The Taming of the Shrew. A fine character-sketch was given by Mr. Henry Herbert as Petruchio, and, in conjunction with Miss Dorothy Green as Katharina, fairly took the house by storm; Miss Louis Graeme was pleasing as Bianca, whose suitors were cleverly impersonated by Mr. Gerald Ames (Lucentio), and Mr. Lionel Bevans (Gremio). Baptista was a finished and natural study in the hands of Mr. Reginald Davis; Mr. E. Spencer Greach as Tranio and Mr. Charles Francis as Biondello did well in the humorous line; and Mr. Philip Merivale (Vincentio) and Miss Mary Webb (Widow) also scored. The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, Macbeth, The Merry Wives of Windsor, As You Like It, and Richard III. are included in the week's programme.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. George Dance's principal company gave a bright and interesting performance of The Cingalee on Monday night. Mr. Jack Crichton, as Chambuddy Ram, was highly amusing, his dancing being a special feature; he was well assisted by Miss Gladys Grey, who made a sprightly Peggy Sabine. Mr. Helier Le Maistre was seen to advantage as Boobhamba; Mr. Cyril Dane sang well as Harry Vereker, as did Mr. Ethelbert Edwards (Bobby Warren); Miss Marjory Clark was excellent as Lady Patricia Vane; and Miss Georgina Middleton made a charming Nanoya.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—The first visit to the Cardiff Theatre Royal this week of the musical play, The Blue Moon, has been an extremely popular one, and Mr. Robert Courtneidge's talented company has been enthusiastically welcomed. Miss Clarice Lockstone in the title-rôle submits a charming delineation; Miss Florence Imeson's rendition of Millie has proved a great success; and Mr. Alec Fraser as Jack Ormsby gives a fine representation. Major Vivian Callabone could not be better interpreted than the part is by Mr. Alfred Clark; as Private Taylor Mr. Reginald Switz scores a great success; while Mr. Alfred Beers as Mooltaj easily contrives to keep the audience in the best of spirits. Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne (Bobbie Scott), Mr. Arthur Soames (the Prince), Miss Ethel Callanan (Evelyn Ormsby), and Miss Kathleen Cartaret (Lady Augusta), are all responsible for capital portrayals.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The Indian Mutiny is paying a return visit, being presented in lavish style by Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company. Mr. George Steel can safely be entrusted with the difficulties of Lieutenant Manley; Mr. Cyril Harrison achieves much distinction by his capable rendition of Captain Manley; and Mr. John Davidson in his portrayal of Major Ingleby displays unmistakable signs of histrionic ability. Mr. Villiers Stanley presents his carefully-studied delineation of the rebel leader, Nebu Singh; and as Ra Goonga, Mr. George Boult could not be more suitably placed. The ladies, Miss F. Melrose Millett (Ghuz-nah), Miss Agnes Kingston (Kate Ingleby), and Miss Lillie Grey (Mrs. Ingleby), are all excellent exponents of their respective parts; while the comedy, in the hands of Mr. Cecil Morand as Terry O'Brien, is a conspicuous feature of the production.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The Three Olympiers are successfully presenting their interesting performance, Beauty in Bronze, at the Empire this week; two Welsh turns are provided by Horace Jones, a capital comedian, and Godfrey James, a genuine singer from the pit; Harriett Vernon, beautifully costumed, is as popular as ever; Hale and Francis give an original turn in hoop rolling and club juggling; the Althoffs provide an amusing sketch with musical surprises. E. J. Sheldon is a witty and entertaining humorist; and Los Granadas prove clever gymnasts. The bioscope, with instructive pictures, is also an attraction.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The Gondoliers is the attraction here this week, and the Carlisle Philharmonic Society, who are responsible for the production, are to be congratulated on the all-round excellence of the performance.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—An excellent programme is submitted here this week. Chief interest centres in Harry Tate's company in the farcical skit, Motoring,' which excites much laughter. Vosper contributes a series of facial portraitures, which are both interesting and amusing. Whistling comedians always get due attention here, and Mr. Harry Taft proves no exception to the rule. Mr. Arthur Aldridge is the happy possessor of a tenor voice of really fine quality and range, which he skilfully uses in the rendering of popular ballads. A refined humorous turn is provided by Mr. J. P. Ling, who, both as a comedian and mimic finds much favour. Rastus and Banks, song and dance artists and general entertainers, are popular, and the Lorrisons and the Pepiscope add enjoyable variety to the entertainment.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—This week Miss Inez Howard's company (under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell) has appeared in the military drama Tommy Atkins. Mr. C. H. Matthews was an unqualified success as Harold Wilson, the curate of St. Barnabas; Mr. Charles A. Baker, as Stephen Raymond, gave a powerful interpretation to the part; while Mr. Wilfred R. Mansfield, in the rôle of Captain Richard Maitland, submitted a clever inpersonation of the profligate and erring husband of Margaret Maitland, a part taken with dramatic affect by Miss Adelaide Chippendale; Mr. Fred Elvin, as the humorous and garrulous Colour-Sergeant Paddy Molloy in conjunction with Miss Doris Kelvey, as Kate Perkins (Ruth's maid), was responsible for much merriment, while Mr. Edward Swinton, as Ebenezer Skindle, organist and choirmaster, created roars of laughter. Miss Lena Gordon, as Ruth Raymond, gave a most realistic and powerful interpretation to this important character. Harold Wagner, as Captain Bob Sparrow, was a success, and the same may be said of Miss Mamie Stanton as Elsie Wilson (Harold's sister). Little Jack was faithfully portrayed by little Violet Geoffrey; Mr. Richard Harris powerfully and realistically interpreted the part of Private Mason, and Mr. Arthur Langton that of Perkins. Miss Gertrude Neville, as Rose Selwyn, Mr. George W. Hardy, as Colonel Hardwick, and Mr. Cyril Bowen, as Hommy Trotman, were also very good.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager Councillor Hy. Masterman. — Home, Sweet Home, is interesting visitors to the Royal this week, and Mr. Frank Lindo's company gives an altogether enjoyable performance. Mr. Frank Lindo is a powerful exponent of Stephen Armitage; Miss Marion Wakeford makes a charming Joan, and quite wins the hearts of the audience by the intensity of her acting; Captain Gerald Gambier has an imposing presence and a polished manner as the Duke of Ancaster; the cool, calculating villainy of Lucas Lyle is ably depicted by Mr. F. Miles Hodgson; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle makes a good impression as David Armitage; Mr. Jack Patrick makes a capital "dude" of the Hon. Percy; while Mr. Ernest E. Owens is an amusing Lord Silvermore. Miss Ray Rocheford is amusing as Sybil Fay; the Gaffer of Mr. Helsby Wright is a clever piece of character-acting; Mr. George Overs is seen to much advantage as Dick Redmayne; Mr. T. Lewis is good as bone soloist, and also does well as Solomon Keary; Miss Daisy Rochefort makes a pretty and pleasing Dora.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The Achmed Ibrahim Troupe, in remarkable somersaults and pyramid building, are rewarded with enthusiastic applause; Frank Couch has some amusing gags; Ben Harris and his midgets interest all with their act, A Promising Pupil; "Ruined Lips," as depicted by Lacey's Erascope, is very amusing. Others in the bill are Harris and Worth, cross-talk comedians; Winnie Derson, comedienne; Arthur Boyne; Trick and Trixie, musical and comedy artists; and Cissie Adell Lupino, transformation dancer.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—The bright particular star of this week's bill is Miss Winifred Hare, who succeeds in thoroughly delighting her auditors; Ross and Grayson are giving an original musical act; very spirited are the dances contributed by the Rales; Wee Mona displays ability and confidence in song and dance; Walter Munroe is as popular as ever; and Ethel May, comedienne; and Frank Boyce, comedian, complete the programme.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company introduced Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) on Monday night. The title-part is cleverly studied by Mr. Morris Harvey; Miss Maimie Brickwell is captivatingly sweet as Le Bolero; Miss Claire Pridelle, as Violet Pridelle, sings and acts prettily; Miss Lois Louden, a capital soubrette, is much in evidence as La Bolero's maid, and her song, "The Black Sheep," is one of the best; Mr. Herbert Dickson, as Norman Popple, does good work and sings well; Mr. Fred Maguire does justice to the lyrics, "One little word" and "Love, why are you hiding?" The suburban quartette, Mr. and Mrs. Doring and Mr. and Mrs. Hennay, are humorously portrayed by Mr. Fred F. Allen, Miss Adice René, Mr. Augustin Symonds, and Miss Stella St. Audrie; Mr. Tom May imparts character to his study of Platt; and the minor parts are well filled. Misses Daisy Dennis, Margery Leigh, Louie Maitland, Ruby Eavis, and Phyllis Desmond form a smart quintet of up-to-date dancers.

CHORLEY. — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—Miss Marie Dagmar and her company are here this week, presenting A Beautiful Criminal. As Elinor D'Arville, Miss Dagmar is exceptionally powerful, while Mr. Fred C. Somerfield gives a fine rendering of Will Maynard; Mr. Roy Fortescue undertakes the dual rôle of Geoffrey and Leonard Langdon with excellent effect; and Mr. T. G. Vane is irresistibly funny as Leonard Vimbart; Mr. Chas. E. Warne, as James, and Mr. Willie Barret (Peter Miles) are also effective. Miss Clara Santley depicts Rosine Philipi admirably; Miss Lallah Shelton capitally rendering Lilly Lorrimer, and Miss Cherry Veheyne is capable as Phœbe.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—The attraction here this week is the diverting farcical comedy The 'Varsity Belle, presented by Mr. Henry B. Leigh's company. Mr. James Danvers, as Professor Septimus Stoney, has a part that fits him like a glove; Miss Josephine Ellis is a sprightly and charming Gaye Sparkleton; Mr. Frank Lillput is a smart comedian, and does good work as Runyard; Mr. Edward Chester cleverly impersonates a showman, Theocritus Ward Sparkleton; Miss Emma Rainbow makes a dignified Mrs. Barker; Miss Beatrice Egerton is a decided success as Maud Stoney; Miss Nellie Beason acts and sings nicely as Eva Stoney. The two undergraduates are well acted by Mr. Morrice Holmes and Mr. Ray Barraclough.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.— Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—The boards here this week are occupied by Miss Elaine Verner with a powerful company, and on Monday evening The Middleman was produced. Mr. Harding Thomas, an artist of considerable merit, displays ability in the rôle of Cyrus Blenkarn; Mr. Frank Lyndon scores as Joseph Chandler; Mr. Percy Brown makes a hit as Captain Julian; and Batty Todd is safe in the capable hands of Mr. Edward De Vere. Miss Elaine Verner capitally portrays Mary; Miss Ruby Romer exhibits talent as Maud Chandler; and Nancy has a good representative in Miss Ada Clarke. Saints and Sinners was presented on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, and credit reflects on Mr. Harding Thomas for the manner in which both productions were staged.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—On Monday evening, Miss McIntosh and Mr. Lumsden Hare's company opened here in the well-known play, Mollentrave on Women. Mr. Herbert Grimwood as Mollentrave and Mr. Athole Stewart as Sir Joseph Balsted played their respective parts in a natural, easy, and artistic manner; Miss May Pardoe, alike in speech and gesture, gave an excellent rendering of the part of Lady Claud; Miss Eva Hamblin was ingenuous as the delightfully impressionable Margaret; and a very capable exponent of the part of Everard Gwenboys was Mr. Harry Kendal. Miss Ada King showed great ability in the rôle of Mrs. Martelli; and Mr. Stanley James as Dexter and Miss Belle Donaldson as Ideable were suitably placed.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—De Henau, the armless wonder, proves himself a clever artist; Ernest Montefiore and company, in a musical and dramatic sketch, entitled The Little Colonel, are a capital draw; and another item which receives great attention is Mlle. Aladina, with her highly-trained cockatoos. The Tatlers (Arthur and Eva) are a comedy pair of no mean ability; Helen Martin is a vocalist of great power, and with an attractive personality; Wallau, the boy juggler, is extremely versatile with his tricks; and Jennie Venton, comedienne and dancer, claims a big share of the plaudits, which are lavishly bestowed. The pictures conclude a very entertaining programme.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance. —Miss Mary Austin and E. Vivian Edmunds' company, with The Golden Ladder, is fulfilling a six nights' engagement here, opening on Monday night to a full house. Mr. Wm. Clayton gives an excellent rendering of the part of the Rev. Frank Thornhill, and as Michael Severn Mr. E. V. Edmunds is exceptionally good, being well supported by Mr. E. Graham Winsford as M. Peranza. Mr. Jos. Rowlands as Samuel Peckaby and Miss Mimi Edwards as Mrs. Peckaby are very amusing. Miss Mary Austin plays the part of Lilian Grant with great feeling, and is rewarded with well merited applause. Miss Teresa Haynes ably sustains the rôle of Mrs. Dixon, and Miss Winifred Acton as Victoria Alexandra Peckaby is satisfactory.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Edward Terry opened a week's engagement on Monday with Liberty Hall. Mr. Terry portrayed the part of Wm. Todman in delightful style, and was frequently applauded. The sisters Blanche and Amy Chilworth were represented by Miss Fyfe Alexander and Miss Gertrude Tate. Both played capitally, and were effective in the sentimental scenes. Mr. Allan Pollock, as Mr. Owen, supplied a convincing performance; the Brigginshaw of Mr. William Dexter was good; and Miss Eugenie Vernie, as the housemaid, created much fun. Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., as the Hon. Gerald Harringay, was interesting. The Magistrate and Sweet Lavender are also in the week's repertoire.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—An excellent programme here this week includes Fred Melton, comedian; Duncan's Scotch Collies; the McGregors, a charming musical turn; Takio, a Japanese artist and a clever mimic of animals, &c.; Hinton and Wooton, who gave a clever performance on bicycles; Hampson Brothers, comedians; James Shingleton, the Singing Collier; Alexandra Royal, burlesque actress; and the Lloyd Brothers, wire walkers and gymnasts.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—The Sailors of the King was accorded a hearty welcome on Monday night by a large audience. The piece is by Mr. Charles Harrington, who appears to admirable advantage as Admiral Drake. As Lieutenant Dick Drake, the hero, Mr. Frank Stevens is well received, the same remark applying to Mr. R. F. Stacey as Orrel Drake. Mr. Kenneth Black and Mr. Fred Owen contribute largely to the success in mirthful renderings of Barnet Fair, a steward, and a moneylender, Mr. A. D. Anderson being responsible for Rufford Dent. Miss Lily Prescott deserves great praise for her tactful rendering of the difficult part of Daisy Dent. Miss Madge North as Felicia Phrynne and Miss Sylvia Stella as Rebecca Crosley render capital accounts of themselves, an amusing part being that of Penelope Penn (a Quakeress), presented by Miss Hero Hathaway.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—Well-filled houses nightly witness the capital programme provided here, a popular turn being that of Haley's Juveniles, numbering about twenty, who render solos, duets, and choruses with marked effect, and are also responsible for some clever dancing. The Xentrix give a quick-change act, entitled The Magic Garden, in which are introduced the various Continental styles, accompanied by an appropriate song and dance. The Three Delaries give some clever acrobatic feats in the Demon Grotto; comedy acts are given with success by the Edgar Forrest Combination and Baker and Edwards. Charles Williams is a coloured comedian of talent, and Miss Dolly Denton is a clever comedienne. The usual Hippo Pictures conclude the bill.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. George Dance; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—The growing popularity of this house is shown by the large audiences which nightly witness the capital programmes provided. A clever turn is submitted by Carter Livesey, Lillian Rosebery, and Co., in The Would-be Actors, which keeps the house in roars. Mr. John Tiller's company in a musical extravaganza, The Mad Minstrels, are equally successful. A skilful illusion is introduced by Cusnac Talma and Mlle. Yvonne de Pevre. Mr. Charles Paston, comedian, is very successful as an inebriate merry-maker, and is well received. The Calcotte do some excellent banjo playing and step dancing. Boy Glen is a clever juvenile raconteur; Ryder Slone is a clever comedian, and May Orchard is a charming songstress.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's principal company is appearing here in Her One Great Sin. Miss Blanche St. Albans takes the part of Grace Warhurst with taste and feeling; Mr. John Cecil gives a very able presentment of Reuben Warhurst; Mr. J. Leicester Jackson has the heavy part, and as Arnold Thornhill delights his hearers. Miss Phyllis Damian is winsome as Charlie and Miss Nellie Lambert makes a capital Nancy Winpenny. Miss Maude Lambert is well placed as little Gracie, and Miss Louie Walton deserves special mention for her Bet Hundle. Mr. Fred Hodson is seen to advantage as Jerry Jumble, and Mr. Chas. E. Lambert is a pleasant Dan Humble, whose son, Jack Humble, has a careful exponent in Mr. Harold B. Ford. Mr. P. Nelis is a dignified solicitor, Mr. Benton and Mr. J. Crondase scores as Landlord Ben Barkley. Mr. R. Yale deserves praise for his rendering of Robert Brown, and Mr. H. W. G. Dudge is well placed as Jim Bates. Mr. Gerald Smythe as Tom Green is in his element, and Mr. C. Dale has the official manner as P.-C. Jackson.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P. — Mr. Alexander Loftus and company are here this week with The New Barmaid. Miss Amy Preston acts delightfully as Ethel Joy; and Miss Grafton gives a good rendering of Brenda Louth. Miss Violet Osmund charms everyone as Dora Heather; and Miss Winifred Preston makes an excellent Lady Moulton. Miss Marion Vyner is capital as Braddy. Mr. Leslie Austin sings and acts well as Captain Lovebury; and Mr. Charles Adeson as Bertie White keeps the house thoroughly amused. Mr. Alexander Loftus is also responsible for much merriment as William White. Mr. James Grant is suitably placed as Colonel Claymore; and Mr. W. E. Chewd is clever as Mons. Bonsor. Some smart dancing by the Star Trio is introduced.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—What the Butler Saw is being appreciated by visitors here. Mr. Lionel Rignold, a host in himself, causes much merriment as Pink; Mr. Charles Fawcett's free-and-easy style admirably suits the rôle of Jack Barrington; Mr. Reddick Anderson is quite in his element as Sir Charles Foden; Mr. George Ascott is the peppery old General Dunlop to the life; Mr. Harry H. Rignold is great as Abraham Weinstein; Mr. Lewis Lingard praiseworthy as Sydney Clifford; and good work is put in by Messrs. Alec Alves, Roy Byford, and Frank Kingsley, as Vere de Bogyns, Professor Shale, and Dr. Clayton. Miss Ada Blanche is a bright and attractive Mrs. Barrington; Miss Maria Dalbra a creditable Miss Foden; Miss Jennie Wigney a pretty Nora; Misses Hilda Davies and Vera O'Connell are neat as Clarissa and Selina Dunlop; Miss Violet Gould is well placed as Mrs. Fleming Smyth; and Misses Annie Goward, Minnie Willett, Agnes Webster, and Dorothy Garth render useful aid. Mr. Lawson Lambert's management of this comfortable house leaves nothing to be desired.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company, in The Convict's Daughter, is the attraction here this week. The parts of Weary Willie, Michael Grahame, and Convict 89 are well played by Mr. Frank Bertram, whose talents are greatly appreciated; Mr. G. Nelson Wallace is particularly able in the rôle of Frederick Neville; Mr. Herbert King is a prominent figure as Harold Trevalyen; Mr. G. Moreton Williams depicts the villain, Jasper Thorn, in excellent style; and Mr. Sam Roberts as Patrick O'Laragan calls for special mention. Miss Rose Carew as Marion Thorn makes the most of her limited opportunities; Miss Phyllis Gibbon as Betty Hyne is very smart; and Miss Nellie Clyde as Edith (Nevill's adopted daughter) is exceptionally good.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Carl Hertz heads the bill here, and his illusions, marvellous changes, and surprises, cause quite a sensation; Clark and Hamilton are high-class entertainers, whose turn is enjoyed; Emmie Ames, comedienne, is always popular in Croydon; Horace White, ventriloquist, has some fine mechanical figures; Grant and Grant are excellent variety artists; Hicks' Clerks are interesting vocalists and comedians; Boden and Bell, juvenile coon vocalists and dancers, receive quite an ovation; and others worth seeing are L. B. Athol, comedian; Maynard Dakin, comedian; and Jane Temple, comedienne. The programme also includes pictures on the Bioscope.

DARLINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company in Raffles is here this week. Mr. Leonard Boyne as Raffles gives an artistic and natural presentation; Mr. Arthur Willoughby renders the part of the Earl to perfection; Mr. Lewis Edgard as Bunny is very effective; Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is an attractive Marie; Miss Hilda Steward takes the part of Mrs. Vidal in able manner; that of Lady Ethel is admirably filled by Miss Madge Murray; and Mr. Clifford Brooke makes a splendid Curtis Bedford. Raffles, which is well mounted, is preceded by a one-act play entitled A Lesson in Shakespeare.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is presenting The Span of Life here this week. Mr. R. S. Trelawney gives a powerful display of acting as Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffat ably fills the heavy rôle of Dunstan Leech; Mr. Walter Dale is capital as Nutty, as is Mr. James Jarrett's impersonation of Gurnet. Miss Ella Wilber is well suited with her part of Kate Heathcote; Miss M. Douglas undertakes the dual rôles of Zeff and Blunt in a capital manner; Miss Kitty Russell is amusing as Shrove Tuesday. The Almo Trio of acrobats give some humorous comedy turns on the triple bars.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. George Dance's company is here this week with The Spring Chickens. Mr. Fred Payne as Girdle keeps the house in uproarious laughter. In Miss Crissie Leonard, as Rosalie, Mr. Payne has a charming partner, who stands out pre-eminently in the cast. Her Dutch dance, in which she is assisted by five or six charming little ladies, is capital. Miss Nellie Kavanagh as Mrs. Girdle, shows herself to be a comedienne of ability; as Babori, Mr. J. S. Durant works energetically and with much success. Mr. Edwin Dodde is a good actor and a clever dancer; Miss Florence Lee makes a delightful Dulcie, and the two children, Stephen-Henry and Emmy-Lou, are well played by Mr. Lewis Wigley and Miss Lilian Erroll, the latter being a captivating little dancer. The Baroness has a very charming representative in Miss Poppy Poole, and Mr. Harry Averell gives an amusing study of Boniface. An efficient chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Knight Pearce.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Miss Sylvia Calvalho is the principal attraction here this week. She represents a powerful dramatic episode entitled Lulu, in which her own admirable efforts are excellently supported by Mr. Henry Bates, Miss Emma Chambers, and Miss Lena Pierpoint. Mlle. Lumière submits a charming spectacle, The Fairy Grotto, her butterfly dance securing her unstinted approbation. Heim and Cozens produce an amusing speciality called Doctor and Patient; and Grant and Allen are exceedingly smart burlesque comedians. Another comedian who deserves hearty mention is W. G. Lytton, and Allsopp and Bekwith are deserving comedy artists; while Fiorette and Elly submit a clever exhibition of jumping, &c. The Palace Bioscope again proves an interesting item.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company presented Napoleon the Great on Monday to the patrons of the popular Devonport theatre. The title-rôle is undertaken with ability by Mr. Hugh Montgomery; Mr. Henry Barlesmere is dignified and martial as Colonel Lavarennes, and Mr. Bartlett Garth furnishes a clever study of Paul; Miss Marie Harcourt as Marcelle is attractive, and the acting of Miss Leslie Warner as Marie Walewska is meritorious.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Between Two Women, the sensational play from the pen of Mr. Frederick Melville, occupies the boards here this week. The heroic character of the Rev. Philip Carton is finely acted by Mr. Godfrey Tearle; the unadulterated malevolence and rascality of James Durwood and Major Strangeways receive the fullest illustration from Messrs. Walter Thornton and Roland Yorke, whose acting respectively is of unquestionable quality. Miss Molly Malone plays the part of the heroine, Violet Thornton, with sympathy and tact; a very pathetic figure in the play is that of the blind boy, the delineation of whom by Miss Lulu Bowes is notable for emotional power and fidelity; Carmen de Savereaux, certainly a virile rôle, is ably portrayed by Miss Nellie Fletcher. Mr. Fred Goddard is the exponent of the Earl of Millard, being responsible for a well-studied piece of acting, Mr. Jackson Wilcox (Harry Millard), Miss Lillian Earle (Polly Sopp), and Mr. Fred Danvers (Jack Pringle) contribute useful histrionic aid.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—The muscular display given by the Three Romas is of remarkable excellence, being artistic in every detail, whilst their gladatorial skill is no less conspicuous; George Bernard earns applause as an actor-vocalist; Miss Gracie Moore sings sentimental and pathetic songs, accompanied by pictorial illustrations on the screen; Wallace Whitney evokes peals of laughter with his drollery and comical make-up as "The Fireman," &c.; Miss Fanny Humber, a burlesque actress and skipping-rope dancer, finds favour with the audience, who also signify energetic goodwill towards T. C. Jacques (comedian), Ford and Hanson (American musical millionaires), and Beattie Foster (low comedy art Tennent, as the Hon. John Storm, acts with sincere conviction; Mr. Charles E. Dering presents an excellent character sketch as Canon Wealthy; Miss May Weir's Aggie Jones possesses the requisite touch of pathos; Mr. Frederick Scarth's Lord Robert Ure is excellent; Mr. W. Briscoe Owen does well in the rôle of Horatio Drake.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—Mr. Henry Pettitt's emotional play, Queen's Evidence, was received here on Monday with great enthusiasm. Miss Lily Hill's Kate Medland was pathetic; Miss May Robinson, as Ada Sydney, acted with dramatic force; Miss L. Hervey was sympathetic as Laura Sydney; Mr. H. Fitzpatrick was dignified as Sir Frederick Sydney; Mr. J. Lees scored as Walter Wynford; Mr. James Robinson made Gilbert Medland a gallant hero; Mr. A. Keenan worked hard as Matthew Thornton; Mr. Charles Carroll made Isaacs, alias Jonas Levant, into an amusing personage, who evoked peals of honest laughter. The little boy Arthur was prettily played by Miss Tessie Clayne. Mr. C. Woodward, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Develin, and Mr. James Keays were all excellent in small parts. Mr. J. Pascoe's stage management left nothing to be desired.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—A clever company is here this week with The Night of the Party. Mr. Sebastian Smith's infectious gaiety as Crosbie is refreshing; an excellent portrayal of Frank Fayne is given by Mr. Frank H. Denton, and Mr. Douglas Munro submits a clever rendering of Mr. F. Lambert. A fine character sketch of Bogle, the hall porter, is contributed by Mr. Ernest Rivary, and Mr. Stanley Arthur's appearance fits him well for the part of Mr. Roundle. An amusing skit of a City Alderman is given by Mr. Edmond T. Sawyer; Mr. Adrian Lovett plays impressively as Sir Charles. A vivacious and sprightly Pauline is found in Miss Maud Liner; Miss Stanley Ronalds is a dashing Gipsy vandelier; and Miss Lena Graham does well as Mrs. Young.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The boards here are occupied by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in R. C. Carton's latest success, Public Opinion. Miss Hutchison, in the rôle of Lady Diana Caldershaw, has ample scope to display her excellent abilities, which she does to the fullest extent, and Mr. Fred Lewis presents a clever conception of the Hon. Justice Mulley. Mr. Percy Marshall causes much laughter, and scores successfully as Horace Wibsey, and Miss Nancy Beresford is particularly suited for the part of Pansy Bligh. Mr. Charles Harley gives an exceptionally good impersonation of Spencer Traughton, and Miss Connie Dene is graceful and pleasing as Phyllis Dagenham. Mr. Douglas Hamilton gives a good account of himself in the character of Sir Babington Mulley, and Violet Harley makes a lively lady's-maid as Charlotte. Mr. Douglas Greet does himself credit in the rôle of Viscount Poffley, and Mr. Ashton Pearse's portrayal of Lord Percy Kilgour is a capital piece of work, and the parts of Smeeton, Finchett, and Jowers have fitting representatives in Messrs. Charles B. Wentworth, B. Beach, and C. J. Barber. A clever comedietta, The Stratagem, precedes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. Martin Harvey and company entered on their second week's engagement here on Monday night, when the Breed of the Treshams was presented before a large and appreciative audience. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Martin Harvey for his admirable presentment of Lieutenant Reresby (the Rat), and Batty finds an ideal representative in Miss N. De Silva. The part of Colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford, as depicted by Mr. Charles Glenney, was a meritorious assumption, and Miss Amy Coleridge is to be highly commended for her embodiment of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford. Viscount Dorsington was in the capable hands of Mr. Charles J. Cameron, and Mr. Albert E. Rayner was successful as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen. The part of Colonel Bagshaw was finely interpreted by Mr. Fred Wright (senr.), and Miss Madge Fabian was admirable as Mrs. Bagshaw. Mr. Leonard Craske excellently sustained the part of Cornet the Hon. Francis Tresham, and Helena Pierrepoint was ably portrayed by Miss Bessie Elder. The other parts were creditably filled, and the scenery and dresses effective.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is appearing here this week in The Eternal City, and drawing good houses. The character of Baron Bonelli is well assumed by Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, and Miss Sarah De Groot is natural and effective in the rôle of Donna Roma. Mr. Henry Deas acts forcibly as David Rossi, and Miss Eva Stuart gives due prominence to the rôle of Elena. Mr. Jack Fortescue is a capable exponent of Pope Pius XI., and Miss May Fortescue is excellent as Princess Bellini. Mr. W. O'Flynn achieves success as Bruno Rocco, and Miss Violet Campbell makes an admirable Nattalina. Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood acquits himself well as Commendatore Angelelli, and Miss C. Stokes is capital as Francesca.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A strong bill is headed here by Boswell's Circus, an enjoyable and entertaining turn, which is well received. Another excellent item is the McConnell Trio of musical comedy artists, who put plenty of "go" into their entertainment. Eily Adair is an engaging comedienne and dancer. Hanid Alexander, child pianist, scores, and Frank Sylvo, tramp juggler, speedily makes himself a favourite. Burley and Burley, in their twisting and twirling feats, are highly amusing, and the Two Tees, musical grotesques, play many instruments in a capable manner. Ernest Ball is a clever actor vocalist, and "Joly," Continental musician, also does well. The Empire pictures are, as usual, up-to-date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Four Rio Brothers are the attraction here this week, and elicit loud applause for their clever and daring gymnastic act. De Vere and Kenwick, American comedy duo, arouse much merriment, and Lily Lena, comedienne, finds great favour. The Four Charles, in an original act, are clever and amusing, and Leonard and Larry, the komedy kouple, make a big hit with smart business. The Paolias supply an exceptionally good turn, and Lily Lonsdale is an accomplished soprano vocalist. Charles Banks and his dog "Woof" score successfully, as does also Ernie Myers, eccentric comedian. The Bioscope completes the programme.

DUDLEY. — EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Ferris and Farnley, the smart patter comedians, give a clever cross-talk turn, and also introduce some smart dancing; the Orchids are both pleasing and amusing. The company also includes the Reays, athletic equilibrists; the Lovelaces, American song illustrators; Arthur Elvy, comedian; and Lambert and Hands, who are excellent in vocal scenas. Some novel pictures are shown on the Empire Bioscope.

DUNDEE. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. George Dance presents his company in A Country Girl. Miss Nancy Rossiter is a capital Marjory; Miss Maisie Gay a sprightly Nan; Miss Winnie O'Connor an excellent Princess; Miss Addie Rennard a clever Sophie; Mr. Charles Walenn keeps the house in the best of humour by his antics in the part of Barry; and Mr. St. John Hamund as the Rajah and Mr. Percy Carr as Geoffrey are good in their respective parts.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Norman-Leonard Trio are skilful musicians; Vernando gives a clever ventriloquial sketch; Walker and Lake create much amusement with their quaint patter; the American Comedy team rouse enthusiasm; and Harry Thurston, mimic, Barney Stuart, in The Miser, Millie Denham, vocalist, and B. H. Almon complete the bill.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Mr. Williams has secured a great draw in the bioscope picture of the great boxing contest between Gunner Moir and Jack Palmer. Fred Karno's company create great hilarity with their sketch, The Smoking Concert. The Alleys introduce a clever animal act. The Royal Temples create a furore with their trios. Much amusement is caused by Stuart and Worth in a comedy act; and Andy Burn is a capital song and dance artist.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—The British Empire Talking Picture and Variety Company opened here a six nights' engagement on Monday. The picture exhibits comprise a large variety of subjects and scenes. Songs beautifully illustrated are excellently rendered by Miss La Clair and Little Doris, and Professor Lehman, with the aid of his dummy, makes the most phlegmatic laugh with his ventriloquial capabilities, besides winning admiration for his clever paper-folding feats.

DUMFRIES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne Sedden.—For three nights this week, commencing Monday, Mr. Charles Windermere's company has appeared here in the farcical comedy Facing the Music. Mr. Windermere makes a capital John Smith; Dick Desmond is well portrayed by Mr. Gordon Phillott; Mr. W. H. G. Wynne is suitably placed as Col. Duncan Smith; Mr. C. Casson Freer is good as the Rev. John Smith; Miss Clark Manifield as Nora plays in a graceful manner; Miss Kathleen Willoughby is pleasing as Mabel; and Miss Evelyn Shelley as Mrs. Ponting is well suited.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Standen Triggs.—Mr. Cyril Keightley and company are appearing in a number of old English plays. On Wednesday afternoon a successful matinée was given of She Stoops to Conquer. Miss Haidee Gunn, bright and buoyant, was a very able Kate Hardcastle; Miss Ethel Dane a pretty Miss Neville; and Alice Arden an excellent Mrs. Hardcastle. Mr. Cyril Keightley did admirable work as Young Marlow; Mr. Henry Crocker as Hardcastle showed ability; and Mr. Baliol Holloway did capitally as Hastings. Tony Lumpkin was finely played by Mr. Iden Payne, Mr. Charles Medwin triumphed as Sir Charles Marlow, and smaller parts were well undertaken by Mr. Sidney Burton, Mr. B. A. Pittar, and Mr. Basil Dean.

THE PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is appearing here in The Freedom of Suzanne for the first three evenings of this week. Mr. Percy Hutchison is an easy and natural Charles Trevor; Mr. F. G. Thurstons gives an extremely clever character sketch as Fitzroy Harding; Mr. Patrick Quill is a satisfactory Sir Horace; Mr. J. H. Hastings, Mr. Townsend Whitling, and Mr. Richard Neville are all good representatives of Lord Dachet, Captain Cecil, and Tommy Keston. Miss Mabel Love is a pretty Suzanne, and played to the evident delight of the audience; Miss Florence Harwood is a conspicuous success as Miss Mincing; Miss Annie Stalman is a precise and dignified Lady Charlotte; Miss Violet Ley is a fine, handsome Lady Isabel; and Miss Dorothy Lart is a pleasing Mrs. Tustail. Mary's Secret precedes. Mr. Howard Cochrane's company is billed to appear here later in the week in The Marriage of Kitty.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—The Muir and Bartlett combination causes roars of laughter in their well-worked sketch, The Collar Stud; Messrs. Welda and Wynne are funny and expert jugglers; Miss Jenny Grey is an attractive comedienne, with clever legmania business; the Sisters Morgan sing and dance to a pleased audience; Sim Maree is an original contortionist; Mr. Dick Kendal and Mr. Charles Lilburn provided comedy with song and dance; and new pictures complete the bill.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. George Musgrove's company has been drawing good houses here this week with that attractive musical farce, The Prince of Pilsen. Mr. Martin Adeson again distinguishes himself by his humorous impersonation of Hans Wagner; Mr. J. B. Fox, in the title-rôle, is heard to advantage in the songs which fall to his part; and Mr. Alfred Selby as François is genuinely humorous. Miss Nell Emerald gives a bright rendering to the character of the French maid, and Miss Isa Bowman is a graceful and vivacious Nellie Wagner, and sings with charm and taste. Mr. Lawrence Wensley is an entertaining Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. G. Villiers Arnold is admirable as Lieut. Tom Wagner; and Miss Meg Hamilton is very much alive as the bell-boy Jimmie. The unfortunate indisposition of Miss Millicent Marsden has given Miss Flora Gray the opportunity of representing with much success the part of Mrs. Madison Crocker. The large chorus sing with delightful precision and effect, and Mr. Thos. H. Tunbridge is an able musical-director.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard Wyndham, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshall.—The "Kendal week" has long been regarded as among the choicest dramatic treats of the Edinburgh season, and the engagement opened on Monday evening with The Elder Miss Blossom. In this delightful play, one of the most popular of her later repertory, Mrs. Kendal repeated her fine sympathetic rendering of the name-part, and Mr. Kendal was once more at his best as Andrew Quick. Strong support was given by an excellent company, which includes the authors of the piece, Mr. Ernest Hendrie and Mr. Metcalfe Wood, who took the parts of Christopher Blossom and Withers respectively. Mr. Bassett Roe made a capital Major Twentyman; Mr. Maurice J. Toke was good as the Rev. Arthur Leacroft; and Mr. R. Burnett developed the humorous element in the rôle of Tyrrel Jones. Miss Moore-Lane was very pleasant and charming as Sophia Blossom; while Mr. A. B. Tapping's impersonation of Cooper was as successful as ever. On Tuesday Mr. Metcalfe Wood and Miss Beatrice Heron-Maxwell's play The Housekeeper was produced for the first time in Edinburgh, and it received an admirable interpretation by the company. The Ironmaster and A Tight Corner have also been staged during the week.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The place of honour in a capital all-round evening's entertainment is this week held by Chung Ling Soo, who by his marvellous skill and dexterity as an accomplished conjurer mystifies his audience in a most delightful manner; the Griffiths Brothers are old friends here, as everywhere, and their comical acts never fail to please; the Motramo couple also provide a very amusing turn with their fun and music; as a character vocalist Mr. Fred Clements makes a palpable hit; the Henri Taylor Trio of expert equilibrists create much interest; and the Selbinis appear in some daring and graceful exhibitions of trick cycle-riding. Miss Nellie Wallace ranks high as a comedy artist, and her sprightly singing is much enjoyed; Syd May gives exceedingly clever imitations of sundry music-hall celebrities; Beattie and Blanche are smart duettists and dancers; the Hope Sisters are also capable performers in the same line; and a new series of up-to-date subjects are displayed by the American Bioscope.

COOKE'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The programme here this week exhibits all the energetic proprietor's well-known ability for blending variety with humour. Mr. Alfred Leicester, an accomplished equestrian, is dramatic and picturesque in a bareback act of horsemanship, entitled Rob Roy, and a dashing exponent of the bounding jockey is seen in Mr. James Humel, a graceful and fearless rider. Verne gives proof of his dexterity and daring on roller skates. His feat of ascending and descending an inclined plane is a surpassingly difficult performance skilfully done; Horton and Linder, Frank Anderson, Sim Dempsey, and Little Bishop supply the humorous element with ingenuity and true comic effect; Gilbert's Bioscope, and the old-time farcical sketch, The Rigg of Mr. Briggs, heighten the attractiveness of an admirable bill of fare.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—This house, which has been closed for several weeks, re-opened on Monday with a variety programme, which includes the names of the Zam Brothers, and the Bonanzas, gymnasts; Hulbert, ventriloquist; and a number of strong comedy turns. The Bioscope is a feature of the entertainment.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. George Dance's company is presenting this week the comic opera Veronique. Miss Nellie Wigley does well in the title rôle, as does also Mr. J. Warren-Foster as Florestian; Mr. Ellis Holland's portrayal of Monsieur Coquenard is excellent, and causes roars of laughter; Miss Agnes Tandy is a charming Madame Coquenard; and Miss Edith Devonshire sings well as Emerance. Mr. Tom Seymour is amusing in the rôle of Monsieur Loustot; Mr. Scott Cullen as Seraphim, and Miss Neste Laurel as Denise ably sustain their parts.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Chas. Carey's company opened on Monday with the musical-comedy After the Ball. The character of Nancy was capitally portrayed by Miss M. Sadie; Mr. Buckstone Clair was particularly clever as the servant Martin; Miss Queenie Finnis took the part of Nellie Mather. Added to a charming personality, Miss Finnis possesses a nice voice, and is a graceful dancer. She was ably seconded in her efforts by Miss Eva Ellis as Ruth Gay. The part of the gruff old colonel was capitally presented by Mr. Percy Baverstock; and Mr. Algernon W. Lee proved quite successful as Halliwell Menit. Mr. Norman Bowyer was funny as Dick Seymour. A smart set of Gibson Girls helped to enliven the piece. The dressing and setting were very pretty.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—This week Mr. Hilliard Vox and company are presenting the American drama Alaska. Mr. Vox takes the lead as Shookum Jim with great success, and is ably seconded by Mr. C. D. Pitt, who represents Ned Larson. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson is very good as Baptiste, the half-breed; Mr. Albert Rogers makes an excellent Pompey Cæsar; Mr. John Ford is well adapted to the part of Malumite Kid; and Mr. Bevan Benton scores as Father Bernard. Mr. J. Howarth does full justice to the part of Lieut. Harding; Miss Leslie Wynne plays the Widow Casey with good effect, and little Winnie Webster scores as the Midow's Mite. Miss E. Turner-Elliot, as Jessie Dalton and Miss G. Hastings Walton, as Alaska, the Indian, both sustain their parts in a realistic manner.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—A great attraction is supplied in the wordless play, La Main that precedes The Cornish Girl, which is mentioned elsewhere. Mlle. Camilla D'Alberg enacts the difficult rôle of Vivette with vivacity and power, and executes a very clever dance; Mr. Richmond Howard plays the Baron exceedingly well; and Mr. Cecil King as the burglar leaves nothing to be desired.

GAINSBOROUGH. — KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—On Tuesday and Wednesday, Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared here with The Silver King. This popular drama drew good houses. Mr. Horace E. Herbert and Mr. Oswald C. Cray were excellent exponents of Denver and Capt. Skinner respectively; Miss B. Doyle played Nellie in a sympathetic manner; Mr. Wm. Dempsey gave a clever character sketch of Coombes, being well supported by Mr. S. Bernard as Cripps.

GATESHEAD.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. France.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's talented company is presenting the ever-welcome The Silver King to large audiences. Mr. Fred D. Daviss is to be complimented upon an excellent performance in the title-rôle. Miss Daisy Scudamore compares favourably with any other actress who has played Nellie Denver in this town. Faithful old Jaikes receives the best of treatment at the hands of Mr. Edward J. George; Mr. L. St. George Lowther makes a capital Spider; and Mr. A. Hornby Warburton, in the part of Henry Corket, is highly amusing. Mr. Arthur Wright as Elijah Combe and Mr. Warris Lindon as Cripps make about as detestable a pair of villains as one could wish for; Mr. Byron Pedley as Sam Baxter is seen to advantage; Miss Dorothy Radford is an excellent Olive Skinner and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss a winsome Cissy.

KING'S THEATRE.—Licensee, Mr. E. Johnson; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The principal magnet at this comfortable house is the comedy sketch, Did He Deserve It? excellently done by Mr. James Willard and company, the struggle for life between Mr. Willard and his well-trained dog "Tiger" being much enjoyed. Refined comedy is presented by Rose and Calvert; and the Bouncing Dillons cause roars of laughter. Miss Eva Hope and Jack Wayho, in duologues from the works of Dickens, are great favourites; Victoria Dagmar is a graceful gymnast, and the funniosities of her clown assistant make the act a most attractive one; Elsie Rubina claims to be "England's premeir wire dancer"; she is certainly very clever. Flo Banks, a charming comedienne, scores a hit; and Osborn and Brooks have a high-class musical comedy act. Exceptionally smart lady acrobats are found in the Lizzette Troupe; and the pictures shown by Vernon's Bioscope make up a first-class entertainment.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Messrs. Mitchelson and Fineberg's company in The Traitor is doing good business here this week. Mr. Bensley Evans as Prince Rudolph scores heavily; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan, in the title-part, submits a polished portrayal; Mr. T. W. Hurst as the easy-going English naval captain is conspicuous; very amusing are Messrs. Frank Sutherland, Edward Lowrie, and Arthur McCulloch, as Boult, Zoff, and General Hertz respectively; Miss Ruth Sheppard as Zula wins general admiration; and Miss Isabel Hunt as Lieut. Nicholas gives a praiseworthy impersonation. Other ladies in the cast are Miss Katherine Vere (Elise Duprez), Miss Maud Stuart (Cen-Cen), and Miss Gwynne Warren (Countess Zeeka).

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—The pictures continue to draw large audiences. On Monday night the enterprising management exhibited the film taken at the local football match on Saturday between New Brompton and Tottenham Hotspur. Astley's American Circus is retained for a second week, and is maintaining its popularity.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Pleasant memories are revived by the performance of W. G. Wills's beautiful play Olivia, which is being presented by Miss Winifred Emery and company this week. Miss Emery gives a touching rendering of the character of the vicar's elder daughter, Olivia; Mr. Brandon Thomas, as the Vicar, is excellent; Mr. Eille Harwood gives the necessary strength and dignity to the part of Burchell; and a dashing representative of Squire Thornhill is found in Mr. Franklyn Dyall. Mr. Harry Ashford imparts a touch of comedy to the part of Farmer Flamborough; and his daughter Polly is brightly acted by Miss Isabel Roland. Miss May Chevalier makes a pleasant and kindly Sophia; and the two young boys are cleverly played by Miss Maidie Andrews and Master Bobbie Andrews. Miss Keith Lytton, as the aspiring wife of the Vicar, is well suited; Miss Harriet French as a gipsy woman, Mr. M. A. Wetherell as French, Mr. H. Cannon George as Moses, and Miss Morel as Phœbe, complete an able cast. On Thursday, a new play, entitled Her Son, by Horace Annesley Vachell, was produced for the first time on any stage.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. James Welch and company opened on Monday in When Knights Were Bold. The clever comedian has never given more enjoyment, and has added considerably to his popularity. As Sir Guy de Vere, he simply revels in the part, and impresses with his easy, unaffected acting. His company is well chosen. Miss Audrey Ford gives a fine study of the part of Rowena; and the Sir Brian of Mr. Edward Sass is a dignified impersonation of the Irish baronet. Mr. Isaacson, the money-lender, is capitally depicted by Mr. Arthur Grenville; Mr. Arthur Chesney, as the Dean, has the right clerical bearing; while the Valet and Butler of Messrs. Geo. F. Tully and Gordon Tomkins, are rendered very interesting. The ladies who distinguish themselves in the piece, include the Misses Emma Gwynne, Estelle Winwood, Mabel Wentworth, Daisy Cordell, Enid Sass, and Annie Chippendale. The Lady Burglar, as a curtain-raiser, proves enjoyable, thanks to Miss Estelle Winwood and Mr. Henry J. Ford. Mr. Welch appeared on Friday, by special desire, as Jabez Gover, in The Man in the Street.

KING'S, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is this week paying a return visit with the refined and tuneful comic opera, The Little Michus. The foster-sisters, Blanche Marie and Marie Blanche, are charmingly represented by Miss Iris Hoey and Miss Thelma Raye; their voices blend very pleasantly in the duets, while the character contrast in the parts is nicely brought out. Mr. Eric Thorne retains the part of the highly-eccentric General des Ifs, and the fun is fast and furious while he is on the stage. As the soldier lover, Gaston Rigaud, Mr. W. Talleur Andrews sings and acts with capital effect; Mr. Leonard Mackay imparts considerable character to the rôle of Aristide Vert, and the little singing he has to do is done in splendid style; the Bagnolet of Mr. Jack Caunot is an exceedingly amusing performance; Mr. George Miller has a congenial part in Pierre Michu; and the rôles of the Footman and Market Man are well filled by Messrs. Frank Steward and Willie Warde, jun. Miss Florence Parfrey plays Mme. Michu with a good deal of spirit; Miss Vivian Talleur shows grace and agility as the dancer; and the parts of Mlle. Herpin (Miss Alice Oppitz) and Mme. du Terte (Miss Nora Brocklebank) are filled with distinction.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Arnold Bell's company in Ben-My-Chree, in which Mr. Bell plays with great dramatic expression the part of Dan Mylrea; Miss Frances Campbell giving a pleasing rendering of Mona Mylrea. Mr. Cuthbert Imrie, as the Bishop of Man, submits an impressive portrayal of the stern, but kindly, old clergyman; Mr. F. C. Robson gives an attractive impersonation of Davy Fayle, the fisher lad; Mr. H. Fulton is amusing as Hommey-beg, the deaf old serving-man; and the part of Kitty is pleasingly played by Miss V. Campbell. The characters of Evan Mylrea by Mr. Guy Morville, the Deemster by Mr. W. G. Gregory, and the Governor by Mr. Frank Carlile, are all ably handled.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Large audiences have welcomed Hardie and Von Leer's company in the popular play, Two Little Vagabonas. Mr. William Fazan as George Thornton gives a pleasing representation, and, in conjunction with Miss Laura Hanson, as Marion, is responsible for much of the success of the production. Mr. Henry Watson is also seen to advantage as Captain Darville; excellent support is given by Messrs. John F Traynor, Ernest H. Neison, Fred Archer, and Miss Mildred Hudson. Miss May Hart and Miss Margaret Nybloe act with much power and pathos as the two waifs.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and company are here in A Warning to Women. In Dr. Marcus Dread Mr. Mill has a part in which he is well suited; Mr. George Harvey is admirable as the warm-hearted Irish minstrel, Shaun; Mr. Norman B. Cameron is powerful in his treatment of Fergus McNaughton; and Mr Henry Rutland displays ability as Squire Kennion; while Mr. G. M. Davidson, as Rev. E. Wallace, gives consistency and finish to his efforts. Mr. M. Carter Slaughter causes much merriment by his quaint style as Lord Eversleigh; and Mr. W. Palliser-Acock is amusing as Ferdinand de Joules. Mr Henry P. Kennedy is a typical Mike McQuade; Miss Edith Rutland does good work as the cripple, Myles O'More; Miss Emmie Barton acts in effective style as Sheila Kennion; as also does Miss Rosalind Tate as Moira Kennion.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—From the Princess's Theatre, Mr. Fredk. S. Jenning's new sensational drama, As Good as Gold, finds its way to the Lyceum. The company, which created such a good impression in the South side house, is successfully appearing here.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr Charles Mussett.—Louie Freear tops the bill here, and displays her versatility in the comic line, in a farcical sketch, entitled Snooks. Carlton, with his comic conjuring, causes much fun, and his talk is always entertaining; Captain Bevan's Gordon Highlanders give their wonderful drill and wall-scaling act; G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, gets an enthusiastic recall for each of his songs; Minnie Cunningham's quiet style is as popular as ever, and her songs go well; the Sisters Finney give their tank performance, which includes some wonderful feats; Rose Finette dances neatly, and comedy turns are contributed by Lily Esplin and Fred Bronte.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Milton Ray's popular comedy company remains another week, and their musical comedy, The Cruise of the Calabar, proves highly amusing. Marie Kendall heads the single turns, and sings some good songs with plenty of spirit; Mason and Bart give a thrilling bar and trapeze performance; the Montague Brothers, in their sketch, The Sculptor's Dream, provide an excellent display of posing and muscular development; Little Ganty keeps the audience in constant laughter with his patter and vocal parodies; Walter Curtis is another very funny comedian; Nellie Farrell is bright and amusing, and a clever dancer. The remaining turns include Steve M'Carthy, comedian; and Madge May, comedienne.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—An excellent programme is submitted this week. Rosina Casselli, with her Mexican dogs, provides an instructive display of animal training; Mathews and Cowper's comedy sketch, When the Clock went Wrong, is a very laughable piece; the Westwoods, trick cyclists, are much above the average in their line; Bob Baxter is well received; Alma Obrey is an entertaining comedienne; Vanola does some clever footwork with barrel and globe; Carden and Zoach are pleasing musical entertainers; George Fairburn sings some good songs, and gives clever imitations; Rappo and Ella, smart acrobats; and Wake and Dean, comedians, complete a successful programme.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The big attraction here is the musical sketch, Casey's Court, and the bright youngsters who take part again provide a most enjoyable entertainment. George Formby grows in popularity every visit; the imitations of music-hall artists by George Newburn are really life-like; Tom Maxwell and Virginia Frances again give a smart turn; Dutch Daly, with his concertina, provides a rare treat; Farr and Farriand contribute an amusing comedy turn and a banjo selection; Cairns and Lynch are extremely clever step-dancers; Russell Brandow also makes a hit in the dancing line; L. W. Harris is a light comedian with a taking style; and the Bioscope shows the latest pictures

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Harry McKelvie.—The Battle of the Belles is a laughter-provoking sketch, played by Fred. Moule and E. D. Nicholl's company, Miss Summerson's Baby is another sketch, in a lighter vein, and proves quite enjoyable in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley; J. A. Wilson and his clever canine, "Private Towser," are a distinct success; Mount and Corelli give a pleasing society entertainment; while the Two Bees are heard in a duologue of considerable merit, entitled The Man in the Moon. Fun and athletics are combined in the turn of the Stebbings; and variety is lent to the programme by Herbert Cyril and Fred Dunstone, comedians.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. F. Brooke Warren's company, in The Face at the Window, is pleasing the habitués at the theatre this week. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe, as Paul Gouffet, gives a clever piece of character acting; Mr. Lionel d'Aragon scores in the dual parts of Lucio Delgado and Le Loup; Mr. Alfred Warne, as Henry de Brisson, is excellent; and Mr. Malcolm Mills does exceedingly well as Lucian Cortier; Mr. C. Alan Hineson (Peter Pottleberry) and Miss L. Leslie-Cudd (Babette) create much merriment; Miss Eugene Magnus appears to much advantage as Marie de Brisson; Miss Marie Tennant, as La Pinau, and Mr. F. C. Raphael, as Jean Barbelon, show skill and judgment in their respective parts. Capital support is contributed by Mr. Geo. Phythian, Mr. Walter Marriott, Mr. Arthur Hillier, Mr. Jas. Cox, Mr. George Lockwood, Mr. Robert Hamilton, and Mr. L. Ward.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea.—The programme here is opened by the Sisters Bronson, who contribute a neat song and dance turn; following this, Mons. and Mme. Sardou introduce their clever cabinet illusion; Dan Noble entertains with comic songs that are well received; and Mystery Gauze, a female impersonator, is responsible for a smart deception; Aerial and Astarte are remarkably clever on the horizontal bars and trapeze; and a taking performance is given by the Lynches, who are billed as American song illustrators; Miss Marie Yorke is a chic comedienne; and Mr. Allan Hanbury introduces some laughable patter and song. The star turn is Taro Myaki, the celebrated Jap wrestler and exponent of ju-jitsu. Some interesting bouts take place, and a packed house are roused to enthusiasm.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John B. Tomlinson.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in Florodora, is the attraction here this week. A crowded house welcomed the company on Monday. Mr. Gus Danby plays the part of Tweedle-punch with all his well-known humour and zest; Mr. Colin Johnstone is seen to advantage as Cyrus W. Gilfain; Mr. Howard V. Cropton is highly successful as Frank Abercoed; Mr. H. Carnelley-Joye is excellent as Captain Donegal; Leandro is faithfully portrayed by Mr. C. A. Road-Night; Miss Daisy Lake plays in a charming manner as Dolores, her songs being delightfully rendered; Miss Dorothey Dempster sings and dances in dainty style as Angela Gilfain; Miss Rosa Sullivan is a vivacious Lady Holyrood, her songs being loudly applauded. The chorus is well balanced, and the singing all round is excellent.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—Here this week are Lee and Bentley, who present their farcical comedy, Castles in the Air, with marked success; Mabelle May, a truly dainty singer and terpsichorean artist;; and Wright and Elton, who score highly in their original movement "Mirthisms"; as duettists and dancers Fraser and Haley distinctly shine; Fred Alberto is decidedly original; Rosie Stuart is an admirable vocalist; and Tate and Tate, comedy acrobats, provide considerable merriment.

NEW PUBLIC HALL AND THEATRE.—Secretary, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—On Wednesday the Lyric Amateur Dramatic Society, under the direction of Mr. J. Cheek, presented Sweet Lavender for local charities. The title-rôle was entrusted to Miss Ena Fairlamb; the character of Minnie was most artistically enacted by Miss Violet Warren; whilst as Ruth and Mrs. Gilfillan Miss Blanks and Miss C. Reader respectively did well. As Clement Hale Mr. C. S. Gould was capital; Dr. Delaney was well sustained by Mr. Randall; as was Horace Bream by Mr. Hubert Wallis; and as Dick Phenyl Mr. T. Cheek scored a great success.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is paying its annual visit with the popular play The Fatal Wedding. The piece is admirably acted, and the children's scenes is excellently managed. The Changes, heads the bill here, meeting with general acclamation. Plenty of good comedy emanates from Rezene and Robini, in The Policeman and the Baby; Josh Dixon is in good form, as usual; and Bros Durant, kings of the air-ship, score effectively. The Jansons; Belle Braham, pictorial songstress; and Mr. and Mrs. Finden, in A Desperate Remedy, are also here. Mr. Harrison's annual benefit was announced for Thursday, artists attending from the various halls on the Macnaghten circuit.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—The Belle of Mayfair is being presented this week by Messrs. A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman's company. Miss Alice Russon is well placed as Julia; Mr. Vernon Davidson, as the Hon. Raymond Finchley, sings well; and as Sir John Chaldicott Mr. Charles McNaughton scores a huge success. Mr. Percy Yorke, as the Earl of Mount Highgate, plays the brusque aristocrat admirably; in the part of Hugh Meredith Mr. Wensley Russell is diverting; Mr. Robert Whyte, jun., stands out prominently in the part of Comte de Perrier; Mr. Trueman Towers, as the Bishop, does well; Miss Barbara Huntley is all that can be desired as Lady Chaldicott; and Miss Rosa Snell is seen to advantage as the Countess of Mount Highgate.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—La Vivandiere heads the bill this week, and is admirably presented. Miss Isabel Derrv. as Cigarette, acts cleverly, and introduces two horses, both of which went through the South African War. The Amaranths, as acrobatic dancers, are remarkably clever; a musical duologue, presented by Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas, is much appreciated; Jimmie Springthorpe, the tenor collier, meets with success; Brilliant and Brilliant, as xylophonists, contribute a pleasing turn; F. W. Millis is seen in his ventriloquial turn, which is excellent; J. W. Rowley sings his songs in capital style; and Chas. Vincent is also successful. The pictures are most interesting.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding Smith.—This week we are favoured with a return visit of Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakesperean company. On the opening night She Stoops to Conquer was played before an appreciative audience. Mr. Maclaren was very fine as Marlowe, so also was Mr. Philip Gordon as Tony Lumpkin; and, as Hastings, Mr. Alfred Gray had a part which suited him well. Kate found a most charming exponent in Miss Edith Coleman; and Miss Neville was admirably portrayed by Miss Barnett. Mrs. Henry Howard deserves special mention for her impersonation of Mrs. Hardcastle. Other parts were taken by Mr. Vole (Sir Charles Marlowe), Mr. Stafford Dawson (Mr. Hardcastle), Mr. Whitford Kane (Diggory), Mr. Bryant (servant), Mr. Stevenson (second servant), Miss Ida Fitzpatrick (maid). The week's programme includes the Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, Othello, David Garrick, and Hamlet.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The principal attraction—a strong one—is Rousby's Around Paris, an electrical spectacular display, exhibited by two ladies, in which some realistic scenic effects are contained; Zanfretto and Napier, the amusing and clever musical eccentrics; Jock Walker, Scotch comedian; and the Crown Trio of harmonic vocalists, have a pleasing welcome. A clever exhibition of jumping and tumbling is submitted by the Mozondos; the impersonations by Phil Rees, the double-voiced vocalist, are good indeed; a sketch by Drew and Alders is novel and exceedingly funny; the Sisters Tinsley, duettists and dancers, come in for a liberal share of applause; as also does a new film on the bioscope.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Edward Marris's No. 1 company opened on Monday a week's visit here in The Dandy Doctor. Miss Florence Smithers was excellent as the general "slavey," and gave valuable assistance to Mr. James Salter, who as Melchisadeck Brown afforded much amusement. Mr. Walter Nugent did well as the smart young doctor, Vandyke; Mr. Herbert Pearce played the retired Colonel effectively, and sang some pleasing numbers with Miss Bell Hamilton, who appeared as Miss Lorraine; Ivy Pendred was charmingly portrayed by Miss Elfie Vincent; Mr. Leslie Martin contributed to the success of the performance as Bertie Bolingbroke; Miss Rosie Chandler exhibited some graceful dancing, and the other characters had able exponents. The chorus and orchestra were effectively directed by Mr. George Jenkinson.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's company is appearing here in The Octoroon. Pete, an old negro servant, is ably taken by Mr. J. D. Hunter. The repulsive character of Jacob M'Closky is powerfully drawn by Mr. Maule Cole, Mr. E. Beecher manfully represents Salem Scudder, and Mr. E. C. Lilly gives a fine interpretation of George Peyton. Mr. Charles Hawker makes an excellent auctioneer; a good character sketch of Sunnyside is given by Mr. Thomas Beecher; Miss Helen Anderson is natural as the unfortunate Paul; an intelligent and lady-like impersonation of Mrs. Peyton is given by Miss Eva Bayley; a brisk and vivacious representative of Dora Sunnyside is seen in Miss Blanche Bayley; Miss Blanche Stuart in the title-rôle brings all the necessary amount of feeling to bear upon the part of the poor slave girl.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—An excellent company is appearing here. An attractive vocalist is seen in Miss Gladys Williams. Besides being a brilliant pianist, Mr. Victor Courtney is a delightful patterer. A Matrimonial Agency, by Messrs. Hayman and Franklin, is very amusing; the Hippodrome Bioscope show some cleverly-arranged pictures; Miss Annie Casey is a pleasing ballad singer; The Concert Rehearsal is given by Messrs. Phern and Phern (George and Arthur); a ripple of merriment accompanies the excellent fooling of Mr. Chas. Chard; Captain Taylor introduces Lockhart's well-trained elephants.

ST. LEONARD'S PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Howard Cochran and company presented on the first three evenings of the week the high-class comedy, The Marriage of Kitty. Unfortunately after the first performance Miss Aida Jenoure, who takes the character of Kitty, was indisposed, and Miss Gladys Dare stepped into the breach, and played the part in a charming and unaffected manner. As John Travers, the solicitor, Mr. Cecil Wilford gives an admirably-drawn sketch; Mr. Howard Cochran puts plenty of healthy vigour into the character of Sir Reginald Belsize, Bart.; Miss Helen Robertson is fresh and original as Rosalie, the French maid; Miss Betty Castle shows much dramatic skill in her impersonation of Mme. de Samiano.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—Under the Russian Flag is the attraction provided at this house. There was a crowded house on Monday, and Mr. Jack Haddon has good cause to feel satisfied with the warmth of his company's reception. Miss Marie Rayner (who was unfortunately suffering from a bad cold) is deserving of hearty congratulations on her assumption of Luka Marischla; the Alexis Skopolopki of Mr. Fred Haming was distinctly clever, and abounded with little touches of humour; Mr. Jack Haddon achieved a striking success as Captain Demetrius; Mr. George Herbert, always clever, surpassed himself as General Romanoff and Colonel Sogyaroff. Miss Elaine Vanbrugh, in the rôle of Vera Vassiloff, was successful; a capital piece of character-acting was given by Mr. Charles Liddon as Wolf Marischla; the part of the hero, Ivan Romanoff, was well played by Mr. Cecil Melton; and Miss Violet Lytton gave a vivacious performance of Orgareta.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Grainger.—A crowded house on Monday witnessed Miss Annie Bell's company in Sapho. Miss Bell's interpretation of Fanny Le Grande is forcible and artistic; Mr. Otto Minister's rendering of Jean Gaussin is a very fine performance; Mr. Geo. Antley, who plays Césaire, scores heavily; Mr. P. G. Beresford, as Fanny's bibulous father, is distinctly funny; and Mr. Pringle Roberts is a fine example of a bohemian sculptor.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker; Stage-Manager, Mr. J. Dyer.—Messrs. Elliman's No. 1 company opened here on Monday in A Heart's Desire. Mr. Cecil Gray, in the rôle of Jim Denman (Beautiful Jim), displayed much histrionic ability, and was heartily applauded; Mr. A. W. Beresford-Carl was a manly Eric May, and, as Luke Forrest, Mr. Booth Conway was very good. Mr. Aubrey Denham scored as David McCullock. The humorous element was well catered for, Mr. J. R. Tyrrell, as Bertie Beresford, being ably assisted by Mr. Fred Mansfield as Coombes, and Misses Kitty B. Russell and Frankie Newcombe as Gwendoline Ross and Julia respectively. Miss Lily Barley-Clarke was capital, and an excellent Oiya was found in Miss Dora E. Eastlake.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews. — Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company is here for the first time with The White Chrysanthemum. Miss Muriel George as O San uses with skill a light, flexible voice, of pure quality; Miss Nellie Groves is smart as Miss Vanderdecken; Miss Emily Taylor has the right touch of archness as Betty Kenyon; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce sings artistically and acts with freedom as Reggie Armitage; Mr. Charles Schmiedt is a brusque and burly Admiral Armitage; Mr. H. E. Garden is cleverly languid as Lieut. "Chippy" Belmont; Mr. Richard Telford is alert as Sin, the Chinese cook; and Mr. Jamie Dallas humorous as Perks.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Turns are provided by the Lukushima Troupe of real Japanese acrobats, whose smartness and daring are highly appreciated; the Sisters Brenton, soubrettes and dancers; Massona, boy juggler; the Three Whirligigs, in a distinctly refined and attractive medley of good singing and dancing; Polo and Florence, two artistic gymnasts; the Haverleys, in their illustrated songstories; Walter Ray, comedian; Harry D'Albert, a bass singer with a fine voice effectively used; Albert Athas and Miss Lizzie Collins, in their clever sketch, The Tutor and Pupil; and a change of films on the Biograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. W. Morton. — A very favourable impression has been created by the production in this city of The Shulamite. As the cruel, fanatical old Boer, Simeon Crillett, Mr. C. Weir has a rôle which he fills with life-like fidelity; as the wife, Deborah, Miss Evelyn d'Alroy furnishes ample evidence of her histrionic powers; Mr. W. T. Lovell plays the part of Robert Waring with success; while the small rôle of the Kaffir servant is capitally represented by Miss Marcella Hudson. The Tante of Miss Mary Griffiths is a fine study; and Mr. Reginald Dennison is equally well cast. In the curtain-raiser, The Widow Woos, Mr. de Solle lends efficient aid.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wyn Miller.—A welcome revival of The Geisha has met with much approval. In Miss Louie Collier we have an ideal Mimosa San, who sings the airs allotted to her with musicianly skill; Mr. Ed. Carlton hits off the eccentricities of Wun Hi with considerable verve; Miss Florrie Saunders reaches the high-water mark of success as Molly Seymour; the Marquis Imari of Mr Lionel Braham is a distinguished performance. For Friday night A Greek Slave was announced.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Morton's, Ltd. — General Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Price of Her Soul, a play in which there are many thrilling moments, is being highly appreciated here this week. As Lord Rolf Manderville, Mr. Shinton has a rôle which suits him well; as the Countess, Miss Ada M. Ryder earns the sympathy of the house. The tragedy of the play is cleverly intermingled with comedy.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn. — The Daunton-Shaw troupe of sensational cyclists top the bill here. Johnson and Bert submit a funny sketch, entitled Queer Customers; and the Morton Trio also present a laughable turn. Dorothy L. Clarke is an attractive vocalist; and Selby and Myers, excellent vocalists and dancers, and Minnie Wren, in some catchy choruses, complete a good programme.

THE EMPIRE—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—The Seven Zerbinis, in their latest creation, The Enchanted Glen, in which music is a prominent feature, top the bill. A. P. Boswell, an old Hull favourite, is as clever as ever; Barnard Carten, Hull's topical vocalist, gets a fine reception; Edie Anderson, owing to her great success last week, stays on in new songs and dances; Salida and Vone, Creole singers, shine in their dances; and other artists include Marie Ray and Geo. Raper.

THE PALACE—Appearing here are Ginnett's Rejected Remounts, Viviana, Fielding and Hull. Daisy James, Pat Rafferty, Lyons Trio, Rosie Archer, and Keith Kent and company, in their sketch, Where's Aubrey?

THE CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr. E. Emerson —Sydney Carter's pictures are a great success here.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather—The Life of a Showman, a drama on distinctly original lines, is proving a powerful magnet here this week. Mr. George Testo Sante displays considerable histrionic ability in the rôle of Brien Leader, and his feats of strength are vociferously applauded. Mr. Edward Warden makes the Rev. Cyril Arlis a fine specimen of manhood; and Mr. F. R. Gwyn Richardson doubles to advantage the characters of Sir Noel Hartland and Stickers. The shady side of nature is graphically depicted by Mr. H Lloyd as Henrick Marais, and Miss Amy McNeil as Agatha Winter. Master Harry Warden intelligently enacts the part of Dickie Henrick Marais; and Miss May Warden deserves encomiums for her clever study as Lynette Leader. Mr. Will Lindsey touches the risible faculties of his audience by his funny performance as Ben Tic Tac; and the comedy element is also ably contributed to by Miss Grace Harlington as Angelina Mutton, and Mr. Frank Sante as Tommy Allthere. The Brothers Sante create much laughter in a comic musical sketch.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The drama presented this week is entitled Her Luck in London, and is played by Mr. Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company. The rôle of Nellie Harborne is exceptionally well sustained by Miss Neil herself, and that of the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor has a capital representative in Mr. Charles A. Leicester. Mr. Douglas Tremayne figures conspicuously as the Rev. Lionel Strong, and Miss Frances Bruce leaves little to be desired in her rendering of Lilian Harborne. Mr. Tyrone Power is seen to advantage as Stephen Harborne, and the like remark applies to Miss Ada Roscoe as Madame Gabrille. Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Jerry, and Miss Florrie Groves as Maud work well, whilst Mr. Bruce Chapman is successful as Algie. Mr. Valentine Henry appears as Richard Lenowen; his performance is a smart one.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Miss Maud Hilyard's company is here with the new play, The Great Awakening. Miss Hilyard depicts the character of Ida Selby, the unscrupulous adventuress, with intense power and passion, and makes a great impression. Mr. Bernard Copping gives much assistance as Jack Merton, the victim of Lola, and Mr. A. C. Hardie as the escaped convict does due justice to the character. Mr. Charles E. Linn as Guy Logan, and Mr. Herbert Evelyn as the Captain render assistance to the success of the piece, and Miss Doris Rigby and Miss J. Bellington deserve a word of praise for their respective personations.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The chief engagement here is that of Miss Ella, with her group of South African lions, who give a wonderful display. Other items include Carl Howard, a neat and clever conjurer; Rosie Lloyd, a pleasing comedienne; Eno, who gives some imitations of London comedians; Tom Fancourt and Jennie Rubie in a farcical sketch called Out of Barracks; the Brothers Hayes, vocalists and dancers; the Four Loubells in an act entitled Uninvited; and Geoffreys and Benson in a humorous sketch called Spoofed.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C. Rbt. Perkins.—A Soldier and a Man is being performed this week by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and company, the opening performance on Monday night being under the patronage and in the presence of a large number of the officers and men of the East Surrey Regiment. Mr. Alderson as Harold Sinclair was, as usual, admirable, and Miss Ruby Loncraine acted very gracefully as Rose Milbury. Mr. Leonard Laurence was quite a success as Hubert Walgrave, and that versatile actor Mr. A. W. Norman gave a clever impersonation of the rôle of old David Melbury. Mr. Ernest G. Batley as Jim Farrow introduced a touch of light comedy, and Miss Ethyle Murray, who took the part of Sergeant Jane, filled a rôle which suited her admirably. Mr. Charles Locke was good as Jake Harding, and Mr. T. Kirkwood excellently acted the part of Sergeant Wicks, while Miss Emily Levettez sustained with credit the character of Norah Melbury.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. Chas. Watson Mills' company is here with A Wrecker of Men. Miss Lucy Sibley presents the evil nature of Risca Mallison in a forcible manner, and Miss Cissie Podmore is successful as Doris Melville. Mr. Stanley Champion is an admirable Guise Strange, and Mr. Frederick Biron deserves hearty praise for his fine acting as Jim Murley. Miss Beatrice Reynolds is very amusing as Vavasole Slopper.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—A visit is this week being paid by Mr. F. Wybert Clive's company with the powerful drama The Conscript. Mr. E. Bellenden Clarke gives a capital rendering of the part of Karl the Conscript, while Miss Lilian Roes ably supports him in the rôle of Nadia, his wife. Messrs. Walter Steele and Chas. E. Johnson are respectively good as Ivan Mauloff and Count Paul Hordiski. Mr. William Head, nicknamed "Dangerous," is excellent in his part. The play is well mounted.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company has presened Dare-Devil Dorothy here this week. Miss Ida Kessanly is responsible for the title rôle; Miss Marie Vere gives a good rendering of Ruth Montrose; and Miss Nellie Harcourt makes a sprightly Judith. The dancing of Miss Mabel Blake, as Polly, and Miss Lillie Blake, as Rosy Ann, is clever and highly appreciated. The humour of the piece is sustained throughout by Mr. Will Brereton, as Silas Crump; Mr. Henry C. Ward proves an acceptable and manly hero as Captain Edward Dudley; and Mr. Walter Ashley is a sufficiently sinister villain.

KIRKCALDY. — KING'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—On Monday, the Midland Syndicate presented the musical comedy-drama Life. The cast includes Mr. Herbert Barrs and Miss Dorothy Oswald in the leading rôles of Jack Lockhart and Beatrice Ferras, and to them first honours fall; a large amount of the work is entrusted to Mr. E. Chatham as Zac Krabbe, and well he does it; Mr. Ronald Grahame is fairly successful as the villainous Sir Horace Lester; and as Detective Blake Mr. H. Ashie is worthy of special mention; Mr. Arthur Wilson is conspicuous as the pawnbroker, and Mr. Willis Collins is seen to advantage as Peter Thorpe; Mr. A. B. Lyons, as Joe Pippit, and Mr. Alf. Selwood, as the constable, are responsible for much laughter; Miss Maudie Vincent gives a clever rendering of Jess, the street waif, and her singing is much admired; Misses Edna Hana and Ethel Bateman are capable of all that is required of them as Ruth Thorpe and Agnes Mostyn. After the Ball is the attraction for the latter three nights of the week.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Mr. Monillot's company is appearing here this week, the programme consisting of three performances of The Geisha and three of A Greek Slave. Miss Lydia Bland takes the leading part in the popular Japanese opera, and renders the numbers allotted to O Mimosa San with delightful effect; the Molly Seamore is Miss Edith Adeson, who is in all respects admirably suited; and as Juliette the efforts of Miss Doris Langdon are also very successful. Mr. Wilfred Heath is a promising baritone, and makes an excellent appearance as Reginald Fairfax; the other officers being ably represented by Messrs. Edward Pollard, Ryton Hoare, T. Squire, and Miss Emily Loval as the Midshipman. Mr. Edward Kipling is Wun-Hi, and plays the part for all it is worth; and another capital performance is the Marquis of Mr. J. H. Booth. Mr. Albert B. Hunter, as Captain Katana, has a pleasing voice; and Miss Winifred Knightly makes an imposing Lady Constance. The other parts are ably filled, and the chorus, under the direction of Mr. Chevalier Legrand, is well balanced.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Another capital programme is arranged here, and crowded houses nightly assemble to support the management. The star turn is undoubtedly Gustave Fasola, a wonder-worker who baffles his audience from start to finish. Jimson's novelty sketch, Burglar's Surprise, is a capital turn, and is assisted materially by the dog Rover. The Fimans give an amusing scena, In the Fire Station, and the Gondoliers quartette sing nicely. Mulvey and Miriam, in a comedy act, In the Studio; Danby Wiske, magician; Miss May Fallowfield, vocalist; Leslie and Player, duettists; and Walter Payne's animated pictures all add to the enjoyment of the entertainment.

PALACE. — Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—Miss May Lilian Levey is at the head of the bill here, and her song, "The Lady Member," has nightly been encored. The Three Panamas supply a clever acrobatic performance; Tom Kelso and company in a sketch, The Silly Servant, is well received; and Harry Gold is staying another week; Sisters Terry, duettists; the Schallers, comedy artists; Jones and Wallace, comedians; and the Edison-Swan animated pictures complete a varied programme.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Mr. Turner and his opera company occupied the local boards the first three nights of this week, and were well received by large and enthusiastic audiences. On the opening night the company gave an excellent interpretation of J. Balfe's Satanella. Mr. Turner appeared with great success as Count Rupert, and sang like the fine artist he is. As Satanella Miss Kitty Brownless was remarkably good, and sang with great expression and wonderful dramatic power. Miss Christine Gomez sustained the part of Lelia, and displayed the pure quality of her beautiful young voice in a truly artistic manner. Mr. Sidney Clifford as Arimanes was also heard to great advantage in his renditions. Others who contributed in no small degree to the success of the piece included Mr. George Ridding, Mr. Richard Cummings, Mr. P. Newton, Miss Jessie Dennis, Mr. Sydney Appleby, and Miss Maud Esdale. There was a strong chorus, with an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. T. Lawton. On Tuesday night the company gave The Bohemian Girl, and on Wednesday Maritana.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The comedy, with music, Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), is at the Grand this week, and it is chiefly welcome in that it brings that clever comedian, Mr. G P. Huntley, on one of his rare visits to the provinces. Mr. Huntley is vastly entertaining in the rôle of the unsophisticated Mr. Popple, his refreshing humour keeping the house in a continual ripple of laughter. Miss Millie Legarde is delightfully piquant as the actress La Bolero; an attractive and vivacious performance is that of Miss Eva Kelly as Violet Brinton; and Miss Nellie Hodson is no less pleasing as Bolero's maid. Mr. Arthur Grover, as Jack Kenyon, sings love ballads in good style; the lady-killer, Norman Popple, has a handsome and dashing representative in Mr. Harry Watchman; Platt, the groom from Ippleton, is a clever performance by Mr. C. M Daly; and the two elderly and faithless husbands are in the able hands of Mr. Sydney Young and Mr. James Stephenson. Miss Kate Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt also distinguish themselves in leading parts.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A story of powerful dramatic interest, The Shadow of a Crime, is well to the liking of the Royal habitués, and full houses are the rule. Mr. Stephen Crossley acts in manly and convincing style the part of Harry Bullington; Miss Ina Grant, in the leading rôle of heroine, plays with considerable distinction; whilst Miss Dorothy Riddles's rendering of the part of Dora Bullington is a sympathetic effort. The wrong-doer, Ralph Esmond, is a capable presentation by Mr. Robert Forder; and Mr. A. W. Avery is responsible for a welcome leaven of humour in the rôle of Tom Brown.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Mr. Fred Granville is presenting here a piece under the title of For Better or Worse, and it is proving a striking success. Three leading military characters are acted in convincing style by Mr. Scott Leighton, Mr. G. Edwin Clive, and Mr. Owen Redmonde; and Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh displays rare dramatic ability in the rôle of Ned Earnshaw. The interesting part of Olive Heathcote has a charming exponent in Miss Ruth Nightingale; Miss Chrissie Dunbar and Miss Nellie De Lacy win much praise in the presentation of two actress characters; whilst in comedy parts Mr. Willie Black and Miss Jennie Hallworth have much to do with the success achieved. The Sages are in the cast with a pleasing specialty.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton.—A condensed version of the well-known dramatic episode, Rogues of the Turf, is effectively presented by John F. Preston's company. The Kremos fill the bottom of the bill with a wonderful acrobatic exhibition; Pat Carey and the Obo Brothers are well to the fore with acceptable comedy turns; Harry Carsdale mimics the calls of birds and animals true to nature; that clever little lady, May Henderson, scores her usual success in new items; The Maples sing and dance in good style; and a wonderful exhibition of trained birds is engineered by Rose Naynon. The pictures complete.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barraford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—The engagement of Miss Ada Reeve is filling the house to overflowing at every performance, and the talented lady has had a flattering reception. A good company supports, Alice Raymond, the cornettist, being especially popular; whilst the Beau-Ideal Juveniles, presented by Claude Feldman, prove a clever lot, and come in for lavish praise; the Paragon Trio of vocalists are entertaining; the Three Sisters Thurban are also doing well in a similar line; Lily Sharplin, the mimic, is here again, pleasing numerous admirers; and Johnson and De Vere are doing a novel cycling act. A pair of sparkling comediennes, Billie Burford and Flo Cecil, are in the bill; and Mr. Arthur Stacey, eccentric comedian, also makes a successful appearance.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Some excellent fun is seen in the comedy episode, Casey's Court, presented here this week. The Three Brothers Huxter score heavily with an eccentric specialty; the comedy element is well looked after by Barrett and Knowles, eccentric patter comedians; Will Driscoll and Fred Lincoln, and that clever pair of burlesque artists, Fields and Lewis. There is a novel ventriloquial turn by Oakdene, and vocal contributions by Georgina Leonard are a pleasing feature.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—The patrons of this theatre are being afforded the opportunity of witnessing for the first time locally an excellent performance of The Little Michus by Mr. George Dance's clever combination. Both Miss Alice Coverick as Marie Blanche and Miss Ethel Bryan as Blanche Marie give delightful portrayals; Mr. Foster Courtenay is clever as General Des Ifs, and creates great amusement; Mr. William Everard shines as Gaston Rigaud; Miss Florence Hylton is admirable as Madame Michu; Mr. Gilbert Childs is capital as Bagnolet; and Mr. Leon Simkin is all that can be desired as Pierre Michu; Mr. Robert C. Harcourt is a success as Aristide Vert; Miss Bessie Mackenzie is good as Mlle. Herpin; and the dancing of Mlle. Marjorie as Mlle. St. Cyr is a feature. The pretty dresses, well-balanced chorus, and augmented orchestra, under Mr. Otto Manns, are also adjuncts which call for commendation.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A splendid reception and a big house here on Monday evening awaited Mr. Bert Coote's company, on a welcome return visit, in The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Wilson Howard is good as Howard Wilson, and both Mr. Guy Hastings as Robert Curtis and Miss Leah Marlborough as Cora Williams shine with portrayals of much merit; Miss Katherine Clarke plays well as Mabel Wilson; Mr. Edward Morgan as Toto, Mr. Walter Westwood as Peter Schwartz, and Miss Blanche Stanley as Bridget provide plenty of fun. To Miss Madge McCalla, in the child-part of Jessie, "the Little Mother," we have nothing but praise to bestow, the success she achieved being thoroughly deserved, on this, her first, visit to Leicester. Special mention of the well-known children's scene in the play must not be forgotten, as it introduces in all about thirty well-trained juveniles, included in which are Miss Winnie Crisp, a remarkably clever toe dancer; Miss Dolly McCalla, a smart dancer and vocalist; Master Walter Aubrey, a popular Lancashire clog dancer; Miss Ivy Westaby, an excellent vocalist; and Miss Madge McCalla, who makes a big hit by her versatility. The children's chorus is also deserving of much praise.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The premier position is held here this week by Donaldson Bros. and Ardell and company, in their cleverly-worked and laughable pantomime, A Zoological Comedy. The Leslie Bros. create much amusement, and their musical abilities are also fully recognised; Professor Selkirk is presenting the juvenile spectacle, In Bonnie Scotland, which is exceedingly well dressed and performed; Albert Christian sings his two songs in his usual excellent style; the Sisters Cassell are expert dancers and dainty vocalists; Chas. Whittle is a quaint comedian, who creates much laughter; Kate Cohen uses her fine voice with the best results; Preston and Balmaine, song illustrators, are popular; and Nora Emerald is a capital comedienne and dancer. The American Bioscope is always popular at this hall.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—The great attraction here this week are the Marconis, in their electrical act and wireless telegraphy demonstrations; Musical Silvo delights all with his clever turn; Flo Chevalier, burlesque artist, repeats her usual success; Will Johnson is an entertaining and funny comedian; Frances Haskoll, in illustrated songs, remains another week; Walter H. Paflister's Bioscope is again proving a big hit; Daisy Martell is a capital comedienne and dancer; and the Les Maxim Girls are duettists and expert dancers.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. G. Stanyon.—Mr. Will Catlin and his versatile and clever troupe of Royal Pierrots opened a month's season here on Monday, and a thoroughly refined and enjoyable programme, replete with the latest songs, duets, dances, and trios was submitted. The advent of Mr. Will Catlin's well-known troupe (who, it will be remembered, gained the highest praise in their trial show in London, and were booked for the Moss and Stoll tour) is always a feature of the winter season at Leicester, where most of them reside. It is invidious to single out any artist where all are good alike, but mention must be made of Messrs. Geo. Houghton, Ernie Preston, Will Ambro, K. Scott-Barrie, Tom Catlin, Sid Frere, Will Catlin, and Wilmot Fowler.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—A variety programme is the attraction here this week. The bill is topped by Mr. John Higgins, who claims to be the champion jumper of the world; Messrs. Earle and Melville introduce some merry patter and smart dancing, Messrs. Lorne and Rene, in a Lancashire singing sketch, Capital and Labour, find great favour; a laughable turn is provided by Messrs. Pearce and Ward, comedy artists and boxers; Messrs. Hanvarr and Leo make a great hit with their speciality act, The Golfer and the Maid; Will Pain and company also score in their novelty act, The Motor Maniac. Other good turns are provided by Messrs. Fred Tenby and J. C. Scatter, comedians. The Bioscope pictures are excellent.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—This place of amusement is occupied this week by Mr. Morritt and variety company. The programme includes Miss Sylvia Bond, vocalist; Miss Lillian Victoria, the Eton boy; Mr. Bob White, comedian; Mr. Will Souls, laughing comedian; Mr. Morritt, who gives a good display of sleight of hand tricks; and Little Hackenschmidt, boy wrestler.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Interesting musical and dramatic fare has been provided this week for frequenters of the above theatre. In Mr. Joseph Le Brandt's plausible play, On the Stroke of Twelve, some realistic and thrilling situations are ably handled by Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle and Mr. Fred Guinness as Jack Rutledge and his chum George Bainbridge; by Mr. Fred Ferne as Jack's father; as well as by Mr. H. Creagh Hunt and Miss Madge Laverton in the rôles of a pair of schemers. Jess Bainbridge and Doris Rutledge find pleasing representatives in the Misses Nellie and Beatrice Moore; while the comedy element is amusingly developed by Mr. Syd. T. Russell, Mr. Fred J. Little, and Mr. Will Bass in congenial character parts. Mr. J. B. Murray is strong in his impersonation of Van Dyke; and minor rôles are all well filled. Specialities in songs, dances, and other variety turns are acceptably introduced by Miss Nellie Moore, Messrs. Bass and Guinness, Mr. Syd. T. Russell, and Mr. Fred J. Little. Mr. Fred Darcy's romantic drama, The New World, was staged on the latter evenings of the week.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A return visit of Veronique to this theatre has afforded every pleasure. Mr. George Dance's principal company presented it in grand style, and public patronage has been good. In the title-rôle Miss Ruth Lincoln scored a distinct success, her charming vocalism and vivacity earning for her loud plaudits; a particularly amusing Coquenard is submitted by Mr. Leslie Holland; as Madame Coquenard Miss Ethel Negretti displays high talents; Mr. Ronald Bottomley handles the part of Florestan with care and wins favour by his fine singing; Miss Lena Maitland displays marked ability in the character of Emerance, and sings tastefully; a humorous bailiff comes from Mr. Fred Lyne; and Mr. Courtenay Comber with his Seraphin contributes much to the fun of the evening. The remainder of the cast lend great support.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mr. C. P. Levilly's original London company is here this week with a charmingly presented production of La Poupée, which has proved as acceptable as ever. Miss Stella Gastelle repeats her talented portrait of the dollmaker's daughter, singing her numbers with that sweetness and effect which have earned for her high credit. As Hilarius Mr. W. H. Powell is, if anything, funnier than ever, and during the time he occupies the stage his auditors are kept in constant laughter; Mr. Aubrey Carr acts and sings with much judgment as Launcelot; a dignified Father Maxime is presented by Mr. Frederick Hobbs, whose fine vocalism brings forth several demands for encores; Mr. Fred Seymour as Loremois and QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The Manxman is here this week, with Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company. As Pete, a rôle played by him over 1500 times, Mr. Cross is as effective as ever; Miss Minnie Watersford proves a sweet Kate Cregeen; Miss Kitty Livesey gives every satisfaction as Bella Kelly; Mr. Sydney C. Kearns certainly distinguishes himself as Philip Christian; Mr. James Dillon plays carefully as Cæsar Cregeen; Mr. Dudley Stuart acquits himself well as Ross Christian; and good assistance comes from Mr. Tom Bowron and Miss Dorothy Duncan. The drama is staged in a complete manner.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here this week is Charles Prelle, whose dog act has been watched with keen interest; for her capitally rendered popular songs Lottie Lennox is cordially received; Sammy Shields causes endless laughter with his quaint Scotch stories; the Brothers Curran present an amusing boxing act, Taking the Census; Harry Champion, a smart comedian, affords every pleasure; some remarkable conjuring is performed by Satsuma; Daisy Jerome proves herself a dainty and talented comedienne; the singing of Daisy Morell meet with acceptance; clever juggling on the balancing ladder is executed by Great Scott; Harry Rogerson, as the tired comedian, provokes great laughter; and Rowland Hill, comedian, also appears.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—George Reeves is here this week with his old and new favourite songs, which have given much delight; Denby and Dent, a lively pair of comedians, pay a welcome return visit; several well-received songs have come from Francis Drew; the Byrnes (Jack and Marie) are loudly applauded for their songs and dances; and others in the list are Harry Stuart, vocalist and dancer, and Marie Leslie, burlesque actress. The Royal Bioscope shows some good pictures.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —The Ticket-of-Leave Man has proved a strong attraction here this week, being produced by the "Royal" stock company. Mr. Percy Boucher gives a capital rendering of Melter Moss; Mr. Harry Tresham plays with power the part of Brierley; Mr. Sydney Grant does every justice to James Dalton; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood handles the rôle of Mr. Gibson with care; as Maltby Mr. Robert Wilton ably acquits himself; May Edwards is sympathetically presented by Miss Florence Palmer; Miss Beryl Ravenswood is an excellent Mrs. Willoughby and Miss Sybil Hammersley a satisfactory Sam Willoughby. Pictures are also shown on the Bioscope.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery. —Here this week the "Royal" Stock Company is presenting When Rogues Fall Out. Mr. Vincent A. Briscoe affords much satisfaction as Sir Henry Lorrimer; Mr. Albert Sember makes a fine Jack Lorrimer; Mr. Frank S. Strickland capably depicts Stephen Ralston; Mr. Walter Foster is well placed as Jack Burton; a deal of humour comes from Mr. H. G. Brandon, as Billy Faggles; Miss Lilian Burns plays with effect the rôle of Madge; and Miss Lina Nazeby is powerful as Hettie Stanton. The Royal Bioscope shows interesting pictures.

PARK PALACE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Harry Edson, with his performing dogs, is in big type here this week; another principal turn is that given by the Mayvilles (Harry and Elsie); the liliputian novelty artists, the Bohemian Boys, are a smart couple of coloured vocalists and dancers; some clever trick-jumping is shown by Sauteron; Macintosh and Royal are a talented pair of clog dancers; Patty Bella has a number of taking songs; and the Elgars go through a high-class vocal entertainment.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—An attractive bill is offered here this week, Frank Lynne, an able comedian, being at the head. Clifton and Gibson have caused roars of laughter with their knockabout business; some pleasing illustrated songs are provided by Fox and Melville; Burton and Trent, musical eccentrics and dancers, are highly approved; several sweet contralto songs come from Olga Fame; and others in the programme are Stephen Blythe, actor vocalist, and Myles and May, the merry huntsmen.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd. — The announcement of "Free list suspended" is made here this week owing to the important engagement of La Milo, who has certainly proved an immense draw. Harry Trevanion and company have presented a powerful dramatic sketch, A Bolt from the Blue; the Welsh Wanderers, a troupe of genuine Penillion singers, made their initial appearance on the variety stage, and had a pretty scene of a Welsh village. The work of the quartet—Madame Williams-Penn (soprano), Madame Blodwen Jones (contralto), Mr. John Devonald (baritone), and Mr. A. Gibbs (harpist) —was much appreciated. Victor Newman met with a flattering reception for his fine character impersonations; an acceptable turn came from the Three Sisters Sprightly; Mlle. Larivet had some pleasing songs; the eccentric dancing of Will Vokes was loudly applauded; the picture songs by Lilian Warren were received with favour; and Frances Letty, an American comedienne and dancer, was not the least attractive feature of the capital programme.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Great crowds have flocked to this handsome building this week to witness the first production here of the aquatic spectacle The Flood. Mr. Tom McInerney, the well-known champion wrestler of England, a local athlete who appears as Harry Darvill, lends added interest to the event, and he is supported by T. E. Conover, Fred Neiman, Cecil Compton, and Mary Stafford Smith. The production caused great astonishment. Another big item is A Trip to Coontown, a negro sketch by the principal members of the In Dahomey company. Phillips and Terry do well as comedy sketch artists; a high-class vaudeville entertainment is submitted by Rita and Roma; Woodhouse and Wells distinguish themselves as comedians and dancers; a comic picture song comes from James Heron; and also in the list are Beatrice Rénée, dialect comedienne, and Lilian Lowe, vocalist. The American Bioscope had some fine pictures.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Frank Cass, a popular local comedian, is foremost here this week with some of his excellent songs; Stephens and Rennior are extremely funny, and also expert dancers; Cavern and Cave cause much laughter with their absurdity An Early Morning Dip; some pleasing illustrated ballads are provided by Georghegan and Downs; Frank Coyle is a comedian of much merit; and U. G. Ugo, the man of mystery, is likewise in the list.

LLANELLY. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting Manageress, Miss Alice Rochefort.—A Miserable Marriage is given here this week by Mr. John H. Negus's company. Mr. Tom Ronald appears with great success as Arthur Cameron; Mr. W. Robert Barbour is very good as Aaron Houseman; and Mr. Fred Carrol in the part of Midgers deserves great praise. Miss Patty Delahay as Agnes, Miss Mabel Rose as Lizzie Bowman, and Miss Florence Venimore as Lady Cameron supply excellent assumptions.

NEW EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. W. A. Totten.—Amongst the good turns here this week are Miss Katie Le Blanch, a clever serio and dancer; Miss Eva Frere, a charming character vocalist; and the very taking Miss La Belle Sylvia. Mr. J. K. Reynolds produces the sensational sketch, Conscience, with great effect.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—The re-opening of this theatre on Monday night was a wide event of interest, the house being crowded. Mr. Eade Montefiore's company, in The Streets of London, had a flattering reception. Mr. William Rokeby as Badger is conspicuous for his eccentricity; Mr. Jerrold Manville is amusing as Jonas Puffy; Mr. Riddell Robinson is the banker; Mr. Reginald Palgrave figures as Mark Livingstone; Miss Winifred Ingham and Miss Dorothy Cacey also do well.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards. — Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, with a repertoire of plays, is this week paying a visit here. Mary Queen of Scots, Sapho, and East Lynne are the selected plays. As Mary Queen of Scots, Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer acts with great success, and is well received. Other characters are in capable hands. The staging and dressing are excellent.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we have the first visit locally of Mr. Andrew Melville's company in the drama Driven from Home. The dressing and scenery and general effects are noteworthy, and considerable sensation is created by the saw-mill machinery in full working order. Mr. Felix Pitt is particularly good as Anthony Raybrook and Mr. Percy Dawson as Willie, the outcast, is equally successful. Miss Florence Creagh submits a well-thought study as Laura Raybrook, and the remaining parts in the lengthy cast are sustained with credit.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. F. Mouillot's A Message from Mars is here this week. Horace Parker is successfully portrayed by Mr. H. J. Bentley, while no better Messenger than Mr. W. H. Brougham could be found. Miss Ellis as Minnie Templer is excellent, and Miss Flora Hastings portrays the Aunt in a natural manner.

MACCLESFIELD. — THE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley. The attraction here this week is Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Drama of Life. Mr. E. M. Hamilton as Harry Beech shows great dramatic ability; Mr. J. J. Hooker deserves great praise for his conception of Walter Beech; Mr. H. Roberts gives an excellent representation of Dobson Wilde; Mr. G. Child acquits himself admirably as Richard Brenton; Mr. H. M. Payne makes an excellent Jack Lawton; and Mr. S. Fiennes scores as David Crane. Miss Kate Hallam gains the sympathy of the house in the rôle of Sylvia Beech; Miss Florence French is seen to advantage as Lady Jane Wilde; and Miss Nellie Birchenough is a capital exponent of Betty Black. Miss Marie Pardy as Master Robert Buck is very good indeed.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Baskerville.—An excellent programme is submitted this week. Boyd and Gilfain present a clever burlesque operatic scena; Bert Woodward is a clever cyclist; Will Godwin, a very popular artist in Maidstone, is well received; Onda and Leon are clever and novel comedy bar performers; Miss Dolly Harmer, with her "Suffragette" song, soon gets on good terms with her audience; Pueblo and Cropp are smart sand-dancers and duettists; Levetto is a dancer of merit; and Miss Lorna Doone, in her scena, Santa Claus, dances daintily. The Biograph brings a thoroughly enjoyable evening to a close.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—Mr. Tree's company in Oliver Twist pay a return visit here this week. The company is not materially changed; at the head is Mr. William Mackintosh, whose impersonation of Fagin—the central part—is marked by considerable dramatic power, and a certain cold subtlety that is at times distinctly impressive. An excellent performance also is that of Miss Marie Polini as Nancy; and much credit is due to Mr. Cecil A. Collins for a properly horrible delineation of Bill Sikes. Proportionately good work is added by Mr. E. C. Buffum as Mr. Brownlow, Mr. C. H. Croker-King as Monks, Mr. Harvey Braban as Harry Maylie, and Mr. T. P. Haynes as Mr. Grimwig; while among the ladies Miss Maudie Ray gives a new depiction of Oliver, Miss Elsie Carew acts neatly as Mrs. Maylie, and Miss Savile is satisfactory as Rose.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—See special notice.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in My Sweetheart, with Miss Minnie Palmer in her original rôle of Tina, attracted an appreciative audience here on Monday. Miss Palmer, of course, did very well; but the honours were quite worthily shared by Mr. Robert H. Howard, who sang exceedingly well as Tony, and was frequently recalled. Others who contributed notably to the success were Miss Iris Lincoln as Mrs. Fleeter, and Mr. J. T. MacCallum as Dudley Harcourt, the dude; while all the remaining parts were capably filled.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Sin of Her Childhood are here this week from the Grand Junction Theatre.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Here this week we have Peter Gotz, a light-weight wrestler, who is challenging all comers up to 10st 6lb. Ada Fawn, the popular comedienne, is also very well received; and other good turns are provided by the Spanish Goldinis, acrobatic and dance artists; the Sisters Bartholomew, duettists and dancers; King and Delane, comedy duo; Monty Walker, a clever Yorkshire comedian; Vaughan and Grey, in a smart duologue; Mephisto and Marie, in a refined drawing-room act; Vera Mayne, an accomplished Canadian comedienne; and the Bioscope pictures.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan.—Mr. John Gerant and company present here this week the interesting and popular military drama, At Duty's Call, in which Mr. Gerant repeats for nearly the 2,000th time his powerful depiction of the sinister Anglo-Egyptian, Harold Alison, and is supported in the heroic rôles by Mr. Harry Scott and Miss Lily Crammonde. Mr. Ernest St. John's impersonation of General Gordon is also noteworthy; and the action is enlivened by the humorous efforts of Mr. Harry Ugar as Terry, Mr. Walter P. Carr as Jack Spencer, and Miss Eva Belle as Mary, the lady's maid. The staging is very good.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —Messrs. Knight and Denham's company are here again in their popular attraction, The Grip of Iron, in which Mr. Fred Powell plays Simmonet with his accustomed power and success. Prominent also in the long cast are Mr. Wallace Curnock as Paul Blanchard; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner as the adventurer, De Ribas; Mr. George Denham in a clever depiction of Loustalot; Mr. Charles Mackay as Captain Guerin; Miss Rosabel Dodd as Cora; and Miss Violet Ingram as Marie. The staging and effects are adequate, and the play seems to have lost none of its drawing power.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. Walter Melville's successful drama, The Female Swindler, is presented here this week by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's able company. Miss Grace E. Leslie gives a strong rendering of Lu Valroy, the title-rôle; and an equally popular performance is that of Mr. Joseph Millane as Coulson, the criminal investigator. In a variety of parts Mr. Henry Wright has ample opportunities to demonstrate his comic abilities; and in this line his efforts are supplemented by Miss Mary Dawson as Mary Ann Mee. Mr. Wilford Cheetham as Geoffrey Warden makes a forcible villain; and in the third act Miss Florrie Kelsey as May Andrews shows marked ability. The play is capitally staged, and entirely interesting.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Fred Karno's popular success, Moses and Son, in which Fred Kitchen is seen in his inimitable creation of Perkins, tops the bill here this week. Incessant laughter accompanies the action, and the entire company are commendable throughout. A pleasing and excellent exhibition of juvenile singing and dancing is given by John Tiller's "Manchester Mites"; the Four Indian Fakirs present a wonderful mystic performance; Ray Maskell dances well; Fisher's Operatic Burlesque Trio are entertaining; Lilian Lea, vocalist, gives a couple of popular numbers with good effect; and Jack Charman proves an acceptable character vocalist. The Bioscope adds to the entertainment.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Alice Pierce, a very talented actress, is here this week in her wonderfully clever impersonations, and gains much deserved applause. Another star turn is George Gilbey, the well-known comedian, who makes a big hit with funny songs and patter. Irma Lorraine, a charming Spanish artist, is also to the front in a series of beautiful and artistic poses; Gertie Gitana sings and dances nicely; and the Cattaness Troupe are clever acrobats of the eccentric order. Smart items are also those of Dandy George and his wonderful dog Rosie; Kathleen Grey, comedienne; Charles Cardow, light comedian; Collinson's burlesque company, in a laughable sketch, entitled The Cook's Guest; and the Palace Pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The most prominent turns here this week are offered by Fred Storey, assisted principally by Lilian Holmes, in an act from The Merchant of Venice, very well played; and George Leyton, who is repeating his success in the well-known scena, The Boys of the Chelsea School. Popular also are R. H. Douglass, a clever monologue artist; the Molasso Quartet of cyclonic dancers; Silent Tait, the eccentric wizard; Madge Morley and company in a smart sketch, entitled After the Races; Katie Butler, a genuine comedienne; the Three Dumonds, accomplished itinerant musicians; and two items by the choir. To these is added a pleasing subject on the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Turpin Gone Mad is a protean "nightmare" presented here this week by that capital comedian, Hal Forde. Charming Nina Martino sings two pleasing songs in a most delightful manner, and is warmly received; and Charles Santon, male soprano and double-voiced vocalist, meets with a big reception; Ernest Sewell, the modern wizard, is good at coin and card manipulation; Fuller, the human marionette, is very entertaining; Joe Archer, comedian, has some smart patter; Edith and Tony Felix, the comical clowns, present a somewhat original turn; Edna Cragge, burlesque artist, contributes two taking songs; Ellis and Watts, swell comedians, are very good dancers; and Kloof and Ramsay are vastly amusing musical novelty burlesquers. As usual, the animated pictures are good.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Three Boccaccios (including the famous Signor Francia, mandolinist) top the bill here this week in a delightful vocal and instrumental act, and are well received. Wyndham and Waters are successful in their laughable drawing-room sketch, The Professor and His Pupil; Marie Jones, assisted by Ernest Munro, is seen to advantage in her quick-change duologue, entitled The Way to Win a Bet; the Edwards Trio are wonderful equilibrists and jugglers; and clever and amusing are the Falcons in an acrobatic hand-to-hand balancing performance. Other capital turns are contributed by Jack Truman, tenor vocalist; Hardie Parm, a quaint comedian; Howard and Townsend, in vocal duets; and Sylvia Martin, lady horse trainer. "The Millionaire Man" is depicted on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. —An attractive programme here this week includes Edward Garth with his dry humour in a laughable creation entitled Matrimonial Bliss. Prominent also is Billy, the famous talking horse, introduced by James De Voye. The Juggling Geraldos do some wonderfully neat manipulations of hoops and clubs; and Fred Carr and Ada Rose give a humorous singing sketch in good style. Harry Morris is a first-rate mimic; Street and Round are smart acrobats; Haig and Novel, comedy artists, are good; and Oliver Conroy, comedian, is amusing Mabel La Blanche, a charming and sweet singer, contributes an extra turn; and the Bioscope pictures are followed with interest. Little Tina, juvenile vocalist, did not appear.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager, Mr. W. B Broadhead; Acting Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Vonetta is the top star here this week, and her illusions and quick-change business are alike excellent. Harry Grey is a first-rate comedian, and makes a hit; George Edney, descriptive vocalist, is very good; Smith and Johnson, society coloured duo, as usual are well received; and the Kimberley Boys are smart comedians. Enjoyable items are also those of Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire singing collier; T. E. Johnstone, actor-vocalist; Little Tichborne, in songs and dances; Olive Armidale, comedienne; and the Monckton, in an original musical comedy act. "Coming Home with the Milk" is an amusing film shown on the Bioscope.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield Theatre Company; General-Manager, Capt. Cecil Clayton.—Mr. Hoggan-Armadale and company were here the first three nights of this week. On Monday night The Bells was played. In the part of Matthias, Mr. Hoggan-Armadale had a good reception, and proved himself an excellent exponent of the rôle; Mr. F. Wilberforce gave a finished rendering of the part of Christian; Mr. Arthur Rose gave a good interpretation of the dual parts of the Judge and the Polish Jew; Father Hermann was in the capable hands of Mr. David Beattie; and Mr. Cotton Holmes was good as Mons. Bussey. Amusing parts were those of Mr. T. G. Westland (Fritz) and Mr. T. E. Liddle (Kaspar). As Mme. Mathias, Miss Violet Macree proved herself a capable artist; Miss Elaine Grant did well as Lucille; and Annette was ably played by Miss Nancy Roberts. On Tuesday night The Lady of Lyons was presented, and on Wednesday David Garrick, with Mr. Hoggan-Armadale in the title-rôle.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings.—Mr. Nat Travers, who tops the bill here, scores successes with all his items; the turn of Clark and Gold, banjo experts, is very interesting; the Two Jays cause a great amount of amusement by their quaint cross-talk; Little Ivy gives a good turn as a sand-dancer; and May Pritchard is also well received. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope is still here, and gives a capital series of up-to-date pictures.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. E. Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—S. Creagh Henry's original version of The Sorrows of Satan was presented here on Monday by Mr. A. Austin-Leigh and the stock company, who played the piece capitally. Miss Ethel L. Caryllon sustained the rôle of Lady Sybil Elton forcefully; and the part of Anna Chesney was admirably enacted by Miss Helena Millais. Miss Emmie O'Reilly was an effective Countess of Elton; Miss Marie Scharning a good Mavis Clare; Mr. A. Austin-Leigh a meritorious Prince Lucio; and Mr. Harold West made a capital Geoffrey Tempest.

HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Bert Lytton, the swell comique, opens the list of turns here, and is followed by Penley and English, in the musical comedy duologue, In Ould Kildare. Kisbey, as the "call boy," is an excellent mimic; and Adey Spencer proves most entertaining. Jack Pleasants is a particularly droll comedian; and the concluding item is J. G. Grahame and Zerlina Harrington's dramatic episode, A Daughter of Pleasure, which is well enacted. Biograph pictures provide some amusement and plenty of sensationalism.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is this week presenting here The Little Breadwinner. Mr. Eugene Santley gives a fine emotional rendering of Lord Dorrington; Mr. Matthew Boulton submits a manly interpretation of Richard Lawrence; a past-master in the art of villainy, Joseph Price, has a clever exponent in Mr. A. Maurice; Mr. Stanley Leedham is well placed as Charles Prior; little Emmie Thomas gives an intelligent and winning delineation of the title-rôle; Miss Mary Mallalieu imparts sympathy to the character of Margaret Daventry; Miss Jenny Bostock works well as Bridget O'Flanaghan; while Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam and Miss Kittie Melville are successful in the respective rôles of Kate and Ruth Cherry.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—The Lion and the Mouse was produced for the first time in Middlesbrough on Monday by Mr. Walter Maxwell's principal company. Mr. Leslie Carter as John Ryder, the lion, gives a fine performance; Miss Christine Silver as Shirley Rossmore is powerful and effective; Mr. George Lyttleton proves a most able James Rossmore; and Mr. Stephen Wentworth is exceedingly good as Jefferson Ryder. Miss Maude Townsend is a charming Mrs. Rossmore; and Mr. John Wheatman acts with distinction as Whitmore Roberts; and Mr. J. W. Mackie is amusing as Fitzroy Bagley. Mr. Arthur Murray as Jorkins, and Miss Ethel Gordon as Mary also impersonate their parts exceedingly well.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. J. M. Barrie's latest play, Alice Sit-by-the-Fire, is being produced with distinguished success here this week. Mrs. Russ Whytal's portrayal of the title-character, created by Miss Ellen Terry, is excellent; Mr. J. Bartlett makes an excellent Colonel Grey; as Cosmo Grey Mr. A. W. Bascomb shows skilful acting; Miss Beatrice Bramah figures with great effect in the rôle of Amy Grey; and Miss Lilian Locke is exceedingly good as Richardson. A clever representative is found in Miss Ninon Dudley for the part of Fanny; and Miss Ada Marius does full justice to the part of the nurse. Miss Lucie Verrier is exceedingly vivacious as Leonora Dunbar; and Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu as Stephen Rollo leaves nothing to be desired. The piece is effectively staged, and the dresses are pleasing.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—John E. Coyle, who occupies the post of honour, creates roars of laughter with songs and patter; and the musical sketch presented by the local artists, Dr. Ernst and company, is very enjoyable. Miss Marguerite Broadfoote has a good reception; and Mr. Harry Lowther and Miss Hulo Hodgson and company are extremely good in their sketch, The Barmaids. Perrette and Mona cause much laughter in their sketch, Teasing the General; and Pike, Tholl, and Taylor do well in their comedy, The Dancing Master. Other turns are provided by Queenie May, comedienne; Vere and Royal; and the Bio.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—Horace Wheatley, the popular comedian, creates roars of laughter; and Natalia and Diana provide a clever gymnastic display. The Brothers Pasquali are clever acrobats and tumblers; Marie Reeve, comedienne, does well; George Rapley, comedian, causes laughter; as also does Blanco J. White, comedian. Leo Dryden is a fine actor-vocalist; and the Palascope projects interesting films on the screen.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is this week paying a return visit in The Still Alarm. Mr. M. H. Glenville takes premier honours for his really fine conception of the manly young fireman; Mr. George Arthur is well suited in the rôle of John Bird alias Gorman. Special mention should be made of Mr. Fred Osmond as Doc Wilber. Willie Manley has an apt exponent in Mr. Tom Beasley, and Mr. Lewis Gordon does well as Franklin Fordham; Elinor Fordham is sweetly played by Miss Maud Warburton; Miss Mabel Veriton gives a really fine portrayal of the warm-hearted old-fashioned mother; and Miss Hettie Zillwood is bright and breezy as Carrie Wilber. The trained horses, Pegasus and Bucephalus, are a pleasing feature of the production, as is also the singing of the Lyric Comedy Four.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company is this week presenting the farcical comedy, Are You a Mason? which piece is preceded each evening by a one-act play, entitled The Ruby Heart. Mr. Ernest Cossart is seen in the rôle of George Fisher, and the way in which he brings out the absurdity of the character, and its ludicrous qualities, is extremely diverting; Mr. E. H. Patterson gives a clever impersonation of Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Howard L. Tracy is to be commended for his representation of Frank Perry; Mr. Edwin Millins does good work as Jack Halton; Mr. Frederick Jaques furnishes a capital study of the eccentric actor, Hamilton Travers; Mr. Dare Austin is seen to advantage as Ernest Morrison, a Mason; the stern Mrs. Bloodgood is admirably portrayed by Miss Adelaide Grace; Miss Mabel Durrant is successful as Mrs. Perry; Miss Babs Stuart as Annie and Miss Madge Merrique as Lulu make a light-hearted pair of sisters; Miss Dora Frank Harvey is good as Mrs. Halton; and the whole production goes with a swing from start to finish.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe. —The programme is this week filled with Mr. Hall Caine's dramatic version of The Prodigal Son. Mr. Herbert Hewetson makes an excellent rugged, manly Magnus, and his performance won him warm appreciation. Mr. Norman Partridge gives a good impersonation of the weak yet attractive character of Oscar; Miss Lily Hall Caine's portrayal of Thora and afterwards of Thora's daughter is a great success; to both parts she lends artistic charm and grace. Miss Cecil Cromwell in the rôle of Helga Neilson is no less convincing; whilst Miss Alma Murray as the mother acts with consummate skill.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—In the second edition of the musical play, The Spring Chicken, Mr. George Edwardes' company is appearing at the Theatre Royal this week, and is meeting with high appreciation from large houses. Mr. George Gregory is a very diverting Girdle, his eccentricities and quaintness in song and dance causing a constant ripple of laughter during his frequent appearances on the stage. As the French advocate, Mr. John Brabourne scores a distinct success; and conspicuous too in the mirth-provoking incidents of the piece are Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as the head clerk to the advocate; Mr. Ernest Mahar as the head waiter; and Mr. William Spray as the precocious Girdle. Miss Gertrude Glyn is a charming exponent of the part of Rosalie; Miss Irene Verona, with her many sly hits at foibles of society and her dispensation of sleeping draughts, renders her part of Mrs. Girdle to perfection; a charming Dulcie Babori is Miss Nancy Langtyre; and Miss Gertrude Gillian plays with great acceptance the part of Baroness Papouche. Others prominent in an effective representation are Miss Nellie Lennen as Emmy Lou (Girdle's niece), Mr. Frank Hector as Baron Papouche, and Mr. Jocelyn Hope as the proprietor of the "Crimson Butterfly."

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—The patrons of this house are presented for their entertainment with the stirring military drama Under Two Flags, and the manner in which it was received on the initial evening was conclusive testimony to its popularity. The chief characters are taken by Messrs. Wellesley Draper, Lionel West, Charles Brooke, Fred Paul, Arthur Elwyn, and the Misses Mabel Ormonde, Joan Sterne, Mabel Stevens, and Mary Thorn, whose delineation of Cigarette is an outstanding feature. The entire work of the company deservedly met with appreciation.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. Chalmers Mackay's company is paying a visit here this week in The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr. Mackay, in the principal part of Barney O'Hea, is irrepressible; he sings, dances, and acts in a very worthy manner, and creates roars of laughter. Mr. Charles Homer makes a dashing Shamus McDermott, and his patriotic songs are effectively sung; Mr. David MacFarlane gives an excellent portrayal of Connor Martin; whilst in the hands of Haughton Macaulay the rascal Michael Kenny is quite safe. Mr. St. John Stuart as Gerald Courtney is admirable; Mrs. Chalmers Mackay is delightful as Norah McGrath; and Miss Adele Liddon is well placed as Mrs. McDermott; and Miss Nana Flensberg is lively and pretty as Biddy M'Ginn.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—Packed houses are the order here this week, and the bill is topped by Miss Marie Loftus, who is in fine voice, and was accorded a great reception, her songs meeting with instantaneous success. The Horne Brothers, in their pugilistic encounter, The Biter Bit, score heavily; Ancillotti and his thought-reading dog, Pilu, bewilder the audience; the Glenroy Troupe of International Dancers add to their triumphs; Walter King is a comedian who evokes roars of laughter; Selma Braatz performs some neat juggling feats; operatic vocalism is represented by Les Voces, who render some exceedingly pretty numbers in a charming manner; Tom Parker, comedian; the Stavordale Quartette; and the Palmer-Moir Fight on the Bioscope complete the bill.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Mr. Arthur Roberts is here this week, and with a company which gave him excellent support he on Monday night introduced the new comedy under the title The Woman Who Was. Miss Jennie Johns is a delightful comedienne of much ability; and a very gratifying success is earned by Zeta Grey and company in their musical comedy act, The Lancashire Lass. Martinetti and Grossi submit a most wonderful musical turn, in which a bicycle is turned into a variety of instruments; the Three Permans combine comedy with acrobatic feats with great success. A decided hit is made by Miss Alice Hollander, who possesses a powerful and pleasing contralto voice. The ventriloquial performance of Mr. W. E. Gillin is of great merit; Charles Woodward, comedian, creates much mirth, and scores heavily; Beattie and Bentley, comedy acrobats; and the San Remo Girls, comediennes and dancers, are the other contributions that make up a good evening's entertainment.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Duchess of Dantzic is being accorded good patronage here this week. Miss May Glenn as Catherine is simply charming; Mr. Ernest Torrence, who possesses an excellent voice, plays Lefebvre with much manliness; Napoleon in the hands of Mr. Albert York secures ungrudging praise; Mr. Steve Fitzgerald's Papillon is humorous; Miss Maggie White sings sweetly in the part of Renee; and Miss Buena Bent dances prettily.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Ludwig Amann, a really clever impersonator, heads the bill here with life-like impersonations; the Five Bogannys give some smart Risley feats; and Florence and Lillian show musical talent of a high order. Victor Travers is humorous; Dick and Dorothy are smart step dancers; and Amy Russell uses a powerful voice to advantage. Roy and Fenton, in the sketch The Grass Widow, are responsible for smart patter; the Avrignys are good jugglers; and the American Bioscope shows some fine pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company presents this week Oliver Twist. The central figure of the play is Fagin, and Mr. Stanley Drewitt may be highly commended for his dramatic skill. Miss Edith Anton Laing is well suited as Nancy; Mr. James Skea gives a powerful and convincing performance of Bill Sikes; Mr. W. H. Rotheram, in addition to his duties as stage-director, cleverly individualises the parts of Mr. Grimwig and Monks; Miss Dorothy Marsdin is a quiet and unassuming Oliver Twist; Mr. Charlie Clark, a clever Artful Dodger; and Mr. R. C. Hunter an effective Charlie Bates.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—The leading feature of this week's bill is Klio, who presents in person twelve examples of the masterpieces of modern sculpture. This is a chaste and high-class exhibition. Marba and Verity, with another lady, are amusing acrobatic humorists; Will Freda contributes a song and dance; the Sisters Reno are clever transformation and acrobatic dancers; the Bros. Bright are warmly welcomed as "Gymnasts du Salon"; C. Vincent presents new pictures on the screen; Curtis Leo, the magical marvel, is clever and smart; the Two Dixons, lady banjoists, succeed in song and dance; and Madge Seymour, comedienne, delights with her tuneful ditties.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. George Stephenson's company, with the musical comedy Kitty Grey, has attracted large audiences here this week. Miss Hilda Guiver gives an admirable interpretation of the title-rôle and has had a hearty reception, and Miss Dorothy Sephton, as Lady Binfield, wins golden opinions; Miss Nellie Lauraine proves a distinct success as Mrs. Bright; Miss Elsie Skilling is smart as Sadie de Poulson; as Lord Plantagent Mr. Leslie Steward is seen to the best advantage; Mr. Lauri Lyle makes a popular King of Illyria; Mr. Her turns are contributed by Lulu (lady instrumentalist), Sands and Vincent (comedians), the Original Oldham Singing Girl, Mons. Reni and his cleverly-trained dog; Mlle. Corlettie (illustrated songstress), Stilvo (stilt performer), Martin Hope (comedian), Miss Madeline May Vela (wire performer), and The Cedrics (speciality artists).

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in the charming musical comedy, Florodora, opened here on Monday. Mr. Daley Cooper, who impersonates Anthony Tweedlepunch, contrives to keep the house in roars during the time he is on the stage. Miss Gladys Elvey is excellent as Dolores, and she sings sweetly; she is ably supported by Mr. R. Courtier Dutton as Frank Abercoed; Miss Nellie Bowman makes a capital Angela, her singing and dancing being much enjoyed; Miss Edith Housley is greatly appreciated as Lady Holyrood, and Mr. J. R. Tate is good as Cyrus W. Gilfain. Mr. Harold Perry makes the most of the part of Capt. Arthur Donegal, and Mr. Edwin Oxlee is an excellent Leandro.

COLOSSEUM. — Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Another of Mr. Frederick Melville's favourite dramas, Her Forbidden Marriage, is paying a return visit here this week. Mr. Henry Lonsdale takes the part of George Madison in a finished manner; Mr. Louis Hector is very good as the scoundrelly Charles Devereux, and he is well supported by Miss Octavia Noel as Lady Lucretia Lancaster; Miss Nellie Bonsor makes a sympathetic Lucy; and Miss Barbara Gott acts in a capital manner as the Mother Superior. Mr. Beresford Whitcombe is excellent as Sir George Lancaster, and Mr. Leonard Maxwell is good as Geoffrey Broughton. Mr. Philip Renouf scores as Joe Lambkin, and much hearty laughter is caused by Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Patty Lovejoy, Mr. Fred De Vere as Timothy Tuppett, and Mr. George Elsworthy as Benjamin Wardle. Other parts are taken by Mr. A. Hickman as John William, Mr. Rawdon Vivian as the Rev. Mr. Dean, and Mr. James Raymond as Dr. Fenwick.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Miss Ethel Arden, supported by Mr. G. Abel and company, create much hearty laughter in the cleverly acted sketch, Three of a Kind. The Melody Makers provide some excellent singing and dancing in a phantom scena, The Burglar's Dream. The Oldham Concertina Prize Band has had a good reception, and Fred Cary also does well; Miss Dora Martini is a graceful and daring gymnast; Mlle. de Rose is a good baritone vocalist, Charles Cardle has some capital songs, and J. H. Hawtrey, actor vocalist, is well received, and some amusing pictures are shown by the Royal Dottoscope.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Austin and Cowan have had a capital reception in their vocal entertainment; Joe Gold and Dorothy Stirling are good in their musical comedy scena; Stanley and Vandyke do well in a novel act; Francis and Alfred are a couple of sensational comedy jugglers; The Toreadors provide some excellent comedy in their bull fighting act; Forest and King are rightly described as "the two pieces of elastic"; Florence Schubert is a good burlesque artist; and Baddow is a clever ventriloquist. A special feature of the programme are the pictures shown by the Dottoscope.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—On Monday Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram's company began a three nights' engagement here with All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, which was well received by a capital house. Miss Decima Moore's delightfully fresh and dainty impersonation of Peggy quite captivated her audience; while Mr. Glenister's Jimmy Keppel was a natural and effective performance. They had admirable support from Mr. Frank G. Bayly, a quaint and interesting Anthony; Mr. H. Bland, an admirable Major Phipps; and Mr. H. Weston, a capable Jack Menzies. Miss Kate Wingfield was perfectly suited as Lady Crackenthorpe; Miss Barton-Astor was a bright and pleasing Millicent Keppel; and Miss Annie Brophy, with a delightful Irish brogue, made an excellent impression as Mrs. O'Mara.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The Worst Woman in London is being presented here this week, the company being that of Mr. Tom H. Taylor, which is ably piloted by Mr. Charles R. Stone. Frances Vere is powerfully and effectively portrayed by Miss Florence Dalton; Miss Elizabeth Watkins distinguishes herself by a sweet and winsome representation of Ruth Milford; Miss Emily Kelsey's interpretation of Matilda Parker is humorous; Mr. George Gaisford achieves success as Jack Felton; Mr C. R. Stone as James Milford furnishes a capital embodiment; Vincent Lyle is adroitly handled by Mr. Paul Barry Lewers; the mirth which is identified with the character of Bob Goldfinch is brought out in a striking degree by Mr. Willie Garvie; a characteristic sketch of Hugh Drayton is submitted by Mr. H. W. Monte; as Philip Armstrong Mr. Leonard Booker gives a manly and forcible presentation; and Mr. A. Rushen makes a mirth-provoking Kington.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—Another capital bill is delighting large audiences this week. The chief item is the renowned Martelloni Troupe of lady acrobats; Bennett and Martell are amusing in a nautical absurdity; Esme Gordon, comedienne and dancer, is a neat danseuse; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian, is loudly acclaimed; Adelina, facialist and impersonator, is highly successful; a capital vaudeville entertainment submitted by Harold Montague's Vagabonds; Vincent, acrobatic table expert and lightning Arab tumbler, is vociferously applauded; Smiler Lee is a quaint comedian; and the Hippodrome Bioscope shows a series of new films.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—A strong programme is presented at the Moss-street house this week. Bruce and Ross are popular in their acrobatic comedy business; Mary Gray, soprano, is successful; Frank Newbury has a gratifying reception as a whistler; Baroux and Bion submit a capital acrobatic comedy act; Florence Hill, comedienne and dancer, finds much favour; Mlle. Lockhart, tight wire artist, meets with success; the Vandyke troupe, retained for another week, are extremely funny, and the Empire Animatograph again shows admirable pictures.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Miss Ida Millais' company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne, is here this week in the well-known play, No Man's Land. Mr. Henry Herne assumes the responsibilities of hero in a thrilling and interesting play, and does ample justice to the part of Harry Oaklands; Mr. Frank Denis displays rare skill in the rôle of Silas Moore; Mr. A. G. Lytton is admirably adapted to the part of Mat Marsden; Mr. H. Payne Warburton assumes the double rôle of Gilbert Bathurst and Captain Norman Bathurst with evident acceptance; Mr. William Mallalieu, as Dr. Buxton, and Mr. Newton Pearce, as Solomon Jacobs, are amusing exponents of these parts, and are well received; while Mr. Alfred Byron makes an ideal office boy as Thompson Poodle. Mrs. Mallalieu is a charming and captivating widow as Mrs. Poodle; Miss Nancy Mitchell is a clever Bessie Poodle; and Miss Ida Millais becomes an early favourite, her clever impersonation of Mary Bathurst being well received.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—The Catch of the Season commenced on Monday a week's engagement at Plymouth. As Angela, Miss Moya Mannering quite captivated the audience by her winsome girlishness; Mr. Frank Lincoln as the Duke of St. Jermyns infected the whole performance with his whole-hearted bonhomie; Mr. E. H. Kelly as Lord Dundreary evoked merriment; Miss Ida Mann as Lady Crystal correctly interpreted the rôle of a cold and austere step-mother; and the Misses Margaret Savill and Jane Eyre as the Honourable Sophia and Honoria Bedford respectively were admirable assistants in the realm of tyrannical petticoat government; Mr. Julien Crop made a fatherly Sir John Crystal; and Miss Belle Napier a vivacious Lady Caterham. A special tribute is due to Master Grata for his distinctly clever representation of Bucket.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—Lewis Gilbert's highly exciting melodrama, The Mysteries of London, is this week being performed by the stock company. Mr. Edward Lloyd capably fills the part of Philip Conway; Mr. Alfred Brandon effectively impersonates Victor Levigne; Mr. Larry Clements is a versatile and humorous Dick Coppem; Miss Maud Burton, as Lena North, is a sympathetic heroine; and Miss Ethel Kay an emotional La Saleska.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Mark Sheridan, the principal attraction here, as usual, is an entertainment in himself; the Delevines in their comedy act, Flipp and Flopp, deserve the unstinted applause accorded them; the Villions execute some smart business as acrobatic cyclists; Lily Langtry has lost none of her vivacity or breeziness; Will English has something distinctly new in the negro business; and other contributors to the programme are Nash and Noel (patter comedians), Maude Esmond (burlesque), the Three Ramoniers in a double balancing act), and Vernon's Pictures.

PORTH.—THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth. — For this week another attractive programme is arranged here. Knox Orde, as Count de St. Hubert, impersonates the character with marked cleverness; and Mr. Bay Russell sings and acts with ability as Bill Stratford; Mr. Harold Parkes is quietly humorous as Oroya Brown; and Mr. James Graydon is amusing as Posh Jenkins. Miss Isabelle Dillon creates abundant merriment as Lady Betty Claridge; and Miss Maude Davis makes a charming and graceful Gwenny Holden.

Empire.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The French conjuror Melot has mystified large audiences here with his wonderful illusions; and another remarkable act submitted is that of Tom Grave is his sensational feat, "Flying the revolving wheel." Amusing and clever are the Ramlos in their comedy triple bar act; Charles Somers, quaint comedian, provokes plenty of laughter; the Sisters Lytton are applauded for their vocalism; Will Cornish, in his musical bell act, meets with much success; the Olive Trio, comedians and dancers, are most entertaining; and Evelyn Desa, banjoist, vocalist, and dancer, and Sadie Seymour, descriptive vocalist, are deservedly appreciated.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Grand.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—The Vasilescu Troupe are exceptionally clever on the triple bars, and earn unstinted applause; Rejected Remounts, introducing four trained horses, is very laughable; the Six Imrie Girls are smart jugglers; and the Nettas sing duets, both having capital voices. George Milner, comedian; Jenny Douglas, champion lady dancer, along with Mr. Chas. Austin, a comedian with a style of his own, complete a good programme.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Geo. and Robert A. Nicholson; Manager, Wm. Ainsworth.—The management are trying to secure tip-top talent at this hall. This week Happy Fanny Fields is the chief attraction, and takes well. Other good turns include Barnard's Mannikins, which cause loud laughter; Barney, Burke, and Bray, in a good sketch; Charley Dixon, eccentric comedian; the Walleys, jugglers; Mabel Hind, comedienne; Violet Beatrice, boy impersonator; and Matt Wilkinson and company in a laughable sketch, The Registry Office, contribute to a capital programme.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company opened here on Monday in Our Sailor Lad. Of the artistes, Mr. Walter T. Hybert is certainly one of the best comedians seen here for a long time; while Miss Louie Fountaine is possessed of a capital voice, and uses it to the best advantage. Mr. Mark Practice causes roars of laughter for his skilful representation of Slippery Bill; Mr. Frank Beaulieu's portrayal of William Fenton was very fine; Mr. Laurence, as Our Sailor Lad, did creditably; Miss Annie Brunette scored as Rita Velois; while Miss Lily Seymour, as Mrs. Loveman, played the character admirably. The Misses English are very able dancers.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—The Sign of the Cross, played by Mr. William Greet's company, still proves a strong attraction. Mr. Frank C. Petley submits a forcible yet dignified rendition of the important rôle of Marcus Superbus; the trying rôle of Mercia is evenly and pathetically portrayed by Miss Marie Leonhard; Mr. C. Yorke supplies an excellent interpretation of the Emperor Nero; Mr. Charles Alfred is responsible for Tigellinus, and Mr. E. Yaldwin for Viturius. Mr. Frank Wood contributes some effective humour in his amusing representation of the bibulous Glabrio; Mr. H. T. Harris as the spy Servillius is deserving of mention, as is also Mr. Walter Fleet in the character of Favius. Miss Effie Dane successfully delineates the rôle of the boy Stephanus; Miss Mary Newcomb as the Empress Poppœa, and Miss Gertrude Price and Miss Cissie Carlton as Berenice and Dacia respectively are to be commended, as is also Miss Jessica Thorne as Aucaria.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—The American drama At Cripple Creek is meeting with success here this week. Mr Stanley Bedwell gives a hearty and bright representation of the hero, Joe Mayfield; Mr. Chas. H. Lester succeeds as the villainous Martin Mason, and receives able assistance from Mr. J. G. Maine as Manuel Martin; Mr. Arthur D. Layland in the character-part of the Indian Wahketah is highly successful; Mr. Sydney Benson is amusing as the darkey Ben White; Miss Agnes Verity does full justice to the rôle of Dynamite Ann; Miss Daisy Carlton is sprightly and piquant as Maggie Mason; and Miss Lilly Beagle finds favour as Belle Gordon. Mr. Will Hook is good as Reggie Harwood; and Mr. Chas. Watson is well suited as the Rev. Mr. Wilson; as are also Messrs. Chas. Watson, Alf Cooper, and Ed. Rochester as Davy Puncher and Sloggins respectively. Little Rosie Hopkins as Little Totta is commendable.

Palace of Varieties.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rozen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—A diversified bill is headed this week by Jock Whiteford, the Scotch comedian; the second place is given to Le Diabelo, in what is described as "Looping the Devil's Wheel." Other items include Spry and Monti, a couple of sprightly entertainers; the Ten Dixie Girls, in a vocal and tersichorean scena; Alex Lukos, actor-vocalist; the Three Guitanos, smart pantomime eccentric acrobats; Fyne and Hurley, comedians; and Vernon's pictures.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's In Sight of St. Paul's company occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Ernest R. Allen as Tom Chichester, Mr. E. Valentine as Fretley Burnside, and Mr. Herbert Sydney as Blidstein, all achieve success; Mr. Herbert Colley infuses plenty of "go" into the comedy part of Jim Palfrey, the cabman; as Cynthia Dell, Miss Lallah Davis scores; and Miss Cissie Bellamy is good as Aileen Millar.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Local playgoers are enjoying a strong attraction this week, Mr. Bannister Howard's No. 1 Florodora company opening another visit on Monday. Miss Josephine Sullivan, a Swindon favourite, is most delightful as Dolores, being heard to distinct advantage in her musical numbers; Miss Lily Gullick is pleasing and dainty as Angela Gilfain; and Miss Kate Leicester must be highly commended for her work as Lady Holyrood. A particularly fine and humorous interpretation of Tweedlepunch is provided by Mr. A. E. Passmore, whose rich fun is greatly appreciated; Mr. Stanley White ably plays Gilfain; and Mr. Allen Morris undertakes the part of Frank Abercoed with decided success; while Mr. Herbert St. John deserves mention for his capital portrayal of Capt. Arthur Donegal.

Swimming Baths.—Secretary, Mr. William Spruce.—Swindonians were granted an unusual treat on Monday, when Mr. George Grossmith and his party visited this town, and gave one of their delightful drawing-room entertainments. That eminent humorist was heard at his very best with a nicely varied selection of his clever sketches and songs. He was supported by Miss Dorothy Scott, whose stories with music were admirable, and Miss Dorothy D'Egville, whose songs were charmingly rendered. Miss Dorothy Forster proved an accomplished pianist.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. A. Pearse.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company has paid a visit to Torquay this week. Seventy strong, the company has a splendid repertoire, and opened on Monday with Gounod's Faust, which was finely rendered. Mr. Charles Carter was very successful in the name part, and as Mephistopheles Mr. George Neilson scored greatly; whilst Mr. Marshall Vincent, as Valentine, was exceedingly good. The Marguerite of Miss Enriqueta Crichton elicited loud applause. Maritana was presented on Tuesday, and the principal honours were shared by Miss Alice Boaden in the title rôle, and Mr. Seth Hughes as Don Cæsar de Bazan ,each of whom was rapturously encored. Miss Rosina Beynon was loudly applauded for her song as Lazarillo. Mr. Frederick Erle was good as Don Jose; and Mr. Neilson was admirable as the King of Spain. On Wednesday afternoon Tannhäuser was given, preceded by a short explanatory chat, musically illustrated, by Mr. Harrison Frewin, who conducted an augmented orchestra admirably. A crowded house assembled on Wednesday evening for Carmen, other operas for the remainder of the week being Il Trovatore, Lohengrin, and the Bohemian Girl.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. C. Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. Mouillot's company in The Blue Moon is the attraction here this week. Mlle. Marguerite Naudin gives a charming interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. Victor Wallace is excellent as the gallant Major, who commands the garrison at Noga, and is well supported by Mr. Arthur Radcliff, who undertakes the part of Capt. Ormsby; the comedy parts of the juggler and marriage-broker, in the hands of Mr. Ainslie Burton, and of the bandmaster of the native band, sustained by Mr. Charles Stephenson, leave nothing to be desired; while Mr. Fred Inwood is a sufficiently impressive native prince; Mr. J. W. Kibble, a volatile globe-trotter; Mr. Arthur Lawrence, an effective A.D.C.; and Mr. Otto Alexander, a state official, who makes the most of his part. Mr. Basil Mercer, as the journalist, and Miss May Audrey, as a vivacious maid, both put in some excellent work, and their character duet is one of the features of the evening; Miss Mary Glanbrane is an aristocratic representative of Lady Brabasham; and Miss Dorma Morgan gives a charming impersonation of Evelyn Armsby; while minor parts are successfully filled by the Misses Kitty Baughton, Emily Wallace, Mabel Loton, and Cherry Louissant.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Sherlock Holmes is here this week. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart gives an impressive and able rendering in the title-rôle; Mr. W. F. Stirling is good as Prof. Moriarty; Mr. Ernest Gray is seen to advantage as James Larrabee; Mr. Edward Mervyn does justice to the rôle of Sydney Prince; and Mr. Fred Bell is capital as John Forman; Mr. Stanley Logan ably depicts the part of Dr. Watson; Miss Constance Leigh makes a charming Miss Faulkener; Miss Dot Sellby is effective as Mrs. Faulkener; and Miss Lindsay Fincham is pleasing as Madge Larrabee.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Miss Dinah Morris and company are very clever in a musical sketch, entitled The Lost Coon. The Lannons are smart pedestal dancers; Tom and Alec Levines appear in an interesting acrobatic turn. Other turns comprise Miss Lillie Coleman, ballad vocalist; Percy Johnson, comedian; Florence Wood, comedienne; Clown Jardine, and the Bioscope.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.: General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Those delightful acrobatic comedians, the Brothers Egbert, head the bill here this week, and prove most successful; Albertine Melich gives a capital turn with his wonderful birds; the Three Prestons, in their comedy act, The Liftman's Rise; H. O. Wills, comedian; Cosgrove and Burns, a talented duo of singers and dancers; Lena Willard, comedian, appear with success; and Bonnie Goodwin's real Apollo piccaninnies create quite a furore, the dancing of the youngsters securing them many recalls.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Augustine Knight and company are appearing here this week with The Assassin. Mr. Knight gives a highly dramatic portraiture of the villain, Prince Demetri; Mr. Edward E. Ashby supplies a careful rendering of the part of Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Chauncy Morris makes a capital General Nicol; Mr. Theo Balfour is an impressive Duke Carl; Mr. Edwin Jenner is well placed as the Irish officer, Capt. O'Neil; Mr. Cecilo H. Raymond is an amusing Baron Alphonse; Mr. Tom Taylor is humorous as Peter; Miss Ella Vane gives a clever representation of Countess Wanda; and Miss Frances Waring does well as Nita.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. Joseph Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is here in Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold plays Leah with a sympathetic, convincing manner, the gradual dawning of a better nature in the character of the girl thief being admirably shown; Mr. Paul Belmore, as Kleschna, presents a striking portrait of an extremely complex character; Mr. William F. Grant is a dignified and restrained Paul Sylvaine; and Mr. Hamilton Deane, as Raoul Berton, is very successful. Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is a capital representative of the faithful Schram; and Mr. Roland Daniel, as General Berton, and Valentine Favre also scores well. Miss Ethel Russell, as Madame Berton, and Miss Helene Belgrave, as Claire, make the most of their small chances; and a lively Sophie is Miss Violet Thorold.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Barney Armstrong made a hit here on Monday night; the Harrison Brothers, in new business, also won favour; and Adams and Ward are two really clever comedy acrobats. Leoni and Leon, in their musical act, score, and Miss Lena Brunton is a smart impersonator of music-hall celebrities. Elton and Elma are good knockabouts on the bar, and Leah Ardens has a good voice and a capital collection of songs. The Royal Bioscope pictures are a choice collection.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Kuner.—A return visit of Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's No. 1 company in A Beautiful Fiend, is attracting large houses. Ivan Paulovitch, alias Count Fedor Karateff, is in the worthy hands of Mr. Tom Robertson; Mr. Albert Wray also displays exceptional ability as Sergius Strogoff; the humorous interpretation of Christopher Crackles is ably presented by Mr. Harry Oaks; Miss V. St. Lawrence as Wanda Lubinoff, the beautiful fiend, is loudly applauded; and Nadine Karateff is cleverly impersonated by Miss Irene Munro. The part of Patty Woodlands finds an excellent exponent in Miss Blanche Hill. The scenery and staging prove most effective.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—For Life—and After is being played here this week by Hardie and Von Leer's company to appreciative audiences. Mr. Vernon Sansbury's rendition of the rôle of Richard Grey is a capable one, and reflects credit upon him; Mr. Sydney Vautier displays considerable dramatic versatility in his delineation of Gilbert O'Neill; an appreciable touch of comedy comes from Mr. Chris. Mason as Joe Grimper; and Miss Edith Barwell's representation of Mrs. Grimper is an exceptionally realistic one. As Marion Grey, Miss Grace Heywood gains much sympathy; Miss Muriel Dean gives a studied rendition of the rôle of Dora Grey; and the parts of Jenny Huggett and Loo Hexham are well played by Miss Marion Fawcett and Miss Rosslyn Vayne.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Julius Simpson.—A turn that appeals to all this week is Maurin's Fountains, a beautiful display, in which some thousands of gallons of water and fairylike electrical effects are brought into requisition; Allis and Cassati, in a singing, comedy, and dancing act, keep the fun going briskly; Horace Monto, in his novel musical act, Tommy Atkins at Play, gives evidence of skill; Moon and Morris are amusing in comedy, but excel as dancers in unison; Charles Gardner, eccentric comedian, and the Zampas, dancers and bâton manipulators, are good in their respective lines; the paintings by Angelo are executed with surprising quickness, and a degree of likeness to the original; Ethairien Brothers are responsible for much merriment; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are this week exceptionally good and amusing.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. M. H. Lindon.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company, in a drama entitled The Plucky Nipper, is here this week. The title rôle is in the hands of Miss Bonwin Carlton, a smart and vivacious actress. Mr. H. J. Butler is a commanding Colonel Fenwick; Mr. Ed. Stream is responsible for some powerful acting as Captain Frank Leslie; the charming portrayal of Ian Fenwick by Miss Evelyn Dewent wins applause; Miss Kitty Maynard is a capital Daisy Paget, the blind girl. The part of Henry Paget is played in a cool and cynical manner which befits the rôle by Mr. Claud Kingston; and Mr. Douglas Campbell is smart as Tommy Atkins.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—Mr. Housden is presenting here a clever drama, A Woman's Past. Mr. J. Myron Howard gives a fine impersonation of David Heath; Mr. David Phillips is good as Frank Dellauney; the rôle of Clement Harper is finely played by Mr. H. F. Housden; Mr. Clifton Earl submits a powerful portrayal of Uriah Craven: Miss Doris Cameron is clever as Dorothy Heath; Miss Irene Carrington is responsible for a vivacious portrayal of Clara Darrel. The acting of Miss Dorothy Wallace as Bessie makes her a general favourite. Miss Mabel Northam gives a good account of herself as Kate.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week we have here Mr. Fred Wilmot's variety artists. The two houses a night experiment inaugurated a month ago, has proved such a success that it is likely that the system will bo permanently adopted next season. The Alberto troupe are clever equilibrists; T. W. Barrett does a clever turn; Zelda is an expert performer on novel musical instruments; Claude Tomlin, actor vocalist, is a finished artist, who earns much applause. Miss Flo Warner is a great local favourite; the Thompsons, midget boxers and club swingers, are a turn which catches on well; Charlton, with his magic kettle, is very mystifying and entertaining; the Sisters Russell are dainty comediennes. The local pictures on the Bioscope, arranged by Mr. J. Gar Kiddie, are a great hit.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—The late Wilson Barrett's spectacular play, Claudian, has attracted large and appreciative audiences during the week. Mr. Wm. Maclaren gives a brilliant representation of Claudian, and Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida is a great success. Other parts are ably sustained by Mr. F. Owen Chambers, Mr. Edward Grogan, Mr. Douglas Earle, Mr. Chas. T. Challenor, Mr. Weston Hubbard, Miss Rosa Webster, and Miss Maud Garth.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Eugene Stratton, the popular coon, is the leading turn this week, and he has met with a most cordial welcome. In addition there is an excellent company of artists, including the Wiltons, Tennyson and Wallis, Chas. Craston, Ward and Davies, and Maggie Rimmer, in comedy; Winona, crack rifle shot; Marie Blythe, contralto; Bros. Babusio, equilibrists and strong men; and Vay's Juveniles, who, in a sketch, give both phases—humorous and pathetic—of slum life.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. le Wards.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is providing a most acceptable week of comedy, the programme including Cousin Kate and A Country Mouse, each preceded by an excellent curtain raiser. Miss Earle achieves great success in the title-rôle of Cousin Kate, exercising great charm by the naturalness of her impersonation. Miss Honiss is well suited as the somewhat priggish Amy, and Miss Coleman is dignified as her mother; Miss Marshall is seen to great advantage in the curtain raiser, Rough Diamond. Mr. Temples Powell in the part of the Bohemian artist, Heath Desmond, makes the most of his opportunities; and Mr. Cox and Mr. Barrett made a very comical pair as a pompous curate and a college student respectively.

WORKINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday night there was a large audience to witness Mr. Charles Macdona's company present The Toreador, and the performance was a delightful success. Mr. H. Batt was amusing as Pettifer; Mr. R. Lynn was droll as Archie; Mr. George Austin was manly as Trail; as Curapolo, Mr. S. Granville sang with spirit, and was loudly applauded; Mr. W. Champney as the Tiger played excellent low comedy, convulsing the house in the scene with Teresa, who also acted with verve. Miss L. Howard was charming as Susan; Miss B. Grosvenor was vigorous and amusing as Mrs. Hoppings; Miss Alice Sands was lively as Maud; and Miss Marie Beresford was delightful as Nancy. The chorus gave satisfaction.

WREXHAM.—Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week a capital company here includes Prince Ishmael and Mlle. Valeria, Hindu magicians and illusionists, who are remarkably clever; the Cosmans, in their comedy act; the Sisters Hypatia, duettists and dancers; Rex and Ford, cross-talk comedians; Arnetti, an eccentric musical comedian; and the pictures.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. S. Dacre.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company has appeared this week in Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy is particularly suited to the rôle of John Durham. He is an actor of great power, and his manner is most convincing; Robert Forsyth, in the uncongenial rôle of Lord Mountfallon is exceedingly clever and praiseworthy; Mr. Arthur Leigh does well as Reginald Steighton, and Mr. W. F. Clitherow causes much amusement as Ben Verstein; Miss Alice Esther Belmore is a delightful Helen Vallerton; Miss Louisa Gourlay is pathetic and natural as Mrs. Durham; Miss Frances Wolviston is a handsome Lady Mountfallon; and a c'ever Margaret Steighton is seen in Miss Florence Dulhuntly.

Empire.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Rubens and Dow, with their wonderful mechanical changes, are a special feature this week; Harrigan and Holt are comedians of more than average ability, who never fail to amuse; G. Linton, on the wire, secures applause; Mountford and Walsh are clever in their sketch; and Drum and Major are quaintly funny. Much amusement is caused by Julian Mack; Flo Hilton is lively as of yore; and Karl and Mary Ohm's hippodrome is a special feature.

Provincial Correspondents are requested to forward with their next week's Reports a full list of the Theatres and Music Halls in their respective towns, also the names of the present Lessees or Managers, for insertion in The Era Annual, 1907.

HOCKEY.

Mr. Norman V. Norman's XI. v. Atalanta Hockey Club, Hastings.

Played at Ore, Hastings, Oct. 12. The ground was exceedingly rough, and in a very bad state, and accurate hockey was quite out of the question. A very scrambling game resulted in a win for the Atalanta Club by 3 goals to 2. The goals for Mr. Norman's XI. were shot by W. H. Ashley and N. V. Norman.

Mr. Norman V. Norman's XI.—Forwards, N. V. Norman, Miss West Symes, W. H. Ashley, Miss Gregory, and Kenneth Bruce; half-backs, Brember Wells, W. Marshall, and Dennis Cleugh; backs, Miss Stannard, S. Wilkinson, and Miss Ruskin.

Mr. Norman V. Norman's XI. v. Atalanta Club (Hastings).

Played at Bopeep, Hastings, on Oct. 19. A decidedly one-sided game resulted in a victory for Mr. Norman's XI. by 10 goals to nil. The goals were shot by W. H. Ashley (9) and Kenneth Bruce (1). The teams were mixed.

Mr. Norman V. Norman's XI. v. Hastings and St. Leonard's.

Played at Bopeep, Hastings, on Oct. 20. A very fast game resulted in a victory for Hastings and St. Leonard's by 3 goals to 2, though a draw would have more nearly described the game, so evenly was it contested. The goals for Mr. Norman's XI. were shot by W. H. Ashby (1) and Norman V. Norman (1).

Mr. Norman's XI.—N. V. Norman, W. H. Ashley, Dennis Cleugh, Kenneth Bruce, forwards; Brember Wills, W. R. Marshall, G. Elliott, half-backs; H. Davenport, S. Wilkinson, G. Vintrey, backs.

Misses Cecilia Fowler and Winifred Bradley's Ladies' XI. v. Jack Leonard's Gent's. XI.

Played near Clifton Downs, Saturday, Oct. 27. Miss Lillie Belding, J. Leonard (3), and B. Green scored the goals. The following were the teams:—

Misses Fowler and Bradley's XI.—Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Alice Gibbs and Miss Ivy Bowman, backs; Miss Cecilia Fowler, Miss Lillie Belding, and Miss Edie Lawrence, half-backs; Miss Winifred Bradley (captain), Miss Rosie Davies, Miss Minnie Leonard, Miss Gracie Leonard, and Miss Florrie Hooper, forwards.

J. Leonard's XI.—M. Leonard, goal; B. Green and G. Alway, backs; S. Coombes, J. Ridler, and P. Hewlett, half-backs; J. Leonard (captain), F. Worth, G. Haskings, L. Clayton, and H. Williams, forwards.

Referee, Miss Kit Montgomery. Result, Misses Fowler and Bradley's XI., 1 goal; J. Leonard's XI., 4 goals.

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Thursday, Nov. 15,
the comedy,
"LADY URSULA'S EXPERIMENT."

How history and the drama repeat themselves. The public Press for past weeks has been relating wonderful stories of a girl who had left her home in male attire, and no one can find her. So it is with the drama. In Cellier's dainty, delightful, tuneful Dorothy there was the mock duel with the ladies in male attire, and at Richmond this week charming Miss Beatrice Wilson is showing what a swaggering, rollicking hero she can make in boy's habilments as the wilful Lady Ursula. Mr. Norman V. Norman is a dashing Sir George, and plays with all his accustomed ability. Mr. D. Cleugh is capital as the Earl of Hassenden, and may be highly complimented; equally successful, in a somewhat diverse rôle, is Mr. Francis Hope as the Rev. Blimboe. Miss Sybil Ruskin plays prettily as Dorothy; while Miss Gregory does admirably as Mrs. Fenton. As we have already pointed out, to Miss Wilson belongs the premier honour; her interpretation of the rôle of Lady Ursula proved a perfectly legitimate success. The play was received with every token of favour.

In a pretty orchard at St. Mary, Cornwall, the village maidens are gathering apples. Colin, a rustic swain, comes on the scene with his sweetheart Ruth. He praises Thomasine, a Cornish shepherdess, and causes Ruth to be jealous. Thomasine soon makes her appearance. Colin tries to win her favour, but she bids him take Ruth and win her love. Later on Thomasine returns to find that the Fairies have visited the orchard, and, remembering the superstition, enters the fairies' ring and utters a wish that some day she may leave her native village and travel. No sooner has she spoken than she hears the sound of approaching huntsmen, and the villagers hurry to the spot. One of the hunters, a London merchant, explains that they have lost their way. Perceiving Thomasine he immediately falls in love with her, and proposes that she shall marry him and go to London. She consents, and in Act II., which is Temple Bar in the time of the Tudors, shows Thomasine as the Lady Mayoress—very happy, but longing for a glimpse of her old Cornish home. Miss Lillian Hubbard, an attractive Thomasine, sings her vocal numbers charmingly; Miss May Rawlinson plays Ruth in a graceful manner; Mr. T. C. Maxwell as Colin Yeo uses his fine voice to advantage; Mr. Tom Blacklock is praiseworthy as Sir John Percyval; Mr. Kennedy Allen is an amusing Clown; Mr. Albert Felino cuts some queer capers as the Donkey; and Miss Ruby Carter as Mab executes some smart dancing. The choir of children and Miss Dolly Bell's Six English Violets contribute to the success.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL THEATRE.

Miss Davies Webster and Miss Rose Cazalet's entertainment company gave a performance on Wednesday evening at the Albert Hall Theatre, the chief item being a one-act play by the late Lord Tennyson, The Falcon, in which Tennyson has dramatised a story of Boccaccio. The play was originally produced by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal; but, notwithstanding their excellent acting, it did not succeed. On Wednesday evening the character of the Lady Giovanna was capitally undertaken by Miss Davies Webster, and that of Elizabetta, the Count's mother, by Miss Rose Cazalet. Mr. John Macfarlane made a manly and picturesque Count Federigo Degli Alberighi; while Mr. H. P. Owen cleverly enacted the humorous part of Filippo, the Count's foster brother. The music for the Count's song was specially composed by E. S. Mitchell, student of the Trinity College of Music, and the handsome costumes by Nathan. Besides The Falcon, several dramatic and comedy sketches were performed. The Crystal Gazer, a dramatic sketch by Leopold Marteyn, proved most attractive. Miss Davies Webster appeared as Mme. Le Sorcière and Miss Rose Cazalet as Mrs. Blank, the lady that calls for the address and some particulars of a gentleman that she is engaged to, great merriment being caused by the lady, the fortune-teller thinking she had come about a lost dog. The little piece was brightly acted and much applauded. In Mr. George P. Hawtrey's new comedy sketch, Flat Burglary, Miss Rose Cazalet was very successful. Later in the programme Miss Cazalet was set down for The Flower Girl's Story, by H. Little, and Miss Davies Webster for a dramatic study, Jeanne d'Arc, written by Augusta Webster. A number of admirable musical items were given by Miss Eugénie Caverhill-Shiels (pianoforte), Mrs. Paul Zeidler ('cello), and Mr. Robert Königsberg (violin), these artists giving Komsak's Trio, 'Leiben und Leben in Wien." Mrs. Paul Zeidler produced a good rich tone in her 'cello solo of Handel's "Largo," and Miss Violet Cecil gained a hearty encore for her dance, "The Housemaids." Miss Gertrude Wood greatly pleased the audience in two songs by Amy Woodforde-Finden, "Far across the desert lands" and "Where the Abana flows," and Mr. Noel Fleming displayed a very pleasing and well-trained voice in "If I built a world for you" and "Passion Flower," two songs by Mme. Liza Lehmann. Two violin solos were given by Mr. Robert Königsberg, and another dance by Miss Violet Cecil. Mr. Noel

NEW ENGLISH AND FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we are publishing from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purpose. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playwrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"A SOLDIER'S HONOUR."

Melodrama, in Four Acts, by Frank L. Bixby. (All rights reserved.)

A play of American military life, at the time of the Sioux Indians' rising. Sergt.-Major Breen tries to dissuade his daughter Agnes from marrying Lieutenant Harry Batton, because the other officers' wives would not treat her as their social equal, American democracy being, it appears, inapplicable to military circles in the land over which "Old Glory" waves. But it seems not incompatible with traditions of transatlantic "honour" for Major Geddes to have a liaison with Mrs. Totten, Colonel Totten's wife. In order to marry Agnes, Batton sends in his papers to Washington, U.S.A., resigning his commission. A newspaper correspondent, Isaac White, arrives at the barracks at Fort Keough to obtain the latest tidings of the reported Indian restlessness. While he is there news arrives that an exploring party has been ambushed and almost annihilated. While awaiting details, he flirts with Miss Lettie Shroyer, sister of Captain Jack Shroyer, a typical slangy American young lady, who ultimately marries Lieutenant Darling, a foolish, kind-hearted nonentity. When Darling brings news of the ambush, Batton is ordered to command the attacking force, and is accused of cowardice when it becomes known that he has sent in his resignation. Thereupon Agnes steps forward and states, before the hurriedly-assembled officers, that Batton's resignation will be withdrawn, and that she is to be his wife. Six months later there is a reception at the military post headquarters, to which Isaac White has obtained an invitation. Agnes and Lieutenant Harry Batton are married, but their happiness is clouded by the treatment meted out to her by the other officers' "ladies," which become intolerable during the course of the evening. Maddened by some bitter remarks made by Mrs. Totten, whose liaison with Major Geddes is discovered before the guests leave, Agnes decides to leave all and earn her own living amongst new surroundings. After telling her father, and leaving a letter for her husband, she profits by the arrival of a telegram of urgent recall for Isaac White, and drives away with him to catch the midnight train. Three months later we are at Fort Sheridan, Chicago, on the shore of Lake Michigan. The officers are the same as those formerly at Fort Keough, Mont. Batton is still with his old regiment, and is ignorant of Agnes's whereabouts. There is to be a trial of new high explosives. Major Geddes is interested in a new patent, and stands to win a sum of $10,000 should it prove a success. Batton is to fire the test shots and report on the experiments. The explosives are kept in Batton's quarters. Geddes obtains access to them, and damps the rival chemicals to secure his own success. Batton surprises him, there is a struggle, a light falls into the chest of chemicals, and the resulting explosion wrecks the house, kills Major Geddes, and temporarily blinds Batton. Three weeks later Batton is at the Post Graduate Hospital, Chicago. Mrs. Totten occupies another bed in an adjoining ward, and is expected to become insane, her lover having been killed in the explosion, and the Colonel, her husband, having committed suicide two days after the catastrophe. "Nurse Lee," who is none other than Agnes, is told off to attend to Batton. The doctor is of opinion that Batton's sight will be restored to him, and the bandages are to be removed for the first time. Before this takes place, however, "Nurse Lee" is called to Mrs. Totten's bedside. The old antagonists recognise each other, and Mrs. Totten expires, after Agnes has forgiven her for all injuries and unhappiness. A group is formed about Batton's bed, the bandages are removed, and he is restored to light and happiness in his beloved wife's arms.

BI-MONTHLY MEETING OF THE A.A.

The sixth bi-monthly meeting of the members of the Actors' Association was held on the 8th inst., when the following were present:—Miss Gertrude Bibby, Miss May Conrade, Mr. F. H. de Quincey, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, Mr. Frank G. Dunn, Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Miss Georgina Hamilton, Miss Katie Johnson, Miss Rose Mathews, Mr. Arthur Morris, Miss Helen Mosley, Miss Doris Regan, Mr. Adnam Sprange, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Miss Georgina Hamilton was voted to the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Miss Ffolliott spoke of the "struck-off lists" of this and last year showing lack of interest and want of esprit de corps among the members. She referred to the Variety Artists' Federation, with its newspaper and death levy and old-age fund. She thought it would be better for the A.A. if the members did not want so much for nothing. She recommended that the rules and regulations of the V.A.F. should be applied as far as possible to the A.A. It was agreed that Miss Ffolliott should attend as a delegate to the Council and voice her views on the adoption of a scheme of subscription similar to the V.A.F., which the meeting recommended to the consideration of the Council.

Miss Rose Mathews spoke at some length on the question of Sunday evening concerts, &c., and suggested that the rooms should be opened from 8 to 11, the first part of the programme to consist of a lecturette by some prominent member, and the second part of a concert. It was resolved that refreshments should be sold at cost price, and that only members of the A.A. should perform except on one night a month, when prominent and distinguished people might be asked to do so. It was also decided that a collection to defray expenses be made at each meeting, when not less than 2d. be put in the plate.

The following ladies and gentlemen were elected on the Entertainment Committee:—Mesdames Gertrude Bibby, Gladys Ffolliott, Georgina Hamilton, Rose Mathews, and Rita Milman, and Messrs. Clive Currie, David Denard, and Frank G. Dunn. Miss Gladys Ffolliott suggested that when an applicant sought to be elected as a member, references from managers should be applied for, if thought desirable, at the discretion of the Council; and it was agreed that this suggestion be placed before the Council at their next meeting.

A vote of thanks to Miss Georgina Hamilton for presiding concluded the proceedings.

MR. W. C. SIMPSON, who during the past two years has brought the Great Western Railway into the front rank for its enterprise in connection with the journeys of the theatrical profession, was on Saturday last made W.M. of the Earl of Zetland Lodge, No. 1364. The Dangerfield Printing Co., Ltd., produced a very artistic programme and menu card for the occasion.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

BUSINESS MANAGERS.

MR. STEWART D. WRIGHT.

Mr. Stewart D. Wright (for some time professionally known as Stewart De Winton), the young and pushing business-manager, was originally intended for the law, having served, when quite a youth, for some time with Messrs. Scott and Japp, solicitors, Glasgow; but desiring a change, he shortly afterwards joined his father, Mr. D. A. Wright, who, by the way, is the senior partner of the old firm of John Wright and Co., world-known shipowners, shipbrokers, commission and forwarding agents, of Glasgow and branches, with agencies at home and abroad. He remained there some time, but owing to a little trouble with a relative of the firm, he left, and later started work with the great "Rhoderick Dhu" house—Messrs. Wright and Greig, Ltd. (also of Glasgow, London, &c.)—where he rose to be chief clerk of the beer department. Although always fond of commercial work, he had a strong desire to enter the profession, the while being a prominent member of local amateur clubs, and being very popular both as an actor and socially.

After consulting one or two well-known actor-managers as to the advisability of entering the profession, and being told the "ups and downs" of it, he resolved to chance his fortunes, like many another good man, and signed his first contract to play Dr. Luck in Mr. Frank Adair's Favourite company in 1898, which part he represented till the end of the run, afterwards joining Mr. James Alexander's "fit-up" companies, and playing consecutively in such pieces as The Power of Gold, Master and Man, The Face at the Window, The Trail of the Serpent, East Lynne, &c. Then for a while he was engaged as manager with an American (real coloured) minstrel troupe and variety combination. Having had about three years in "fit-up" work, both as player and manager, he thought he would like to return to the theatres, so after having a spell of out of work, commonly known in the profession "out of a shop," he resolved to go in for management entirely, and settled with Mr. Sydney T. Pease in this capacity, going on tour with The Man from Down There. Then followed a long engagement with Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren and Mr. Henry Furnival as manager ahead. This position he held with this firm for fifty-three weeks, with offer of re-engagement. During his engagement with them they produced such pieces as Proof, The Lady of Lyons, East Lynne, Life and Honour, As You Like It, &c., in the latter two pieces Mr. Wright playing principal parts. At the conclusion of this engagement, Mr. Wright opened with Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's Sinbad the Sailor pantomime as acting-manager, which proved one of his most comfortable tours.

MR. STEWART D. WRIGHT.

Other successful engagements followed. Mr. Wright is at present directing the tours of the Holmes and Wright sketch companies, the pieces including A Sister of the Red Cross, A Soldier's Honour, and Bertie's Adventure, the latter being written by Mr. Wright in conjunction with Mr. F. L. Webber, and is a bright, rollicking little farce teeming with funny situations, the scene being laid at a seaside hotel. It was recently produced at one of the London halls under the supervision of Mr. Wright, and met with enormous success. Mr. A. T. Henden, Mr. Edward Morgan, Mr. E. H. Dobell, and Miss Cecile Egerton, who appeared in it, had a splendid reception, and had to "take" the curtain three times. The well-known variety agents, Messrs. Richard Warner and Co., Ltd., are doing the booking. Mr. Wright relinquishes this engagement shortly, however, to go on tour with the No 1 Company of The Country Girl (N.) as manager ahead for Mr. Geo. Dance.

Mr. Wright was born December 17, 1879, at Pollokshields, Glasgow, and was educated at the Cumbrae College, Isle of Cumbrae, and Hillhead High School, Glasgow. He is a lover of dumb animals, and detests to see them ill-treated, his particular favourites being dogs, cats, and horses, and, we might add, he is not a bad horseman. He prefers spending his summers as purser's assistant on an ocean liner to basking on the sands, and has fulfilled engagements in that capacity with the Allan and Star Line, Elder Dempster Line, &c., to and from Canada, America, and the West Indies (Jamaica). Mr. Wright, who is a shrewd man of business, has been offered re-engagements with nearly every firm he has been associated with. His permanent address in London is the Actors' Association, of which he has been a member for some years.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

The fourth ball of the season at Covent Garden Theatre fell on the evening of Lord Mayor's Day, a very fitting occasion for music and festivity. A silver James I. tea service on a plated tray was given as a first prize, and there were several other beautiful awards. The scene, with the Italian garden background of the stage, the floral decorations—among which a fine collection of chrysanthemums made an excellent show—and the dazzling array of colours in the costumes, was very brilliant and varied when dancing began a little after midnight. The march-past, which is always the most attractive spectacle of the occasion, took place at about three o'clock. Mme. Jeanne obtained first prize for a topical dress, entitled "The Toast is—the King." Over a costume of white chiffon were panels of white satin fitting close to the figure. On these were painted pictures of Sandringham and the performance of The Man from Blankley's, while round each picture were clusters of red and white roses. Mr. W. Clarkson was successful in gaining second prize (lady's) for "Royal and Civic Birthday Honours," and third prize for "My Lady's Mirror," sixth prize "All Hot," and others for the "Blue Chrysanthemum," "Guy Fawkes," "Harvest," &c.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS VIOLET OSMUND.

Miss Violet Osmund was a pupil of John D'Auban, and after a long course of lessons in dancing (of which she is extremely fond) she was drafted into one of his troupes, and eventually went to Drury Lane pantomime in one of his special acts. From there she went to America with the same company. She speaks in high terms of our cousins from the other side of the "herring pond." She thinks they are as a rule better business men than we are; they make up their minds to do a thing and do it while the Englishman is considering whether he will or not. On her return to England she took a series of lessons in singing from Mr. John Crook, and eventually settled to go on tour, and played the Lady Journalist in The New Barmaid, a part she has performed with much success for a year. Miss Osmund, after a well-earned rest in Windermere, returned to her old part in The New Barmaid till Christmas, when she was engaged for one of the principal parts in the pantomime Mr. Charles Carey, in conjunction with Mr. Alexander Loftus, produced at Birkenhead.

MISS VIOLET OSMUND.

Miss Osmund is a very good sportswoman; she used to ride a good deal until she had a nasty spill, being thrown over a horse's head. Since then she has confined herself to bicycle-riding and swimming.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Wednesday afternoon at the Royal Academy of Music Sir Alexander Mackenzie, in continuing his lecture on "Bohemian Music," said even in the early days the Bohemians did not neglect the great masters of music, especially Berlioz, but the great need of the hour was for a famous musician of their own country. This need was supplied in 1861 by the rising genius Smetana, the son of a brewer. The lecturer here remarked that the great Dvorák's ancestor was also in trade, being a butcher. Although Smetana was not a prodigy, like Mozart, who performed in public at four years of age, still at an early age he gave promise of musical talent. When he was nineteen years old he set out for Prague, the desire of his heart being to become a pupil of Liszt, which desire was fulfilled. Smetana's talent was recognised at an early age by a Symphonic Poem which he wrote while in Sweden. Sir Alexander remarked that Smetana's master, Liszt, was the inventor of the Symphonic Poem, and that Smetana has written nine; but with all his (the lecturer's) research he could not trace a Symphony written by Smetana. Under Liszt's tuition the young composer wrote in a national manner and like most Bohemian musicians the Polka, which, Sir Alexander remarked, meant a half-step, and was a great favourite. One of the lady students of the Academy here gave examples, one of the older form and one more modern, which proved very interesting, and was much applauded. Smetana's first opera hardly satisfied the composer, but, after a few months, he did please himself in the opera The Bartered Bride, originally intended as a comic opera. The public gave a hearty welcome to The Bartered Bride, but the critics were less pleased with it. This fine and spirited opera at once brought the composer fame. Smetana also composed a tragic opera, which the critics at that time said owed much to the influence of Wagner. Sir Alexander said he could find no imitation of Wagner in this opera. In addition, Smetana wrote The Two Widows, The Secret, and The Kiss. It was during this latter opera that Smetana became deaf. While under the influence of Liszt he wrote the Symphonic Poem "Mine Fatherland," in which he refers to the sea. Sir Alexander caused much amusement by saying Shakespeare took the same poetic licence in The Winter's Tale, where the plot is laid in Bohemia, and mentions the sea—where there is no sea. The second portion of "Mine Fatherland" is a panorama in music. Number 3 is entitled "Sazga," and deals with the history of an Amazon Queen; and Number 4 the subject of Bohemian woods and fields. This, the lecturer remarked was played some time ago in England at a Royal Academy concert. While Smetana was quite deaf he wrote a string quartet, entitled "From my life." Four students then gave a pleasing rendering of the slow movement and the lively Scherzo, which, Sir Alexander said, was also a polka. The lecturer said: "Could anyone think that the music of a dying man?" Smetana, like some other great musicians, had a sorrowful life, and his end was tragical. It was after he became deaf his finest work was written; but, as Sir Alexander Mackenzie remarked, deafness was not the worst thing that could befall a composer. Smetana lost his reason, and eventually died in an asylum.

At the end of his instructive and interesting lecture Sir A. C. Mackenzie said his next address would relate to the great master Dvorák.

FOOTBALL.

BRISTOL X.L.C.R. FIRST AND SECOND ELEVENS V. HARRY HARE'S ORCHESTRAL BAND ATHLETIC CLUB.

Played near Bristol on Saturday, Nov. 10. In the evening an orchestral and gramophone concert was arranged by Messrs. Archie Hamlin and Harry Hare. In the match the following were the teams:—

H. Hare's Band.—W. J. Horton, goal; A. Hamblin and A. Mattock, backs; F. Harrison, P. Hewlett, and F. Stevens, half backs; L. Hamlin, H. Edwards, E. Bowman, H. Welann, and B. Everitt, forwards.

Referee, C. Watson. Linesmen, H. Hare and W. Lloyd.

Result: Bristol X.L.C.R., 1 goal; H. Hare's Band, nil. J. Aubrey scored the only goal.

THE WILLIAM MORGAN JUBILEE CELEBRATION.

In August last Mr. William Morgan, managing-director of the Scarborough Aquarium, entered upon his fiftieth year of service as a public caterer, and the celebration by a banquet and testimonial at Scarborough is fixed to take place on Friday, Nov. 30.

In his long and distinguished career as a provider of entertainment Mr. Morgan has done much to advance the cause of healthy popular amusement. He has been a noted pioneer in the development of dramatic and musical enterprise, and has achieved a success that it has been given to few to equal. Mr. Morgan was the first to introduce complete London companies into the provinces, the first to give concerts by the greatest artists at popular prices, and the first to open all-day entertainments for a covering sixpenny admission.

In Bradford, Blackpool, Scarborough, Morecambe, Preston, Bridlington, and elsewhere Mr. Morgan's active, varied, and extensive managerial efforts have been greatly appreciated. In Scarborough he has enjoyed the distinction of filling the position of mayor for three successive years.

Such a long and honourable career as this, it was felt by Mr. Morgan's host of friends and admirers, was worthy of some special recognition, and the hearty co-operation of many well-known gentlemen in promoting a testimonial was obtained.

Sir Henry Irving, when visiting Mr. Morgan at Scarborough a couple of months before he died, expressed the opinion that Mr. Morgan had catered for the public longer than any man living in Great Britain.

The following letter from Mr. Edward Terry appeared in The Era of Oct. 20:—

Sir,—"Lest they forget," will you kindly permit me, through the medium of your columns, to call the attention of the many friends of Mr. William Morgan to the forthcoming celebration at Scarborough, when, as a recognition of fifty years of management, he will be entertained at a banquet, over which the Earl of Londesborough will preside, and be presented with a testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the dramatic and musical professions and other friends?

Mr. Morgan, as manager of the early Bradford theatres and proprietor of the Aquarium at Scarborough, of which city he has twice served the office of Mayor, is so well esteemed that I feel sure his friends only need this gentle reminder to make them anxious to participate in this interesting celebration. Mr. Valentine Fowler, of Scarborough, as hon. secretary, will be pleased to give all further particulars.—Yours faithfully, EDWARD TERRY.

MR. WILLIAM MORGAN.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, OCT. 9, 1906.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. G. L. Goodman. — The Squaw Man, with its abundance of human interest, its picturesque setting, and with capital all-round acting, is still a strong attraction here.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Sub-Lessee and Manager, Mr. Bland Holt; Business-Manager, Mr. Christie Simonsens.—The Great Millionaire is in its last week, and in view of the approaching Trafalgar celebration, Mr. Bland Holt will next produce the nautical drama of the Nelson period, called A Sailor's Knot.

THE TIVOLI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harry Rickards; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Maas.—Miss Minnie Duncan and Mr. Arthur Godfrey made their first appearance on the 6th, and created an intensely favourable impression by their admirable acting of the coster romance, Me and 'Er; Augustin and Hartley do wonderful barrel jumping; and Casselli and James, Miss Cassie Walmer, the Musical Ibsens, Harry Bedford, Victor Kelly, Olive Sexton, and Mr. Richard's double company give a bright performance.

CRITERION.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Musgrove; Directors, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn; Business-Manager, Mr. Homan Barnes.—The Fatal Wedding is again drawing packed houses. The "kiddies'" scene, cleverly managed by Mr. C. R. Stanford, and the acting of Miss Maisie Posner, are the chief attractions.

MISS HILDA BEVEGE was accorded two nights of complimentary patronage at the Palace Theatre on the 4th and 5th. The clever elocutionist appeared in Milky White, with Mr. P. Belfield as the irascible milkman, and in In Honour Bound, with Mr. Neville Meyman in the leading part. The whole affair was a pronounced success.

MELBOURNE, OCT. 9, 1906.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Holloway; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Cowan.—After a most successful run of two weeks, The Two Little Vagabonds was withdrawn on Friday evening, the last six nights of the present season being reserved for a special revival of The Shraughraun, which was staged on Saturday evening. Mr. J. P. O'Neill made an excellent Conn; Mr. Inman was a satisfactory Captain Molyneux; the part of Robert Ffolliott was ably played by Mr. Godfrey Cass; and Miss Beatrice Holloway made a charming Clare Ffolliott.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. Tallis.—After an interval of some ten years, The Belle of New York was revived by Mr. Williamson's Royal Comic Opera Company on Saturday evening before a packed house. The performance was in every way satisfactory. Miss Florence Young scored a success in the character of Violet Grey, and received hearty applause for her singing. Mr. George Lauri seemed hardly at home as Ichabod Bronson, but no doubt will improve upon his performance of Saturday night. Mr. Roberts as Harry Bronson has a part which suits him admirably. The interesting and piquant Fifi Fricot was neatly played by Miss Alma Barber; and Mr. Fred Leslie, as Blinky Bill, found scope for some excellent dancing.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Sheridan; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—It is difficult to find room for the audiences which gather to witness The Earl and the Girl, performed by Mr. John F. Sheridan and his musical comedy company. Nevertheless, the piece will only run for four more nights, as a special revival of Fun on the Bristol is announced for next Saturday evening, when Mr. Sheridan will appear as the Widow O'Brien.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—The Alaskas (lady and gentleman) made their first appearance on Saturday, and instantly leaped into public favour. They presented a remarkably clever acrobatic turn, which took the audience by surprise. The male performer is undoubtedly one of the cleverest artists in his particular line we have had in Melbourne. Les Cabiacs are still "going strong" with their clever balancing and tumbling act; Miss Henderson and her dogs are established favourites; Howard Hall is back with new songs; while a host of others contribute interesting items to a particularly strong bill.

THE LYCEUM THEATRE will be offered at auction by Messrs. Glasier and Sons, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, E.C., on Thursday, December 13. The theatre, the position of which has been greatly improved by the construction of the new thoroughfare from the Strand, covers, with adjoining premises, an area of 23,500 square feet, or over half an acre. It has recently been entirely reconstructed and brought up to the standard of modern requirements, and has a capacity for seating 2,750. Famous for its long association with the late Sir Henry Irving's greatest triumphs, the Lyceum Theatre offers a unique opportunity for the founding of a National Theatre, by which the name of the great actor might be best perpetuated. The property, which also includes shop and business premises in Exeter-street, will be sold in one lot, and vacant possession of the theatre may be had immediately.

THE LYCEUM THEATRE, ECCLES, is henceforth to be known as "The Grand Theatre and Opera House," the proprietor being Mr. C. Hamilton Baines, and the manager Mr. Ernest Hales. A formal opening was made on Monday by the Mayor (Alderman Schofield), in the presence of a large audience, including the councillors of the town. The play presented was A Noble Brother, in which the impersonation of Jerry, the tramp, by Mr. Charles Carte, was agreed to be a very clever piece of acting; the pleasing and dainty Miss Doris Brookes successfully took the part of Nana Leigh; the Colonel and his wife were ably characterised by Mr. Howard Thorne and Miss Alice Ballard respectively; the Henry Travers of Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin was good; Mr. Bert Osborne, as Jack Elsworth, filled his part ably; Miss Rosie Conroy and Mr. Michael Madden were pleasing with songs and dances; and Mr. Ronald Douglas, as the Strange Preacher, acquitted himself admirably.

A FEW more contributions to the Fred Locke Fund have come to hand this week, and Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, gratefully acknowledges the following: Scottish Musical Artists' Benevolent Fund, £1 1s.; Two Bees (Harry and Flora Blake), 5s.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BLUE MOON."

The half dozen authors and composers concerned are to be complimented upon their united efforts in placing before the public a delightfully bright entertainment, which is well worthy to rank high amongst musical plays, and will assuredly prove one of the most successful. Mr. Robert Courtneidge has lavishly assisted his colleagues by furnishing a production regardless of cost, both as to artists, costumes, and scenic display. For Chandra Nii (the Blue Moon) he has engaged Miss Florence Smithson, who originally played the part at the Lyric Theatre. A more charming representative could hardly be found, and coupled with a voice of exceptional sweetness it is easy for Miss Smithson to establish herself in the good graces of the audience. As Moolraj, the Indian juggler from the East End, Mr. Edward Lewis has a part quite to his liking, and in consequence he scores immensely. His acting promotes genuine and uproarious laughter, and the play owes not a little to his undoubted abilities. Another performer whose ability is admirably shown is Mr. Bert Gilbert, who as Private Charles Taylor gives a representation which is enjoyable to the utmost. His acting is side-splitting, and his music hall imitations (ably assisted by Miss Lulu Valli) simply convulse the audience, who keep on asking for more until the two artists are quite exhausted. Mr. Leslie Gaze makes a capital Major Callabone, and Mr. George Mudie, jun., is a dashing Bobby Scott. As Captain Jack Ormsby, Mr. Herbert Clayton worthily upholds his well-won reputation as singer and actor. The Prince Badahur of Kharika is exceedingly well played by Mr. Thomas Holding. Messrs. Arthur Wyndham and Horace Manger are very creditable as Hon. Archie May and Clive Mansfield. Miss Daisy Revett makes a pretty and vivacious Evelyn Ormsby; Millicent Leroy is undertaken by the talented Miss Lulu Valli, whose brightness and energy are extremely popular. Miss Mabel Lorrel is a satisfactory Lady Augusta Brabasham. The ladies of the chorus form pleasing and animated pictures, and Mr. Ernest Hurman capably directs the orchestra. The Indian scenes are feasts of colour, and do infinite credit to the painters—Mr. R. McCleery and Mr. Stafford Hall.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE DAIRYMAIDS."

Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company opened here to a good house on Monday. The present company is fully up to the average that have appeared here of late. The large chorus of ladies and gentlemen is powerful and well balanced, and reflects great credit upon the conductor, Mr. Alfred Bartlett, who also directs the really careful and earnest workers in the Marlborough orchestra, specially augmented for this play. Miss Violet Lloyd and Miss Rhoda Gordon equally divide the honours as the two Dairymaids, Peggy and Winifred, winning high praise at the hands of the audience. Both are charming vocalists, which adds in no little way to their very successful portrayals. Miss Violet Lloyd's principal numbers are "Tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor" and "The Sandow Girl," for which she is warmly encored. Miss Rhoda Gordon's singing of "Where is it all going to end?" with the assistance of a quartette of small maidens, is equally successful. Mr. H. Dent and Miss Rose Musgrove merit unstinted praise for their portrayals of Joe Mivens and Eliza respectively. Their acting, singing, dancing, and genuine comedy are delightful. Mr. E. Statham Staples is a comedian of no mean order, and keeps the ball of fun rolling merrily whenever he occupies the boards. His Sam Brudenell is effectively and skilfully played, and his smart humour and able comedy could not be improved upon. Mr. George Desmond's Lieut. Brudenell, R.N., is free, natural, and full of rollicking fun. Mr. Forbes Dawson contributes effectively to the whole by a smart performance as Dr. O'Bryne, R.N. Miss Edith Blanche is to be complimented on an excellent embodiment as Lady Brudenell, and the austere academy mistress, Miss Penelope Pyechase, is portrayed in a clever and diverting manner by Miss Madge Avery. As Helene Miss Beryl Vaudrey gives an able performance, playing with discretion throughout, and her musical number in Act 1 is much aplauded All the remaining parts are pleasingly interpreted. The scenic effects are brilliant, and the costumes bright and sparkling; in fact, the piece is a success from every point. The work of Mr. Stage-Manager Arthur Paterson is arduous, but most effectively and skilfully performed.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"CHARLOTTE CORDAY."

Mrs. Brown Potter, who is appearing here this week, is attracting good audiences. Charlotte Corday is written round a most interesting personality, but the piece drags very heavily at times. Mrs. Brown Potter, who looked the part well, was in every way excellent as the heroine, and gave a very dramatic rendering of the rôle. Her acting in the scene of the murder of Marat was very fine indeed. The Marat of Mr. Clarence Blakiston is a powerful impersonation, full of artistic finish, and altogether carefully thought out. Mr. Esme Percy, a young actor of marked ability, as Adam Lux called forth the highest praise, and was much admired. Mr. Edwin Palmer was good as the Comte d'Armont; Mr. F. Morland deserved credit for his fine portrayal of the Abbé Fleuriot; the artist, M. David, was presented in capital fashion by Mr. Laurence Grant, who had a fine grip of the part; Potin, the barber, was amusingly depicted by Mr. Frank Collins, who made much of a small part; Mr. Harold Payne was seen to advantage as M. Lagarde; the part of Rose de Corday D'Armont was charmingly filled by Miss Dora Maitland; and Miss Lena Pierpoint did well as Simonne Eveard. The play was preceded by Mr. Barclay Gammon "and a piano," the combination causing much amusement. His description of an oratorio, and his impersonation of a German professor were highly diverting.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Romantic Drama, entitled
"DOROTHY O' THE HALL."

Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry always find great favour in the eyes of Kensingtonians, and the romantic drama, Dorothy o' the Hall, by Paul Kester and Charles Major, with its exciting episodes and its introduction to the audience of the ill-fated Queen of Scots, and her vain, jealous, and imperious rival, "good Queen Bess," is exactly suited to their taste. Miss Julia Neilson has a grand part, and one suited to her charm and versatility, as Dorothy Vernon, the passionate, impulsive, self-willed, and beautiful. Her changes of mood, her mother wit, her material temperament, her love of romance and resentment of all control, and, above all, her courage and resolution, are depicted with grace, refinement, and fascinating artlessness. Unfortunately, Mr. Fred Terry was indisposed early in the week, but an able substitute was provided in the shape of Mr. Alfred Kendrick, who is the reckless young gallant, the daring and dauntless young lover, to the life. Handsome and debonair, and full of energy and vitality, and by no means lacking in distinction and nobility of bearing, he has earned encomiums galore. Miss Miriam Lewes has won golden opinions by her telling impersonation of Elizabeth Tudor, Queen of England, her vanity and caprice, her jealous suspicion and petty tyranny and weakness, and her marvellous knowledge of statecraft, are admirably indicated. Miss Lilias Waldegrave contributes a deeply pathetic portraiture of the beautiful and ill-starred Mary Queen of Scots; Miss Claire Pauncefort is exceedingly entertaining as the fond mother, Lady Vernon, Sir George's kinswoman; and Miss Mary Mackenzie is a pretty and vivacious maid, Jenny Flaxton. Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw does not spare himself in his depiction of the villainous and craven cur, Sir Malcolm Vernon, and both in manner and appearance is every inch a villain of the deepest dye. The scene of the sword-play between himself and Dorothy in the watch tower of Rutland Castle keeps the audience in breathless suspense. Mr. Horace Hodges is admirable as Perkin, a dwarf and jester to the Earl of Rutland, and his simple loyalty and affection deeply moves the spectators. Mr. J. Carter Edwards, as the choleric and self-willed Sir George Vernon, gives yet another excellent exposition of character; and Mr. D. J. Williams renders the rôle of William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, with most impressive realism; whilst Mr. Frederick Groves, as the Earl of Rutland, and others are well in the picture in minor rôles. Mr. John R. Turnbull is stage-manager and Mr. Arthur Garrett business-manager, Mr. Sydney Falkes directing the music written by Mr. Raymond Roze especially for this New Theatre production.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Play, by Walter Melville, entitled
"HER SECOND TIME ON EARTH."

For those who like something sensational, there is nothing more suitable than the kind of play which is being presented at the Dalston Theatre this week in the shape of Mr. Walter Melville's piece entitled Her Second Time on Earth. Miss Hilda Beverley has a trying part to play as Dora Grey, but she sustains it in a way that proves her to be an actress of considerable power. The female cast has really much to recommend it in the matter of sincere acting. Miss Polly Marsh, as Elizabeth Burk, a drunken woman, affords real amusement by the clever character-sketch of a certain class of society woman which she represents; Miss Alexandra Lisle and Miss K. Garrett represent a couple of hospital nurses calculated to soothe the most irritable invalid. Miss Dorothy Hildebrande portrays the vivacious daughter of Captain Norman, and Miss Agnes Rose and Miss Marie Kildare are servants of the usual knowing and up-to-date class. Captain Jasper Norman, of the passenger ship Albatross, has a realistic representative in Mr. John Nolan, and a typical hero is provided by Mr. Frank R. Robinson. Mr. Cyril Vernon is Tom Norman, the captain's son; Mr. Leonard Aardale is properly mysterious as Beppo, an Italian, and the villainous element is effectively introduced by Mr. W. H. Porter as Guy Brand, who is rightly labelled a parasite. Others in the cast are Mr. Fred Yarnold, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Will Corrie (Teddy Butterfly), Mr. A. McWilliam, Mr. C. Hermon, Mr. J. Willmore, Mr. W. Clarke, and Mr. Webster.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Drama, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

There can hardly, one would think, be anyone among the regular Woolwich theatre-goers who has not seen the above time-honoured drama, but its power of drawing good audiences, and keeping them thoroughly interested, seems not to have abated one jot so far as this town is concerned. On Monday night there was an excellent house to welcome Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, who worthily kept up the traditions of Mr. H. A. Jones's great play. Mr. Herbert Ford is responsible for a sterling representation of Wilfred Denver, and, though he plays the part on the accepted lines, yet infuses it with an individuality all his own. Mr. Ford is perhaps at his best in the great dream speech in the third act, which he gives with a force and earnestness that hold the house spellbound. The rôle of Daniel Jaikes could scarcely be in better hands than those of Mr. Tom Paulton; the old man's fidelity to his master and mistress, his humour, and his pathos, are rendered with the truth to nature and the artistic skill that mark the work of the genuine actor. As Nellie Denver Miss Victoria Addison proves herself an emotional actress of considerable power, and fully enlists the sympathies of the audience for this unfortunate woman. Mr. Charles Baird, as the Spider, is indeed a villain of the deepest dye, and easily earns his reward in the shape of hearty execrations from the "gods." Mr. Henry Osman is really humorous as Elijah Coombe; and Mr. Claude Vernon's rendering of the inane Henry Corket causes a good deal of laughter. Miss Viola Holland plays Olive Skinner with distinction, and makes the most of a rather poor part; Miss Amy Wood is amusingly loquacious as Tabitha Durden; Mr. Percy Stone makes a hit as the parish clerk; and Miss Jessie Apted is an intelligent Cissie Denver. The play is well mounted and staged, a particularly effective set being the cottage scene in the third act.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Drama, by G. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled
"THE TRUMPET CALL."

It is many years since the Trumpet Call was produced at the Adelphi Theatre with Mr. Leonard Boyne, Miss Evelyn Millard, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell in the leading rôles, but the piece has never lost its hold upon the affections of the playgoer, and accordingly at Peckham, as elsewhere, it receives a very heary welcome. The interpretation of the well-known play by Messrs. Charles F. Cooke's company is excellent in every respect. Mr. Leonard Yorke makes a tall and soldier-like hero as Cuthbert Cuthbertson, and soon enlists the sympathies of the house. Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill achieves a great success in the part of the sorely-tried young wife, Constance Cuthbertson, acting with much pathos. Miss Doris Gilham gives a very fine performance as the gipsy adventuress, Astrea, and is loudly applauded for her fine acting, especially in the "Doss-house" scene in the third act. Mr. Joe Bracewell has a good low comedy rôle as Professor Ginnifer, which he makes very amusing, and Lavinia is brightly played by Miss Phyllis B. French. The not-wholly bad Richard Featherstone is excellently acted by Mr. John Dennys; and Mr. Charles F. Cooke is a bluff and soldierly Sergeant-Major Milligan. Mr. Freddie Bentley, as Tommy Dutton, contributes an amusing character-sketch as the young private. Mr. W. G. Blunt is powerful in the rôle of the dissolute James Redruth. The other characters are all adequately played, and the scenery and effects leave nothing to be desired.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE COUNTRY GIRL."

The charm and attraction of The Country Girl have been in no way diminished by her long sojourn in the metropolis, and with new dresses, and songs and dances, she is this week adding large numbers of the Clapham playgoers to her list of conquests. Mr. George Dance has got together a highly-talented company, and the piece goes with a swing from start to finish. Mr. John M. Hay as Geoffrey Challoner is seen to advantage, and his rendering of the song, "My little girlie girl," elicited rounds of applause. Mr. Arthur Jackson is thoroughly efficient as Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr. Charles Stafford, who is also stage-manager, does all that is possible in the rôle of Douglas Verity. Mr. Coningsby Brierley as Barry is irresistibly droll, his clever acting keeping the audience in a state of uproarious laughter throughout, and ensuring the success of the play. The part of the Rajah of Bhong is in the safe hands of Mr. F. J. Rooney, who scored a success with the topical song in the second act, the allusion to local events being received with hearty cheers. Granfer Mummery has an excellent representative in Mr. H. A. Mather, who gives an admirable study of an old countryman; and Mr. H. W. Hewlett as Lord Anchester and Mr. J. Valentine as Lord Grassmere prove highly capable exponents of their respective parts. Miss Ellaline Thorne is a sprightly Nan. Throwing herself whole-heartedly into her work, and singing several songs with considerable skill, Miss Thorne acquits herself with great success. A delightful foil is the Marjory Joy of Miss Barbara Babbington, who acts her part with quiet sincerity, and renders her songs with much expression, the "Coo" ditty being warmly applauded. Miss Ernestine Desborough makes an ideal Princess Melaneh, and her singing was greatly admired, especially in the song, "Under the Deodar," which was deservedly encored. Miss Sissie Sephton as Mme. Sophie comes out very strong indeed, her singing and dancing make a deep impression, and her "Two little chicks" duet with Barry is one of the tit-bits of the piece. Miss Muriel Johnson is well suited to the part of Mrs. St. Quinton; and Miss Leslie St. John capably sustains the rôle of Lady Anchester. The minor parts are well played, and the chorus, under the direction of Mr. Herbert Robertson, render the concerted pieces with considerable effect. The play is staged with completeness, and the costumes, &c., excite general admiration. Mr. George Blunt is business-manager for Mr. Geo. Dance.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Comedy Drama, in Three Acts,
by Herbert Keith and J. T. Tanner, entitled
"THE BROKEN MELODY."

M. Auguste van Biene, the well-known actor and musician, is this week fulfilling a return engagement in the evergreen play, with which he has been so long associated. Time apparently has had no effect on the public favour that has for so many years attached itself to the production, and as a result we see it now practically on the eve of celebrating its 5000th performance. By far the greatest reason for this is, of course, the acceptable manner in which it serves to introduce M. van Biene in the dual rôle of actor and 'cellist. And, as a consequence, good business has been the result at the Grand, M. van Biene himself winning golden opinions alike for his excellent portrayal of Paul Borinski, and his skill as a 'cello soloist. Both have given great pleasure, and his reception has been gratifying in the extreme. Mr. Henry Ludlow, as the General, gives a good performance, never overdone; Mr. Falkner Cox as Mortimer submits a humorous reading; and Mr. Lawrence Grove as Beaujoir also contributes to the amusement of the audience with success. Mr. Archie Selwyn, as the Hon. Richard Spinnacker, acts with an evident realisation of its opportunities; and Mr. W. Thomson, as the Doctor, submits a neat little study. Miss Rosemary Rees, as the Duchess, gives an excellent and clever impersonation, and contributes materially to the success of the evening. Miss May Mannering, as Mrs. Spinnaker, portrays the vulgar, but good-hearted, woman, in a natural manner; Miss Rosie Lewis as Mrs. Dickson deserves mention; and Miss Lena Burnleigh as Borinski's wife again repeats her sympathetic performance of a part she has made entirely her own. The remaining smaller parts are all in good hands. As an after piece, M. van Biene has chosen The First Night. His reading, which is in a purely comic vein, is very successful, and he receives excellent support from the members of his company.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Play, by Jacob Gordon, entitled
"MAN AND DEVIL."

In Jacob Gordon's Man and Devil the author has not struck out any new ground in his play, as it is soon apparent that the main argument has been taken bodily from Goethe's Faust. On Monday night the piece held the audience, and was successful in arousing their sympathy, although the redundancy of dialogue delaying the incident, kept the house thoroughly interested until a very late hour; while the suicide in the concluding scene was worked so ineffectively as to become almost bathos. The performance by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company left nothing to be desired on the score of efficiency, all being well up in their parts, while great care had been exercised in the mounting and scenery, which was in every respect admirable. Mr. S. Feinman was good, but a trifle lugubrious, as Herschele Dubrovner, and played throughout with much earnestness, feeling, and judgment. Although Mr. M. D. Waxman did his best as Uriel Mazik (Mephistopheles), the characterisation seemed to be forced, while the necessary "abandon" appeared to be singularly lacking. A remarkably fine portraiture of Freidele was given by Mme. F. Waxman, which was marked by such artistic skill as to call forth the gratifying acknowledgments from the well-filled house. Excellently made-up, Mr. S. Schilling displayed his wonted cleverness as Reb Leizer Badchen; and Mme. R. Waxman gave a finished impersonation of Sesele; while Mme. Goldstein deserves unstinted praise for her reading of Doba. Mme. J. Kayzer scored a decided success, and was bright, pleasing, and vivacious as Zipenu; and Mr. N. Hamburger made a competent Workman. A vigorous representative of Chazkel Drachma was found in Mr. J. Fineberg, who, by his intensely fine performance in the trying last scene, fairly roused the audience to enthusiasm; while that talented artist, Mr. J. Scherman, who possesses rare and versatile powers, presented a picturesque portrayal of Motele, his splendid acting in the death scene being a histrionic triumph. During the week A Father's Sacrifice, The Rich Beggar, David's Violin, Schmendrick, and Holy Sabbath have been played.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the D'Oyly Carte Principal Répertoire Opera Company, in Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's Operas.

That the vogue of the Gilbert and Sullivan opera is as great as ever is amply shown by the crowded houses all this week at the Fulham Theatre. There is something in the work of Gilbert and Sullivan, when the two great collaborators were in their prime, that places their productions on a different plane to that of any other librettist and composer. Amongst other works, the eminently bright and merry Gondoliers is not the least attractive, and an excellent performance of it was given on Tuesday. It is claimed for this company—and probably with justice—that they are the truest inheritors of the old Savoy traditions. Mr. C. H. Workman enjoys a high reputation as an exponent of Grossmith parts, and did full justice to it in his rendering of the part of the Duke of Plaza Toro, being delightfully quaint and amusing. Mr. Fred Billington is a tower of sternth as the Grand Inquisitor, and in his inimitable manner fully brought out the dry humour and biting satire of the lines. Mr. Pacie Ripple and Mr. Albert Kavanagh made an admirable pair of gondoliers, and both were in fine voice; while Mr. Leicester Tunks did well as Luiz. Miss Mabel Graham was charming as Casilda, and sang admirably; and Miss Hope Hastings and Miss Lulu Evans gave excellent renderings of the parts of Gianetta and Tessa. Miss Theresa Rassam was a stately Duchess; and Miss Ellen Whyte was satisfactory as Inez. All the favourite songs had to be repeated, and the whole went with admirable brightness and precision, to which the skilful conducting of Mr. T. Silver contributes not a little. The other operas given were The Mikado, The Yeomen of the Guard, Patience, Princess Ida, Pinafore, and Trial by Jury.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE GAY PARISIENNE."

Mr. Charles Macdona, supported by a capital company, is appearing here this week in this highly successful musical comedy. Mr. Macdona represents Major Fossdyke, of the Battersea Butterfly Shooters, and deserves warm praise for a highly finished and artistic performance. Mr. Will Harman is exceedingly good as Mr. Ebenezer Honeycombe, whose wife is capitally impersonated by Miss Holford Beringer, while the daughter, Sarah, is represented by Miss Ethel Ivimey with much success. Miss Madge Soutter is an admirable Ruth; the four daughters of the Major—Angela, Maud, Ethel, and Gladys—have charming representatives in Misses Kathleen O'Malley, E. McHardy, Gertrude Davies, and Nance O'Neill. Mr. Douglas Howard is good as Amos Dingle; Mr. Edgar Ashwin is a manly and earnest Tom Everleigh; Mr. Dutton Nicholls is excellent as the American, Algernon P. Ducie; while his friend, Percy Tooting, is well played by Mr. Harry Bedbrook. Mr. J. Fitzjames is good as Hans, and the same remark applies to Miss Loie James, who depicts Gretchen; Miss Florence Vickers is an amusing Anna. The remaining male characters are in the capable hands of Messrs. Bloomfield Jones, Richard Rose, Laurie Graham, Leslie Hetherington, Stewart Williams, and Clifford Leyler. Miss Elsie Scott is bright as Susan, and Miss Evelyn Hughes' performance of Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon is full of dainty charm and attractive vivacity. Miss Hughes is altogether delightful in the part, and was warmly welcomed by the large audience. A whistling solo is introduced by Mr. Cecil Lawrence and vocal quartettes by the Imperial Glee Singers—Messrs. Jones, Rose, Ashwin, and Fitzjames—are applauded. Mr. George Encyl Lewis is the musical conductor, and Mr. Charles Besley is the manager for Mr. Macdona.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
The Chinese Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled,
"SAN TOY; or, THE EMPEROR'S OWN."

The ever-popular San Toy is at Poplar this week, and the members of Mr. Mouillot's clever company deserve the highest praise for the excellent manner in which they present this charming musical play. Miss Bessie Allayne as San Toy wins all hearts by her bright and joyous manner. She is possessed of a beautiful voice which is heard to great advantage, especially in her duet with Fo Hop, entitled "When you are married." Miss Irene Lavington gives a picturesque and dainty rendering of the part of Poppy, and sings with taste and feeling. As Dudley, Miss Lottie Sargent is brilliant and full of life. Her duets are particularly successful, and the solo "Rhoda and her pagoda" gained a well-deserved encore. The Yen How of Mr. William Jordan is exceedingly good, and his songs, bristling with topical allusions, are all well received. In the "Six little wives" song, which is well received, Miss Martini, Miss Dorothy Amery, Miss Kitty Maclaren, Miss Francis Lane, Miss Gladys Whate, and Miss Grace Rosaire (the principal wife) all admirably enact their parts. Mr. Arthur Cartwright as Captain Bobby Preston gives a capital performance, and his "Motherland" song is received with acclamation. Mr. Robert Rivers makes an excellent Sir Bingo Preston, and the Emperor of Mr. Ernest Gadstone could not be bettered. Mr. George Taylor looks and acts well as Lieutenant Harvey Tucker, and Mr. Charles Cobb is well placed as Sing Hi. As the mirth-provoking Li, Mr. Bert Edwards is truly whimsical and funny. His singing is equally successful, and his duets with Dudley are enthusiastically encored. In addition to being a finished comedian, Mr. Edwards is a capital dancer. Smaller parts are all well cast, and the piece is admirably staged.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Musical Play, by Gustav Kerker, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

After an absence of nearly four years "the Belle" was as warmly welcomed back to the riverside town on Monday evening as on the occasion of its last visit. Mr. Geo. Musgrove's company is a strong combination, and amongst its members are some artists who have already won the hearts of Kingston playgoers. A particularly cordial reception was given Miss Empsie Bowman, who again appears as the belle, and plays well up to the traditions of the part. Another favourite is Mr. Frank Lawton, who is as entertaining as ever in the part of Blinky Bill, his whistling and dancing being particularly appreciated. Miss Florence Hersee makes a very acceptable appearance as the Pell-street, girl; and Miss Florence Maxwell, as Fifi, sings and acts most agreeably. Others deserving of particular mention are Mr. John Doronu as Harry Bronson, Miss Winnie Browne as Cora Angelique, Mr. Max Copeland as the polite lunatic, and Messrs. P. Dupres, Alfred Sandoe, Walter Uridge, Lionel Yeoman, and R. Ray L. Cody. The chorus and an augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. E. Woodville.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Howard, entitled
"TWO LITTLE DRUMMER BOYS."

A very favourable reception has been accorded Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company in Marylebone this week, Mr. Bailey's cosy theatre being well patronised on the night of our visit. Mr. Archie Helsby gives a forcible portrayal of Capt. George Darrell, and thoroughly succeeds in bringing his villainous machinations well to the fore. Mr. Edward Bikker presents a dignified bearing as General Kingsley, V.C.; Mr. Fred Emery commands much sympathy as Capt. Frank Carsdale; Mr. Harry Lindon works with energy and will as Timothy Trimmer; whilst Mr. J. Magrath's broad and humorous delineation of Quiney O'Quirke is provocative of much genuine merriment. Miss Mildred Eversleigh sustains the rôle of Alma Kingsley in a tender and sympathetic way; Miss Kathleen Magee acts Margaret Rivers with such life-like fidelity that all hearts go out in sympathy to the sorrowing drunken wastrel she so vividly presents; Miss Edie Macklin is pert and engaging as Molly Meadows, the pet of the regiment; and the two little drummer boys, Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith, find capable exponents in Miss Lily Beverley and Miss Maggie English respectively. The play is well mounted and staged, Mr. Harry Lyndon being the acting-manager for Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley.

LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

In Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's play The Village Blacksmith, as presented by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, there is quite an old favourite at the Lyric Opera House this week. The story which Mr. Wallace gives us is an admirable combination of the ingredients that go to the making of melodrama. The village blacksmith has married a woman with a past, and her evil genius soon appears on the scene in the person of Captain Leo, a professional athlete and a rogue to boot. The hero is tricked into believing that his wife is unfaithful to him, and breaks the neck of the villain in a wrestling match. This great struggle is the outstanding feature of the play, and occupies the greater part of the last act. Mr. Sam Livesey, as John Strong, the village blacksmith, acts powerfully, his "insanity" being cleverly done, and his splendid physique standing him in good stead in the wrestling match. Mr. Joseph Carter is also well fitted to play his part of Captain Leo. To see these two struggling on the mat one would think that they were wrestling for a purse of gold instead of each playing a part. The whole scene is very realistic, and is watched with keen interest by the audience. In consequence of the illness this week of Miss Maggie Edwards, her part of the heroine, Kate Strong, has been played, and played most effectively, by Miss Cassie le Grande, who has been obliged to give up her rôle of the tinker's daughter to Miss Edith Giddens, a talented daughter of George Giddens. Mr. Thomas E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins, a travelling tinker, submits a good character performance, and Mr. George V. Campbell, as Billy Twigg, a country lout, creates roars of laughter. The part of Captain Leo's confederate, Lucas Marlow, is most graphically delineated by Mr. Edwin Maydew. The other members of the company ably sustain their individual rôles, and the play—which, by the way, has now been running for two and a half years—is staged in an exceptionally elaborate manner.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE FOUR JUST MEN."

The air of mystery which surrounds the doings of The Four Just Men, a self-constituted tribunal which has for its main object the thwarting of a Parliamentary Bill for the extradition of foreign political offenders, provides a subject of absorbing interest, and those present at the Borough Theatre on Monday night followed with the closest attention this clever stage adaption of Mr. Edgar Wallace's popular book. The leader of "The Four," Geo. Manfred, is realistically portrayed by Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, whose acting is most impressive and convincing. Jules Poiccart has a manly and fluent exponent in Mr. Gordon Bailey; Mr. Hubert Willis exhibits much resource and versatility in his embodiment of Leon Gonsolez; and the fourth of the conspirators, Miguel Thery, is powerfully and graphically played by Mr. E. H. Dobell. The unbending Foreign Secretary, Sir Philip Ramon, is incisively portrayed by Mr. H. Elliott Ball; and Mr. Legai Robinson is seen to advantage in such contrasted rôles as Mr. Greenham, M.P., and the gaol-bird, Billy Marks, the latter being especially good. Mr. Lewis Scott plays Sir Charles Barrington very appropriately, and Mr. Algernon J. Hicks renders good service as General Trelovitch. Mr. Leonard Williams as Manuel Garcia plays with buoyancy and ease; the Megaphone editor is smartly impersonated by Mr. Edward Russell; Superintendent Falmouth is admirably depicted by Mr. Charles Terric; and Mr. Wm. Allison makes an alert Inspector Howard. As the impressionable and incautious Juanita Ramon, Miss Dorothea Desmond plays with much charm; and as Mrs. Travers, a widow "from the other side," Miss Alys Rees acts capitally. The company is under the direction of Mr. Cecil Barth, and the piece is exceedingly well staged.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Drama, by Arthur Jefferson, entitled
"THE ORPHAN HEIRESS."

The members of the able stock company at this theatre are seen to their accustomed advantage this week in the above drama. Mr. Arthur Jefferson has done his work excellently, and his production is full of incidents and hair-breadth escapes, while that very necessary item, "the comic relief," is well provided for. Mr. Astley Page has a heroic part after his own heart in Lawrence Gordon, and, needless to say, he gets every ounce out of it. Miss Marion Denvil makes an excellent representative of the sorely-tried young maiden, Mabel Ainsley; and Edith Mowbray, her faithful friend, is very well acted by Miss Ida Phillips; Miss Maggie Lindsay makes a notable success as Lady Ainsley, acting with much delicacy and pathos. Her death scene is very effectively rendered. Mr. Alfred Harding shows the villainy of Douglas Kingston in most lurid colours; and Mr. John Sargent contributes another of his clever character-sketches as the circus proprietor, Loski. Mr. Johnny Chippendale has plenty of fat as the ubiquitous Ginger, being, as usual, intensely amusing; while he is ably assisted in the fun making by Miss Mattie Everett as Betsy Baggles, and Mr. Gerald Morgan as Jenkins. Miss Georgie De Lara contributes a clear-cut sketch of depravity as Olive Kingston. Mr. Tom Taylor as the blind Lord Ainsley, and Mr. Hal Travers as Craven, are both well played. The scenery and effects are capital.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Drama, in Four Acts,
by Arthur Shirley and Wm. Muskerry, entitled
"A CITY OF SIN."

In taking the French capital as a city of sin, the authors have abundant scope for a plentiful supply of thrilling incidents, and in depicting scenes from the seamy side of the "gay city" they have provided a dramatic dish which should exactly suit the tastes of popular audiences. It is the return visit of the piece to Stratford, and on the opening night of the week it secured an enthusiastic reception. Messrs. Dottridge, Longden and Elliott's company has evidently been selected with care, and the mounting of the piece is very appropriate. Mr. Conrad Heywood, as Paul Lorraine, a hunted man, is often called upon for quick changes of personality, which are accomplished with a Fregoli-like alertness, and throughout he plays with much ability and resource. Mortain, of the police, is portrayed by Mr. J. Berresford Innes with a quiet incisiveness which is most effective; and a fine sketch of the brutish Zip Barzon comes from Mr. Wilfred Braham, who declaims his lines with much vigour and fluency. Mr. W. H. Burton fulfils all requirements as Bertrand; Mr. J. Gardner is well placed as Boulard; and Mr. W. G. Clements makes a smart Sergeant of Police. Miss Edith Wallis is a charming Alice Bertrand, and acts throughout with much expression; and Ilma, Mortain's victim, is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Jenny Weston. Comic relief is provided by the exuberances of Bibi Lebœuf and Titi Culotte, two much-married men, who are most divertingly portrayed by Mr. C. W. Spencer and Mr. Val W. Gully, though they should scarcely bewail their lot when allied to such sprightly damsels as Zazotte and Chonette, who have very prepossessing exponents in Miss Polly Denville and Miss Elvira Stuart.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN and Miss Beatrice Wilson will form one of the chief attractions of a bazaar to be opened by the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk at Hove on Thursday. The popular players will appear in a duologue.

THE Sir Michael Costa Scholarship (composition), in connection with the Royal Academy of Music, has been awarded to Oskar Hambleton Borsdorf, a native of London. The adjudicators were Messrs. F. Corder, Stewart Macpherson, and Sir Alexander Mackenzie.

"THE VICAR OF WAKEFIELD."

Dr. Primrose ..... MR. DAVID BISPHAM
Mrs. Primrose ..... MRS. THEODORE WRIGHT
Olivia ..... MISS VIOLETTE LONDA
Sophia ..... MISS EDITH CLEGG
Moses ..... MR. ARTHUR ELDRED
Dick ..... MASTER GORDON TRAVIS
Bill ..... MISS ELFIN ARTHUR
Mr. Burchell ..... MR. RICHARD TEMPLE
Squire Thornhill ..... MR. WALTER HYDE
Mr. Jenkinson ..... MR. C. ORAM LANDER
Farmer Williams ..... MR. POWIS PINDER
Lady Blarney ..... MME. AMY MARTIN
Carolina Wilhelmina Amelia Skeggs ..... MISS VALERIE DE LACY
A Gipsy ..... MISS BELLA WALLIS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Described as a light romantic opera, The Vicar of Wakefield was produced by Mr. Hugh Moss, for Mr. David Bispham, at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday last, the 14th. The texture of the adaptation (about the authorship of which the programme says only that Mr. Laurence Housman is not to be held responsible) might have suggested a better description. It is light and idyllic, presenting the sentiment of the story rather than exploiting its dramatic possibilities. The whole production, in short, is in the nature of a musical idyll, and would gain in total effect by being so described.

The action opens in the Vicar's garden, in summer, and the theme of Olivia's inclination toward the wicked young Squire Thornhill is gently played upon—to the accompaniment of her father's desire that she shall wed Farmer Williams, and the watchful, but inscrutable, presence of Mr. Burchell. Signs of the rakish propensities of the Squire are not too obtrusive. He sings a song which makes the Vicar shake his head in protest, but on the whole his function is to answer the musical requirement of a lover with a tenor voice. Unobtrusive also is Mr. Burchell, a character capable of much greater development. The love theme is amplified in the second act, which takes place in the cornfield in autumn. It is obvious that Farmer Williams has no chance of the prize, and that Olivia must bestow herself upon the Squire. But sinister suggestions are afoot. The Squire's secretary, Mr. Jenkinson, the disgraced priest, who nevertheless is still in holy orders, is evilly insistent upon inveigling Olivia into a disgraceful mesh, by which he shall gain a hold upon the Squire, while giving the latter his opportunity of betrayal. Lady Blarney and Miss Skeggs make their appearance to this end; but they are routed by Mr. Burchell, who is made to suffer the penalty of his interference. The act ends by the elopement of Olivia with the Squire and the setting forth of the Vicar in search of her. The culmination occurs in the Vicar's cottage at Christmas, where the Vicar has returned with his daughter, and the Squire turns up to claim his lawful wife. This act is rather lachrymose, and might be "cut" with advantage; but it offers Squire Thornhill an opportunity of acting heroically, which redeems him in the eyes of everybody—the audience included—and brings about a happy settlement of affairs.

This outline of the story is filled in by characteristic details, of which one is the revelation of Mr. Burchell's identity, and another may be summed up as the exposition of Mrs. Primrose. The latter is not vocal; she is a consummate piece of acting in the person of Mrs. Theodore Wright, and may be set down as one of the best—certainly the most natural—features of the play. Praise may be freely accorded also to Mr. David Bispham for his singing, which was always beautifully modulated and full of individual expression, while his embodiment of the Vicar, if somewhat overstudied in tone, was dignified and appealing. As Olivia, Miss Violette Londa showed herself even more skilled in singing than in acting; her voice is remarkably clear and sweet. Miss Edith Clegg was excellent in all respects as Sophia, here movements being always natural and lively and her voice of a rich, full tone. As Squire Thornhill Mr. Walter Hyde sang strenuously and well, deserving his share of the frequent applause that fell to all the singers, individually and collectively. In a minor way Mr. Richard Temple sang also, but his opportunities were stinted, though his impersonation of Mr. Burchell was interesting and effective. One of the treats of the evening was the singing of Master Gordon Travis as Dick. The remaining parts were rendered satisfactorily.

As for Mme. Lehmann's music, it was a considerable factor in the success which the production undoubtedly gained on Monday night, and nothing would satisfy a clamorous audience but her appearance on the stage. The orchestra (augmented) and chorus were conducted by Mr. Hamish MacCunn. For the sake of the music alone it is to be hoped that Mr. David Bispham's expressed belief in a prosperous future for the piece will be realised.

MR. BOURCHIER AS MACBETH.

We should but discount the forthcoming appearance of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier in Macbeth at the Garrick Theatre in December were we to devote detailed analysis to what must have been a more or less experimental performance of the play at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, on Tuesday. Mr. Bourchier, who has been appearing with his company in The Walls of Jericho at Birmingham, certainly gave a reading of the rôle of the murderous Thane which was thoroughly original, and quite untrammelled by musty traditions. His presentation of his conception of the character to Londoners is certain to be deeply interesting, and may be awaited with the most agreeable expectation. Miss Violet Vanbrugh's Lady Macbeth was entirely free from the stiltedness and staginess which have marred some previous presentations of the part, and was full of picturesque power and individuality. Mr. Arthur Whitley was excellent as Banquo; Mr. Leveson Lane's Duncan was a dignified and kindly conception; and Mr. Lawson Butt was energetic and earnest as Macduff. Mr. H. Nye Chart, Mr. Harrison-Carter, and Mrs. Nye Chart were grotesquely weird as the Witches; and the support in other instances was sound, careful, and satisfactory. Notwithstanding the limited size of the Memorial Theatre stage, the mounting of the play was very artistic and effective; the dresses designed by Mr. Percy Anderson were sumptuously rich and splendid; and Mr. McCleery's scenery and Mr. Rickett's music contributed greatly to the general success of the revival. Mr. Bourchier dispensed with the Hecate scene, but retained the often-omitted fourth scene in the second act; and he dealt quite reverently with the Shakespearean text. A large and enthusiastic audience, many of whom had come over from Birmingham by special train, gave the revival a highly enthusiastic reception, and at its conclusion Mr. Bourchier was obliged to make a short speech, in which he thanked the governors of the Memorial for inviting him to Stratford-on-Avon, admitted the valuable help in the production which had been given to him by Mr. Alan Mackinnon, and expressed his pleasure at having presented Macbeth in the town of Shakespeare's birthplace.

AMALGAMATED MUSICIANS' CLUB OPENING.

The Amalgamated Musicians' Union opened their new club premises at Trafalgar House, 9, Great Newport-street, W.C., on Sunday last. Mr. J. O'Grady, M.P., performed the opening ceremony, and amongst the guests and friends present were Mr. J. M. Glover, Mayor of Bexhill and Musical Director of Drury Lane Theatre, Mr. A. Wood, chef d'orchestrè of the Apollo Theatre, Mr. C. Bowerman, M.P., L.C.C., Mr. G. Dew, L.C.C., Mr. H. Gosling, L.C.C., Mr. J. A. Dawes, J.P., L.C.C., Councillors B. Cope and P. MacDonnell, of Southwark, Mr. Frank Gerald, of the Variety Artists Federation, Mr. J. B. Williams, general secretary of the A.M.U., and Mr. F. Young (Glasgow), Mr. E. S. Teale (Manchester), and Mr. R. Chamberlain (Nottingham), of the General Council of the A.M.U.

The Chairman, in declaring the club open, mentioned that one of the objects of the institutions was to provide a central meeting place for all branches of the entertainment profession in London. Hitherto there had been a great need for such a club, but no one had taken the trouble to work the matter out. The London branch of the A.M.U., having to obtain new premises for their own use, had decided to take the initiative. The result was, as they saw, a magnificent new club, with a billiard room, which had two up-to-date billiard tables, lavatory accommodation, with hot and cold water, a reading and writing room, where the members could rest themselves in luxurious arm-chairs, and a bar, where refreshments could be obtained at most reasonable charges. No one could gainsay the fact that the Musicians' Union had done their work well in providing this club, and he felt sure that the musicians, artists, choristers, and heads of stage departments, for whose benefit it was provided, would soon appreciate its advantages. He understood that the use of the club would be free to the members of the A.M.U., because it was they who had provided it, but it was open to any member of the profession to join the club for a nominal subscription of 10s. per annum. That, he considered, was a great inducement to all those engaged in the West End houses, particularly those who could not get home between the matinée and evening performances. It would also be a great advantage to those who were out of employment, as well as those who were in employment, as a place of meeting. He hoped, however, that the musicians using this club would not look upon it as the only object the Musicians' Union had in view. He understood that the principles of the A.M.U. were to raise the position and status of those following the profession of music as a means of livelihood. That was a noble object, and he trusted that all present would remember that without organisation they would never achieve their objects, and in these days of keen competition and syndicates and trusts the man who was not organised went to the wall sooner than the man who was. He concluded by asking all present to drink "prosperity to the A.M.U. Club and Institute."

Councillor J. A. Dawes, J.P., L.C.C., followed with a few brief remarks in support of the toast.

Councillor J. M. Glover, on rising to support the toast, was received with loud cheers. He said he believed in the principles of unionism, and he generally found that the man who did not join a union of some sort generally ended his days in one. Mr. Glover described how musicians, by not standing together, and having a recognised scale of prices, cut the ground from under the feet of those who tried to help them. He pointed out that men who were receiving certain fees from some conductors would, without any hesitation, accept lower terms offered by other conductors when they had nothing else to do. He contended that they should have prices for all engagements, and stick to them. In a racy, humorous way, Mr. Glover went on, combining sound advice with side-splitting Irish jokes, told chiefly against himself. He said he had been conductor of Drury Lane Theatre for the past fourteen years, and that no one else had been there longer than three years. The reason for this was, he considered, that he seldom turned up to conduct. Whenever he was away from Bexhill for awhile something always happened. He happened to be away for a few days recently, and during his absence someone went and made him the Mayor. He could not understand why people did these things. Mr. Glover concluded by telling the following amusing story concerning his own electioneering experiences. It appears that Mr. Glover had an Irish servant girl. When he removed to Bexhill he sent for Bridget, and explained to her all about election matters, and told her that he was going to stand for the Council. Just before the election, for which Mr. Glover was one of the candidates, he arrived at Bexhill one day, and outside the station he met an old fisherman who was well known in the town. He approached Mr. Glover, and explained that times were very hard. He was hard up, but he hoped Mr. Glover would win his election. He then offered to sell him two large fish which he had with him. Mr. Glover told him to take them to his house, and he would buy them. Soon after Mr. Glover's arrival home Bridget came up to inform him that a man had come with some fish. She said, "We don't want any fish; they are too big for the cat, and you have had fish all the week." Mr. Glover explained that it was all right, and told her to go down to the door and take the fish in and ask how much they were, and then to come up again to him and he would pay her the money. Mr. Glover heard a dialogue going on at the front door and shut himself in his room, as he did not want to be bothered with it, and sat himself down to his table, which was covered with a plush cloth. Presently Bridget came bouncing into the room and slapped the two big fish on the table, saying, "There you are, it's 2s. 2d., and the man doesn't live in our ward."

Mr. Frank Gerald followed, and sketched out the scheme the artists had in view for their "Federation Day," which was to be celebrated by performances in all parts of the world on June 22 next by the International Artists' and Musicians' Unions in the various towns and cities where they happened to be engaged. Mr. Gerald hoped the Musicians' Unions of the world would co-operate with them in carrying out this gigantic programme, and share with them the proceeds for benevolent purposes amongst artists and musicians. He trusted the Musicians' Club would be a great success, and he was proud he was a member of it, and hoped that it would lead to a closer alliance between all branches of the profession.

Mr. A. Wood, the conductor of the Apollo Theatre, then gave a brief outline of his experiences while in America with an English company. He explained that he was not allowed to appear at any theatre in America until he had become a member of the Musicians' Union there, and that it cost him £20 to join it. He had the highest admiration for the way they conducted their business there, because it resulted in the musicians getting about £5 per week and the managers seeing that they obtained the very best value for their money. He wished the musicians of this country could only understand what the musicians of America had done by combination on the lines suggested by the Amalgamated Musicians' Union here. He believed it would be a grand day for all connected with the profession when all worked together for the best interests of the profession. He concluded by wishing the club success in a Yorkshire toast.

Several other toasts followed, and a very pleasant function was brought to a close early on Monday morning.

THE MOODY-MANNERS COMPANY AT BIRMINGHAM.

Birmingham has shown splendid appreciation this week of Mr. Charles Manners and his works and ideals, and has witnessed with considerable enthusiasm the novelties presented at the Theatre Royal. The first of these, Romeo and Juliet, was done on Tuesday, when Gounod's exquisite music was rendered absolutely without a blemish. Mme. De Vere as Juliet looked a vision of purity and loveliness, and sang with a delicacy and fervour that sent the audience into continual raptures. The famous valse song was the forerunner of many artistic triumphs of the night for this accomplished singer, who throughout acted with charming tenderness and sweetness. Mr. Joseph O'Mara acted the part of Romeo and sang the music apportioned thereto with romantic fire and feeling, soaring at times to great altitudes of art, vocally and histrionically. The merry, mocking Mercutio was played and sang in appropriate style by Mr. William Dever; Mr. Brode made an impetuous Tybalt; Mr. Charles Magrath proved a fine Capulet; Mr. Charles Manners, whose voice is a pleasure to listen to, was impressive in the rôle of Friar Laurence; and Miss Baker as the Nurse, Miss Garland as Stephano, Mr. Carter as the Duke, Mr. Rowe as Paris, Mr. Halpin as Gregory, and Mr. Davies as Benvolio completed the excellent cast. Signor Romualdo Sapio conducted the opera to its utmost advantage. The stage-crowds were cleverly managed, the scenery was effective, while chorus and orchestra were, as usual, admirable.

On Wednesday The Merry Wives of Windsor was given, with Percy Pinkerton's version of the libretto, introducing the Falstaffian episodes of the clothes-basket scene, the escape as "the fat woman" from Brentford, and the fairy scene in Windsor Forest. The opera, which was done originally at Her Majesty's Theatre, London, in 1864, with Titiens as Mistress Ford, Santley as the jealous spouse, and Guiglini as Fenton, is in three acts. The overture, with its familiar strains, was conducted with admirable spirit by Herr Richard Eckhold, who from beginning to end gave fine expression to Nicolai's music. Act I. shows Mistress Ford and Mistress Page in receipt of Falstaff's amatory effusions leading up to the duet "Dotard, now in cunning fashion." This was received with the most thorough satisfaction, the ladies, Miss Kate Anderson and Mlle. Zelie de Lussan, playing their respective rôles with obvious relish and freedom. Indeed, Miss Anderson, who has always been appreciated here as a sweet and sympathetic singer, proved herself a most accomplished actress, her transitions from anger with her husband, Ford, to her roguish glances with Mistress Page being admirably done, and altogether Miss Anderson was a success of the first order. Mlle. de Lussan threw all her zeal and ability into the part of Mistress Page. Her song, "Of Herne, the hunter," was a treat richly enjoyed. Mr. Charles Manners as Falstaff pleased the house immensely. Of tremendous girth and rubicund of countenance, he surprised even those who expected much of him, while his rich, resonant voice was in accordance withal and made the character complete. His amorous advances with their subsequent interruptions, his frights and discomfitures, and final undoing and condign punishment in Windsor Forest, caused unlimited mirth, so comically did Mr. Manners portray the abject condition of the sly, fat knight. In a vocal sense, of course, Mr. Manners was again perfection, his "Drinking song" showing off his magnificent singing voice to the uttermost. Mr. Lewys James gave distinction to the part of Ford, his enactment of the excitable and jealous spouse being quite one of the good things of the performance. Mr. Charles Magrath lent much weight to the rôle of Page; Mr. Wilson Pembroke, with his fine voice, made the part of Fenton interesting; Miss Garland was quite adequate and sang finely as Anne Page; and Messrs. C. Moppett and Bailey were satisfactory in the humorous rôles of Dr. Caius and Master Slender respectively. The midnight revels in Windsor Forest were done in a thorough and enjoyable style, and the entire opera was most exhilarating, and should become a fixture in the Moody-Manners répertoire. The chorus and orchestra again did splendidly, while the ballet work was also very meritorious.

A NEW PLAY AT THE SARAH BERNHARDT THEATRE.

"LA VIERGE D'AVILA (SAINTE THÉRESE)."

Play in five acts and nine tableaux, by M. Catulle Mendès.
Produced at the Théâtre Sarah-Bernhardt, on Nov. 10.

Sœur Thérèse ..... MME. SARAH BERNHARDT
Ximeira ..... MLLE. BLANCHE DUFRENE
Anne de Saint-Barthélémy .... MLLE. JANE MEA
Sœur Juana ..... MLLE. VENTURA
La Novice ..... MLLE. SEYLOR
Philippe, roi d'Espagne .... M. HENRY KRAUSS
Don Luis de Cyntho ..... M. CHAMEROY
Fra Quiroga ..... M. DENEUBOURG
Don Alphonso Sanchez ..... M. REBEL
Don Thomasso Fargès ..... M. MAXUDIAN
Ervann ..... M. GAVARRY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The story of M. Catulle Mendès' new piece is a highly dramatised version of the life of the great Spanish saint, St. Theresa. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt took endless trouble with the work, and the talented artist may be congratulated upon the triumph she achieved. Written in beautiful flowing verse, it will rank among M. Catulle Mendès' best productions.

In the opening scene we are in the house of Ervann, a priest, the lover of Ximeira, a gipsy sorceress, with whom he lives. Owing to his liaison with that women he feels himself utterly unsuited for his holy office. Thérèse, the nun, then enters his house to ask him for communion, whereupon the inflammable priest at once falls in love with her. Her beauty and her purity, however, have such a potent effect on him that he repents and resolves to throw himself at the Pope's feet to implore his forgiveness. Ximeira not only tries to prevent him from leaving, but she stabs him with a stiletto, wounding him slightly. When we meet Ervann again he has been to Rome and has joined the Reformed religion, for he has discovered that his repentance is not real, and only the upshot of an unholy love for Thérèse. Nor have his passionate declarations any effect on the virtuous woman. Thérèse, in her religious ecstasy, is craving for martyrdom; and she takes the place of a woman sentenced by the Holy Inquisition to be tortured and executed. The woman escapes, and it is Thérèse who is tortured in her stead until the truth suddenly leaks out. Thérèse then leaves for Madrid on foot, refusing all offers of a conveyance; and on the way discovers that several wayside crosses have been knocked down. The people in the country believe this to be the work of the Anti-Christ. In truth, it is no other than Ervann, who then is arrested and condemned to death. Luckily for him, Thérèse and her nuns are admitted into the presence of King Philip, and she touches the King's heart by her appeal to his mercy and forgiveness. In the final tableau we see the saint on her death-bed. She lies in the church on a magnificent bier among a mass of white flowers; and to her come the King of Spain and the principal characters in the play.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was superb in the part of Thérèse, and the other parts were also well sustained. The scenery and dresses are worthy of the traditions of the Sarah Bernhardt Theatre.

"CÆSAR AND CLEOPATRA."

A "History," in Four Acts, by G. Bernard Shaw, produced at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Oct. 30.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The success of Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott in this clever compound of truth, travesty, and satire, was most emphatic. Rarely has an audience shown such enthusiastic approval so early in the evening as was exhibited at the opening performance of this play when the curtain fell at the close of the first act. One was prepared for this genuine outburst of delight, however, by the signs and manifestations which preceded it. Mr. Shaw's paradoxical wit, particularly when it is employed in "guying" historical personages, is quite en rapport with the American sense of humour, and the author was fortunate in his choice of interpreters, for Mr. Robertson and Miss Elliott, as Cæsar and Cleopatra, were thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the play, and each scored a personal success of the first magnitude.

The story treats of the visit of Julius Cæsar to Egypt at the end of the thirty-third dynasty, the winter of 706-7 in Rome; Christian computation, Oct. 48, B.C. to March 47, B.C. Two factions are contending for the throne at the time of Cæsar's arrival. Ptolemy Dionysius, aged 10, reigns in the palace at Alexandria, supported by Achillas, the General of the Roman army of occupation left by Aulus Gabinius. The supporters of Cleopatra have fled with her to a palace on the borders of Syria. The opening scene is laid within the walls of this palace, a low building of whitened mud, which, according to Mr. Shaw, was not so ugly as Buckingham Palace. The courtyard is filled with officers and soldiers of the Egyptian army, and the action begins with the arrival of Bel Affris, a military novice from the temple of Ra, in Memphis. He brings to Cleopatra information of the approach of the Roman army, under Julius Cæsar, who, it is announced, has landed on the shores of Egypt, and will make himself master of the country. Great excitement follows this announcement, and Ftatateeta, the nurse and guardian of Cleopatra, finds that in the confusion the young Princess has disappeared.

The scene changes, and a striking picture of the Sphinx in the desert is disclosed. To call it a picture, though, is to do the creator of this most effective scene an injustice, as a life-sized reproduction of the Sphinx stands out in bold relief in the moonlight against an admirably-painted background, while between the paws of the fabulous monster lies Cleopatra asleep on a head of red poppies. Then, out of the darkness of the night there emerges a manly figure in Roman armour lost in contemplation. It is Julius Cæsar. According to Shaw, he was fifty-four years old at this period, and growing bald, while Cleopatra was sixteen, gloriously ingenuous, but with a fast-developing eye to the main chance. She had intended offering the sacred white cat as a sacrifice to the Sphinx, but the sacred white cat had gone in pursuit of a black cat, and Cleopatra had laid herself down to rest where Cæsar found her. She reveals her identity, but does not recognise Cæsar as the Roman conqueror. The scene changes to the throne-room of the palace, where Cleopatra, still ignorant of Cæsar's identity, is crowned by him Queen of Egypt. As the Roman soldiers troop in tumultuously they raise their swords in salutation, and cry "Hail, Cæsar!" to Cleopatra's astonishment.

The scene of the second act is the council chamber of the chancellors of the King's treasury in Alexandria, some days later. King Ptolemy, in character a mixture of boyish impotence and petulance, is on the throne. Prompted by his guardian, Pothinus, he recites the history of his house and the restoration of his father to the throne by Mark Antony. Now his sister Cleopatra has cast a spell over Julius Cæsar to lead him to uphold her false claim to the rulership of Egypt. Cæsar comes and demands payment of the debt contracted by Ptolemy's father with the Roman Triumvirate. This being refused, he desires to settle the matter in dispute between Ptolemy and Cleopatra, and to the surprise of all produces the young Queen. His proposal that Ptolemy and Cleopatra shall reign jointly is rejected by Achillas and Lucius Septimius, who command greater Roman and Egyptian military forces than Cæsar, and the act ends in a battle and the great fire in which the library is destroyed. In this act Cleopatra mentions to Cæsar the beautiful young man with strong, round arms, who came over the desert with many horsemen and slew her sister's husband, and restored her father to his throne. "I was only twelve then," she says, wistfully; "I wish he would come again now that I am Queen. I would make him my husband." And Cæsar responds: "It might be managed, perhaps, for it was I who sent the beautiful young man to help your father."

The third act has two scenes, the first representing Cleopatra's room in the palace, and the second the roof gorgeously decorated. Pothinus, Ptolemy's guardian, proposes to Cleopatra that she betray Cæsar. When she refuses, he denounces her to Cæsar as a traitor. She revengefully orders Ftatateeta, her nurse, to kill Pothinus, and this tragedy brings about an attack on the palace by his followers. The act ends with the killing of the nurse by Rufio, Cæsar's lieutenant. The final scene shows the East Harbour, with Cæsar's galley ready to sail for Rome. The campaign is over. Ptolemy has been drowned in a battle with the legions of Cæsar, and Cleopatra is now really Queen. Cæsar appoints Rufio Roman Governor, and is about to board his galley to depart, when Cleopatra appears, dressed in black, being in mourning for her nurse. Their parting is brief, and as he sails he tells her he will send Mark Antony, "a Roman from head to heel," for whom she has shown a decided preference.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert of Wednesday evening commenced with Benedict's melodious duet, "The moon hath raised," from the Lily of Killarney, cleverly sung by Mr. Harold Watts and Mr. J. H. Anderson. In the more ambitious scena from Romeo and Juliet, "Since yesterday in vain I've sought my master," Miss Ethel Elmes sang with good taste and expression, and Miss Muriel Clark displayed a fine-quality contralto voice in Gluck's "Che faró," always a popular aria with students. Mr. Leonard Wright, who has a very pleasing tenor voice, sang "Angels, guard thee," in an expressive style; there was, however, no need for Mr. Wright to force his voice, as he has ample power. Mr. Harold Watts, who sang admirably in Benedict's duet, the first item in the concert, was somewhat overtaxed by the difficulties of Meyerbeer's aria, "Sei vendicata assai," from Dinorah. The instrumental solos given were only a pianoforte solo, "In der nacht," played by Miss Daisy Cadney, with evident appreciation of Schumann's beautiful music, and a violin solo "Romance (Max Bruch) given with capital intonation by Miss Yathe Mandelbom, who must try and guard against a tendency to drag the time. The concert concluded with lively duologue, "Joint Household," in which the characters of Mrs. Smithers and Mrs. Tallett were cleverly impersonated by Miss Julie C. Huntsman and Miss Nellie Lake, pupils of Miss Kate Rorke. Miss Jenny Hyman accompanied.

THE ALDWYCH.

The comeliness of The Beauty of Bath has been materially enhanced since the production last March by the infusion into the dainty play of many fresh numbers, so that the 240th night, which was reached on Tuesday, witnessed a piece that was, in many respects, new. Among the latest introductions is the song, "My little hyacinth," a tender little ballad, which Miss Ellaline Terriss, radiant in silken robes, sings to an accompaniment of the chorus, who gently wave garlands of the pretty bloom. Miss Terriss, whose first entry is heartily welcomed, has also an original song in "Geography," which contains a series of cleverly-turned verses, dealing with the most up-to-date topics of political and social interest. The success of the dainty number, "Bridge," is shared by Miss Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks, whose ebullient wit keeps the audience continuously on the alert for fresh freaks of fancy. The meeting between the affectionate Dick Allington and his devoted mother still throbs with a few seconds of sentiment, which go straight to the heart.

A new interpolation is that of a scena in which popular favourites, in various characters, are travestied. In this way, Mr. Laurence Caird becomes Nero, Mr. Stanley Brett and Mr. Murray King share the responsibilities of appearing as Sandow girls, Master Valchera is transformed into a miniature Hall Caine, and Miss Maudi Darrell, as the Belle of New York, impresses a felicitous kiss upon the lips of Miss Sydney Fairbrother, garbed as a Gibson girl. All the characters, including Miss Terriss, who retains her own charming personality, join in comic revels, which prove very diverting. Miss Barbara Deane as the Hon. Dorothy Quorn finds an agreeable means of exercising a strong and mellifluous voice in the singing of a number of popular choruses in the time of a sentimental ballad. The expression that can be put into the rendering of "The Old Bush and Bush" and "Stop yer tickling, Jock," is thus demonstrated, and Miss Deane, who acts throughout in an engaging manner, the delivery of her lines being as admirable as her singing, was heartily recalled on Tuesday, giving in response an equally interesting rendering of "It's all right in the summer time."

Mr. Murray King, the droll exponent of Sir Timothy Bun, has also been invested with a new song about "London," in which a quartet of chic Parisiennes, clad in a costume made up of the Tricolour, assists vivaciously, and serve to furnish a most acceptable morceau. Mr. Will Bishop now fills the rôle of Tattersal Spink, formerly occupied by Mr. Bert Sinden, who was obliged, unhappily, to relinquish the part on account of illness. Mr. Bishop dances with his accustomed nimbleness with Miss Topsy Sinden, who acts bewitchingly as Jane Topit, and the pas de deux is loudly encored.

The best of the entertainment, despite the alterations, is still retained, and Mr. Hicks's "Joey Chamberlain," brightened by new verses, raises many a laugh. Nor could the "Hearts of Bloomsbury" duet, sung by Miss Fairbrother and Master Valchera, whose appearance is always cordially received, be spared from the programme. Miss Maudi Darrell gives her fascinating performance of Miss Truly St. Cyr, and sings her song, "By the Zuyder Zee," with the most artless expression. Miss Rosini Filippi, maternal, lovable, and cheery as Mrs. Allington, exacts well-merited tributes of praise; Mr. William Lugg makes the most dignified and most estimable of "stern parents" as Viscount Bellingham; Mr. E. W. Royce, who plays the Earl of Orpington characteristically, is responsible also for the arrangement of the dances and choral effects; and good work is also done by Mr. Reginald Kenneth, Mr. Cecil Kinnaird, Miss Marguerite Leslie, Miss Hilda Antony, and Miss Marion Lindsay in their respective parts. The Bath Buns have retained their delicious flavouring of grace and daintiness, and The Beauty of Bath remains, of Mr. Charles Frohman's enterprises, one of the most meritorious.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 12,
the Farce, in Three Acts, entitled
"MR. HOPKINSON."

Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here for the first time with the above well-known piece, and it has produced a most favourable impression. As long as Mr. Frank Stanmore was on the stage as Samuel Hopkinson laughter was the rule, for his study of the "mean little bounder" was very complete, even to details, showing the gradual advance from real uneasiness in the presence of the "upper ten" to cheeky confidence in himself and his bearing. The Duke of Braceborough was a clever sketch, delicately limned by Mr. Arnold Lucy, and forming a striking contrast to the peppery humour of Mr. Shirley Lea as the valetudinarian Earl of Addleton. The dudish Lord Cawthorne was appropriately acted by Mr. Reginald Dane, who gave an underlying impression of the really good spirit which actuated his lordship in spite of his amusing affectations. Mr. Charles M. Heslop as the Hon. Otho Dursingham, the cher ami of the Duchess of Braceborough, was a smart and easy-mannered member of the aristocracy to the life. Miss Marie Hassell was a typical grande dame as the Duchess of Braceborough, her fine figure, good diction, and society air being most helpful to the piece. The somewhat thankless part of Lady Tyra Egglesby was tactfully rendered by Miss Gladys Jesson, who wore some charming costumes; and Miss Katherine M. Romsey gave much point to the part of Eliza Dibbs, the whilom fiancée of Hopkinson. Mr. J. G. Lowther submitted a subdued rendering to the small part of Blisset, the Earl of Addleton's man; and the scenery, by Mr. Julian Hicks, was appropriate.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

On Friday, Nov. 9, the students' concert begun with Mozart's "Quartet for Strings, in E Flat." Mr. Thomas Peatfield, Mr. Arthur Beckwith, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans were the executants, and secured a very creditable performance, the third movement being particularly well played. In Mr. W. Hurlstone's song, "Litany," Miss Dorothea Kershaw was much applauded; and Miss Sylvia Capel-Cure gave the requisite delicacy of touch in her piano solo, "Suite Bergamasque," by Debussy. Perhaps the most effective number in the programme was Brahms' "Sonata for Violoncello and Piano in E Minor," capitally performed by the talented sisters, the Misses Marion and May Harrison, the violoncellist producing a full rich tone. Mr. Percy Pitt's three not very interesting French songs, entitled "Trois Poésies," were cleverly sung by Miss Ethel Duthoit; and Miss Doris Simpson was equally successful in Hasse's "Ritornerai fra poco" and Wagner's "Dors, mon enfant." Mr. Harold Rhodes's organ solo of Buxtehude's "Præludium et Fuga, in F sharp minor," concluded the concert. The accompanist was Miss Alice Cotton.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the PUBLISHER, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham, who gives a special matinée of David Garrick at the New Theatre on Thursday, with himself as Garrick and Miss Mary Moore as Ada Ingot, will be supported by Messrs. C. W. Somerset, Sydney Brough, Harry Paulton, Reginald Walter, and Bertram Steer, and Misses Emily Vining and Caroline Ewell. Hopes of Sir Charles's more enduring return to the London stage are encouraged by the news that he has acquired the rights of Les Passagères, a comedy by Alfred Capus, which has won great success in Paris.

Mr. Cyril Maude will open the Playhouse, now rapidly nearing completion, on Jan. 26. The seating capacity of the theatre is 1000, and is so arranged that a view of the stage will be obtainable from every part of the building. There will be no pit, the floor of the house being given over to stalls, while former "pitites" will find a haven at the front of the second balcony.

Mr. Arthur Collins now has his hands full in arranging the scenes in the second part of the forthcoming pantomime. With one heavy set following another, it requires a nice knowledge of stage working to so arrange them that there shall be no hitch at Drury Lane on Boxing night. The incident of the monkeys and the cocoanuts, inseparable from a pantomime of Sinbad, will receive specially comical treatment at the hands of Mr. Walter Passmore and Mr. Harry Randall. The antics of the grateful elephant who leads Sinbad to the stores of ivory will also be to the taste of the youngsters. In Mr. Arthur Collins' Christmas annual there are two "big" scenes each ending a part; but judging by the beautiful designs for the costumes by Comelli and the work of the scenic artists, it will be difficult to determine to which to give the palm for splendour.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier, with his customary good nature, has lent the Garrick Theatre to the committee of the Irving Memorial Fund for the purpose of holding a conference on Friday, Dec. 14. Mr. Cecil Raleigh will be the chairman, and Mr. John Hare will be among those supporting the movement. Mr. Chas. Cruikshanks is the secretary.

Encouraging reports of the new Managers' Club, formed out of the members of the Touring Managers' Association, are to hand. During the last month over fifty new names have been added to the roll, and the total membership now numbers 175. Touring managers without exception would be well advised to join the Association, and everyone interested in theatrical management should become a member of the club. A musical evening has been arranged for Sunday, Dec. 9, when Mr. J. Bannister Howard has kindly consented to organise the programme. During the winter it is contemplated that these concerts should take place about once a month. An excellent opportunity will be thus afforded for ladies and gentlemen to display their talent before the various touring managers who will attend. A billiard handicap is also in process of arrangement, and those who wish to enter should at once notify the secretary, Mr. G. B. Lambert.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree will, on Monday, begin his three weeks' season of King Richard II. at His Majesty's. Mr. Tree will repeat his masterly performance in the title-rôle, and the Queen will be played by Miss Viola Tree. The long cast will also comprise Messrs. J. Fisher White, Chas. Quartermaine, Lyn Harding, Julian L'Estrange, Basil Gill, Clive Currie, Reginald Owen, Robert Atkins, Sworder, David Powell, E. Egerton Hine, Elvey, Hewett, Edward Ouston, Palmer, A. C. Grain, Stuart Grahame, Reginald Craven, S. Yates Southgate, P. Forbes, James Smythe, G. W. Anson, and Warmington, and Misses Hilda Moore, Florence Wells, Evelyn Beaumont, and Elizabeth Gilson.

The foyer of Covent Garden Theatre presented a festive appearance on the night of the 9th inst., when Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rendle and Mr. Neil Forsyth entertained the members of the San Carlo Opera Company, now visiting London, at a banquet. Among the guests, who numbered 120, were Mme. Melba, Signora Giachetti, Signor Giovanni Zenatello, Cav. Mario Sammarco, Signor and Signora Tosti, Sir William Bell, Mr. Percy Eales, Mr. W. K. Pearson, Signor Scandiani, Signor Fernando Carpi, and Signor Mugnone. The toast of "The King" was proposed by Mr. Rendle, and that of "Mrs. Rendle," was given by Mr. Richard Northcott. The visitors remained for the fancy dress ball, and during the interval Mr. Max Malini did some card tricks and Mme. Helen Mar told quaint American yarns.

Mrs. Kendal recalled a fateful incident of her earlier life in presenting the prizes at the chrysanthemum show of the Scottish Horticultural Association in Edinburgh on Thursday. When the Haymarket company went to Edinburgh some years ago, she said, its members were entertained to a picnic, and one year it was held just below Arthur's Seat. While the preparations were in progress the younger members of the company strolled away, and on the very top of Arthur's Seat a young man proposed to a young woman and was accepted. She would not tell who the young man was, because he ought to have been there beside her on the platform. She had been looking for him everywhere. "He was far more attentive on the day of the picnic," added the popular actress, smilingly.

The King and Queen, T.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales, and many other distinguished personages were present at the performance of The Man from Blankley's, given by Mr. Frederick Harrison's company at Sandringham on the 9th inst. Mr. Charles Hawtrey headed the cast, which also included Messrs. Weedon Grossmith, Henry Kemble, Welton Dale, E. Holman Clark, H. Laurent, Charles Crawford, and Arthur Playfair, and Misses Fanny Brough, Alice Mansfield, Gwynne Herbert, Lydia Rachel, C. Ewell, Maud Wynter, Winifred Winter, Dagmar Wiehe, Muriel Alston, and Mary Leslie. The arrangements were superintended on behalf of His Majesty by Mr. George Ashton.

America continues to give a warm-hearted welcome to English artists. Miss Olga Nethersole sailed for New York with her company last week; Mr. Forbes Robertson is touring in America with Miss Gertrude Elliott; Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird are also in the States, as are Mr. E. S. Willard, Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Kyrle Bellew, and Mr. Ben Greet.

The Irving Memorial Committee held a meeting on the 8th inst. under the chairmanship of Mr. Cecil Raleigh, who was supported by Messrs. Cyril Maude, Lawrence Grant, Lewis Casson, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Several important matters were discussed at considerable length, and the secretary received various instructions, while the chairman promised to give effect to a number of suggestions. The Committee held a further meeting on Tuesday last, when Mr. Cecil Raleigh (the chairman) reported progress, and a date was arranged for holding a meeting of the profession, such date depending upon certain details being carried out in the immediate future. There were present Messrs. Cyril Maude, Lawrence Grant, Lewis Casson, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary).

Mr. George Edwardes will present the revised version of The New Aladdin at the Gaiety on Saturday next. The occasion will be further notable by the return to the theatre of Miss Gertie Millar, who will then take up the rôle originally intended for her, but which she was obliged to relinquish owing to the illness of her husband.

Lord Kilmorey is organising a Jubilee Concert for the great baritone, Charles Santley, who made his first public appearance forty-nine years ago last Monday. "Of Charles Santley, during half a century of famous engagements, it may be safely said he never disappointed the public, and now, in his old age," says his lordship, "I venture, as one of his innumerable friends and admirers, to call attention to the undeniable propriety of paying a public tribute to his talent and services by organising a Jubilee Concert at the Albert Hall in his honour at some convenient day next May."

Lord Kilmorey has already secured the patronage of many members of the Royal Family, while a large and increasing number of ladies and gentlemen have consented to allow their names to appear on a general committee, to which his lordship has offered his services as hon. secretary and treasurer, and anyone desirous of joining the movement may communicate with him at the Albert Hall.

Mr. Luscombe Searelle, the co-author with Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and sole composer of the poetical and musical drama of Mizpah, which is now in its third season in America, arrived from New York on Wednesday. His four years' absence seems to have made him look younger and more energetic, if that were possible, than ever. It is probable that Mizpah will be produced at a West End theatre on Boxing Night. The scenery will be an exact replica of that used in the New York production, and is now on its way to England. It weighs about two hundred and sixty tons.

While sojourning in the interior of Mexico, Mr. Searelle played the organ at a Catholic cathedral. Just previously a Mexican mummy, probably over 2,000 years' old, had been unearthed, and in the wrappings were found sixteen large cut turquoises, beautifully cut and curiously engraved. One of these the priest of the cathedral presented to Mr. Searelle, who wears it as a signet ring. Mr. Searelle has to be back in America, under a heavy forfeit, by Jan. 27 next to produce his new opera at the New Berkeley Theatre, New York, on Feb. 24. The full score of Mizpah is published by Witmark and Sons, and the play is issued in New York in two editions—an edition de luxe with illustrations and a popular edition.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier, just as he had finished dressing and making-up as Macbeth at Stratford-on-Avon on Tuesday last, was presented with a touching memento of the late Sir Henry Irving by Mr. George Fox. It was a lock of Sir Henry Irving's hair.

Stockton-on-Tees, which has been without a theatre since the Royal was burnt down a few weeks ago, is to be furnished with a new home of the drama by a well-known syndicate. The site which has been procured is centrally situated at the junction of High-street, Bridge-road, and Castlegate, and has an area of 1350 superficial yards. The auditorium, which will accommodate 2500, will be arranged on the two-tier-principle, and will comprise orchestra stalls, stalls, circle, and upper circle, pit, and gallery. The stage is to be 44ft. deep from the entrance to the back wall, and 66ft. wide, while the auditorium will be 66ft. wide and 84ft. deep. A spacious covered arcade will be placed at the grand entrance, and shops will occupy the front of the site. The architectural work has been placed in the hands of Mr. Wm. Hope, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. Mr. J. C. Imeson, the well-known proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough, will be the lessee.

The Theatre Royal, Belfast, will on Monday begin a three weeks' season of variety. On the other hand the Palace, at which music-hall programmes have been presented, will be devoted to grand opera, furnished by the famous Carl Rosa company.

A grand Scotch night will be celebrated at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, Dec. 1, when a concert will be given by artists including Miss Lenora Sparkes, Mr. William Maxwell, and Mr. Charles Bennett. The violin soloist will be Miss Jessie Bowater. The Crystal Palace choir will be conducted by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, the musical director of the Palace, and Mr. Herbert Godfrey will conduct the Crystal Palace Military Band. The programme will include Scotch songs, old and new, part-songs from over the Border, and settings of the poems of Robert Burns, Sir Walter Scott, &c. A violoncello and pianoforte recital will be given this afternoon at the Crystal Palace, the executants being Jean Gerardy and Harold Bauer. The programme includes selections from Rubenstein, Schumann, Chopin, Weber, Bach, Schubert, and other classical composers.

The Crystal Palace Theatre, which is quite realising Mr. Bannister Howard's highest expectations is sure to be crowded throughout next week when The Earl and the Girl, the successful musical comedy, which has delighted all London, will be the attraction. The cast is an excellent one, and the piece will be mounted with exceptional care and elaboration.

Mr. Reg. H. Hamber, who during the past year has been meeting with great commendation as Old Joe in Mr. Edward Marris's company, being specially retained by that gentleman for pantomime, scored another success at Kilmarnock on Monday evening as Rudolph in Mr. W. H. Kisby's Beauty Shop. He was particularly effective in the song and Devil dance, "Tameroo," which is the work of Messrs. Douglas B. Watson and Geo. Ess, and was repeatedly encored. The authors personally complimented Mr. Hamber on the artistic way in which he had rendered the number.

Her Highness Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein will distribute prizes at the special meeting of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, to be held at the St. James's Theatre (kindly lent by Mr. George Alexander) in the afternoon of the 29th inst. Mr. Sidney Lee will preside.

Mr. Richard Vane has just concluded a most successful tour as Prince Mazaroff in Held in Bondage with Mr. Vivian Grantham.—Mr. Cecil Kingsley has been engaged by Mrs. Michael Gunn for her forthcoming pantomime at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin.

Miss Marion Lind, we regret to hear, is suffering from a severe attack of influenza. The popular heroine of Rob Roy will have the consolation of knowing that she is not the only victim of our changeable climate, but we wish her nevertheless a speedy recovery from the distressing ailment.

At the invitation of the Worcester Branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, Mr. Acton Bond read the part of Wolsey at a dramatic reading of Henry VIII. which was given at the Theatre Royal, Worcester, on the afternoon of the 8th inst. Speeches were made by Lady Isabel Margesson (the secretary of the branch), the Mayor of Worcester, Mr. Acton Bond, and others, and the afternoon's proceedings generally afforded ample testimony of the success of the Society's efforts in that centre.

Mr. Martin Harvey was present at a meeting at Dublin on Monday, held for the purpose of furthering the arrangements for the Lifeboat procession to take place in the Irish capital to-day. Mr. Harvey, who was most cordially welcomed, deplored the fact that out of the 282 lifeboats in the United Kingdom Ireland had only thirty-six. When one thought of the perilous nature of the Irish coast, that number seemed inadequate, and he hoped that the time would come when every seaside village would be supplied with its lifeboat, which would mean adding to the splendid roll of 45,439 lives saved since the foundation of the Lifeboat Institution, by the bravery of those who were always so ready to sacrifice themselves in order to save their fellow-creatures. It was announced at the meeting that Mrs. Harvey would preside at one of the booths.

Mr. Harvey's season in Dublin is proving immensely successful, and looks like beating all previous records. The third and concluding week commences on Monday, when a triple bill will be presented for the first time. It will be composed of Rouget de l'Isle, Ib and Little Christina, and the new "tragedy of truth," by Rosamond Langbridge, entitled The Spell, in which Mr. Harvey and Miss de Silva made such a profound impression at Manchester the other day. For the first time this season, The Only Way will be played on Tuesday.

Last Wednesday afternoon Mr. Harvey lectured at Trinity College on "The Art of Acting," the occasion having the cordial support of the University authorities and of the Provost and Fellows. Applications for tickets four times over exceeding the capacity of the seating accommodation were received, and a great deal of disappointment at non-admission was necessarily caused. On Monday week Mr. Harvey, Miss de Silva, and company commence a week's engagement at Cork, Belfast following.

Miss Marion Draughn, the American actress who was the plaintiff in the breach of promise case against a German millionaire's son, in which the jury disagreed, has accepted a part in The New Aladdin at the Gaiety Theatre, and will shortly join the cast. Miss Draughn has received letters from many sympathisers, including members of the jury, regretting that she did not win the case.

Mr. Charles Thorburn, who has, during the past five years, been responsible in every detail for Mr. George Musgrove's productions—viz., The Belle of New York and The Prince of Pilsen (two companies) will be shortly relinquishing his duties. Mr. Thorburn holds an enviable reputation in the provinces for his productions, which are considered to be among the smartest all-round theatrical enterprises touring, and a post of equal importance should be quickly secured.

"Lights Out," from the Waldorf Theatre, is going on tour shortly, and will be presented by Mr. J. O. Fawdy-Gregory, who has acquired the rights together with Mr. Leigh Lovel. Miss Octavia Kenmore has been specially engaged to play the lead.

Miss Nellie Clyde, who has just concluded an autumn tour, playing the title-rôle in Mr. Frank Bertram's company The Convict's Daughter, has been re-engaged by the same management to take up the part of Margaret Hungerford in The Breed of the Treshams.

Mr. G. Moreton-Williams concludes to-night at Croydon his fourth tour and 384th performance as heavy lead with Mr. Frank Bertram's company The Convict's Daughter, and has been re-engaged to play his original part in Mr. A. Hamilton Warden's forthcoming tour of A Woman's Past.

Mr. Holbery Hardy, the energetic manager of the Theatre Royal, Rotherham, is taking his first annual benefit on Wednesday, Nov. 28, when a fine programme will be submitted.

Mr. Alfred Manners, of the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, who met with an accident with a firework on the 5th inst., has made such excellent progress that all danger to his eyesight is practically removed, and he is now able to take outdoor exercise. On Tuesday Mr. Manners came before the footlights at his theatre, and in a brief speech sincerely thanked his patrons and the local public generally for their sympathy.

Mr. W. W. Kelly, proprietor of the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, and owner of The Royal Divorce, is a candidate in the Conservative interest for one of the local municipal wards. Mr. Kelly has for a long time taken an interest in Imperial and municipal questions, and rendered good service to the party at recent elections.

Mr. J. G. Grahame, so well known on the stage, will on Monday, for six nights, at the Empire, Camberwell, produce a most powerful dramatic sketch. It is the star attraction, and is expected to prove a great success.

Miss Agnes Molteno, of grand opera fame, was the vocalist at an organ recital in the Town Hall, Middlesbrough, on Saturday last, and she delighted the large audience by her finished singing. Her rendering of "Villanelle" (Eva Dell 'Acqua) was very fine, but most enthusiasm was aroused by the beautiful way in which she gave Balfe's pretty vocal waltz, "What joy and gladness." A well-deserved encore was demanded in each case.

Mr. Amand Mascard, who has been acting-manager at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, for the last three years, leaves shortly to take up his new position as resident-manager at the handsome King's Theatre, Edinburgh, which opens early in December with Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Cinderella pantomime.

At the matinée for the assistance of Jews in Russia at the Royalty on Tuesday, Nov. 27, when Wasps, a three-act comedy, and Daughters of Shem, a one-act play, will be produced for the first time, parts will be taken by Misses Nancy Price, Milicent Gwynne, Sime Seruya, Annie Hill, M. Carmel Goldsmid, Maud Henderson, Kate Osborne, Ruby Miller, Margaret Bussé, Dinah Freudenheim, and Maud Wynter, and Messrs. Matheson Lang, Daniel McCarthy, F. H. de Quincey, J. Jefferson Farjeon, Hugh Ardale, A. Morrice Seaton, A. G. Melford, and Rudge Harding. The plays will be produced by Miss Seruya.

Owing to sudden indisposition, Miss Aïda Jenoure was unable to play her part of Kitty in The Marriage of Kitty, at the Pier Pavilion, St. Leonards, on Tuesday, and a capable substitute was found in Miss Gladys Dare, her understudy, who appeared with gratifying success. Great credit is due to this young lady from the fact that she has not yet reached her seventeenth year.

Mr. Henry Doughty and Miss Vera Leslie have finished their first tour of Geoffrey Stirling, and are so satisfied with the reception accorded to the play that they intend producing it in the spring on an elaborate scale. Many improvements have been effected since the trial performances at Fulham, with the result that the action has been quickened and the humorous passages much amplified.

Mr. Bannister Howard will have no fewer than three of his companies in the suburbs next week, viz.: The Belle of New York at the Crown Theatre, Peckham; Oliver Twist at Dalston Theatre; and The Earl and the Girl at the Crystal Palace.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh made a successful first appearance as Macbeth and Lady Macbeth at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, on Tuesday night. Both artists were heartily cheered, and at the close Mr. Bourchier made a speech of thanks.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Messrs. Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Cremlin, A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Norman McKinnel, Quinton McPherson, A. B. Tapping, and Spencer Trevor, with Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members on points submitted. W. Richardson Rice, Esq., B.A., M.D., M.B., B.Ch., L.M., Gosford Green, Coventry, was elected as an hon. medical officer. The secretary gave the report of the proceedings at the last bi-monthly meeting of the members, and arising out of such report a discussion arose, and ultimately the hon. solicitors were requested, if possible, to arrange certain details.

Miss Gladys Ffolliott attended as a delegate from the members assembled at the sixth bi-monthly meeting, held on the 8th inst., and voiced her views upon the question of rearrangement of payment of subscription on some such lines as are adopted by the V.A.F. Miss Ffolliott was informed that the matter had been under consideration for some little while. Miss Rose Mathews attended before the Council, and submitted a number of revised suggestions as to the carrying out of the arrangements in connection with the proposed Sunday concerts, but as nothing definite could be arranged immediately, the questions involved were left open for further discussion. The secretary reported that Miss Gertrude Bibby had withdrawn her name from the list of those suggested as members of the proposed Entertainment Committee. A former member was reinstated, while another was nominated for reinstatement.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater (in the chair), Lawrence Grant, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The secretary received instructions to circularise the hon. medical officers, thanking them for their invaluable services and drawing their attention to the certificates to be issued to the members in 1907, and also to other matters affecting their respective appointments.

Mrs. Henry Courte, an actress who will be well remembered by the older members of the theatrical profession, died at Cardiff on the 7th inst. at the advanced age of eighty-two. She was for many years at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, under the management of Messrs. Glover and Francis, but her last appearance was at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, on Jan. 18, 1884, as Mrs. Sternhold in Still Waters Run Deep; she was also a favourite Helen Macgregor in the then annual productions of Rob Roy. Latterly the deceased lady lived in retirement at Cardiff with her only son, her husband, Mr. Henry Cooke (Courte), dramatic artist and teacher of elocution in Glasgow, having died many years ago.

Miss Jennie Armstrong, the attractive and dashing Abdallah of the Alexandra, Stoke Newington, and Royal, Sheffield, last year, has been engaged by Mr. John Hart for the Theatre Royal, Manchester, at Christmas.

Miss Ida Millais is meeting with great success on tour this autumn with the popular No Man's Land, of which the tropical storm scene, with its heavy downpour of rain, is a sensational feature. The piece is well booked through 1907, under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne.

Miss Lily Brayton, happily recovered from her accident, resumed her place in the cast of The Virgin Goddess on Wednesday. Mr. Rudolf Bessier's play is to be withdrawn at the end of next week, but a revival at a no distant date is contemplated. In the meantime the Adelphi will, in about a fortnight's time, be occupied by A Midsummer Night's Dream, with Miss Thyrsa Norman as Titania, the play being otherwise sustained by practically the same cast as that of Mr. Stuart's former revival.

Stanford's opera Shamus O'Brien will be performed by the Royal College of Music on Friday afternoon next, at the Scala Theatre, the handsome building in Fitzroy-square.

An interesting feature of next week will be the appearance of Miss Edith Wynne Matthison in Wilkie Collins' strong play The New Magdalen, at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith. The part of Mercy Merrick is one which has taxed the powers of many of our great actresses, and Miss Wynne Matthison's recent work at the Court and Adelphi Theatres, her success as leading lady in Sir Henry Irving's last tour, and her triumph as Everyman, serve to render her appearance in the part very welcome. Mr. Mulholland has engaged a specially strong company to support her. Mr. Mulholland, by the way, owns the autograph manuscript of The New Magdalen, having paid a hundred guineas for it at Sotheby's some years ago. In connection with this MS. he claims to have made a literary discovery, inasmuch as internal evidence proves that the play, contrary to the view hitherto held, was written before the novel. The MS., all in Wilkie Collins' own handwriting, will be on view at the theatre during the week.

Mr. Robert Forsyth is to be congratulated on his election to the Folkestone Town Council. We understand Mr. Forsyth's win was a most popular one, his majority being nearly 200. Mr. Forsyth was for six years the manager of the promenade concerts at Clacton-on-Sea, and last year, for the Bognor Council, ran the Pier Pavilion in addition to the band-stand concerts.

Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, who is making an excellent impression by his performance of the Rat in The Breed of the Treshams on tour, encouraged talent in a sister art at Blackpool last week. A boy of sixteen, who is engaged in the town in the lowly occupation of running errands, but has developed considerable promise with the pencil, went to the theatre and took a sketch of Mr. Edgar in character. The actor was shown the lad's work, and immediately gave him a commission to execute a full-length portrait of him in the part of Reresby.

Mr. H. A. Chappell, the business-manager of the Standard Theatre, was the hero of the hour at the popular Bishopsgate house on the 8th inst., the evening of which was devoted to the commemoration by a benefit of his twenty-fifth year under the Melville management. At the close of the second act of The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning an appreciative reference to the bénéficiaire was made by Mr. Roy Redgrave, after which Mr. Walter Melville, in a felicitous speech, presented Mr. Chappell, on behalf of the Standard and Terriss companies, the touring companies, and the various staffs, with a handsome framed testimonial, signed by all the subscribers. Mr. Fred Melville then presented a purse of gold, and expressed the hope that it would be another twenty-five years before Mr. Chappell had had enough of them. Mr. Chappell, who had an enthusiastic reception, in fitting terms thanked the managers, the companies, and staffs, both home and touring, for the very handsome testimonial, and the audience for their kind support.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland has accepted the Aldermanic office to which we alluded last week, and his election took place at the first meeting of the Hammersmith Borough Council amid scenes of enthusiasm unusual to such occasions. Mr. Mulholland is one of the founders of the Suburban Theatre Managers' Association, and has occupied the position of organising honorary secretary since its formation—a post which is by no means a sinecure. He is also a very active member of the Theatre Managers' Association, and was elected Vice-President of that body when Mr. Tree reached the Presidency in succession to the late Sir Henry Irving. Mr. Mulholland may therefore be rightly set down as a public-spirited as well as a busy man.

At Manchester on Monday his Honour Judge Parry, himself a dramatist, heard an application on behalf of Miss Eunice Hamilton Moore, of Whalley Range, for an order for the return of the MSS. of two plays alleged to be in the possession of Mr. Flanagan, proprietor of the Queen's Theatre in that town. It was stated that the plays were entitled My Neighbour and Love and Hate, and plaintiff took them to Mr Flanagan some time last winter. Subsequently she received a letter stating that the two plays could not be found, and since then there had been no communication from the theatre proprietor. His Honour directed the plays to be returned, with £3 as damages. In the event of the plays not being returned, Miss Moore was awarded £8.

Miss May De Sousa will not be the heroine of this year's pantomime at Drury-lane, having retired from the cast. The part of the principal girl has just been allotted to Miss Marie George, whose clever work in recent pantomimes at Old Drury, the continuity of which was, unfortunately, interrupted by illness, will be well remembered. Miss George played in Mother Goose in 1902, in Humpty Dumpty in 1903, and in The White Cat in 1904.

The Elephant and Castle is doing well this week with The Little Breadwinner, which is being presented by the stock company organised by Mr. Albert Ward, who enacts the hero with his accustomed manliness and vigour. Miss Kathleen Russell, who was some time ago accepted by the patrons of the theatre as their ideal heroine, quite sustains her reputation in the part of Margaret Daventry. An outstanding feature of the performance is the acting of Mrs. Calhaem as Bridget O'Flanaghan. She plays the part of the kind-hearted Irishwoman with rare dramatic resource, and gives a rendering of the rôle such as could only emanate from a finished performer. The humour of Charlie Prior is capitally brought out by Mr. Teddy Coleman, while Mr. W. H. Hatchman as an old Quaker, Mr. Horace Hunter as the villain, Miss East Robertson, and Mr. Brian Daly should be selected for special praise from amongst a thoroughly commendable cast.

Three remarkably good games at hockey were played last week between Mr. Norman V. Norman's XI. and Colchester Garrison, drawn from the Artillery, 60th Rifles, and 8th Hussars. The first game resulted in a draw of one goal each, the second a win for the Garrison by 3 goals to nil, and the third a victory for Mr. Norman's XI. by 3 goals to 2 goals.

The music and lyrics for Mr. Norman V. Norman's production of Robin Hood have been written by Gustav Von Holst. Mr. Norman will introduce two of the old folk-songs of England into the play.

Mr. Trueman Towers, through the courtesy of Messrs. Gatti and Frohman, has been enabled to accept a re-engagement with Mr. George Edwardes to stage-manage The New Aladdin tour, which commences in Manchester at Christmas.

The concert organised by the Playgoers' Club in aid of the Pantomime Fund for Poor Children will take place at His Majesty's Theatre (kindly lent by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree) on Sunday, Nov. 18. Last year nearly 20,000 children were enabled to enjoy one afternoon's amusement which they otherwise would have been without, and the whole of the proceeds of the concert will go towards the fund for the same object.

A settlement satisfactory to all concerned has been arrived at in the suit of the "Dover-street Studio Company v. Hall Caine, the Associated Newspapers (Limited), and the Ballantyne Press (Limited)," which was due for hearing in the Chancery Court yesterday, and the case has been withdrawn. There is no longer any restriction on the sale of "The Bondman" Play.

In the Court of King's Bench on Thursday Mr. Charles Frohman sued Mr. Lawrence Brough for £75, due under an engagement, and for £33 11s. 9d. for fees in respect of performances of The Dictator in the provinces. Counsel for the plaintiff said that the defendant hired from Mr. Frohman the provincial rights of The Dictator, the price to be paid being £150, £50 to be paid down and the remainder to be paid in subsequent instalments of £25. Three of these instalments were never paid on becoming due, and £75 was now claimed in respect of them. It was the business of defendant to furnish Mr. Frohman with nightly returns of the money taken on tour, and to pay a percentage of 7½ per cent. to plaintiff, this amounting to £33 11s. 9d. There was no defence. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff, and judgment was given for the amount claimed.

For the first reading of the season the Belfast branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society chose Coriolanus, which drew a fashionable audience to the Ulster Medical Institute, Belfast, on the 7th inst. In the title-rôle, Mr. Sinclair Neill exhibited exceptional skill, and was deservedly congratulated on his success. Miss E. McKisack was a dignified Volumnia, speaking her lines with rare charm and effect; and Mr. S. Bulloch gained approval for his finished rendering of the rôle of Menenius Agrippa. Miss May McTear is worthy of much praise for her reading of the small part of Valeria; and other rôles were capitally portrayed by Miss K. Nesbitt, and Messrs. R. Leighton, C. G. Boas, G. G. Aikinson, and others.

Miss Edna May, who is spending a holiday in the country, is applying herself industriously to the study of her part in Nelly Neil. The production will take place early in the new year at the Aldwych, then to be vacated by The Beauty of Bath, who will be the first tenant of Mr. Charles Frohman's new theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue. The cast of Nelly Neil will include Mr. E. Dagnall, Miss Mary Brough, Mr. Robb Harwood, Mr. J. J. Dallas, and Mr. Akerman May.

The revival of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's on Dec. 18 will see Miss Pauline Chase, who played one of the Twins in the original production, promoted to the title-part. Mr. Gerald Du Maurier, giving up his rôle of Raffles, will again be the Pirate King, and Miss Sybil Carlisle will play Mrs. Darling, with Mr. Marsh Allen as Mr. Darling. Miss Hilda Trevelyan will repeat her charming performance of Wendy. Mr. Du Maurier's character at the Comedy will be taken up by Mr. Henry Ainley, who should be admirably suited to the part of the chivalrous burglar.

An interesting ceremony took place at the registrar's office, Oldham, on Saturday, when Miss Ina Hill and Mr. C. H. S. Dring were married by special licence. Miss Doris Woodall and Mr. Julius Walther were witnesses.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MR. SIDNEY LEE, by his remarks on modern mounting, in his new book, "Shakespeare and the Modern Stage," has drawn out—vid an Evening Standard interviewer—Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who has thus commented upon Mr. Lee's arguments:—"Mr. Lee holds that we lose the 'literature' of Shakespeare when we place his plays upon the stage with all the beauty that colour and music can give. He says that it is in reading his works alone that one can enjoy their full imaginative beauty. Very well, I will go further, and say, for the sake of argument, that Shakespeare should not be produced at all—if he is only to be considered from the 'literary' point of view. There is nothing between this and producing his plays upon the stage to the *n*th degree of beauty. I would rather not revive his plays at all than stage them merely 'adequately,' as it is called. To have two fat fairies of forty representing the revels of A Midsummer Night's Dream seems to me entirely inadequate in its 'adequacy.'

"HAMLET and Macbeth can quite reasonably be staged with severe simplicity, but, on the other hand, Antony and Cleopatra demands, it clamours for, the richest of treatment. I have always, with the humility of the artist, thought that it is better to do the thing well, and so fill the theatre and to make thousands of fresh Shakespeare admirers, than to do it 'adequately,' and so please only the epicures who do not come to the theatre, and who attack productions which have not yet even been given to the public. Either let us keep Shakespeare to the study, and not stage his plays at all, or let us bring to their interpretation every means which our generation has placed at our disposal.

"WE are told that Phelps—it was Samuel, not Edmund, as commentators have hastily mis-stated—with his modest, 'adequate' performances at Sadler's Wells, made his venture pay. But there is a wider public to-day than in his time, a more solid and widespread public for the plays of Shakespeare. It used to be thought that representations of his plays must be dull, and there was a small erudite public which went steadily and frequently in a staid and scholastic frame of mind to see revivals of his works. To-day, Shakespeare upon the stage appeals to the great body of general playgoers.

"MR. LEE holds that the adornment of Shakespeare by scenery and music is wrong. I say that anything which diminishes the beauty and appeal of his work is obviously wrong; anything which increases it and helps to stimulate the imagination is obviously right. The present-day public, which crowds the theatre to see our productions—the vast public which has learned to find in Shakespeare a delight when placed upon the stage beautifully, would laugh to scorn the old inadequate 'adequacy'; it would not submit in a representation of Antony and Cleopatra to the bringing of Bermondsey to Alexandria. . . . Music and painting illuminate Shakespeare's plays upon the stage; they do not obscure them. We shall continue to use them both and all else which helps to show our reverence, our love for the poet. All the arguments in the world will not persuade us to treat him shabbily, or merely 'adequately,' which comes to the same thing."

MR. R. BACCHUS, in Fry's Magazine, has a quaint anecdote anent actors' golf. "A vast number of the dour middle classes of Scotland," he says, "regard the actor as an intimate ally of Beelzebub. The dourest of dour ministers was one day soundly taken down by an athletic young stranger on the links near Falkirk. Surprised that a Sassenach should have the impertinence to beat him on his native heath, but admiring the young man's skill, he asked him to the Manse for tea, where he found his guest polished, well read, and interesting. Half-past six brought the announcement that he 'must be off to his work.' 'And where will ye be working this time the day?' 'The theatre, of course. I act.' 'Act! An actor! Tae think I hae harboured a son of Satan in the house of God.' 'Have you ever been to a theatre?' 'The Lord forbid!' 'Then how can you know anything about it?' The minister paused. "Weel, weel, if ye can act as weel as ye can gowf, ye canna be sic a bad man. I'm minded to come an' speir at ye—I suppose ye can gie me a free ticket?'"

MISS MAUD BRANSCOMBE, who emerged from her retirement to appear at Miss Emily Soldene's matinée at the Palace on Tuesday, told a Daily Graphic interviewer of an adventure of her "palmy days," in which she imitated the hero of Davy Garrick. The youthful son of a colonel fell in love with her, and followed her for many weeks while she was on tour, although he never saw her except across the footlights. This was unknown to his parents, who, not hearing from him, feared he had come to an untimely end. When they discovered what was afoot, the colonel went to Miss Branscombe, and implored her not to marry his son. She told him that she had no intention whatever of doing so. "I'll give him a sound hiding," said the colonel. "Don't do that," said Miss Branscombe. "There's a better way of curing him. After the performance this evening I'll put on an old dress and hat, and make myself up to look quite ugly. You bring your boy round to the stage door, and point me out to him as I come out." This was done, and so cleverly was the ruse carried out that Miss Branscombe heard the youth exclaim to his father as she passed them, "My golly! I thought she was pretty!"

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, in a "curtain" speech at the conclusion of his visit to the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, on Saturday night, mentioned that while The Walls of Jericho was enjoying its year's run in London he was asked if it was true that he contemplated preaching every Sunday afternoon in Hyde Park. "They wouldn't listen to you there," said the sarcastic querist, "without the jam that makes the audience swallow the pill in your theatre." When I was in Scotland, two policemen were overheard talking outside the theatre. Said one, "I hear the smart set are getting a fine bit of talking to inside." "Yes," replied the other, "I've sent my wife there to-night, and I'm thinking it will do her a power of good."

MR. IAN ROBERTSON made a distinct hit as Cæsar's secretary, Britannus, in Mr. Bernard Shaw's Cæsar and Cleopatra, at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on the 30th ult. Britannus is a Briton, but Mr. Shaw has made him not an ancient Briton, but a very modern and priggish one—smug, self-satisfied, and decorous. He tells Cleopatra that blue is the colour worn by all Britons of good standing. "In war we stain our bodies blue; so that although our enemies may strip us of our clothes and of our lives, they cannot strip us of our respectability." And, again, when he is assured by an Egyptian that Ptolemy and Cleopatra were born King and Consort just as they were born brother and sister, the shocked Britannus exclaims, "Cæsar, this is not proper," and brings down the house.

THE risks which are run by the super-subtle dramatist are shown by the remark said to have been made by Royalty on the character of Bluntschli in Arms and the Man, on a night of its run at the Avenue, when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, occupied a box with the Duke of Saxe-Coburg. According to Mr. Yorke Stephens, in an interview in the Daily Chronicle, "he looked anything but pleased. Indeed, after the play we heard that his Royal Highness regretted that the play should have shown so disrespectful an attitude towards the Army as was betrayed by the character of 'the chocolate-cream soldier.'"

CHAT WITH EMILY SOLDENE.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Let no one imagine that Miss Emily Soldene is old. Not a bit of it. She is as young as you or I, gentle reader, however young you be. Youth and age are not to be judged by years.

"How old do you think I am?" The question is asked with all the vivacity and expectancy of a maiden of nineteen who wants to be flattered. The writer makes a mental guess, takes ten years off that guess, and then tells the lady "so much." And he feels quite triumphant when the lady cries, "I'm twenty years more than that!" So that, as we have already said, let no one imagine that Miss Soldene is old. And if anybody wants to know how it is she has kept young, we cannot do better than give the lady's own recipe, "I never worry about anything."

In her bright, lively, interesting manner, Miss Soldene goes on to talk about her benefit performance at the Palace Theatre last Tuesday, when she made her last appearance on the stage. "Everybody," she says, "has been so good to me that I feel I am under a great obligation. I don't exactly recognise what I have done that I should have—what shall I say?—such a universal coming-out-to-me."

"And so you chose to let us hear you in the balcony duet from Genevieve de Brabant, Miss Soldene?"

"My favourite—yes! It reminds me of old times. It takes me back to 1877. I was in the States at the time, and Mr. Morton, of the Alhambra, sent me a cablegram—quite an important document in those days—and I then and there entered into a contract with him to open in Genevieve. On my return to London a German opera was being played at the Alhambra to what we call in the profession a 'corporal's guard'—that is, a practically empty house. On the night that I opened in Genevieve no less than four thousand people paid for admission."

"And what do you consider the hardest work you did in your professional career?"

"When I played Carmen at Liverpool for eighteen nights straight off the reel. From a physical point of view, I think that is a record. Durward Lely shared the honours with me. We used to be so very earnest that we would not speak to one another between the acts because we did not wish to disturb our environment, or, to put it in another way, the actor's sphere."

"Shall I tell you how I got a big salary for not playing a part I wanted to play? Sounds paradoxical, doesn't it? I got £105 for seven performances of Madame Lange in Madame Angot. I got that money because I wanted to be Clairette in the piece. You know, Clairette is a singing part, and I thought fitted me admirably, and I used to like to sing those Republican songs. You understand—I have a great affection for songs of the people. That, of course, was at the Gaiety, and Mr. Hollingshead and Mr. Morton had to stand shares in my salary, which, by the way, they thought too awful for words."

"But, if we are to believe rumours, bigger salaries than that are paid nowadays."

"Yes, and I wonder how some of them are paid. I calculated in the case of one play, the total amounts reported to be paid to three principals, and they almost covered the pay-box receipts. Then it occurred to me that some managers must have a truly remarkable affection for art. I've got a good deal of love for art myself, but I like a bit with it. Then we are constantly hearing talk about the decadence of the theatre. The theatre now holds an infinitely higher place in the public opinion, and as an actual department of life, than it did in my young days. Every-this is done on a better scale, and yet nobody gives the management credit for the superb way in which the plays are mounted and dressed. When I hear people shouting about the decadence of the drama, I say to myself, 'rot!' or 'rats!' or something like that! But the productions at the present time, from a scenic point of view, are indeed very beautiful. You must not forget that women go to the theatre to see fine clothes. Some critics will tell you that a piece is covered with millinery. That is a good thing sometimes, and it has been known to save a play. It may be that the comedy's rotten, but so long as the frocks are all right, why grumble!"

And now for the mood reminiscent. If Miss Soldene did nothing else for the rest of her life she could easily keep her mind fully engaged with thoughts of the past and the experiences she has undergone. "The first time I met Irving," she says, "was at a party, when he recited 'Eugene Aram.' He fixed me completely. I think he is a delightful man. Oh, I must tell you about my Australian tour in 1892. At Sydney I came into contact with Max O'Rell, who joined our boat on the conclusion of a lecturing tour in Australia. That very day I went up to the Grosvenor Hotel. Who do you think was there? Foli—dear Foli, with the grand bass voice—Foli, with whom I used to sing at the temperance concerts up Glasgow way when we went a-gypsying a long while ago! Foli was giving a concert at the Town Hall. I went, and that was the first time I heard 'Off to Philadelphia in th' mornin'.' He sang it, and, to my mind, I've not heard it quite so sung since.

"It was on this visit to Sydney that I personally saw the late Robert Louis Stevenson for the last time. I met him at a friend's house, where we had fruit salad of the finest. Of nice, gentle manner, with a far-away look in his eyes—such was the great author. He did not go about much, his health not being very good. Crossing the Pacific again in 1897, I went ashore at Samoa, on a pilgrimage to the grave of Stevenson. I travelled along the road made by his 'young men'—so delightful, so peaceful—a fine road cut through the bush. On each side grew bananas, cocoanuts, and wonderful flowers. Here and there in a clearing was a native house, and out from it would come the native women and children, bearing on their heads green cocoanuts, &c., while the men—nude, except for a tappa mat—stood, splendid, graceful, smoking cigarettes with the air of Bond-street habitués. Looking up this visit in my diary, I find a faded blossom: 'Flower from a dead man's grave—Robert Louis Stevenson—Tusitali.' I gathered it at Samoa on March 24, 1897."

Miss Soldene has quite a host of old Gaiety memories, and we are scarcely surprised to hear her say that funny things happened there sometimes. "At a Gaiety matinée, during the Phelps season—I think the play was Richelieu, anyway, it was at the time of the American Revivalists—in the front scene, one of the characters, pointing off 'o.p.,' said, 'He comes, he is moody.' 'Where's Sankey?' loudly queried a voice in the gallery. That broke up the audience, and spoilt the Cardinal's entrance."

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

In Gounod's Faust, given at Covent Garden on Wednesday night, Mme. Wayda, a vocalist who some years ago sung in London, gave a pleasing reading of the part of Marguerite. Mme. Wayda has not a voice remarkable for power, but she sings with taste and expression, while her acting merits praise. The new Marguerite also is youthful, and thoroughly looks the character she impersonates. Signor Zenatello as Faust also gave capital support to the new vocalist, and in the Garden Scene Signor Walter as Mephistopheles and Signora Liviabella as Martha rendered excellent service. Signor Thos and Signor Purvis appeared with success as Wagner and Valentine, and the orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Percy Pitt.

THE EMILY SOLDENE MATINEE.

An almost forgotten figure in the world of the theatre came on the stage of the Palace Theatre on Tuesday afternoon to remind us of the days in 1871, when Mayfair and Belgravia went to Islington to be gladdened by the tunefulness of Offenbach and to applaud Geneviève de Brabant. Emily Soldene, indeed, may be regarded as the greatest star of her day in opéra-bouffe. It was she who inspired the lines:—

If Offenbach still pleases
More than the fugues of Bach,
We shall not have Bach often,
But often Offenbach.

That she had not been forgotten was testified by a thousand throats and by a benefit that produced a sum of £800. Truly the lovers of the theatre in England are staunch to their old favourites. The festival programme arranged was for the most part a theatrical one, music-hall favourites being conspicuous by their absence. The chief novelty, a tragedy, in one act, specially written for the occasion, by Owen Hall, was entitled

"AGNESE'S SECRET."

Agnese .....MISS IRIS HOEY
Jacopo .....MR. PERCIVAL STEVENS
Vesci .....MR. LESLIE STILES
Mario .....MR. WILLIAM DEVEREUX

The secret of pretty little Agnese is that she paints daily in the cathedral in Venice, disguising herself as a boy. Mario, a young sculptor, whose love she returns has his jealousy aroused by a rival suitor—Vesci—a Venetian nobleman, who speaks of the visits of a youth to Agnese's room. The two men retire into the shadow as the unsuspecting Agnese, in her boy's clothes enters, and throws herself upon her couch. Mario does not penetrate her disguise, but in a torrent of rage stabs the prostrate form of the girl. When he discovers to his horror that his victim is Agnese he would add to his crime by killing Vesci; but the dying Agnese makes him swear on the cross of the fatal dagger that there shall be no more bloodshed. A gory, depressing little play, and constructed so artlessly as to suggest that the author had not yet emerged from his novitiate as a playwriter. Mr. William Devereux gave a powerful performance of Mario; Miss Iris Hoey hardly sounded the possibilities of the rôle of Agnese; Mr. Percival Stevens did capable work as Jacopo; but Mr. Leslie Stiles was totally undistinguished and awkward as Vesci.

The Privy Council, by Major W. P. Drury and Mr. Richard Price, was in pleasant contrast to this sombre little piece, being agreeably presented under the direction of Miss Alice Crawford, who was again successful as Mistress Knipp, Miss Alexandra Carlisle showing excellent qualities as Mistress Pepys. Mr. Cecil Rose, Mr. S. Laurent, Mr. R. Tarver, Miss Mona Harrison, and Miss Muriel Alston also lent effective aid.

Of the variety and excellence of the miscellaneous programme there could be no doubt. Señor Sarasate made his first appearance upon a variety stage to play in his customary brilliant fashion a couple of violin solos. Mr. Lewis Waller recited; Lionel Brough told anecdotes, and Harry Paulton lectured—all of which they have done before on the Palace stage. A new comer was Miss Mariette Sully, who delighted the house with "Toujours gai," by Franco Leoni; Miss Margaret Cooper repeated her success in "My heart's at your feet"; Mr. John Le Hay and Miss Pollie Emery interested the stalls in Mr. B. W. Findon's well-written playlet, 'Melia, 'Enery, and It; and the funniest thing of the programme was the celebrated "Gendarmes" duet, "We'll run 'em in," sung with real comicality by Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and Mr. Edmund Payne (conducted by Mr. Jacques Greebe), a number that took the town by storm when Geneviève de Brabant was produced on Nov. 11, 1871, at the Philharmonic. Its success at the Palace on Tuesday was so great and immediate that Mr. George Edwardes might do worse than introduce it into his version of "Aladdin" at the Gaiety. Miss Carrie Moore came with the Sandow Girls; Miss Camille Clifford, Mr. Leslie Stiles, and a chorus of ladies ensured an enthusiastic reception of "Why do they call me a Gibson girl?" (conducted by Mr. Edward Jones); Mr. Arthur Strugnell sang the Prologue from I Pagliacci; Mr. Fred Wright gave "Chin, Chin, Chinaman," from The Geisha; Miss Billie Burke appeared in the scena, The First Post in the Morning; and Miss Florence St. John was heard to advantage in "When the tide comes in." The most interesting item of the matinée was the singing by Miss Emily Soldene of the Serenade from the famous opéra-bouffe in which she made her name, entitled "Lady: look down." For a woman of sixty Miss Soldene—who once again donned the white costume of Drogan, the pastry-cook—sang remarkably well, and was capably assisted by Miss Violet Ludlow.

At the conclusion of the famous duet, which was so enthusiastically applauded that it had to be repeated, Miss Soldene, still wearing the costume of Drogan, and carrying a bouquet, was led forward by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, whose graceful address was as follows:—

"Ladies and Gentlemen,—Mine is indeed a pleasant task to-day. I shall not attempt to harrow your feelings, or those of the lady in whose honour we are assembled here, with any pathetic phrases, but a song is none the less tender because it is not in the minor key. My task is joyfully to congratulate Miss Soldene on the success of this afternoon, and to hand her, on behalf of her friends, absent and present, a cheque for £653. I am sure, dear Miss Soldene, that I am expressing the feelings of this great audience and of your comrades on the stage when I say that while we have appreciated your work as artist and woman in the past, we all wish you every happiness in the future. There comes a time to us all when we must retire from active life on the stage, and the great philosophy for us is to retire gracefully, unlike the provincial Mayor who fell over his gown in walking backwards. You are retiring gracefully, and we are glad to know in full enjoyment of health.

"I shall not attempt, ladies and gentlemen, to recount to you a biography of Miss Soldene's varied career. She has herself given us her reminiscences in a volume of theatrical and musical recollections in her own witty and attractive manner. I am glad to think that this book is even accessible to readers of The Times. In this book you will find some delightful stories of her life, from the early days when she made her first appearance at Drury Lane in 1865, and then under the manager who afterwards became famous in this very house—I mean that dear old friend of the public, Mr. Charles Morton. I may, perhaps, however, be permitted to add my own little tribute to those of her many admirers, for when our beneficiare made Islington merry with Geneviève de Brabant, I used, as a boy, to take flights to this "Angel of Islington" in order to applaud her and to hear her sing. That, I believe, was in the year 1871. I need hardly tell you, ladies and gentlemen, that I was then almost in long clothes—I am sure Miss Soldene was in short skirts. Many others present here will remember her in Geneviève de Brabant. Ladies and gentlemen, I feel that you will also desire me to express the appreciation of the splendid work which Mr. Northcott has done as honorary secretary for this afternoon's festivity. Only those who have organised such entertainments as this know what work they entail upon the organiser and master of the ceremonies, and I am sure we all give our heartiest thanks to Mr. Northcott, who has been so untiring in his efforts to bring about this splendid result. Ladies and gentlemen, I have done. Parting is always something of a sweet sorrow, but there is one delightful consolation to Miss Soldene—that she carries with her into that graceful retirement to which I have referred the affectionate memory and regard of thousands of admirers."

After several endeavours to master her emotion, Miss Soldene commenced in tremulous accents: "I can't make a speech. I'm like the gentleman in Shakespeare, who was poor in thanks. My heart is so full that my woman's tongue won't wag as it ought. I had no idea that the result of this benefit would be so magnificent. I had been away from England for so many years that I thought I had been forgotten. My career has been a chequered one, and here's the end of it—only it's a different kind of cheque." [Here Mr. Tree, who was standing by the side of the beneficiaire, took the hint, and laughingly handed her the cheque, which she smilingly kissed and placed in her bosom.] It had all been such a surprise to her that so many people should know her, "a back number"—even young people to whom she must be little else than a legend. She warmly thanked Mr. Northcott and the Press, who had been so kind with paragraphs—so much nicer than advertisements. Their sentiment was allied to practice, and the result was so beautiful and so nice. "Even the King knows all about me and my matinée," she exclaimed; "he has reason to, for I simply bombarded him." When an enthusiastic recall brought Miss Soldene back, this time between the tableaux curtains, she said: "I can't tell you how lovely it is to come back to the stage once more, if only for five minutes." And with a kiss of the hand the popular opéra-bouffe artiste of the seventies left the footlights for ever.

"AMASIS" SCORES A CENTURY.

Mr. Louis Calvert "presented his compliments" to a delighted and enthusiastic audience on Friday, the 9th, when, in celebration of the 100th performance of Amasis, he also endowed each patron of the beautiful playhouse in St. Martin's-lane with a souvenir in the shape of a vocal score and a book of the words of the Egyptian opera, which has weathered the slack season, and is one of the brightest and most humorous productions in London at the present moment. There have been alterations since the production of the opera, which, on the "century" night, were recognised as decided improvements, the most important being the introduction of Mr. Rutland Barrington, the old Savoyard, into the first act. An uproarious reception told the comedian how welcome was his earlier appearance, and he immediately proceeded to justify it by the comicality of his scene with Sebak, the keeper of the crocodiles, and his dance with the seven wives, who are in such parlous straits through the locking-up by their jealous and absent lords of indispensable articles of their clothing. "'Twas such a forceful argument" is now Mr. Barrington's opening number. It tells the grim story of the operatic Pharaoh's succession to the throne of the Ptolemies in a droll way, and its humour is cleverly accentuated by the singer, whose elocution in song is a lesson to the younger vocalists of the day. In the second act, besides the great topical success, "The inference is obvious," Pharaoh sings of "lovely woman," and the new number goes admirably.

Miss Ruth Vincent, who was overwhelmed with applause on her entry as Amasis, was evidently overjoyed at her reception, and sang more brilliantly than ever her opening solo, "Little Princess, look up," still one of the most deservedly appreciated numbers in the score. As the more pensive and troubled Amasis of the second act Miss Vincent is no less successful, and her grip and sincerity in the more dramatic situations are important factors of the success. Her rendering of "The morning's heartless sun will gild" is charged with a genuine melancholy, and her impersonation adds largely to her high reputation.

Mr. Lauri de Frece, in the part of Sebak, makes the auditorium resound with laughter by his amusing behaviour with a property crocodile, and gags amusingly in his introduction to his song in the first act, "I'm adviser to the Royal pair."

Mr. Whitworth Mitton, in the serious part of Cheiro, displays the power and charm of a cultured voice in his several soli, being especially successful in "I prayed for life, a little life."

Such a singer, too, as Mr. Norman Salmond, is of immense value in opera, and in the part of the high priest, Nebenchari, this excellent basso's fine work brings the part into deserved prominence, and he rightly shares in the honours of the representation.

Mr. Herbert Ross has added many touches of humour to his realisation of the character of the Court embalmer, Ptolemy Theopompus Allakama, whose philosophy of life bears a decidedly twentieth-century complexion. Mr. Ross always plays with a grim drollery, and gets the hearty approbation of the house in his first song, "A very nice world for me."

Mr. Roland Cunningham has deepened the favourable impression formed of his abilities as a singer and actor on the first night, and he shares the success of the principal scenes with the charming Amasis, but scores quite on his own in his story of the assassination of the sacred cat, a catastrophe that has such serious consequences.

Miss Madge Vincent is the most bewitching Egyptian soubrette, and when Natis sings, "I'm a lonely little maid," with the most engaging coquetry of which the tall and handsome Mr. Frank Perfitt, as the Psamtik, is the willing victim.

A newcomer to the cast is Miss Winifred Hart Dyke, who must have been delighted with her reception on the festival night. English dancers possessing the gifts of this artist are rare on the stage, and her début at the New Theatre was made under the happiest auspices. Needless to say, the delighted house gave her a rousing greeting, and encored her. The 100th performance was conducted by the composer, Mr. Philip Michael Faraday, who had an enthusiastic welcome on taking his seat in the orchestra. The whole representation was a delight to a house crowded in every corner.

"THE ELECTRIC MAN."

A Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Charles Hannan, Revived at the New Royalty Theatre, on Saturday, Nov. 10.

The Electric Man, originally produced at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on April 4, 1904, was revived by Mr. E. B. Norman at the Royalty Theatre on Saturday evening. In farcical comedy a plot based upon the supernatural element is by no means a novelty, and in skilful hands has proved highly amusing. The principal characters in Mr. Hannan's piece is Walter Everest, the son of a great scientist and electrician. He has had a curious legacy left him by his late father in the form of an "electric man." Walter is living in lodgings, and keeps the dummy figure, which is the exact image of himself, locked in a cupboard. He declares to his chum, Jack Strange, a young physician, that the invention is a failure, inasmuch as he has not been able to impart to it life and action. However, his calculations are quite upset, for left alone in the cupboard with the figure, it suddenly becomes endowed with vitality, overpowers Everest, and makes its way out of its prison house. Walter is at first mistaken by his friends and fiancée, Stella, for the invention, and has great difficulty in convincing them of his identity. The figure makes its way into the street, and commits, in its headlong flight, frightful havoc; but eventually finds its way back, though not before a private detective has been employed to trace the electric man. It is unnecessary to relate the laughable complications and mistakes that ensue until the automaton's machinery goes wrong, and it collapses to everybody's great joy. It should, however, be explained that Everest's original intention is to make use of the figure to prevent the marriage of his stepmother with a plausible gentleman, who turns out to be an adventurer of the worst description, but who is "bowled out" by his own daughter.

The burden of the work devolved upon Mr. Harry Nicholls, who represented Walter Everest and his counterpart, the electric man. Mr. Nicholls years ago earned a reputation for clever work as a comedian, his portrayal of Cockney character being particularly realistic, and his return to the London stage after a considerable interval is a matter for congratulation. To play Everest and his double was no easy task, but Mr. Nicholls, thoroughly experienced in stage-work as he is, proved quite equal to the effort. As Walter Everest he depicted very naturaliy the young man about town, who is apt to arrive home at the hour the milkman makes his first call. Walter's indignation when he is mistaken for his electric double was most amusingly expressed, his attempts to speak when securely strapped in a chair and gagged arousing the hearty laughter of the audience. As the machine-made man Mr. Nicholls gave a decidedly clever imitation of the mechanical movements of an automaton, that in its jerky progress across a room overturns chairs, and comes into awkward collision with more substantial articles of furniture. Its vocabulary is limited to less than half-a-dozen unintelligible words, repeated at intervals, and its features are, of course, stolid and expressionless. Mr. Nicholls had, in the course of the performance, to make some very quick changes of at least one garment, and these were quite successfully accomplished. He received very loyal support from the members of the company. Mr. H. Marsh Allen as Walter's friend, Jack Strange, was always alert, and rattled through his part at precisely the right pace. Indeed, the rôle of the young medico, who naturally takes a professional interest in the electric man and his "symptoms," could not possibly have been in safer hands. Mr. J. A. Bentham was also excellent as Trooper Jenkins, the rough-and-ready bellicose manner of the soldier being admirably depicted; and Jenkins' sweetheart, Ems, a coloured girl, was capitally embodied by Miss Frances Day. Mr. Sydney Paxton, another actor whose return to the London stage is very welcome, did all that was possible with the part of the adventurer, Mr. Potterfield, who makes love in a comically unctuous style to Mrs. Everest, Walter's stepmother, a part that Mrs. B. M. de Solla played with much humorous appreciation of its possibilities. Mr. H. de Lange gave a good embodiment of the private detective and enquiry agent, Jobbins, who sends countless telegrams relating to the runaway automaton. Mr. A. G. Brown was a capital exponent of General Dudgeon, a stuttering, blustering old soldier. Mrs. Charles Calvert, in the part of Mrs. Anderson, gave a very laughable rendering of a Cockney landlady, who mangles the King's English terribly, and whose catch-phrase, "Pore young man," has reference to her eccentric lodger. Miss Phyllis Relph was a pleasing and pretty representative of Walter's cousin Mary; and Miss June von Buskirk played with bright intelligence and charm the rôle of his fiancée, Stella.

The Electric Man was preceded by the play in one act, by Charles Hannan, entitled

"THE SETTING OF THE SUN."

Rev. James Moorfield .....MR. SYDNEY PAXTON
Harry Lane .....MR. HUGH ARDALE
Janet Moorfield .....MISS PHYLLIS RELPH
Lucy Moorfield .....MISS RUTH MAITLAND

Mr. Hannan's one-act play was first produced under the direction of the late Mr. Wilson Barrett at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, on Oct. 13, 1892. The story briefly is as follows:—The heroine, Janet Moorfield, the elder of two sisters, has for years been engaged to a young soldier, Harry. Their marriage-day is approaching, but he is ordered to leave home with his regiment. He has however, come to love another, and that other is Lucy, Janet's younger sister. After consulting with the father of the girls, Harry tells Janet everything, and then it is that the beauty of her nature becomes apparent. With her own heart breaking she forgives Harry, and releases him on one condition—that he shall be truer to Lucy than he has been to her. In a touching interview between father and daughter, Janet tells him of the self-sacrifice she has made; and the curtain falls as Janet is left sadly contemplating "the setting of the sun."

Mr. Sydney Paxton gave a delightful sketch of the kindly clergyman; Mr. Hugh Ardale put considerable feeling into his impersonation of Harry Lane; and Miss Phyllis Relph depicted with genuine ability the part of Janet Moorfield, though, in appearance, looking scarcely old enough for the character. Miss Ruth Maitland was also well placed as Lucy Moorfield. The little piece was very favourably received.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Your Paisley correspondent alluded to me as George Gray, comedian. It should have been, yours faithfully,—GEO. RAE, Scotch comedian. 6, Vinicombe-street, Hillhead, Glasgow. Nov. 10.

THE marriage of Mr. T. Arthur Plummer and Miss Cora Linda, who are playing in Man to Man (Chattell's company), took place at Stirling on the 8th inst. Mr. Plummer plays the part of "the mad parson" and Miss Cora Linda that of the gipsy Madge.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A large number of the friends of the late Mr. Samuel Curtis, who died on the 6th inst., assembled at the Gilroes Cemetery, on the Groby-road, Leicester, on Monday afternoon, when all that remained of one of the most respected and gentlemanly of theatre employees were laid to rest, amid many manifestations of regret. The deceased, who was only in his twenty-fourth year, had been employed since boyhood at the Royal Opera House, Leicester, where he commenced his career as call-boy, and at the time of his death was employed in the advertising department and also as money-taker. He was a true and faithful servant, and won the esteem of everyone he came into contact with, which fact is testified to by the large number of beautiful wreaths that were sent and the inscriptions attached.

Wreaths were sent by the following:—"With deep regret," Milton Bode and Edward Compton; "With sincere sympathy," Henry Dundas; "Deepest sympathy and every token of respect," Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Winstanley (his old employer); "Deepest respect for a good man," Mrs. J. A. Winstanley; "In sorrowful memory of a good comrade," staff in front of Opera House; "With deepest sympathy, from the members of the orchestra of the Royal Opera House"; "With deepest sympathy," from the management and staff of the Theatre Royal; "With deepest sympathy," back staff of the Royal Opera House; "In loving memory," mother and children; "A token of sympathy," from the neighbours; "Bert, Harry, and wives, affectionate memory and deepest sympathy"; "In loving memory," Alice; "In loving memory," Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lewin; "A tribute of sincere sympathy," from Barry and F. B.; "With deep sympathy," Mr. and Mrs. Fellowes; "An old friend, W. G."; and several others.

The deceased, who was unmarried, was carried to his last resting-place by his old comrades and loving friends, viz., Messrs. Arthur Lawrence, Harry Hobbs, Fred King, Joe White, W. Wildbore, and J. Fowkes. Assembled at the graveside were Mr. Chas. Lacey (the advertising manager of the Royal Opera House) and the following ladies and gentlemen of the staffs:—Messrs. J. J. Clarke, Wm. Hyde, Walter Dudgeon, Geo. Foxon, Jno. Lloyd, Harry Adcock, Jack Robinson, Frank Richardson, Andrew Humberstone, Miss P. Doggett, Miss Maud Percy, Miss Du Val, Miss Mabel Percy, Mrs. Timson, and Mrs. Robbins. The Rev. James Mountain, the vicar of St. Mary's Church, Leicester, officiated at the burial service.

The committee arranging the fourth annual concert in aid of the benevolent funds of the London branches of the National Association Theatrical Employees have now completed the programme, the following artists having generously promised their services; Mme. Alice Esty, Mme. Mary Conly, Miss Edna Thornton, Miss Helen Blain, Miss Marie Stiven, Mr. Joseph O'Mara, Mr. Herbert Grover, Mr. Charles Knowles, Mr. Hector Lightfoot (the new Australian tenor), and Mr. Denis O'Sullivan. The London Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Mr. Landon Ronald, and play seven numbers, including overture, Zampa (Herold); overture, Tannhäuser (Wagner); 2nd and 3rd Movement, Pathetic Symphony (Tschaikovsky); overture, Rienzi (Wagner); overture, William Tell (Rossini); two songs without words (a) "Spring Song," (b) "Bee's wedding" (Mendelssohn); and the "1812" overture (Tschaikovsky).

The following additions to the list of patrons have been made: Sir Charles Wyndham, the Hon. W. F. D. Smith, M.P., Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Miss Jessie Bateman, Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Alfred Butt, Mr. Louis Calvert, Miss Kate Compton (10s.), Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. J. H. Leigh, Miss Evelyn Millard, Miss Julia Neilson, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh (who will take a box), Mr. Alfred Rothschild (£5 5s., including two boxes and stalls), Mr. Paul A. Rubens (£1 1s.), Mr. Otho Stuart, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. J. E. Vedrenne (who will take four stalls), and Mr. Lewis Waller.

A number of the libraries have kindly undertaken to sell tickets, and those friends of the society who wish to secure seats should apply without delay, as the committee anticipate that all will be sold before the day.

At the adjourned meeting of day men connected with the stage departments of the West-End theatres and music halls, held on Sunday evening in the Nag's Head Hotel, Floral-street, it was unanimously resolved to form a branch of the National Association to consist exclusively of day men. A provisional committee was appointed, consisting of twenty-three representative day men, and this committee met on Friday evening at the offices of the society in Wellington-street, when the benefits to be provided and other questions were considered.

The annual dinner of the staff at the Court Theatre will take place on Sunday evening at the Horse Shoe Tavern, Tottenham-court-road. After the dinner a smoking concert will be held.

The inauguration dinner given at the New Club instituted by the Musicians' Union, on Sunday last, was a most successful event. A full and interesting report appears in another column. The long-discussed club for stage employees ought to be helped forward by the bold and enterprising action of the Musicians' Union.

A meeting of theatrical stage employees will be held on Sunday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the Hare and Hounds, Upper-street, Islington.

Mr. G. Bastard, sen., who recently wrote to us, should send his address to Mr. William Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, as a letter addressed to Mr. Bastard has been returned by the Post Office.

Into their excellent entertainment at St. George's Hall, Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant introduced on Monday a new candidate for popular favour in the person of Mr. Harry May Hemsley, who at once was recognised as a cartoonist with a decided talent for caricature, and as an excellent mimic of children of from one to five years of age. Mr. Hemsley has made a close study of the little people, whose traits he gently satirises in his clever mimicry of them. Both the matter and manner of the new entertainer are distinctly diverting, and he is a decided acquisition to the hall of mystery in Langham-place. He was very heartily received on Monday.

The Seven Leopolds, lady and gentlemen acrobats, who are now at the Cirque Plege, Brussels, are engaged for the World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, for Christmas.

Fred Karno, to whom laughter-loving London owes so much, has just been booked to revive the glories of "Richardson's Show" at the great International Fair at Olympia at Christmas. To give the Fair, which has already secured the support of the pick of British and American showmen, the desired cosmopolitan touch, the managing-director is now visiting the festivals at Rouen and Montmartre to secure the latest Continental novelties. The great ostrich farm of 200 birds reaches England this week-end.

Mr. Richard Cass's agency has now the booking for three London halls. Further particulars will appear in our advertisement columns.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING AND HEATING.

Mr. H. J. Greenwood moved the reception of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee's postponed report in reference to the regulations for electric lighting and heating in theatres and music halls. The report was as follows:—

We have for some time past had under consideration the question of the revision of the regulations made by the Council on March 25, 1902, with respect to the electric lighting and heating installations in theatres and other places of public entertainment in London. The regulations in question are extremely technical, and it is impossible to indicate briefly the various alterations proposed, but generally speaking the object has been to make the meaning of the regulations clearer than it is at present, and in very few instances are the regulations made more stringent. We have been in communication with the Theatrical Managers' Association, the Suburban Theatre Managers' Association, and the London Entertainments Protection Association, and have had the advantage of their criticisms on our proposed amendments. A satisfactory understanding has now been arrived at on the whole question, and this result is largely due to the fact that we propose to give a right of arbitration in cases where the regulations require work to be done, and in cases where, in consequence of alterations to premises, it is proposd to apply the regulations to an existing installation which has already been approved by the Council. We think it reasonable that arbitration on these points should be allowed, provided it is distinctly understood that it must not be regarded as constituting a precedent for allowing arbitration on the structural regulations of the Council, and, further, that the Council will reserve to itself the right to withdraw the clause if it is found to be unsatisfactory in practice. As regards the application of the amended regulations to existing installations which have been approved by the Council, we have given an assurance that the regulations would not be retrospective except in unusual instances, such as the carrying out of extensive alterations, &c. Certain of these regulations are included in the rules relating to premises licensed by the Council which rules were made by the Council on Oct. 25, 1904, and in the structural regulations made by the Council on July 30, 1901, and Feb. 4, 1902. A copy of the electric lighting and heating regulations showing the alterations proposed will be found in the statement separately submitted to the Council. We recommend—

(a) That the proposed amendments to the electric lighting and heating regulations made by the Council on March 25, 1902, shown in the statement separately submitted by the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, be approved, and that the seal of the Council be affixed to three copies of the regulations as amended.

(b) That the necessary consequential alterations be made in the rules relating to premises licensed by the Council (adopted by the Council on Oct. 25, 1904) and in the structural regulations with regard to theatres, &c., approved by the Council, on July 30, 1901, and Feb. 4, 1902, and that the seal of the Council be affixed to three copies of the rules and structural regulations as altered.

Mr. Leon moved on (a) to leave out all the words after "approved," and to insert "except the clause relating to arbitration." He pointed out that the Council and the Council alone were the responsible authority in London for seeing that the theatres and music halls in the Metropolis were safe from fire. The arbitration proposal of the Committee was a proposal to delegate to a single person, not a member of the Council, not even an official of the Council, to decide whether certain work was necessary or not. So far as he knew, that was an entirely new precedent, and one which he ventured to think the Council should not set up. There might be, as in the case of sanitary matters, other local authorities outside interested in the arbitration, and who would claim the right to intervene. It was, therefore, highly desirable that in dealing with theatrical and music hall proprietors the Council should hold fast to their supreme power to decide what was right or what was wrong.

Mr. Edward Smith seconded the amendment. He regarded it as a most unusual proceeding that the Council should be asked to create another authority outside itself. If the recommendation of the Committee were carried it would be setting up a new precedent of procedure in all the Committees of the Council. Whilst admitting that the subject of the lighting and heating of places of amusements was highly technical, he had not been able to find any real reason why the Council should submit to the pressure brought to bear on the Committee by the theatrical and music hall managers.

Mr. Greenwood said he would be very sorry if the Council did not see its way to adopt the recommendations of the Committee. The matter had been before the Theatres Committee a great number of times. Negotiations had been going on for a long period between the representatives and particularly the managers of the theatres and music halls; and in the result they had arrived at what they thought was a working arrangement. He did not suppose that any one of the Committee was ready to part with the powers of the Council in this matter; and of course the working arrangement was agreed upon subject to its acceptance by the Council. The arbitration clause, for which he considered there was ample justification, was not intended to apply to structural matters in theatres and music halls, but simply and solely to questions of electric heating and lighting—a very complicated and technical subject. The Council were not recommended to part with any of their powers to insist upon work being done which they considered necessary from the point of view of the safety of the people who attended places of public amusement; but after consultation with the theatrical and other managers it appeared to the Committee that no satisfactory decision could be arrived at unless arbitration were conceded. If, after a time, the clause were found not to be working satisfactorily, the Committee reserved the right to withdraw it.

Sir M. Beachcroft foresaw considerable danger in the Council parting with any of its authority in this matter of lighting and heating places of public amusement. He had to complain that himself and other members of the Council had not received any papers on the subject so that they might form a complete and just opinion on a very difficult and complicated question; and that, in itself, was a prima facie ground for adjourning the consideration of the report.

Mr. Greenwood understood that all the papers relating to the subject had been circulated to the members.

Col. Rotton said the question under discussion had occupied the attention of the Committee in consultation with theatrical managers at various times for several years, and it was thought that they had now arrived at a satisfactory conclusion. If it were found that arbitration did not work well, the right to claim it could be taken away. It was of enormous importance that a smooth working of the arbitration clause should be given a chance. The theatrical and other managers, who, he must say, were a long-suffering class, had shown themselves anxious to meet the views of the Committee in every possible way, and the conclusion arrived at was that the only practical solution was to be obtained by a slight modification of the Council's powers.

Mr. Dolman supported the amendment on the ground that in the event of any fatality occurring in a theatre or music hall the public would not be satisfied with the explanation that the Council were unable to insist upon any requirements for the safety of the public because of the award of the arbitrator.

Sir Algernon West urged the Council to accept the Committee's recommendation. He pointed out that a large number of theatres were not under the authority of the London County Council, but under the control of the Lord Chamberlain; and that functionary, he believed, was perfectly satisfied with what was being done.

On a show of hands, the amendment was supported by only seven members, and the recommendation of the Committee was then agreed to.

Clause (b) was also passed.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that the Council on Nov. 25, 1905, granted a provisional licence for music and dancing in respect of the Putney Empire and Palace of Varieties (now known as the Putney Hippodrome). The premises have, with certain slight exceptions, been completed in accordance with the drawings approved on June 2, 1905, and the Committee recommended—(a) That the seal of the Council be affixed to a certificate under section 12 of the Metropolis Management and Building Acts Amendment Act, 1878, in respect of the Putney Hippodrome, Felsham-road, Putney; (b) That the provisional licence for music and dancing, granted on Nov. 24, 1905, be confirmed; that notice of such confirmation be endorsed on the licence; and that the seal of the Council be affixed to such endorsement.

Agreed to.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H. M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six-foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body.

MISS DOT STEPHENS.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon, and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr. Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

"THE MYSTERIOUS CROSS."

An agreeable sensation of bewilderment is this week pervading the Empress, Brixton, where a leading attraction of the programme is an illusion, called "The Mysterious Cross," presented by Mr. Arthur Preston and company. Slow music heralds the rising of the curtain, and upon a darkened stage stands a man in vivid red. The lights are turned up, revealing a square platform raised a few inches from the ground, and enclosed on every side by draperies hung on metal uprights. A gentleman in evening dress then draws the curtains, and reveals a black wooden cross, some six feet high, with deep notches on the cross-piece and at the top. An elaborate description of every detail of the apparatus is then given, attention being drawn to the utter impossibility of connection with traps, mechanical scenery wires, or mirrors, the speaker offering to forfeit £500 if he can be proved to have used any of these devices. He then seizes the man in the red suit and ties him unceremoniously to the cross with a rope specially made to prevent slipping or unravelling, and knotted at the waist, arms, and throat. To make any tampering with the cord still more difficult he affixes a handkerchief round the knots, and the ends of the rope are passed over the top of the tent and held by a man at either side. The curtains, which are manipulated by a cord hanging from the top in full view of the audience, are drawn, and the performer, stepping to the front of the stage, fires a pistol. Rushing to the rope, he pulls aside the curtains, and the gentleman in red is found to have disappeared and his place taken by a lady in green. She is bound apparently to the same cross with the same knots and the same handkerchief. After releasing the young lady, the performer claims to have done a clever thing, but declares he will do something still more wonderful, and, immediately pulling the curtains, reveals the scarlet-suited individual pensively reading a letter. The feat defies all attempts at elucidation, and is very skilfully executed, the admirable delivery of the gentleman who performs the operation adding greatly to its effect. The audience gave an emphatic verdict of approval to the performance, the attractive powers of which were fully proved by a house crowded in all parts.

DR. BODIE AND CHARITY.

Sir,—The Waterloo Hospital having refused to accept the profits of my lecture, which I gave in their aid, I hereby send you the same, to be divided equally between the Music Hall Home and the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. The profits, after deducting expenses, amounted to £14 10s. 8d. I have made up the amount to £20, part of same being the whole amount, without any deduction, of the sale of The Bodie Book. I shall refrain from any comments, and content myself by saying that the conduct of the Governors of the above hospital is inexplicable to me, considering they are advertising the fact that funds are urgently needed and that every penny helps.

It is my intention, when I have the opportunity to give special Sunday lectures in aid of our own deserving charities, who, I am sure, will not be too proud to accept the money honestly earned in a good cause by one of themselves.—Yours, &c.,

WALFORD BODIE, M.D.

I may mention that the directors of the Canterbury, kindly gave the use of the hall free, and Mr. Miller also assisted greatly in the success of the lecture. I gave my services free and paid postage, &c., which amounted to over £5, which I have not put down in the expenses.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Mr. J. W. Edgar, the popular manager of the Metropolitan, had the pleasure of welcoming quite a host of friends on Thursday evening, the occasion of his complimentary benefit at the variety theatre in the Edgware-road with which he has been so long connected. At a late hour of the evening Mr. Edgar was called on for the usual speech, and his appearance on the stage was the signal for loud applause from the packed house. He said that with such an enthusiastic audience and with such a crowded house it certainly did not look as if his popularity was on the wane. It had always been his object as manager to give satisfaction to the patrons of the "Met." and to do all in his power to secure their comfort. He had to express his thanks to the directors of the company for granting him the use of the hall, to the artists, many of whom had come long distances, to the members of the orchestra under the direction of Mr. D. M. Trytell, and to the secretary, Mr. Leon Zeitlin. He had received communications from artists who would have appeared had they not been suffering from the prevailing epidemic—influenza. Amongst these were Hackenschmidt, Miss Marie Lloyd, Miss Amy Clevère, and Mr. Will Evans. In conclusion, he again thanked all who had contributed towards the success of the benefit.

The artists who appeared included Agnes Hanson, Fred Herbert, Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, Stewart and Morgan, Michael Nolan, Terry and Bentley, Laurie Wylie, Lily Burnand, Ethel Ra Leslie, Ernest Rees, Madeline Rees, Dr. Walford Bodie, "the miracle worker," Gladius Mavius, Sam Mayo, Clark and Hamilton, Albert Le Fre, Tom Costello, the Abdullah Arabs, Malcolm Scott, Ernest Shand, George Mozart, Ethel Earle, Dan Robans, the Bostons, Tibbie Blundell, and Nora Royston. Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Adney Payne, Messrs. William Bailey, L.C.C., J. Sinclair, Jesse Sparrow, G. Barclay, Harry Masters, Edgar Bateman, Charles Reed, Charles Chapman, Miss Vesta Victoria, and others.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Owing to pressure on our space, we have been compelled to hold over the weekly instalment of the above. The series will be continued next week.

Mr. E. Eeley is still doing good business at Bridgend.

Pleinston's big wheel and Scarrott's boxers are at Pontypridd.

Messrs. Williamson's kinématograph films, which are so admirably turned out from their well-equipped factory at Welbury-road, Hove, Brighton, include a new subject of palpitating interest, viz., "Where there's a will there's a way," a proverb of which the aptness is dramatically and humorously illustrated in the story of a motor-car elopement. There should be a great demand for this film.

MR. JONES'S JEREMIAD.

Mr. HENRY ARTHUR JONES is always "on the move," and his activity is ever interesting. Between the years 1883 and 1894 he overflowed with essays and lectures on the drama. Many of these appeared in monthly reviews; others were delivered before clubs and "leagues." They all partook of the nature of complaints and protests, and kept his name well before the public.

When Mr. JONES has not been doing dramas, which, happily for his prosperity, have been non-literary, he has been pleading very eloquently for an English stage of another, and less popular, sort.

In his recent lecture to the students of Harvard University Mr. JONES went over well-known ground. He complained of the divorce of the English drama from literature; the absence from modern English plays of any but the conventional ideas of morality; the effect of long runs and the present system of management upon the training of actors; and the absence of any care or knowledge about a national drama.

When these defects of our English theatre are brought before the notice of the public, the line taken by certain amiable apologists is that of evasive excuse. We see no reason to be apologetic. We do not believe in a nation abandoning its natural qualities in order to imitate those of other countries. An Italianised Englishman, the mediæval proverb said, was a devil incarnate; and a Frenchified or Germanised Briton is a hybrid being, entirely unsatisfactory and ineffectual. The Spartans had to degenerate at some time or other, but they would not have delayed their decadence by playing at being Athenians. We can compare England to a horse which does an enormous amount of work in "blinkers." One of the most valuable assets of the British character is its density of apprehension. Brains are not an unmixed blessing, and our practice of taking short views and ignoring cloudy theories has hitherto "worked well."

What is the essential difference between the English playgoing public and those of France and Germany? Chiefly that the French and the Germans are moral philosophers, while the English are not. And we maintain that the English are in the right of it. Once let the drama emerge from its real function—i.e., that of recreation after labour—and it inevitably becomes, like all literature at the present period, morbid, melancholy, and depressing. The old stories are all used up; the old illusions are exploded; and the modern dramatist is forced, in his search for sensation, to "go in for gloom." He is very much in the position of a daily newspaper: it is not the ninety-nine sober and satisfied citizens who are of any value to him, but the hundredth who commits murder, adultery, or suicide. Mr. JONES demands in his Corner-stone No. 3 the "acknowledged right of the dramatist to deal with the serious problems of life—with the passion of men and women." This right has been freely granted in France and Germany, and what is the result? Not the "broad, wise, sane morality of the Bible and SHAKESPEARE," but a bitter pessimism, a melancholy reductio ad absurdum of human hope and effort. Writing of M. HENRY BECQUE'S Parisienne—a cynical picture of a pack of calmly adulterous canaille—poor Mrs. CRAIGIE said: "There are critics who, mistaking the situation for the philosophy, have called this piece immoral. A true book, a true play, cannot be otherwise than moral. It is the false picture—no matter how pretty—which makes for immorality." But Art is primarily a question of selection, and the artist is responsible for his choice of subject. The association of a theatrical audience, from eight till eleven of an evening, with a "sorry crew" of dramatic personages has much the same effect on the individual spectator as "bad company" in real life would have. Take, for instance, Les Trois Filles de M. Dupont, a version of which was produced not long ago by the Stage Society. It is simply a hopeless condemnation of the existing social order. The only action which it stimulates is universal anarchy and suicide. The effect on an audience is simply "sickening." As for the literary drama of the Continent, where the playwright has "full scope to deal with the passions of men and women," here are a few sample scenarios of its masterpieces:

Les Tenailles (Hervieu).—Wife married to husband she does not care for. Falls in love with another man. Asks husband to release her. He refuses to "collude" in a divorce case. Ten years elapse. Boy has been born, and has grown up. They quarrel over his education; and wife, in a rage, owns that the boy is the son of her lover. Then it is the husband's turn. He claims a divorce. But the wife refuses. He has no evidence but her confession. Result, dead-lock and despair.

La Loi de l'Homme (same author).—Wife discovers that her husband has been unfaithful. Husband's partner in adultery is a married woman, whose son subsequently falls in love with the injured wife's beloved daughter. Wife objects to the match. The young man's father demands an explanation. Wife tells him the truth. Injured husband, after a passionate struggle with his feelings, concludes to keep silence for the sake of the young lovers.

Grafin Julie (Strindberg). — An abnormally amorous young lady, daughter of a Count, conceives an infatuation for the footman. He seduces her, and makes her rob her father. Finally, the footman gives the girl a razor, and tells her to go and cut her throat. She does so.

Les Corbeaux (Becque).—A widow and three daughters, by the death of the head of the house, are placed at the mercy of the "ravens"—sharp rascals who swoop down on the inheritance. The women would be ruined, did not the eldest girl offer herself up as a sacrifice to the most detestable villain of the lot, whom she marries, practically prostituting herself to save her mother and sisters from poverty.

Rose Bernd (Hauptmann). — A female farm labourer is seduced by a rural mayor. A rascally engineer criminally assaults her. She has a baby, strangles it, and goes mad.

What good can come to anyone, young or old—young especially—from witnessing plays of this class? An impression is created that the world is much worse than it really is; and the merciful illusions which make life tolerable for the great majority are ruthlessly destroyed. Surely it is better to have a "non-literary" theatre to make one contented than a despairing drama to drive one mad? At any rate, that is what the English public think; all except a very small section of over-cultured and cosmopolitan folk, who are certainly active and persistent enough to create an illusion as to their number and importance.

MISS EMILY SOLDENE issued the following proclamation on Tuesday:—"Permit me, dear friends, to thank all of you for your presence this afternoon. I am retiring with great regret from the stage, but we have to make way for others when age creeps on us. Personally I feel as young as I did in the old Philharmonic days, but the doctors say I must not be so energetic. I must, however, tell you in this manner how grateful I am to Mr. Tree for his presence, to all the artists for providing the entertainment, and to the directors of the Palace Theatre, and especially to Mr. Alfred Butt, for granting me the use of this handsome and popular establishment for my 'farewell.' And in particular I must express my heartfelt gratitude to the silent workers who have organised and carried through the programme. I refer to Mr. Herman Finck, the musical director, Mr. Frank Damer, the stage director, Mr. Edward A. Pickering, the acting manager, and Mr. Thomas Miller, the treasurer. To these, and to the proprietors of "The Daily Chronicle" for their help in the organisation, to the proprietor of "The Military Mail," for the beautiful programmes, and to all my other kind friends, I can only repeat—Thanks, Thanks, Thanks."

THE TOOLE RELICS.

The sale by auction of the late Mr. J. L. Toole's effects was continued on Monday afternoon, when the contents of the deceased gentleman's residence were sold at 44, Maida Vale, W. At the outset it was announced that the fourteen years' unexpired lease of the house had been disposed of by private treaty. The proceeds of this, the second day's sale, realised £500, apart, of course, from the lease. The lots put up were not of great artistic interest, as they were mainly confined to household furniture, linen, crockery and glass, carpets, and kitchen and garden utensils. Mr. Frank J. Arlton, the cousin and companion of the veteran actor, secured, among other things, Mr. Toole's theatre dressing-table for £1 10s., while for 16s. he obtained six water-colour drawings in two frames, pictures depicting Shakespeare's infancy and courtship, and Mr. Garrick and Miss Bellamy as Romeo and Juliet. Twenty-four Vanity Fair cartoons went for £4 12s., a gentleman's early English wardrobe £5 15s., a set of twelve coloured characters from Dickens, along with other oddments, £1 6s.; twenty-one pictures, including ten by Chas. Mathews, £1 10s. £7 17s. 6d. was the price paid for part of Mr. Toole's bedroom suite, comprising a Beaconsfield wardrobe, a duchesse dressing-table, a washstand, and three cane-seated chairs. Five engravings—"The Trial of Queen Catherine," "The Railway Station" (after Frith), "Raising the Maypole" (after Goodall), "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (after Landseer), and "Venice" (after Turner)—went for £3. Good bids were made for the ornamental articles, which included a beautifully carved ivory model of a pagoda standing in a garden, with numerous figures and trees, surrounded by trellis-work paling; Crown Derby ware, Chinese bowls and Oriental plates, opal and gilt glass punch service, and Rouen, Parian, and Doulton ware vases.

The third day's sale—and by far the most interesting—took place on Thursday afternoon at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's. There was a good attendance, the visitors including Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. C. M. Lowne, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Frank J. Arlton, Mr. Tom Hazlewood, Mr. Bransby Williams, Miss Sybil Ruskin, and Miss Blanche Wolsey. One of the principal items in the list of 173 lots was a long-link gold watch-chain, with circular pendant locket containing a lock of Edwin Booth's hair, and inscribed "Edwin Booth's hair, for Henry Irving from William Bispham, Nov. 13, 1893," and a combined sovereign-case and matchbox, containing £1 10s. in coin, and inscribed, "To Henry Irving, from J. L. Toole, Feb. 6, 1894." The same lot also contained "This purse (and contents), chain, and locket, as worn by Sir Henry Irving when he died (Oct. 13, 1905), were presented to J. L. Toole by Messrs. H. B. and Laurence Irving, Feb. 17, 1906." There was some stiff bidding over these articles, which eventually went to Mr. Gamble, representing the real purchaser, for 64 guineas. An Algerian onyx scarf-pin, set round with small brilliants, and a small ruby and diamond horse-shoe scarf-pin, presented by the King, when Prince of Wales, to Toole and Irving, went for comparatively small sums, their history not being generally known. Mr. Arlton bought, on behalf of Mr. Ambrose Manning, for the sum of £10 10s., another scarf-pin, set with small white brilliants, and presented by Sir Henry Irving to Toole. Mr. Fred Terry, who took away several curios and mementos out of the collection, gave £25 for a long gold neck-chain with chased gold locket, small brilliant in centre and portrait of Irving, inscribed "Boston, 1899," and a fob chain, bar, and seal, engraved with boar, and bearing the words "Edmund Kean's Seal, J. L. Toole, from Henry Irving, February, 1893." £33 12s. was paid for a flat circular gold locket with monogram, containing a lock of the late Henry Irving's hair, inscribed inside "Sir Henry Irving's hair for J. L. Toole, from Bram Stoker, March 12, 1906." Mr. Bewlay, of the famous firm of tobacconists, secured for £41 an oblong chased gold and dark blue enamel snuff-box, with combined monograms in brilliants and roses, "J. L. T.—H. I.," and inscribed inside "From Henry Irving to J. L. Toole, 1889." A beautiful Worcester china dessert service, with perforated borders, richly gilt, painted in birds, comprising twenty-six pieces, and supposed to have belonged to Charles Dickens, fell at twenty guineas. Several lots, formerly in the possession of the late Sir Henry Irving, were also put up for auction, and fetched good prices. A wrought-iron Elizabethan stove, from Mrs. Siddon's dining-room, fitted for wood fire and loose grate for coals, only realised the sum of 12s. A very interesting model of the Maypole Inn (1780) mentioned in "Barnaby Rudge," and contained in a glass case, was obtained by Mr. Bransby Williams for £3 15s., and a scarf-pin, engraved with the words "I am still happy, was purchased for £2 15s. on behalf of Miss Evelyn Millard.

THE MUSIC HALL SICK FUND.

The monthly committee meeting of this Society was held on Wednesday at the York Hotel, York-road. Mr. W. J. Waimatta (vice-president) occupied the chair, and there was also present Messrs. Frank Heath, F. Slingsby, Tom Carney, H. E. High, J. Mulcaster, J. Shields, G. Malcolm, and R. T. Baines (secretary). A cheery telegram ("Am with you in spirit if not in the flesh") from the president (Mr. Pat Carey), who is appearing this week at the Empire, Leeds, was received in the course of the meeting.

The illuminated address to the president on the occasion of his marriage was on view. It was in a handsome frame, and read as follows:—"Music Hall Sick Fund, Oct. 1, 1906: The committee and officers of the above society desire to offer you their sincere and hearty congratulations on your approaching marriage, and their heartfelt wishes that the future will have in store for you and the lady you are about to wed long life, happiness, and prosperity." The address was signed by the officers and committee of the society, and it was resolved that it should be forwarded to Mr. Carey.

Mr. High called attention to the fact that Mr. Fredk. Baugh had offered one of his variety theatres for a benefit performance in aid of the Society's Management Fund, and asked if anything had been done in the matter.

The secretary said that he had not received any further communication on the subject.

Several members expressed the opinion that it would not be advisable to have a benefit performance before Christmas, and the matter dropped.

After the transaction of some private business, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

MR. CHAS. FISHER, originator of "condensed operas" in our variety theatres, has successfully launched a burlesque operatic skit, and is now playing two special weeks at Mr. Stoll's halls, this being his fifth engagement. He is rebooked for the Moss-Stoll tour next year.

MR. FRED KARNO'S troupe is appearing at the Alexandra, Stoke Newington, this week in Saturday to Monday, which is described as a musical pantomimical extravaganza. The burden of the work in the entertainment, is borne by Mr. Rolando Martin, who works very hard throughout the evening, and proves himself an alert and resourceful comedian. Mr. Martin receives adequate support from his fellow members of the company, the more prominent of whom are Misses May Rogerson and Ada Maskell, and Messrs. J. W. Bradbury, Dick Harcourt, J. Fletch, and V. H. Crawford.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LES ARMAILLIS,"
Dramatic Legend, in Two Acts, by Henri Cain and D. Baud-Bauvy.
music by M. Gustave Doret; produced at the Opéra-Comique on Nov. 9.

Koebi	M. DUFRANNE
Hansbi	M. DEVRIES
Fritz	M. CAZENEUVE
L'aubergiste	M. GUILLAMAT

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Nov. 15.—We have had some interesting novelties this week, and the Opéra-Comique opened the ball with three productions, of which Les Armaillis is decidedly the best. The plot is founded on a Swiss legend. It is the story of two shepherds, Hansbi and Koebi, who live together in the mountains. Hansbi is weak and timid; Koebi brutal and strong. Both are in love with Maedeli; and when Koebi hears that his friend and the girl are affianced, his jealousy takes the upperhand. Mad with rage, he throttles Hansbi and throws the body into the torrent. In the evening Maedeli is waiting for her oancé at the ball in front of the village inn. She dances with Koebi, when suddenly they carry in Hansbi's corpse, which the torrent has thrown up. The dance is brought to a stop, and Koebi remains alone. He drinks to drown his fear, and beholds the shadow of Hansbi, who seizes him by the throat. Koebi utters a shriek and dies. At the windows of the village inn the heads of men and women appear. "Did somebody call?" they ask. But they do not see Koebi lying dead on the ground; and they return to their rooms with each other's good-night. This dénouement is most effective, and created a deep impression. Altogether, the libretto is most picturesque. The music, too, is well in keeping with the character of the story. Very melodious, beautifully orchestrated, it deserves to hold a prominent place in the Opéra-Comique répertorie.

"LES MOUETTES,"
Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. Paul Adam, produced at the Comédie-Française, on Nov. 14.

Chamballot	M. RAPHAEL DUFLOS
Jean Kervil	M. HENRY MAYER
Madame Darnot	MLLE. RENEEDU MINIL
Yvonne Kervil	MLLE. LARA
Marianne	MLLE LYNNES
Anne-Marie	MLLE DUSSANNE
Adrienne Darnot	MLLE BERTHE CERNY

The Comédie-Française has given us an ultra modern play with Nietsche tendencies, and the author has succeeded in making all his characters brutal and unsympathetic, with the exception of a saintly wife, who, even in a mystical Brittany village, strikes us as overdrawn. The work was evidently intended to end in the same unfeeling spirit in which it was conceived; and the final scene was undoubtedly altered with the view of sending the audience home with a less bitter taste in their mouths. The plot is as follows. Dr. Kervil, a Brittany physician, has discovered a "serum" for typhoid. Too poor to "push" his discovery, he consults Chambalot, a college chum, who advises him to raise the money, no matter how, even if he has to divorce his wife to marry a rich woman. As it happens, Mme. Adrienne Darnot, a rich widow, lives in the same house. She takes an interest in the doctor's discovery, and he falls in love with her. Adrienne makes no secret of her affection for Kervil; and the latter's wife is actually prepared to sacrifice herself so as to ensure a brilliant career for her husband; but when she informs the doctor that, despite her love for him, she is willing to divorce, he refuses. They will remain together. Mlle. Lara, as the saintly wife, looked and acted her part to perfection. M. Duflos made the most of the ungrateful rôle of the unprincipled Chambelot; and M. Mayer supplied a good sketch of the scientist Kervil.

At the Vaudeville he have had a revival of Education de Prince, originally brought out at the Variétiés. The well-known plot need not be retold. M. Maurice Donnay's witty and sarcastic work again met with an excellent reception; and the piece seems booked for a long run.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Thursday, Nov. 15,
"THE CINGALEE.

From the pitiless rain and mud of a typical November afternoon to the graceful sunny clime of Karagama is a change that one can realise with satisfaction. Thanks to the enterprise of Mr. Kay Draco, he was enabled to afford such facilities to those who cared for them on Thursday, when he presented Mr. Geo. Dance's principal company in The Cingalee at the Richmond Theatre. The entire company worked—and won—a unanimous verdict of approval. As Sir Peter Loftus Mr. Grafton Williams was altogether excellent; the Hon. Harry Vereker found a really capable exponent in Mr. Cyril Dane, who sang with a considerable amount of artistic taste "One Little Girl." Peals of undisguised mirth resulted from the efforts of Mr. Jack Crichton as the Baboo lawyer Chambuddy Ram; we confess we have never seen the part handled with more conspicuous success. Bobby Warren was represented by Mr. Ethelbert Edwards; his "games" song afforded a lot of amusement. Mr. Helier Le Maistre's powerful voice was heard to advantage in the excerpt, "There's nothing more to say." Mr. Pritchard made much of his slender opportunities as Myamgah, and valuable aid was lent by Messrs. Ramsay, Nixon, Madgwick, and Sadler. Place aux dames, the ladies engaged acquitted themselves admirably. A dainty, fascinating little Peggy was Miss Gladys Guy, always a favourite at Richmond. In conjunction with Chambuddy she scored a success in "If I were a Parakeet," and in another song, "She's All Right," she won the compliment of a triple encore—and deserved it; her success was equally marked in "Gollywogs," which evoked tumultuous applause. Miss Marjory Clarke was a distinguished-looking Lady Patricia Vane, and soon won her way into the good graces of the audience. She played with considerable refinement and vivacity. Dainty Miss Georgina Middleton as Nanoya, the Cingalee, also scored an unqualified success. She played with an amount of charm that proved her an artist, and her vocalisation left nothing to be desired. Perhaps her best effort was "The Cinnamon Tree," with a capital chorus, but she was charming throughout. As Angy, Miss Essie Perron was clever in a skilfully executed pas seul in Act II. and the quartette of tea girls evinced a considerable amount of ability and contributed largely to the success of the play; so much so, that their names should not be omitted from honourable mention. They were Mesdames Kitty Stephens, Marie Hayden, Blanche Alleyne, and Laura Lindsley. The increased chorus and orchestra were under the direction of Mr. Peter Flitcroft, who is to be highly praised on the success of his efforts.

NELSON AND THOMAS will produce on Nov. 22, at the Palace, Bristol, a new and original comedy, entitled A Fight for a Fiver, by the late E. J. Malyon, author of The Order of the Bath, &c. The cast will include Master Richard Evans.

MISS ANNIE LAURIE sailed per s.s. Ortona on Friday for Australia, under engagement to Mr. Harry Rickards, the contract being made by Pacey and Reeves.

CALDER'S company are drawing good houses this week at the Empire, Belfast, in the thirty minutes' skit, The Deputy Duke, which we expect to see in London shortly.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mrs. George Adney Payne has kindly consented to sing at the Canterbury on the afternoon of the 27th inst., on the occasion of the matinée to be given at that house in aid of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. The objects of this new charitable organisation have Mrs. Payne's warmest sympathy.

Donations of clothing have reached the Music Hall Ladies' Guild from the Misses Lloyd, Mrs. Smythson, and Mrs. Rawlins. The M.H.A.R.A. have just sent a cheque for the exceedingly handsome donation of £105, which the Guild desire to acknowledge with their heartfelt thanks. The following sums have also been received:—Will Oliver, £2 2s.; Mrs. Pat Carey, 5s.; Miss Bijou Russell, 10s. 6d.; Miss Annie Schubert, 2s. 6d.; Miss Florian Schubert, 2s. 6d.; and Miss A. Raymond, 2s. 6d.

Business at the Alhambra is so good that Mr. George Scott will not need any new attraction to succeed L'Amour for some time to come—probably not until the new year. It is understood that Miss Julie Seale will return to the older Leicester-square house and dance in the next production.

Miss Soldene on Tuesday afternoon, just before the close of her matinée, received a telegram of good wishes from some French admirers and Australian friends in Paris. Among those who signed it were Mme. Bernhardt, M. Coquelin, Mme. Dreyfus, and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Donohoe.

The Palace Theatre Bioscope presented on Monday night several animated pictures of the arrival of the King and Queen of Norway. One picture showed Queen Maud and the little Prince Olaf waiting outside Windsor Station for their carriage and their subsequent passage through the ancient town.

Mr. Jesse Sparrow and Mr. Harry Bawn, on behalf of the Empire, Camberwell, Syndicate, have acquired the Grand Theatre, Islington, which they intend running as a music hall on the twice nightly plan, but not until the conclusion of the pantomime season. This change in the fortunes of the Islington theatre will increase the total of variety houses within a mile circuit to four. As each is governed by a different management there will be no stint in the administration of the barring clause. It is understood that Messrs. Sparrow and Bawn are by way of acquiring other suburban theatres, and that their enterprises will be increased considerably in the course of 1907. But of this more anon.

Mr. Joseph Wilson has made arrangements for Mr. Arthur Roberts to appear at the Tivoli at Christmas in a grand travesty of Robin Hood. Mr. Lewis Waller has not only given his full sanction to the parody, but has entered into the spirit of the thing in a sportsmanlike manner, interesting himself in the production, and, indeed, giving Mr. Roberts some funny ideas. The title (just fixed upon) will be Robin Waller, A.O.F.; or, The Maid of the Mill 'Ard By. The author is Mr. Herbert Shelley and the composer Mr. Ernest Bucalossi. Special scenery will be painted by Mr. Bruce Smith.

Mr. Bransby Williams, accompanied by his wife, arrived in London this week, fresh from his American successes. They crossed from New York on the Caronia, Cunard Line, and give an exciting account of the fire which broke out on board in the early hours of Tuesday morning. Although many of the passengers were unaware of the incident until they heard of it at breakfast on the following day, the occupants of the state-rooms near to the danger were awakened and called into the saloon in the middle of the night.

It was a scene to be long remembered—the splendid discipline of the men at the hose, and the crowd of half-dressed people, calm, but fully realising the possible dangers of a fight between fire and water. It was not surprising that the popular actor looked thoroughly worn out when he reached home, and among the telephonic welcomes that he received all day Wednesday and Thursday, it was rather amusing that he should be frequently rung up to tell his friends that he was not burnt!

Mr. Williams's visit to America was highly successful, and he found variety audiences on the other side thoroughly appreciative of the humour and pathos of Dickens. Before leaving the States he was nobly entertained by the Manhattan branch of the American Dickens' Fellowship, a dinner being given in New York, with Mr. George Cary Eggleston, the well-known author, in the chair. The souvenir menu contained portraits of the great Boz and of the young Dickensian as Squeers, Barnaby Rudge, and "himself," and apt quotations from the famous novels, Mr. Williams being complimented by a line from "Bleak House"—"I don't know his hequal—and that man's character wardrobe would fill a cart."

The new water spectacle, on the production of which Mr. Frank Parker is exercising his ingenuity and imagination at the Hippodrome, will form the Christmas attraction at that house. Possibly Mr. Fred Trussell may be able to give a hint or two, gathered from his rich store of experiences garnered during his recent voyage in the neighbourhood of Tangier. The name given to the new spectacle is Treasure Ship in Fairy Seas—suggestive of coral strands, placid waves, and blue, unclouded skies. The lake will take the place of the ring; and, by an ingenious illusion, the whole of the auditorium will form part of the scene under the waves. Miss Annette Kellerman and the Sisters Finney, two younger daughters of Mr. James Finney, will waltz in the water, while other mermaids will perform in aerial flight above the ring.

Dr. Walford Bodie has sent a cheque for £20 to be equally divided between the Music Hall Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home. Part of the above sum was the profits of his lecture given at the Canterbury three weeks ago, of which full particulars are given in another column.

The Lyceum is to be sold by auction at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, by Messrs. Glasier and Sons on Thursday, Dec. 13, under an order from the the Chancery Division issued by Justice Kekewich. The house is described as the scene of Sir Henry Irving's greatest triumphs, and as an exceedingly valuable freehold property. The sale offers a "unique opportunity for acquiring a suitable National Theatre."

Mr. Eugene Stratton, who has just terminated a long and successful provincial tour, will depart for South Africa on Saturday, Dec. 8, in order to fulfil a series of engagements with Messrs. Sydney Hyman and Co. at Cape Town and Johannesburg.

Miss Lizzette Kitchin will shortly reproduce the successful Irish sketch, Donnybrook, which has been rearranged by Mr. Fred Kitchin, with music by Mr. Dudley Powell. It is being booked through the agency of Mr. Fred Neiman.

Miss Maris Lloyd having been unfortunately indisposed this week, her dainty sister, Miss Alice Lloyd, has been appearing in her stead, and both at the Oxford and Euston has been charming all hearers with her delightful rendering of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s latest big "winner," "Queen of Old Samara," by Mr. J. P. Lambe, which song the same winsome artist will specially "feature" at Christmas, and after, in the Crown Theatre, Peckham, pantomime, in which she will enact the part of principal girl.

Negotiations have been concluded between Mr. J. W. Turner, the well-known operatic tenor and proprietor of the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, and the directorate of Moss Empires, Ltd., by which that popular playhouse is handed over to the great music hall combination directed by Sir Edward Moss and Mr. Oswald Stoll. At the price of £40,000, in round figures, one of the most prominent playhouses in the Midlands is thus transferred from drama to variety. Mr. Turner, who acquired the building from the late Mr. Andrew Melville in 1893, fixed a definite figure as a cash value, and no offer less than this was entertained. Moss Empires, Ltd., have paid cash, it is said, and will take possession in March next. The Grand Theatre was built from designs by Mr. W. A. Ward, and was completed in 1883. It was opened by its proprietor, the late Mr. Melville, on Nov. 14, 1883.

The Liverpool theatrical licensing sessions were held on Thursday. A licence was granted to the New Tivoli Palace, Lime-street, which will be opened on Dec. 3. It was stated that the company owning the premises also controlled the Park Palace and the Paddington Palace, the combined capital, all fully paid-up, being £38,000 in debenture shares, £19,000 in preferred ordinary, and £31,000 in ordinary.

Permission to smoke was granted to the Paddington and Royal, where dramatic sketches occupy the whole of the evening's entertainment. The police stated that there was no objection to smoking, for such a custom was no more dangerous during a dramatic piece than during a variety show. The same privilege was granted to the Park Palace, Mr. Fred Willmott having secured the licence. Mr. Marks, manager of this place, has been appointed general manager of the company's three theatres—a very wise selection.

The promotion is announced of Mr. Eric Smith from stage-manager at the Holloway Empire, a position which he has filled during the past five years, to assistant acting-manager. Mr. Smith had been at the Princess's Theatre before joining the company's staff. The vacancy was created by the promotion of Mr. Rand from assistant acting-manager at Holloway to acting-manager at the company's new Empire at Coventry.

In response to a congratulatory telegram sent by Mr. Fred Leighton, the genial manager of the Sheerness Hippodrome, on the occasion of His Majesty's birthday, the following reply has been received:—"The King commands me to thank you and the inhabitants of Sheerness for their loyal message of congratulation and good wishes.—Knollys."

Mr. Fred Aydon has been at the head of affairs at the Rickards New Opera House, Melbourne, since its opening some five years ago, and his displayed a rare combination of tact and talent in handling the ever varying stream of star artists who have filled the Opera House programme during the period mentioned.

Mr. Councillor Broadhead, head of the Broadhead Circuit, who has just completed his year of office as Mayor of that go-ahead Lancashire town, has been presented by his brother Councillors with an illuminated address and a gold ex-Mayor's badge. The gift to Mrs. Broadhead took the form of a locket with her initials traced thereon in gems.

The People's Palace, Bridlington, in consequence of the company owning it going into voluntary liquidation, will be sold by auction on the premises on Thursday, Nov. 29, by Messrs. Cranswick and Cranswick. The property is freehold, and includes a large concert hall or theatre (licenced), with large gallery and a seating capacity for about 1,500 people; a large refreshment-room (fully licensed), an extensive ball-room in basement with large room adjoining; a good bowling-green in the grounds; ten thousand yards, or thereabouts, of valuable building land; seven shops; and eleven houses.

The Sunderland Town Council has submitted a resolution to its members directing that all licences for places of entertainment within the jurisdiction of the borough shall contain a clause stipulating for a fixed time for opening. The resolution is intended, apparently, to abolish early doors; but is it not unwarrantable interference with the various managements?

Mr. Albert Mathams has been presented, by a number of his friends in Hastings, with a handsome illuminated testimonial and a cheque. During his tenure of office at the local hippodrome Mr. Mathams won the esteem of both visitors and town-dwellers, and the pleasant outcome of this feeling of warm regard will be much treasured by him.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard, having secured a full licence for the New Theatre Royal, King's Lynn, intends, in conjunction with Mr. A. D. Vernon, of the Theatre Royal, Peterborough, running both houses as music halls.

La Tosca, after a lengthy tour of the provinces as an artistic poseuse, has received a most tempting offer to tour South Africa, under the management of Mr. F. Fillis, with Lynn, F.O.S., as her business representative.

Little Zola is still vacant for pantomime. After three years with the late George Conquest, there should be no difficulty in the placing of this versatile and funny comedian, who is causing uproarious laughter both at the Middlesex and Standard this week.

Mr. T. W. Volt, the celebrated comedian, so long associated with The Lady Slavey, and later, principal comedian at the Hippodrome, is by way of producing at a London hall, in a week or so, Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's farcical musical sketch, Lord Bill's Bills. This production contains several excellent numbers.

Mr. Gus Elen has been the cause of much hearty laughter at the Tivoli, having revived those comical songs, "The pavement artist" and "Meriah!" in which latter (the work of Scott M'Kenzie) the artist cuts a truly grotesque figure in his wedding garb, consisting of silk hat, frock coat, and corduroy trousers with ankle straps à la navvy, which last adornment was suggested to the comedian by the author of "It's a great big shame!"

The report of the Palace and Derby Castle, Douglas, Isle of Man, is of a highly satisfactory character, the balance of revenue account showing an increase over last year of £1802 6s. 6d. After payment of debenture interest and trustees' fees, £3440, bank interest, £286 5s. 6d., and directors' fees, £600, there remains a balance of £8833 14s 7d., representing the profit on the year's working. From this sum is deducted £1100 for depreciation on furniture, fittings, and electrical installations, &c., and £500 written off the alterations and improvements to Palace Opera House, leaving a balance of £7233 14s. 7d. available for distribution. The directors recommend that this sum should be allocated as follows:—Dividend on Preference shares (5 per cent.), £3000; divided on Ordinary shares (5 per cent.), £3500; and balance to new profit and loss account, £733 14s. 7d. In addition to the sums mentioned above (totalling £1600) allowed for depreciation, there has been a substantial expenditure on renewals and repairs, and the Company's properties are now in an excellent state of efficiency. The annual meeting will be held on Friday next.

Mr. Walter Gibbons, rejoicing in a strong constitution, is still speeding along the road to recovery at a great pace, and is now able to get up for an hour or two each day.

Mr. William Payne, manager at the South London, has issued a notice to artists engaged at that house that on and after the 26th inst. they will be required to appear at a matinée on Monday, on which day rehearsals are held from twelve to one.

Mr. J. G. Graham, the well-known actor, will make his début on the variety stage on Monday at the Empire, Camberwell, in a powerful dramatic sketch, which deals with a phase of life quite new to the stage. The Yellow Fang, as the sketch is called, is a dramatic episode of an opium hell in Chinatown, San Francisco, by John G. Brandon, and is founded upon the actual facts of a terrible crime committed in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco in the summer of 1902.

The fascinations of the Maxixe are to give place to the delights of "La Kraquette," which is to be introduced to London at the Pavilion on Monday by Miss Mignon Tremaine and Mr. Tod Cams. Messrs. J. Williams, the music publishers, of Great Portland-street, have purchased the English copyright, and have leased the rights of stage production to Mr. Cams for two years.

Mr. James Finney and his daughter Elsie sailed for America on Wednesday afternoon, by the s.s. Cedric, from Liverpool. Quite a number of friends assembled on the landing-stage to wish them "God-speed," chief among whom were Messrs. George Harrop (of the Tower, Blackpool), Fred Ash, J.P., Nuttall, Wild, and Fielding, all of whom travelled specially from Blackpool; "Uncle" Bill Child, Johnny Benn, and Harry Inchbold, who came up from Leeds; Frank Lynne, the Mayvilles, Charles May, and others. Mr. Finney received also many congratulatory wires and messages from his numerous friends.

In the Chancery Division on Tuesday, Mr. Justice Warrington heard the petition of Hugo Baruch et Cie, of Berlin, judgment creditors for £460, for the compulsory winding up of the London Coliseum, Limited. Mr. Waggett said the petitioners' complaint was that, from May last, the voluntary liquidation had been used to stave off the unsecured creditors, and nothing whatever had been done. Mr. Dunham, on behalf of creditors for £50,000, opposed the petition, and his Lordship said it was a perfectly hopeless petition, which he dismissed, with costs.

A new musical sketch, entitled The Professor; or, A Lesson in Dancing, written by Mr. Albert Le Fre, will be produced on Monday next at the Pavilion. The attractiveness of the sketch will be enhanced by the pretty Pavilion Girls in a series of dances and a new song, "He reached his journey's end," published by Francis and Day.

Messrs. Charles St. John Denton and George Rowlands' sketch, Mixed Bathing, produced on Monday at the Duchess, Balham, has proved a great success, and opens next Monday at the Holborn Empire. Other offers were received for it on the Tuesday night, and a successful tour is assured.

The following artists leave Southampton to-day, per the Walmer Castle, to fulfil engagements with the Hyman management in South Africa at the Empire, Johannesburg, and the Tivoli, Cape Town:—The Five Madcaps, in their dancing act; Charlie Deane, comedian; Miss Virginia Ainsworth, an American prima donna; Miss Mabel Thorne, comedienne, and Marsh and Sartella, American singers and dancers.

Mr. Arthur Prince, ventriloquist, returned on Monday to the Empire after a most successful season in New York. Prince's last appearance in England before crossing was also at the Empire, and was probably instrumental in securing for him a Royal "command," which, by the way, came four days too late, and did not warrant the stopping and turning back of the Umbria. The American press showed great enthusiasm in regard to this favourite entertainer, but previous to his opening at the Roof Garden at Hammerstein's in New York, Mr. Willie Hammerstein had grave misgivings over the likelihood of a "speaking act" being efficacious in the open, the engagement being for seven weeks, an unprecedented length of time in America. The manager's fears were, however, quickly set at rest. Prince graduated in al fresco performances at Llandrindod Wells, and was there for four seasons, as many London visitors will pleasurably remember.

Mr. Bert Clark (of Clark and Hamilton), who will appear at the Hackney Empire next week, is often hailed as a Yankee. He was intended for the musical profession, and studied at the Royal College of Music and the Guildhall School, being regarded at both establishments as likely to take a very high place as a pianist. He gained the first-class certificate of the Society of Arts. However, he astonished everybody by suddenly "turning it up," and running off to America, from which country he returned with an act that is as popular now as it was when he first introduced it at the London Pavilion some years since.

While Mr. Carl Hertz was giving his illusory manifestations at the Croydon Empire on Monday evening the current failed, and the lights went out. There was not the slightest approach to disorder, and as the hour was nearly eleven the audience quietly dispersed while the band played "The King."

Miss Millicent Marsden, the prima donna of the No. 1 Prince of Pilsen company, has, we regret to say, been obliged to relinquish her rôle through the same cause of illness which necessitated her retirement some months since from the Coliseum. We are glad to hear, however, that, after consultation with her own doctor and a leading physician, that a short rest should again restore her to health and active work. A charming and touching episode was witnessed at the Edinburgh station when, not only her manager and his wife came to wish her a speedy recovery, but most of the principals, whilst a gorgeous floral souvenir was presented to her by the eight "city ladies" of the company as a token of love and affection and the great esteem in which she is held by all those associated with her.

The 488th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, when the following members were present:—Messrs. Fred Herbert, Fred Neiman, Charles Coborn (vice-president), George H. Smythson, Albert Le Fre (vice-president), Douglas White (hon. treasurer), F. Slingsby, Albert Voyce, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes having been read and confirmed, the result of the voting on a matter that had been sent out to all the committee was announced—23 being in favour and 2 against. Several questions respecting refunds were considered, also applications for alterations of agencies. A vote of thanks was passed unanimously to Messrs. Jackson, Pixley, and Co., the auditors, for their kind donation of £5 5s. towards the funds of the Association. The scrutineers attended, and read the declaration of the voting for the new committee, and also gave their report on the same. A vote of thanks to the scrutineers was unanimously carried. The weekly financial statement and the hon. treasurer's weekly statement were submitted, and were passed as read.

Owing to the refusal to grant licences to the Palace, Tottenham, and Hippodrome, Hounslow, Mrs. Cissie Louie Lawson has reluctantly decided to close these halls pending an appeal. Due notice of the re-opening will be given to all artists booked.

Miss Vesta Tilley at the Palace, Manchester, broke all previous records on Monday, each number being received as though the talented lady had only just startled the world by her impersonations. At the conclusion of "The king of the house is baby" Miss Tilley was handed a magnificent floral decoration in the shape of a crown resting on a cushion of white flowers, the whole surmounted by small glittering electric bulbs. This, along with other floral tributes, Miss Tilley generously handed over to the local hospital.

Mr. Walter Graham has received contracts from Mr. Walter Gibbons carrying engagements till March next. Three excellent character songs have been written for Mr. Graham's entertainment by Mr. Medley Barrett—"All 'Oi," "The Monthly Nurse," a screamer, and "The Railway Porter at Bunkum Junction."

We spoke last week of the versatility of the late Mr. Mark Kinghorne—in our opinion one of the finest character actors who ever adorned our stage—and now we learn from a correspondent that at one time he was a "Christy" corner-man, and twenty-eight years ago toured in the Uncle Tom's Cabin company, of which Mrs. Charles Calvert was a member. The deceased played Lawyer Marks with a lot of funny business that has since become traditional.

At Sotheby's on Tuesday, the medal, with diploma, presented with much homage to Blondin by the citizens of Niagara in 1859, brought £10 15s., and his Cross as Knight of the Spanish Order of Queen Isabella Catholica, with his diploma of election on June 30, 1870 (exactly eleven years after his first performance of the Niagara feat), failed to exceed £5 5s. An 1877 Montevideo medal, an 1879 Brussels offering, and an 1875 Melbourne pendant totalled £11 15s. On the other hand, a pinchbeck watch, a papier-maché cigar-case, and a few ivory tablets once belonging to Grimaldi fetched £13 7s. 6d.

A paragraph appeared in these columns last week to the effect that Miss Ada Reeve had signed an agreement to go to America, and that she would sail in January. Our information came from an eminently reliable source, but is not entirely correct. The facts are that an agreement to play in New York, at a salary slightly in excess of the figure we mentioned last week, was presented to the popular comedienne for her signature, but she refused to accept it on some minor points, and so, for the present at least, Miss Reeve, who may be heartily congratulated on the lucrative offers continually made to her, has entered into no agreement to visit America.

Mr. Arthur Rigby is about to make an ambitious effort in the variety theatres. He will produce, on Monday, at the Richmond Theatre, an entirely new and original Eastern episode, entitled The Isle of Ooma. When we mention the book and lyrics are by such writers as E. W. Rogers, A. E. Ellis, and Wal Pink; the scenery, a fine effort, by Julian Hicks; the dress, entirely new, by J. A. Harrison; and the production under the superintendence of Michael Ring, and that Mr. Rigby, whose pantomime reputation is so well known, is playing a good part, it will be noted that this is no ordinary production. Smart and refined comedy is to be combined with perfection of mise-en-scène.

A remarkable law suit, involving a most important question, has occupied several sittings of the Paris Tribunal de Commerce this week. The question discussed has been whether a clown could be classed as a tradesperson, and if the jurisdiction of the Tribunal de Commerce could be applied to him.

Our most popular continental clown, Footit, an Englishman, who is the idol of all the children in Paris, was engaged some time ago at the Folies-Bergères, where he played a most important part in the Revue, in which he made a big success. In his contract he stipulated that the Folies-Bergères management had the option of engaging him for the following year to play a part in the next Revue.

An enterprising manager of a Paris circus, seeing his great success, engaged Footit, at a salary of £25 a week, to appear at the Cirque Métropole. Naturally, this was not to the taste of the manager of the Folies-Bergères, who has injuncted Footit, claiming very heavy damages for breach of contract. But Footit does not seem disposed to accept this version, and, through the medium of his solicitor, claims that he is in no way subject to French commercial law. He says: "I am not a tradesman; I neither sell nor purchase any goods. I am a clown—a simple clown. I simply amuse the public—that is all, and in my mind the Tribunal de Commerce is not competent to judge the question."

The Tribunal de Commerce is very much embarrassed over this case, and really do not know how to decide the question. Pending the result, Footit still continues to delight the audiences at the Cirque Métropole, where he is engaged for several years.

There was a well-attended meeting of the I.A.L. on Sunday, when Bro. 1356 took the chair. A letter was read from the secretary of the V.A.F. with regard to the matter which had been discussed the week previous—viz., the exclusion of a member of the I.A.L. from a V.A.F. meeting in the provinces. The secretary of the V.A.F. pointed out that as the confirmation of the affiliation between the I.A.L. and the V.A.F. had not yet been received and made public, the chairman had acted quite correctly in requesting the member to retire, though in London this proceeding had not always been enforced. He added that directly the affiliation was formally confirmed the widest publicity would be given by the V.A.F. to the fact.

In connection with the affiliation, a letter had been received from Berlin, saying that the executive had suggested two alterations in two clauses in the articles of affiliation, and begged that these should be considered by the V.A.F. It was agreed that this should be communicated to the V.A.F. by the London executive for confirmation or alteration.

In the report of the London meeting of Sept. 2 an office copy of Mr. George Gerald, of Paris, had been published. In this copy the chief clause which had received the disapprobation of the meeting referred to was as follows: "I agree to pay 15 per cent. on all my contracts, and Mr. Gerald must from this sum pay all agency fees to his representatives, or whoever may do business with me." Bro. 1356 wished now to inform the meeting that Mr. Gerald had felt very hurt by this notice in the papers. Bro. 876 pointed out that nothing had been said against Mr. Geo. Gerald personally, and after a long discussion a vote of confidence in the decision of the meeting of Sept. 2 was passed. Mr. G. Gerald had asked for the names of the artists who had submitted this office copy. As the brothers in question were not present, it was felt that their names could not be given; but Mr. C. Bartram stated with no hesitation that he was willing it should be known that he had brought the matter forward on Sept. 2.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS

Mr. David Day has acquired for early publication a fine song, entitled "The Auld Brig o' Ayr," by J. D. Harper and Harry Lauder, and those who have heard Mr. Lauder sing "Rocked in the cradle of the deep" can well imagine how ably he will render this song of regret at the threatened destruction of a landmark dear to the heart of every Scotsman. Another song about to be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day is by the same writers, and named "Wee Willie M'Kie," a very characteristic Lauderian lilt.

No pantomime embodying a farmyard scene will be complete without the song which Messrs. Francis and Day have published under the title of "My sweet Bird of Paradise," which details how a young bantam is one night left by the old birds in charge of the roost with strict injunctions to open the door to no one; now, hearing what he supposes to be the dulcet tones of a love-sick hen imploring her "sweet bird of Paradise" to come out into the moonlight, the bantam disobeys his parents' commands; and how he is at once seized by a fox (evidently a pupil of Mr. Harry Carsdale), who has mimicked a hen to perfection. Mr. Henry E. Pether's music to this "Farmyard Fantasy" is strikingly quaint and taking, embodying, as it does, some funny "poultry" effects. The song is free, and will suit principal boy or girl.

Pantomime demands for "Rosie is waiting," by Harrington and Tate, pour in upon the Monte Carlo Publishing Company thick and fast. Already Birmingham, Liverpool, Leeds, Bradford, Manchester, Glasgow, and other principal towns have made "Rosie" their own. The song is free for pantomime, and an ideal number for principal boy song.

"There's a big ship sailing in the morning," by Mellor, Lawrence, and Gifford, is a number which every exponent of Sindbad should be eager to secure for pantomime. It has an ear-haunting chorus, and the strict march-time melody should shortly be heard everywhere. The Monte Carlo Publishing Company are to be congratulated on securing this fine number.

The Monte Carlo Publishing Company now have in the press, and will issue at an early date, Paul Pelham, Newton Butts, and Herbert Rule's charming song of war and sentiment, entitled "Don't be afraid, little soldier." Many of our favourite vocalists will "feature" this song, both on the variety stage and in pantomime, this year.

The Star Music Publishing Company, Ltd., has leapt into popularity at a bound. They are fortunate in having commenced operations at the psychological moment and under peculiarly favourable conditions. Their first three numbers are being specially featured at six London halls this week, besides many provincial ones. Mr. Tom Costello, who has made so many songs popular, is creating a furore at the Holborn Empire and the Metropolitan this week with the Star Company's topical march-time number, "Nelson from his monument," an ideal pantomime song.

Mr. Donald Hall, well known in light opera and musical comedy circles, made his initial appearance on the variety stage this week at the Holborn Empire, and scored an artistic and popular success with "Will you dance with me, Marie?" In this he is assisted by a most accomplished actress. Mr. Hall's conception of the part, his cultured voice, and passionate acting raised what was simply a pretty song to the dignity of a tabloid society drama. This number, by Mills and Scott, is also issued in the Star sixpenny editions.

Miss Florrie Forde seems to have the gift of selecting songs that are destined to become popular, and "Sailing in my balloon" is no exception to the rule. Her powerful voice and pleasing manner, added to the song's undoubted catchiness, make an ensemble that is quite irresistible. The audiences at the Canterbury and Chelsea Palace this week sing the chorus fortissimo, and in the usual manner testify to the popularity of Miss Florrie Forde and "Sailing in my balloon," which is another of the Star Company's gems.

Miss Hetty King has just produced at Liverpool with great success her new song, "In Piccadilly," and will make a special feature of it during her pantomime engagement at Liverpool. The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., are the publishers of this song.

Mr. Robert Courtneidge has accepted for his pantomimes the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Company's "Sweet Saturday night" and "Mariar." These two songs will be produced also by Messrs. J. F. Elliston and Stanley Rogers in their pantomimes.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Company, Ltd., have had again numerous demands this week from pantomime producers for some of their biggest successes—"Take me back to London Town," "Moonbeam," "Little Girl," and "Lola, in my gondola."

Mr. Ernest Shand, on Monday, acquired a comic song, by Edgar Bateman and H. F. Greenfield, entitled "Oh, Tumpty! Tumpty Number One!" Messrs. Francis and Day have bespoken the song. A "dame" version is likely to be ready simultaneously, and the number will be expedited through the press. The number of applications received by Messrs. Francis and Day for copies of Mr. Fred Earle's song, "Birdseed," from the same pens, has been phenomenal.

Messrs. Reeder and Walsh, of 14, Castle-street, publish some popular numbers for pantomime. Principal boys should rejoice in such a song as "Good-night, my little Daffodil," and comic men of resource should score with such a selection as "Have you seen the papers to-day?" The chances for topical allusion seem to be illimitable.

Singers, authors, and composers have given Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter a busy time recently, and, among others, the following numbers have been accepted for publication during the last few days: "Pierrot Inquisitive; or, what is it?" (Mr. Charles Coborn), by Robert Ganthony; "If at first you don't succeed" and "Little Robin Redbreast," both by Murphy and Lipton; "I've brought a 'rickshaw for you" (Miss Mabel Thorne), by Percy Edgar and Fred Elton; "A pierrot's life," an instrumental piece of great charm, by Theo Ward, the well-known Eastbourne composer; "You look all wrong because you're bandy" (Mr. Joe Archer), by Harry Wincott; a novelty song, called "Saralo," by Seth Weeks, which will be exploited by the combination known as the Saralos; "Fly away" (Mr. Tom Collins), by Harry Leighton and George Everard, a very funny song indeed, founded on the children's favourite rhyme of "Two little dicky birds sat upon a pole"; "The goldfish and the water-lily" (Miss Madoline Rees), by H. F. Greenfield; "A very old friend of the family" (Mr. George Collins), by C. Collins and C. Ridgwell; "Where've you been while the sun's been shining?" (Miss Daisy Dormer), by Chas. Collins and C. W. Murphy; "Butterfly Gavotte," by Adèle Collier and Algernon Clarke; "Little Snow White," by Beatrice Lord and Bernard Hatton; and "The Marsh Marigold and the Will o' the Wisp," by Mellor, Gifford, and Lawrance.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

"Two minds with but a single thought" is the only indication the programme gives of the nature of Agnes and Julius Zancig's act, whose present engagement at the Alhambra is responsible for their introduction to an English audience. But the simple poetic phrase is quite sufficient to suggest something mysterious, and unquestionably there is mystery in the doings of the Zancigs, whose turn renews the oft-discussed subject of mental telepathy, thought transmission, and, in fact, the whole range of psychic science. Agnes Zancig occupies the stage while her partner, Julius Zancig, moves among the audience. Julius is shown various objects by gentlemen occupying seats in the stalls, and his confederate on the stage immediately calls out the name of the article and the name of the person to whom it belongs. It seems inconceivable that this phenomenal power of divination should be possessed by any human being; and to those who closely watch the whole proceedings, and notice how the questions are asked and answered, it seems equally inconceivable that there could be any word-code adequate to afford the lady the information which she herself is able to impart. We have not the slightest intention or desire of attempting to unravel the intricacies of psychic force, or whatever influence is employed by the Zancigs; we are perfectly content to remain with open mind, and to say that the "show" is an extraordinary one. Coming to what might be described as more material things, we have the Brothers Bonnes, who are seen and admired in an extremely smart equilibristic exhibition; and Clown Pacal, whose mimicry of animals and the noises created by various methods is so wonderfully natural and characteristic of what he is supposed to represent.

Urbanora has a goodly share in the evening's entertainment. The new pictures, shown for the first time on Monday, are of the excellence to which the Charles Urban Trading Company have accustomed us. The photographs of the Lord Mayor's Show were taken under particularly unfortunate circumstances, in that the operator was handicapped by fog and rain. The effect, however, from the impressionist point of view, is distinctly pleasing, and in the eyes of the artist there will be merit in the mist, which, moreover, is not of such an all-enveloping character as to prevent the different units in the cavalcade of historical subjects being distinguishable from each other. The photographs of Sir William Treloar are, on the other hand, especially clear and lifelike, and their appearance on the screen is greeted with much cheering. Then the views of salmon fishing in bonnie Scotland, and the waterfalls in the same country of picturesque ruggedness, are admirably vivid and well defined. And in this connection we might point out that Urbanora had best take care lest there be poured out upon it the vials of Scottish wrath. It is nothing less than a sacrilege to write "Bonny Scotland." Bonnie Scotland, please! Urbanora affords us further pleasure in a cleverly-designed and thought-out series of views, telling the story of the use to which a small boy puts an inadequate knowledge of juggling. He has witnessed a magician cook a cake in a tall hat, and, with the aid of eggs and some ink for colour and flavour, he attempts to do the same, with ludicrous results. The film is an extremely amusing one.

Our old friend, Parisiana, is still with us, and we still enjoy its bright colours, its gay life, and the merry whirl of Signorina Varasi's dancing. The Aquamarinoff Troupe submit much that is attractive in their Russian national songs and dances; and Les Poettingers, with their delightful scena, In the Land of the Midnight Sun, afford many happy moments to the æsthete and the visionary. The five ladies, attired in the picturesque dress of their country, enchant their hearers with their singing. The rendering of "I sigh for you" is eminently commendable. More music comes from Luigi Rossi's marvellous horse, Emir, a handsome specimen of the equine race, and amazingly intelligent withal. With bells on its legs and bells on its head, Emir discourses harmony divine, to her evident self-enjoyment. And then this altogether admirable quadruped blows a French horn with all the zest of a mighty-lunged trumpeter. Mr. Rossi is to be congratulated in the first place on the possession of the horse, and in the second place upon his remarkably successful training of the animal. The beautiful ballet, L'Amour, is still fascinating the ears and eyes of Alhambra patrons with its beautiful scenes, beautiful dresses, and beautiful dances and music. The lively, lightsome movements of Signorina Maria Bordin, with all their expression of poetry and music, are of themselves sufficient to attract a multitude, and, by the way, they have done that already. In his brilliant fashion Mr. Geo. W. Byng presides over the orchestra, and in his own particular sphere enhances M. Thomé's scholarly and impressive music.

THE TIVOLI.

Patriotic and military items since the close of the war have been somewhat rare, but with the glowing oratory of Lord Roberts, who is urging up and down the country the necessity for training every youth in the love of country and the knowledge of how to defend it, the staging of such a scena as Back to Barracks, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, at the Tivoli, is quite in sympathy. The chauvinistic spirit may be deprecated by the Keir Hardies of the future; but the average Britisher, represented by the man in the street, if not quite a Jingo, has no lack of admiration for the military. There is, therefore, plenty of applause for Mr. Dennis Drew and his cadets—well-drilled lads—who give expression to stirring verses in the number, which has two scenes, entitled respectively "The Reserve Man Returns to Duty," and "Once More in the Barrack Square."

The announcement that Little Tich would appear as a London park-keeper roused unusual interest among the large audience assembled on Monday evening at the cosy house in the Strand. The new impersonation enables the great little comedian to indulge in his customary antics, and the oddity of his movements, and the humorous nature of his patter, keep the house in roars of laughter. The novelty, of which the humour is sure to grow, does not oust from its pride of place the burlesque army officer, which is about the best thing Tich has done for years. It contains some clever verses, which are admirably recited by the comedian, who dons the skirts in a third item to give his parody of the première danseuse, a piece of grotesquerie that has lost none of its mirth-compelling qualities. Mr. T. E. Dunville, another funny man in the bill, is quite up to date with "Soap, soap, soap," a cleverly written apropos, to which the loose-limbed one does full justice. In "The Channel Swim" he again lets fly the lightsome spirit of mirth. Thomas is just now at his very best, and that is saying a good deal. Mr. George Bastow's ancient countrymen—of the type existing before the "back to the land" period—are always interesting, and his Methuselah-like villager is a decidedly amusing personage; a remark that applies with equal force to Mr. Gus Elen's coster caroller, who serenades "Meria," to whom many matrimonial advantages are offered. Fragson, the entente cordiale comedian, is in very strong contrast to any of the comedy merchants we have mentioned. His is such a happy combination of English and French methods, that his turn is, in its way, unique. On the night of our visit he sang all the old favourites, and added a new number, "Chin Chin Lu," which has been adapted from La Petite Tonkinoise, by Eustace Ponsonby. It is a bright and tuneful trifle, and is most vivaciously rendered.

Early in the programme, Orpheus, who is termed the master of melody, plays the oboe with artistic taste, and gets out of the ordinary groove in his selections. His rendering of "Simple Aveu" is one of the best we have heard. Miss Edie King exploits the various styles of Continental dancing, and shows us equally well the characteristics of the national dance of the sparkling señorita from sunny Seville, and those of the more sober vrouw from the Zuyder Zee.

A great attraction in the programme is the superb singing of Miss Ada Colley, the phenomenal Australian soprano, who chooses for her principal solo that most difficult canzonetta by Sir Henry Bishop, which has exercised the ingenuity and the abilities of the finest soprani leggieri in the world. Miss Colley's wonderful compass enables us to realise completely the joyous spirit of the song, and her marvellous high notes speak eloquently of exceptional vocal gifts. The house is thrilled and astonished, and lets itself go in frantic applause, Mr. John Radcliffe, the admirable flautist, who plays the obbligato, very rightly sharing in the honours. The Cambrian Trio sing pleasantly enough in a harmonised version of "Alice, where art thou?" Miss Rachel Lowe, who has returned after a most successful provincial tour, hurries on to sing "Any rags?" one of her most pronounced successes; the Poluski Brothers fool round in an eccentric fashion that sets the audience in a roar; and other turns in a comprehensive scheme of variety are Miss Victoria Monks, the Abdulla Troupe of Arabs, the Three Laurels, and Miss Carlotta Levey.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

For good all-round healthy amusement the programme Mr. Arthur J. Barclay gives his patrons this week would be hard to beat. The local public is now enjoying one of the best entertainments they had had for a long time. The acting-manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slater, is this week "very busy," and that expression implies a great deal. One factor, however, in the making up of record houses, may be found in the fact that five days of the week have been set apart for a "ticket benefit" in aid of the Hospital Saturday Fund, and this may have some effect in swelling the receipts. However that may be, the programme is, in itself, sufficiently strong to attract good business. To begin at the end, we may be allowed to notice in the first place the production of Mr. Sidney Bacon's musical comedy, The Duchess of Tooting. This fascinating piece has been written by Mr. George Sheldon, that gentleman being responsible for the "book," lyrics, and music, besides acting as conductor. Mr. Stephen Adeson as Fitzroy Fitzherbert, who impersonates the Duchess of Tooting "to oblige a friend," is the life and soul of the piece. Mr. Adeson's acting is full of spirit and is always extremely funny. Mr. Henry Latimer does well as Charles Cash, and Mr. Ernest Spalding is excellent as the elder Cash; a charming representative of Rose Latour (of the music halls) is found in Miss Josie Farrington, who acts and sings charmingly, and arouses enthusiasm with a pretty dance. Miss Dora Heritage is an excellent exponent of the elderly bond fide duchess. Miss Rhoda Paul is smart and piquant as the page-boy, Peter.

Miss Amy Elcock, a charming young comedienne, looks pretty in her very original costume, sings tunefully, and dances neatly. An immense success is made by Mr. Cyrus Dare, whose mimicry of "baby" talk and infantile singing is excellent; Mr. Dare is received with the heartiest laughter and the loudest applause. The Sisters Hall repeat duets that have earned approval here before now, and are as charming as never. A mirth-provoking "absurdity," Building a Chicken-house, is given by Mr. Dan Agar and company. The exponent of the chief character does well to follow minutely the lines laid down for him by his well-known predecessor in the part. The effect is very provocative of mirth, and the principal receives admirable support from his subordinates. The Picquays, a lady and gentleman of rare acrobatic power, give a speciality act of considerable neatness. Miss Idalia May gives characteristic dances, in costume, of various nationalities—Irish, Scotch, Spanish, Italian—winding up with a coon dance and a sailor's hornpipe that is loudly cheered. Cruikshank, the clever comedian, is one of the prime favourites here. He is in excellent form, his whimsicalities, singing, and playing being all as artistic and as highly relished as ever. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope brings an admirable programme to an agreeable conclusion.

HOUNSLOW HIPPODROME.

Mr. Lennox Barry has good reason to felicitate himself on his excellent bill this week. After a well-played selection by the orchestra, under Mr. Bodin, Miss Madge Scarlett sings with much skill a dainty love ballad anent the "Silver Shade." She is followed by Mr. Richard Joyce, whose whimsicalities won him a lot of applause; his ditty dealing with the eccentricities of folks generally amused the audience highly, and he follows up his success by a really remarkable display of clever clog-dancing. Miss Ethel King and Mr. Maurice Hoffman present a comedy of complication, entitled The Sleeping Car, and quite a unique idea is cleverly carried out. The scene depicts a double berth on a Midland sleeping-car mail train bound for Edinburgh. Miss King enters and takes possession of the top berth, and is followed by Mr. Hoffman, who has taken the other. Needless to add, these young people are "engaged," and they are both bound for the same destination to carry out an old rich relative's instruction. The fun waxes fast and furious, and is played with great delicacy and no little refinement; the complications cause peals of merriment, and Mr. Hoffman is to be highly complimented on his efforts. The Sleeping Car is an excellent sketch.

Miles and Rance contribute to the humour of the evening with a quick-change duologue, entitled Paying Him Out. Mark Beauchamp is travelling down to meet his intended wife—not of his choice, but that of a relative from whom he has expectations. Somewhat indiscreetly he refers to her in anything but complimentary terms; this the lady discovers, and by a series of quick-changes she brings the recalcitrant lover to his senses—and contrition. The sketch is capitally played, and the fun never flags for a moment. Mr. Lennox Barry has played a trump card in the special engagement of Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, the One Eyed One. He is as merry as ever, and fires off his witticisms and puns with all his accustomed vivacity; local topics come in for a share of the dusky comedian's attention; even quaint little Isleworth does not escape! He sings his "Rag-time Coon" ditty with much success. Of course his mechanical doll evokes a lot of applause, and, in response to vociferous demands, he sings in his own inimitable way "The blind boy," and as an encore he gives "She wore a wreath of roses" on his one-stringed banjo very cleverly. Miss Florence Yamen is a singer of coon ditties, and can boast of unflagging vitality. The audience roars with laughter at her quaint "business"; her song, "Liza, dear, I'm gwine away" is a fine sample of her skill, and she merits the applause so liberally bestowed on her efforts. Jury's Bioscope gives "The Rajah's Casket," quite a marvel in biographic detail, and follows it up with the woes that befall a lady who is "shadowing" her erring husband.

MR. W. SIMPSON CROSS, F.Z.S., the well-known naturalist of Liverpool, has turned the gardens at Southport into a "Zoo Park." His up-to-date methods and his knowledge of how the public should be catered for must inevitably result in this popular resort proving a great success. Not the least of the attractions is a splendid bowling-green—as level as a billiard-table—which is considered one of the finest in Lancashire.

STAR SONGS FOR PANTOMIME.

A new star has appeared in the variety firmament—not a great comedian or an accomplished vocalist, but something which has an important influence in the making of both. It is, in fact, the Star Music Publishing Company, Ltd., the leading light of which is Mr. Bennett Scott, who is managing-director, and will personally conduct the business in conjunction with his well-known collaborator, Mr. A. J. Mills, also a director of the company.

The new company's premises are situated in an unrivalled position at 9, Charing Cross-road, facing the Garrick Theatre; while at the side loom the imposing walls of the National Gallery. A suite of rooms, excellently adapted for their purpose, has been secured, with electric light, telephone, and all appointments fully up to date. In the front is the reception-room, tastefully decorated in green and white. A fine-toned piano stands in the corner, and the walls are adorned with pictures of artists whose fame is closely associated with the productions of Mills and Scott. Close by is the publishing department, and the next apartment is devoted to the purposes of a waiting-room, where appointments may be made, letters written, and facilities given for anything that may conduce to the convenience of clients. The clerical offices complete the establishment. A pianist is always in attendance to try over a song, and to music hall and pantomime artists a hearty welcome is extended. Among the novelties introduced is a phonograph, liberally furnished with records, so that artists will be able to test the merits of any song they fancy.

Interviewed on the subject of the new enterprise Mr. Scott says: "I have been asked a hundred times by as many different people, 'Why do you not publish your own songs?' It was easy at the time for me to give many reasons for not doing so; still, I thought seriously of the matter, and when I was again recently approached on the subject of publishing, I was quite in favour of the idea. A few days later the word was given to 'go.' Inside of two hours I had 'spotted' these premises, and decided they were just what I wanted. Forty-eight hours later a small army of carpenters, decorators, &c., were at work on the necessary alterations. Within four days our first three numbers were engraved, printed, and dispatched to America for copyrighting. By the next day we had furnished the premises and secured our staff, headed by Mr. J. Thurlow. On the seventh day we rested, and on the eighth, the Star Music Publishing Co., Ltd., was duly registered, and we had purchased a splendid song from those celebrated writers, Harry Castling and C. W. Murphy." The new composition sings the praises of a Welsh maiden, and has a lilting melody that is sure to take the town.

"I presume you have heard most of the terrible things Mr. Mills and I have concocted?" continues Mr. Scott. "Well, if I must go into the dark ages, our first really big song was 'Darling

Mabel,' which, I should say, was the progenitor of a number of ditties in which the chorus was made to read as a complete letter. Among other songs, I am personally guilty of 'Everybody's loved by someone,' 'I've made up my mind to sail away,' and, in conjunction with Mr. Mills, 'There's a girl wanted there,' 'Farewell, my little Yo San,' 'Hear the pipers calling, Jenny mine,' and many others. Mr. Mills is also part writer of 'Just like the ivy I'll cling to you,' 'It's the poor that help the poor,' and that ubiquitous song, 'Bombay,' while he is partly responsible for Miss Ada Reeve's first success, and for that of Mr. Tom Costello's 'Old Clown,' as well as for his latest hit, 'The Suffragettes.' He has written songs, moreover, for Mr. Alec Hurley, before that gentleman found his vocation as an idealised coster impersonator.

Messrs. Mills and Scott have placed with Francis and Day and B. Feldman and Co. for the season's pantomimes some excellent numbers, including "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," "Snowflakes," and "Hello! it's a different girl again!" which are all in great demand.

"With regard to our policy as publishers, we do not propose to issue only our own works, but shall buy anything good that comes along, whoever the authors may be. We have no prejudices, and will, indeed, give preference to other writers whenever their compositions show signs of success. Our various numbers will be issued under the title of 'Star Sixpenny Editions,' and we hope to make that the trade mark of success."

All the company's productions are at present being sung in London, no less than three being given at the Royal. No. 1 of the Star Company's copyrights is entitled "Sailing in my balloon." They are being bombarded by letter, wire, and telephone with applications for copies of the song, which has proved an instantaneous hit at the music halls, and the piano is kept continually playing it over every day to artists and managers anxious to secure the latest craze. A telegram recently received from a Colchester artist put the success of the song thus tersely: "Balloon went up to-night. Successful ascent." No. 2 is "Nelson from his monument," a rousing march-time number, which is being featured by Tom Costello, who declares it will surely become as popular as "Sail away," if not more so. No. 3 is entitled "Will you dance with me, Marie?" and this is perhaps the most charming number of all.

Messrs. Mills and Scott, who have been together some fifteen years, were both comedians at the outset of their career; but such was the appreciation bestowed by an undiscerning public that they determined to take a deep and lasting revenge by becoming song writers. So well did they apply themselves to their work that the ear of the populace has ever since been haunted by ravishing melodies, wedded to words that have a knack of remaining indelibly impressed on the memory. An excellent principle of the collaborators has always been that of never turning money away. Once (in the long ago) an amateur came to them and wanted a song à la Harry Randall. The firm had nothing in hand but a "serio" lyric of the "Strolling down the lane with Charlie" order. Happily, Mr. Mills had been a mimic as well as a comic singer, so while Mr. Scott deftly accompanied on the piano, Mr. Mills sang the song so nearly in the style of Randall that the customer was delighted. He jumped at the bargain, but came back the next morning and said he couldn't make it sound like Harry Randall, and wanted his money back. The transaction, however, was completed; the money, in fact, was spent, and there the matter ended.

Both partners hold the decided opinion that the position of song-writers has vastly improved by the increase of publishers, and also by the demand for the "free song," before which Mr. Scott thinks there is a great future. The only disadvantage it possesses is the possibility of two artists wanting to sing the same song at the same hall, but the company obviate that difficulty by making a list of the singers to whom the song is given, and getting their dates in advance, so that a clash can always be averted.

"The composer of popular songs," says Mr. Scott, who is an able executant on piano and organ, "need not by any means be an educated musician. Some of the most popular melodies have been invented by men who did not know A from a bull's foot, being obliged to pick out their tunes with one finger on the piano. Success depends not upon technical knowledge, but upon the invaluable gift of being able to reach the public ear, so that even the most ignorant in musical art need not despair of writing a popular song." Mr. Mills, on his part, thinks lack of technique is sometimes an advantage. He has, before now, had to invent the tune as well as the words of a song, and if there should happen to be a resemblance between a composition of his and one that has appeared before, "how," he adds naïvely, "can I be accused of plagiarism when I don't know a note of music?"

Mr. Mills and Mr. Scott are deeply grateful for the many kindly expressions of goodwill they have received from brother song-writers, publishers, artists, and managers, and they feel they may look to the future with perfect confidence. Among those who have extended a welcome to the new company is Mr. David Day, one of the respected principals of Francis and Day, who said, "Let me be the first to wish you success," Mr. Bert Feldman, and Mr. J. P. Harrington. Visits have been received from many managers, including Mr. Wyndham, of that mammoth firm of provincial producers, Howard and Wyndham, and from Mr. Frank Dix, the representative of the Robert Arthur theatres.

"There is just one little thing more that must not remain unsaid," says Mr. Scott in parting. "We owe it to Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., to acknowledge that but for his splendid work in Parliament, which has made it possible for composers and publishers to protect their rights, there would have been no Star Music Publishing Co., Ltd."

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

An excellently varied and exhilarating programme is that provided at the Shepherd's Bush Empire this week. The bill is headed by Arthur Conquest and company in the thrilling dramatic sketch, The Sioux. The sketch, the scene of which is laid outside a log hut in the backwoods, is chiefly remarkable for a realistic fight between the settlers and a tribe of Indians, and for Mr. Arthur Conquest's performance as an ape. The performance of Chadi is one of the best of animal impersonations, and the widespread eulogy it has gained is thoroughly deserved. The agility displayed by Mr. Conquest can only be the result of constant practice, and the laughter evoked by the antics of the gorilla is continuous till the end, when the house is moved to complete sympathy at the pathetic death of the faithful animal.

A new and extremely amusing turn is that of Ted and May Hopkins, the Welsh comedy couple, in Cambrian Courtship. Welsh comedy is a decided innovation and, in this case at any rate, a distinct success. That popular comedian, Mr. Mark Melford, appears in a sketch, which he makes extremely laughable. Eadie and Ramsden provide an amusing turn, chiefly noticeable for some clever eccentric dancing. Mr. Hesketh Meade is a gentleman with an excellent baritone voice, and interest in his singing is increased by lantern illustrations. A very popular turn is In Her Boudoir, the title given to a very entertaining medley, which gives excellent opportunities to Miss May Beatty and Mr. Edward Lauri. Miss Beatty, who has lately come to us from Australia, appears first in principal boy attire, and later in a smart lounge suit, and proves herself the possessor of a good voice and a charming manner. Mr. Lauri makes several changes, his most humorous impersonation being that of a young lady in evening dress. Mr. Lauri is a good comedian.

Mr. Arthur Reece is very successful with his song "When there isn't a girl about," and scores an unmistakable hit. The Stein-Eretto troupe are responsible for some very clever tumbling, which concludes with a marvellous flying leap by one member over the heads of seven men, alighting on the topmost of two tables on his hands. Barton and Ashley, obviously an American turn, supply an excellent specimen of the tramp and lady variety. The tramp, especially, is a most amusing person, and withal an exceptional dancer and tumbler. Mezzetti and Mora give a very pleasing, straightforward performance on three horizontal bars. Altogether a most enjoyable programme, well worthy of the repute long since gained by the establishment, is presented.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

The bustling sketch, entitled The House Boat, which is being played by Mr. John Leopold's company at the Hackney Empire this week, has nothing in common with Mr. J. M. Barrie's comedy of the same title, which the late Mr. J. L. Toole produced at his theatre, except that a house-boat figures in both productions. In the music-hall piece the plot turns upon the frolicsome adventures of Colonel Scorcher, who arranges to meet at a quiet spot up the river a lively little music-hall artist, named Dolly Damper, and her sister, Daisy, and have dinner on board a house-boat. The colonel, being a middle-aged married man, ought, of course, to know better; and when his rather severe-looking wife discovers, by means of a note from Dolly, which the colonel has carelessly dropped, her husband's duplicity, and determines to be present also at the up-river gathering, no one feels any sympathy for the middle-aged Lothario. A friend who had promised to accompany the colonel having disappointed him, he takes with him his servant, Lively, who, in manner at least, does not belie his name. Mrs. Scorcher also has a companion, their maid-servant Maria, who is Lively's sweetheart. The principal scene is the grounds of a riverside inn, the house-boat being a conspicuous object in the rear; and much merriment arises from the eccentric behaviour of a waiter who is fond of assuming an upside-down position, and revolving like a human top; while a couple of tramps join in the laughable antics, and Lively is introduced to the two girls as a young lord with plenty of money to spend. The doings of the colonel and his servant are watched from a balcony by Mrs. Scorcher and Maria, who punishes her sweetheart by dropping a tray upon his head. The dinner on board the boat is a very lively affair indeed, the fun growing fast and furious until the curtain falls. Mr. Watson Hume gives a capital embodiment of the gay old colonel, and Lively is played with much humour and spirit by Mr. Willie Leopold. Mr. Barry Lupino is remarkably energetic and active as the waiter Tipit, and the two tramps have amusing and acrobatic exponents in Mr. John Leopold, jun., and Mr. Ernest Leopold. Miss Kathleen Cavanagh represents Mrs. Scorcher with appropriate severity of manner and appearance; Miss Gertie Winter is clever and quaint as Maria; Miss Amy Hall and Miss Queenie Bronte as Dolly Damper, and her sister Daisy, are bright and merry girls; and Miss May Gordon as Susan is a pert waitress. Mr. Wilfred Vaughan scores as Blobbs, an innkeeper; and Mr. Tom Leopold, Mr. Charles Gough, and others give valuable assistance in minor parts.

Miss Millie Hylton is always welcome, and on this occasion she is accompanied by a pretty and clever little girl, Miss Decima Brooke, who shares in her success. "Somebody's sweetheart I want to be" is a charming composition, and this is followed by an equally attractive item, "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," in which Miss Hylton's little assistant appears as a Dutch girl, and gives a clog dance. Miss Hylton's stage-work is as refined as it is clever and graceful; and she continues to ably maintain the best traditions of the variety stage.

The amusing sketch, Aunt Matilda, is suggestive of a well-known farcical comedy, but, all the same, as played by Mr. Frank Elliston and company, it causes roars of laughter, and thereby fulfils its mission. The lightning painter known as Speedwell limns portraits of such famous people as the late Sir Henry Irving and Dan Leno, Generals Kitchener and Buller, and, lastly, of His Majesty the King, in an incredibly short time, and his artistic skill is duly recognised. The Matweef-Hugoston troupe of Russian singers and dancers give a wonderful performance. Mr. Tom Owen, attired as a Welsh dame, contributes a good song; and the Saphos excel in a comedy bar act. Mr. Fred Elton, seated at the piano, gives his musical and vocal act, On Board an Ocean Liner, in which he introduces a number of songs with conspicuous success. Miss Sybil St. Elmo, a ballad vocalist, sings in pleasing style, and is well applauded; and the American Bioscope, with up-to-date subjects, is also an interesting item in a most attractive programme. Mr. John Christie, the acting-manager here, is as assiduous as ever in the discharge of his onerous duties; and Mr. D. Earle Charles is the recently-appointed assistant acting-manager.

ROYAL ALBERT.

ANNUAL HOSPITAL BENEFIT.

The Seamen's Hospital (Royal Albert Docks Branch) has benefited to a considerable extent by the two performances given in its aid at the above music hall on the evenings of Thursday and Friday last week. In lending his theatre and his assistance for such a worthy object, Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, the proprietor, is carrying out the promise he made some time ago to continue the favours hitherto extended to the Hospital by Mr. Charles Relf, the late proprietor of the Royal Albert. The performances, which formed the sixteenth annual entertainment in support of the charity mentioned, were well attended. On the Friday evening, Mr. H. C. Staniland Smith, the honorary secretary of the Seamen's Hospital, appeared before the curtain and publicly thanked Mr. Hunt for so generously placing theatre and artists at their disposal, and he also expressed gratitude to those performers whose names appeared on the programme in addition to the ordinary week's turns. Mr. Hunt stated that he was only too happy to do anything in his power to help the Seamen's Hospital, and he was delighted to see that there had been such good houses. He mentioned that collections would be made among the audience in aid of the institution.

The names of the artists on the programme for the two days were Miss Billie Barlow, Miss Jessie Preston, Rezene and Robini, Miss Florrie Forde, Miss Lillie Soutter, Nat Travers, Miss Marie Empress, the Gilbert Trio, Arthur Reece, Sisters Wingrove, Sisters Beatrice, Barton and Ashley, Miss Amy Sullivan, Miss Daisy O'Malley, the Danbys, Minnie Moran, the Two Mays, Tom Bass, Corrie and Dereve's musical comedy sketch, Office Hours, Bessie Benson, Fred Herbert, the Sprees (Dorothy and Joe), Gladys Williams, Geo. Woodward and Fay Walton, Rose Pareezer, Ivy Aberdare, Mr. S. King Alexander, Raymond's Biotableaux, the Jenners, Bertha Norwood, the Tatlers, Sydney Mason, Florrie Beck, Miss Ethel Netherton, the Bros. Tarrant, Miss Gracie Kebbell, and the Levines.

COUNTY COUNCIL LICENSING.

The second sitting of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council was held on Monday at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell, when applications for licences for places north of the Thames were considered. Mr. H. J. Greenwood, chairman of the committee, presided, and the other members in attendance were Mr. J. B. Williams, Mr. Howell Williams, Lieutenant-Colonel Rotton, Sir Algernon West, Lord Monkswell, Mr. J. Brandon, Mr. E. Yates, Mr. B. S. Straus, and Sir W. J. Bell. Among those present interested in music hall management were Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. Geo. Scott, Mr. F. Woodford, Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. Jas. Howell, Mr. Geo. Adney Payne, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Dundas Slater, and Mr. Ernest Polden.

LONDON COLISEUM.

On the application for the renewal of the music and dancing licences of the London Coliseum, the Chairman inquired what was proposed to be done with the building.

Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., said there had been an order of the Court with regard to the sale of the theatre at the instance of the debenture trustees. A scheme was now on foot which was likely to result in an arrangement being made of a satisfactory character which would enable the premises to be carried on for some time with a theatrical licence, but at the beginning of last year some difficulty arose upon the question as to what was a theatrical entertainment. That was likely to give rise to litigation, and to avoid it application was made for a theatrical licence, and that of the County Council was surrendered. By subsequent negotiation, however, an agreement was come to on the sketch question, so that in future no difficulty would arise under the County Council licence.

The Chairman inquired whether it was proposed to reopen the building at an early date. Mr. Gill: It is anticipated that it will be. Even if the present arrangement should fall through, and the place sold, it is important that it should be licensed.

The licence was granted.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.

Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett applied for a music and dancing licence for the Alexandra Theatre, which it was intended to transform into a music hall. He said that the Stoke Newington Council had recommended that the licence should be granted subject to the condition that no intoxicating liquors should be sold in the auditorium, by which he understood that it might be sold in the bars.

The Chairman, after consulting with his colleagues, announced that the licence would be granted only upon the usual condition that no intoxicating liquors whatever were sold.

FINSBURY PARK EMPIRE.

Mr. Gill was also entrusted with the application on behalf of Mr. Oswald Stoll for a provisional licence for music and dancing for the new Finsbury Empire. Opposition was offered by a large number of residents in the neighhood on the customary grounds. Mr. Gill reminded the committee that they granted the licences last year, and that the full council were equally divided on the question of confirming their decision, with the result the licence was not granted. In view of the fact that one of the grounds of objection, which was repeated in identical terms in three of the notices, was that the moral tone of the neighbourhood would be lowered if the proposal was carried into effect, it was important to bring to the notice of the committee the further fact that, although Mr. Stoll had control of a large number of music halls, in no case where he had been entrusted with a licence, either in London or the provinces, had any question ever arisen or any complaint been made with regard to any entertainment provided. The proposed building would involve an expenditure of £25,000. As to whether the place was likely to be a financial success, he submitted that that was a matter which hardly concerned the committee or those who were objecting. The place would appeal to a population of something like 300,000, and the railway facilities to the place were extraordinary. It was also proposed to surrender the licence of the Holloway Empire, which, it was considered, was more adapted to the purposes of a theatre. There would be two performances a night, and no intoxicating liquors would be sold. He ridiculed the idea of the moral tone of the neighbourhood being lowered by such a music hall, and pointed out that 1800 persons residing within three-eighths of a mile of the site had petitioned in favour of it.

An ex-inspector of the Metropolitan Police, who had had experience of music hall audiences and knew the neighbourhood well, said he did not believe the hall in question would be either an inconvenience or a nuisance to the neighbourhood. Mr. Lewis Carr, secretary of the Great Northern Hospital, who was a witness against the licensing of the Holloway Empire, deposed that the music hall had by no means proved a source of annoyance to the patients.

Mr. Stoll said he held several licences under the council, and no question had ever been raised as to the character of the entertainments that were given. In the event of the present licence being granted, the house would be conducted upon lines similar to those of the other houses, and he would give an undertaking that the house should not be used on Sundays, and that no intoxicating liquors should be sold. The site had been selected with great care as most suitable and as serving a very large area.

Evidence having been given by various residents, the committee retired, and on returning, the chairman said it had been decided to recommend the council to grant the licences subject to the usual restriction that no intoxicating liquors be sold or consumed on the premises.

PROPOSED NEW CONCERT HALL.

An application for a provisional licence for music for a new concert hall to be erected on the site of St. Paul's Church, Great Portland-street, which had been demolished, was granted.

THE CANTERBURY.

On the application of Mr. George Adney Payne for a music and dancing licence for the Canterbury Music Hall, which had been adjourned from the Newington Sessions, the chairman suggested that the directorate of the hall should renew their undertaking of last year to limit the numbers of persons using certain parts of the hall, but Mr. Payne said that might mean that they would bind themselves for the remaining portion of the existing lease.

Eventually the chairman said that under the circumstances they had no other alternative but to advise the council to refuse to renew the licence.

There is a bright little side-show in the Electric Theatre at the Crystal Palace, and many visitors drop in to be well amused for half an hour or so when up on the more serious business of poultry or dog shows, to find an efficient ventriloquist in the person of Mr. Stanley H. Bell, who opens the entertainment with a garrulous old lady as his companion, and manages to extract some hearty laughter, chiefly by virtue of her smart and unexpected rejoinders to his queries. Mr. Ernest E. Noakes is an accomplished manipulator of coins, cards, and even billiard balls, his "palming" being especially good. He has, moreover, some more ambitious illusions, requiring up-to-date apparatus, such as the Educated Clock, the Frame of Enchantment, and others. Altogether, it is an entertainment that should not be missed by visitors to the Sydenham Palace.

"THE DEBUTANTE" AT THE EMPIRE.

Mr. George Edwardes has again called in the resourceful M. Wilhelm to supply the scenario of the new ballet at the Empire, which was produced with every sign of success on Thursday evening. The period illustrated by the dresses is the "thirties," when flourished such exquisites as the Count d'Orsay—whose character has been so admirably typified by Mr. Tree at His Majesty's in Mr. Clyde Fitch's The Last of the Dandies—and when such dancing prime donne as Taglioni, Lucile Grahn, Carlotta Grisi, Cerito, and Fanny Elsler witched audiences at the chief Continental opera-houses by the spirit and grace of their solos. We are brought into close touch with this period in the first scene of The Débutante, which takes place in the practice-room of the ballerine at the Paris Opéra House. Dandies stroll in quite unconcernedly to watch the pupils of M. Pirouette at practice, and look picturesque in the white beaver hats, coloured coats, and tight trousers of the period. When we make the acquaintance of M. Pirouette, who occupies the important position of maître de ballet at the Opéra House, he is busy rehearsing The Odalisque, in which Mlle. Florita is to play the chief part. That lady, however, throws up her part when she observes the interest shown by Pirouette in Mlle. Delphine, the protegée of a rich patron of the theatre, and the maître, at his wits' end to replace her, is persuaded to give a trial to the novice, who immediately distinguishes herself in a series of dances.

A short front scene depicts the incidental worries overwhelming Pirouette, who is badgered by composer, costumier, librettist, and scene-painter in turn. At length the curtain rises on the first performance of The Odalisque, an Oriental ballet, of which the scene is a Seraglio garden. The favour of the aged Sultan and his suit is sought by Mustafa, a slave-dealer, who introduces a number of odalisques to the notice of his Highness, who is so struck by the grace and beauty of Azalea that he is determined to purchase her at any price. Having completed his bargain, he instructs Hassan, a handsome young officer of his bodyguard, to bring the girl into his presence. Hassan is just in time to rescue Azalea from the brutality of Mustafa, whom he fells to the ground. Gratitude ripens into love—the course of which does not run smooth, in consequence of the jealousy of Zulima, who cherishes a hopeless passion for the young soldier. She fosters the anger of the Sultan against Hassan, who is ordered under arrest. Azalea sues for her lover's pardon, and is told she can only gain it by withdrawing from the Sultan's finger his signet ring. She succeeds in doing this during a pas de fascination, and all ends happily.

The opportunity for a brilliant stage-setting rich in Oriental colouring comes with the second scene—the garden of the Seraglio—and here the evolutions of the odalisques and the ladies of the Turkish Court, which, as of yore, have been arranged by Mme. Katti Lanner—now once more entrusted with the important functions of ballet directress—are bewildering in their prettiness. Purple and green are the pervading colours of the costly and beautiful dresses, and the dresses of the Sultan's bodyguard, who look exceedingly chic in their jaunty caps, have a very smart appearance. To Mlle. Genée a number of solos are given, and she dances superbly in skirts that are somewhat longer than the prevailing fashion, and the effects she produces are even more graceful and fascinating than ever. She obtained an ovation on Thursday, the crowded and delighted house being seemingly never tired of applauding her. Mr. Fred Farren as the maître de ballet in the first scene and the Sultan in the second, displays his versatility and talent for miming to immense advantage. He is always entirely conscientious, and can always be trusted to sound the dramatic note whenever the situation requires it. His gesture play is excellent, and his dancing artistic. Mr. P. Sundberg as the patron of art in the first scene and as the slave-dealer of the second gives evidence of his adaptability, and his dance is a surprising study in agility. Miss D. Craske again makes a very attractive and manly "lover" of the prima donna assoluta, and her perfect deportment and expressive pantomime again elicit warm compliments. For the music of the first scene Mr. Cuthbert Clark is responsible, and his score is agreeably melodious, the themes being of a light and graceful character. Mr. C. J. M. Glaser has treated most effectively in his music for the Seraglio scene the dramatic nature of the theme, and has not forgotten in his score the necessary Oriental colouring. The triumph of the new Empire ballet seems to be assured, if we may gauge its future prospects by the enthusiasm shown at the première on Thursday.

BARNARD'S PALACE, GREENWICH.

A large and well-pleased audience assembles here nightly, attracted by the liberal bill of fare provided by the skilful and courteous management of this popular hall. After the overture has been capitally rendered by the orchestra under the able direction of Mr. William Skerry, the first turn on the programme is that of Phil Inglis, the coon comedian and dancer, who is well received. Next come the charming Sisters Melba, who sing in excellent style "Good-bye, Dixie gal" and "Until we meet once more." This pretty turn is followed by that of Minnie Dawn, comedienne and dancer, who sings "Au Revoir" very pleasingly, and then contributes a graceful and pretty dance. The next comers are Leighton and Williams in a smart comedy duologue, which exactly suits the taste of the audience. Harry Mack greatly interests all present by his surprisingly rapid changes of attire; White and Jerome's coster scena entitled Little Billy's Birthday is a popular item, consisting of song and dance by a number of well-trained and clever children. The Brothers Tarrant, a couple of clever comedians, are greeted with hearty applause; Hans and Lux, who style themselves "the argumentative college chums," give a neat turn, and their patter is smart and novel. Olive Pauline sings in an attractive and entertaining manner her song entitled "Git away, Mr. Jasper," and she winds up with a neatly-executed dance. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope exhibits a new series of interesting and amusing pictures. Mlle. Dora plays a solo on the oboe entitled "Sing me to sleep," and another on "Scotch Airs." This lady is a clever musician, and is warmly applauded. George White is a funny comedian, and loud laughter greets his rendering of "That girl belonged to him" and "Tim." An attractive extra turn is that of Miss Olive Day, who sings charmingly the pretty song entitled "Make hay while the sun shines." Miss Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs please by their capital little scena entitled The Japanese Tea Garden by Night. This turn brings the capital evening's entertainment to a successful conclusion.

Henri Cot, the French giant, and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget, are delighting and interesting large audiences at the New Cross Empire. The giant stands 8ft. 7in., weighs 390lb., is 21 years of age, and is expected to go on growing for the next five years. Prince Colibri, the smallest living man, is 25 years of age, and stands 23½in. and weighs 8½lb. A sensation was caused by this extraordinary pair on Wednesday, when they visited the city, calling in at St. Paul's Cathedral and other places of interest, until the attentions of the crowd became too pressing.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE fairs ahead for next week are—Darlington, on the North-Eastern Railway; Pickering, on the North-Eastern; Rugby, on the North-Western and Midland; Dover, on the South-Eastern and London, Chatham, and Dover; Fakenham, on the South-Eastern, Midland and Great Northern; Guildford, on the London and South-Western, South-Eastern, London, Brighton, and South Coast; Haltwhistle, on the North-Eastern; Martin Town; Crowle, on the Great Central; Louth, on the Great Northern; Newark, on the Great Northern and Midland; Ripon, on the North-Eastern; York, on the North-Eastern, Great Northern, North-Western, Great Eastern, Midland, and Great Central; Chesterfield, on the Midland; and Gloucester, on the Great Western and Midland.

IN Scotland there are—Airdrie, on the North British and Caledonian; Langholm, on the North British; and Inverness, on the Highland. In Wales, there is Aberystwith, on the Cambrian and Manchester and Milford line.

BELPER keeps a fair on the opening five days of November. This year the shows were:—J. Proctor's theatre of living pictures and varieties; J. Crighton's cinematograph; Prince Samonda, with second-sight séance and clever variant of the box-trick; and W. Le Neve and Norah Sullivan in the athletic demonstrations. The machines on the ground were Collin's motor set, Twigdon's gondolas and steam horse sets, and Jervis's steam swings. The Winchester ranges, rifle saloons, and bottle batteries were by Messrs. A. Proctor, S. A. Hall, Wyatt, and A. Hall. The other fair-ground caterers were Messrs. Young, Charlton, Rudd, Brinkley, A. Proctor, W. H. Hall, and Wyatt.

LARGE numbers assemble nightly to witness the capital performances of Messrs. Burnett's portable theatre, now centred in Moore's Showfields, Redruth. The bill for the week includes the plays Under the British Flag, Charles Peace, Drink, and Belphegor.

AMONG the many good things provided at Hengler's Hippodrome, Plymouth, this week are Ford's performing pigeons, the Clarks (globe walkers), the Brothers Bodey (comedy bar acrobats), and a grand imperial spectacle in which a number of well-trained boys and girls participate.

CARMARTHEN November pleasure fair was held on Wednesday. The weather during the morning and afternoon was beautifully fine, but in the evening rain fell, and the business, which had been brisk during the early portions of the day, was materially affected thereby. The fair was held in the Corporation Pleasure Fair-ground, and was resorted to by crowds of people from the country-side. Messrs. Henry Studt and Son's grand electric motor-cars were the chief attraction, while the children found much pleasure in Mr. William North's juvenile roundabouts and Booth's juvenile swings. Messrs. E. Booth, David Boswell, John North, D. Evans, and William North's cokernut shies and shooting saloons and aquariums received generous patronage, as did also Plinston's aerial big wheel, Wortley's working model of a colliery, Testo's marionettes and living pictures, Blower's boxing saloon, and Baker's circus, the latter of which gave a very clever exhibition.

THE question as to whether shows shall be permitted to stand in the public squares at Aylesbury as in the past came before the usual monthly meeting of the Urban Council on Monday, when the matter was referred to the Market Committee to bring up a recommendation to the next meeting. A favourable result is anticipated. On the 9th and 10th inst. Prof. A. Ball's bioscope and variety company visted the town, and was accorded a hearty reception.

PRINCESS GOOMA and her Dahomey Amazon women warriors (under the direction of Mr. Tom Brown) finish a highly successful engagement at Wonderland, Leith, to-day. This booking concludes the Scottish provincial tour, and the warriors, gratified with their enthusiastic and appreciative reception, return to Glasgow for a pantomime engagement.

DEEPFIELDS Wakes was held in two fields from the 9th till the 13th inst. The attractions comprised Switchback motor-cars by Mrs. S. Shepherd; two sets of horses, the four and three-abreast, by William Davies; living pictures by J. Cordwell; swings by Davies and Shepherd; cokers by Dobson, Turner, and Humphries; Winchester ranges by Turner and W. Dobson; and stalls by Turner, Dobson, Humphries, and Cartwright.

THE letter of the President of the Showmen's Guild, Lord George Sanger, in defence of fairs and showmen, has been quoted from our columns by the daily Press.

ONE enterprising pressman has interviewed the veteran showman, and has obtained the following interesting expression of opinion on fairs, both ancient and modern.

Speaking of the efforts to abolish old-time fairs, "I believe," he said, "that only a very small number of people are responsible for these efforts, and that their views do not represent the opinion of the majority. I have spent a pretty long life among traveling showmen. I know them for respectable and hard-working people, and I do not think it is a general wish that their means of livelihood should be taken away, or that conditions, already hard enough, should be made harder.

"I suppose it is more difficult to-day for the showman to earn a living than when I was young. The fairs are larger, and there are more varied amusements, but they do not last so long, and there is not so much business done. In the old days, when the fair was on practically all other business ceased. At Morn Hill, two miles out of Winchester, where the oldest fair in the country was held, the carts and waggons used to be coming in all day for more than a week before the fair started. It lasted fourteen days, although there was no water in the fair-ground, and water carted from Winchester had to be bought at 2d. per bucket. At Portsmouth the fair also lasted fourteen days, and we used to move then to a place not five miles away, and set up for another two days.

"The most striking difference between the fairs of to-day and those of my boyhood is the practical disappearance of the travelling theatre. The travelling theatre booths of Richardson and others were enormous places, conducted on the most magnificent scale. In the early days of last century men like Kemble and Kean did not disdain to tread the boards of the travelling booth. I have known Richardson's booth to go to the Ealing Fair and stay a whole month, with a cast formed of the cream of the dramatic profession of the day.

"That part of the business has, of course, been killed by the multiplication of the suburban and provincial theatres and music halls. We were also better patronised in the early days. On Oct. 28, 1847, on the second day of the Windsor Fair, I saw the late Queen, the Prince Consort, the Prince of Wales, and the Princess Royal walking through the fair, and Wombwell's menagerie, which was showing there, was ordered to Windsor Castle on the following day to perform before Her Majesty and the Royal Family."

MR. STOLLS' panoptican in Cardiff is a great draw among the juveniles, consisting, as it does, of the magic maze, roller-skating, Bioscope pictures, &c. Mme. d'Arc's Waxworks, with many new additions, is well worth a visit.

THE annual Loughborough fair was held on the 8th inst. and two following days. The first day it rained from morn till night; however, great crowds turned into the market-place the last two days, and enjoyed all the fun of the fair. There was an exceptionally fine array of shows, including Proctor's, Kemp's, Thurston's, and Twigdon's. There was also the usual amount of flying horses, swing-boats, and gondoliers, and an abundance of cokers and shooting galleries.

MR. ROBERT W. PAUL, of 68, High Holborn, W.C., has forwarded to us a copy of his latest catalogue, describing his new and selected animated picture films. The little book, which is tasteful in its get-up, is embellished with hundreds of photographs printed on art paper, and exhibitors of the cinématograph should apply for one, which will be sent carriage paid on receipt of address.

MR. JOHN JOHNSON'S Victoria Theatre at Barry Dock still draws crowded houses. This enterprising proprietor has some new scenery, which is quite unique. His ideas for the usual Christmas pantomime are in every way sure to lead to success.

MR. J. M. PETTS, who has been working the Eastern counties, has met with much success and given much satisfaction to the audiences assembled, leaving a good impression in every town visited. In addition to Petts' Perfect Pictures he is accompanied by a select vaudeville company.

MR. WM. HAGGAR, jun., has been granted a three months' licence for his portable theatre by the Neath Corporation.

CHRISTMAS attractions at the Crystal Palace, in addition to Mr. Bannister Howard's pantomime of Aladdin in the theatre, will embrace Lord John Sanger's Royal Hippodrome and Menagerie, by arrangement with the Crystal Palace management. A liberal and diversified programme will include scenes from the Boer War by Sanger's troupe of elephants; a pony with human brains; "Nero, or the sports of ancient Rome"; the elephant barbers, whose accomplishments include those of shaving, dining, boxing, and playing skittles; and many other circus and variety turns.

THE EDDIE HARVEY DEATH LEVY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly grant me space in your valuable paper to answer a letter, signed "Ray Maskell," in your issue of Nov. 3? It refers to the V.A.F. death levy in connection with my late lamented brother Edward. In answer to that letter, no money has yet been paid to me as stated. The reason is that I have not yet taken out letters of administration. No one has any right to promise any of the V.A.F. money except myself, and I have never done so.

What I propose is that it should be entrusted to any two of the V.A.F. Executive Committee solely for the child's benefit.—Yours truly,

DENNIS HARVEY.

"JEMIMA'S DILEMMA."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Some time back I wrote a sketch for Mr. T. B. Brydge, entitled Jemima's Dilemma. The subject was taken from the French, but treated quite differently to the original. The sketch played at the Standard recently by Mr. T. C. Matthews's company is exactly the same as mine, and as Mr. Brydge is continually playing it in the Halls it might be thought he had copied Mr. Matthews's sketch.—Yours faithfully,

GEO. ROBERTS.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD MEETING AT BURSLEM TO DEFEND THE WAKES.

The largest meeting yet held in the Burslem Drill Hall took place on Wednesday evening, when the members of the Showmen's Guild made their protest against the proposed abolition of the Wakes. There were well over two thousand people present. Mr. T. Bentley presided, and there were also on the platform the Rev. T. Horne (chaplain of the Showmen's Guild), Councillor J. H. Broadhurst, Messrs. T. Watson Wright, F. Bibby, P. Collins, T. Payne, Jeffreys Davies, G. Crump, W. Shaw, W. Cooper, J. Podmore, G. Podmore, S. Beech, H. Hall, G. Holdcroft, P. Brooks, A. E. Wood, and others.

The Chairman said he was pleased to meet the people of Burslem once again upon the Wakes question. He had taken part in the agitation twenty-seven years ago for the restoration of the festival, which had ended successfully. The reasons which had moved the Council to decide to remove the Wakes were, firstly, the insanitary condition which was alleged to accompany the presence of the vans; secondly, a complaint from a tradesman who had spoken against the annoyance caused by the continuous noise of the mechanical organs; and, in the third place, a letter which had been sent to the Council by another tradesman. He had visited that gentleman, and could tell them that he only wished the Wakes to be held from Saturday to Tuesday. The town derived £250 gross in rents from the showmen, and this sum would be lost to the town if the resolution of the Council was carried into effect.

Mr. Fred Bibby, of Manchester, proposed the following resolution: "That this meeting of the people of Burslem, convened by the Showmen's Guild, and supported by the local Wakes Defence Committee of the ratepayers, protests against the proposed abolition of Burslem Wakes fair." He claimed to have known and had the friendship of thousands of showpeople, and wished to defend them against the outrageous charges made against the showmen of Great Britain. (Applause.) He claimed to know them better than the Town Council, and he would say that they were not gipsies; they were as respectable a body of men and women as any community. (Applause.) Their morality and their calling had been attacked, and the sanitary conditions attending their presence in the town had been called into question. It was not the wish of a single showman that there should be anything insanitary about his temporary dwelling, for no one was more particular as to the cleanliness of his surroundings. (Hear, hear.) The showman had to face the world and the bigotry of fanatics who would not allow the people to have any entertainment at all if they had their wish. (Applause.) The showman's calling was one of the most ancient in existence, and during the last few years as a body they had made progress to as great an extent as any municipal body. Burslem was as much entitled to amusements for its working people as the upper classes of any town, and if the people could not have one week's amusement in the whole of the twelve months, all he could say was that they were going to the dogs fast. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. P. Collins, in seconding the resolution, said he had been coming to Burslem for twenty-five years, and he thought it was wrong on the part of the busybodies to stigmatise the showpeople and the townspeople as they had done. The Town Council ought to have called a town's meeting before any action had been taken. (Applause.) For his part, he should do everything in his power to help the people. The Wakes provided an innocent amusement under the canopy of heaven, and everything in connection with it was right and orderly. If there was any need for intervention, they might leave that to the police. (Hear, hear.) During all the years he had visited Burslem he claimed that he had never seen one row in the Wakes. (Loud applause.)

Mr. Watson Wright, of Leicester, the solicitor to the Showmen's Guild, said that the fair held at the Wakes was legally constituted, and was as good a fair as any owing its origin to Royal Charter or prescriptive right. He outlined the history of the agitation which ended in the restoration of the Wakes twenty-six years ago, and said that the town councillors of that day were wise in listening to the petition presented by 700 ratepayers and the ballot of the townspople, and restored the fair. When the members of the present Council realised what the people said and what they meant they would be as sensible and as reasonable as their predecessors. (Applause.) It was impossible to assail the legality of the Wakes, for the greatest authority upon the subject had held that it was an essential condition of the holding of a market and fair that it should be open for all persons to frequent it for the purpose of buying and selling. There had also been a case—Cooper v. Collins—in which it was held that the amusements carried on by the showpeople constituted a fair in the legal sense of the term. In that case of Cooper v. Collins the appellant was Mr. Patrick Collins. The speaker went on to say that the amusements of the Wakes were as much a part and parcel of the fair as the buying and selling, and had been so recognised by Parliament. If the Town Council prevented the public from going there and using the open spaces they were liable not only to an action at law at the instance of the people, but also to be indicted for misdemeanour. (Applause.) And if the people of Burslem wished to have their fair the showpeople would not hesitate to assert their legal rights. (Applause.) The fair could not be abolished unless it was satisfactorily proved that it was the cause of grievous immorality, and was injurious to the inhabitants. The Showmen's Guild was in a position to prove that there was not an instance of immorality amongst the showpeople at the fairs in any part of Great Britain. (Applause.) The only way to secure the abolition of the Wakes was by petition to the Home Secretary, and if such a petition was forwarded he felt that it would be met by Mr. Gladstone as it had been by previous Home Secretaries, and no order would be made. (Applause.) The showpeople were a respectable body of citizens, and were entitled to the protection of the law as much as any other section of the community. Those who proposed to interfere with the fair were, he said, busybodies and faddists. (Applause.) Mr. Wright appealed to those present to attend the town's meeting which had been convened, and show their opinions and influence to the members of the Council. Surely the Mayor and his colleagues did not want to set themselves up as little gods. (Laughter.) At any rate, the people could knock them down if they did. It was inconceivable that a body of gentlemen should set up a standard of morality which it was almost impossible for other people to live up to. They seemed to arrogate to themselves a high standard of morality just because they were a kill-joy committee. (Laughter and applause.) Some of them might live in a big house and have a motor-car and go to the theatre in Birmingham or Manchester, yet they denied the poor people their amusements. (Applause.)

The Rev. T. Horne said that he heartily supported the resolution, and he ventured to claim for the travelling showpeople the sympathy and assistance of the people of Burslem in the present controversy concerning the Wakes. He claimed to know through and through the life of the showman. The best work of his life had been done for them and in their midst. He stood there to vindicate the showpeople from the terrible slanders and the vile aspersions cast upon them and their avocation in life. Consider, he said, how the showman had to live his life ever in the public eye. We have been told of the fierce light that burns about the throne, but monarchs may for a time escape that ever alert observation and criticism. Not so the showman. His home on wheels, as well as the outside and inside of his show, is ever under searching observation. He cannot escape; his very living depends on carrying public sympathy—public support. His patrons are the masters of his whole life. His success entirely depends on winning and holding public esteem.

He asked—and he was sure that the justice-loving people of Burslem would concede—to showmen and showwomen the same domestic virtues, the same integrity of purpose, the same honesty of life and action as was freely accorded to all other sections of the workaday world. (Applause.) They were just as good citizens, just as loyal subjects, just as loving parents, just as religious, just as pure in their manhood and womanhood as the rest of the people. (Applause.) It had been darkly hinted that in some way—never set out in distinct terms—that the coming of the shows to the Wakes was a sanitary danger—a moral danger—to the community. A minister of Burslem had declared that as sure as the Wakes of Burslem came round there was an increase in the catalogue of illegitimate children. ("Shame.") That was a staggering statement to be made. It was more than that; it was an insult to the womanhood of Burslem, and he asked the people of the town to throw back the lie to those men who would traduce the moral character and the purity of the women of the town. (Applause.) If the Wakes was abolished in Burslem it would be abolished in every Pottery town. It was a movement on the part of their would-be masters and pastors to deprive them of an opportunity for necessary rest from toil and labour, an opportunity of mixing with their fellows, and of exchanging kindly acts of neighbourliness. Moreover, it was a movement on the part of a class of men who only regarded the working people so far as they were wealth-producers for them. (Applause.) By a resolution of the Council, it had been decided that only ratepayers should be heard at the town's meeting. ("Shame.") Consequently, the showmen had at short notice to engage that hall in order to appeal from Cæsar to Cæsar's master—the people. The people had manifested their interest in the subject, and had shown that however well meant the efforts of the governing body were, it had in that matter misunderstood the wishes of the people. (Applause.) The rev. gentleman concluded by pointing out how numerous and varied were the delights of the Wakes fair. He said there were the shows, the roundabouts, the stalls, the cocoanuts, and the thousand and one delights of the British fair which they demanded the right to enjoy. These privileges were their heritage and their birthright, to be handed down unsoiled and undiminished to their sons and to their sons' children. (Loud applause.)

The Chairman then put the resolution, and it was carried with but one dissentient.

The Rev. T. Horne proposed, and Mr. T. Watson Wright seconded, a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman, who suitably acknowledged the compliment, and the meeting terminated.

Burslem is thoroughly roused, and the enthusiasm of the people for the defence of their pleasure fair knows no bounds.

Mr. Horne was urgently pressed to stay over the town's meeting on the Thursday night and again address the people on the question of the hour.

This he consented to do, and the following poster and handbills were got out:

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.
Re Burslem Wakes.
To-Night,
After the Town's Meeting,
the
Rev. T. Horne will deliver a 30-minutes' address on
"British Shows and Showmen," in
St. John's-square, Burslem,
After, not during, the Town's Meeting.
Come in your thousands,
And demonstrate that you intend to retain your Popular Fair.

ALLEGED FRAUD ON FRED KARNO.

William Henry Chippendale, 26, described as a clerk, was charged, on remand, at Lambeth on Saturday, before Mr. Hopkins, on a warrant with forging and uttering an order for the payment of money.

Mr. J. Woodhouse, who appeared for the prosecution, said the prosecutor was Mr. Frederick John Westcott, who was known in the theatrical profession as "Fred Karno." Prosecutor had a number of touring companies of comedians playing at different theatres and music-halls throughout the kingdom, and in order to work them each company had an acting-manager, whose duty it was to receive the sums due from the theatre proprietors at the end of each week, and render a statement to Mr. Karno's treasurer. It was the duty of an acting-manager to pay the salaries of the persons performing in the company. Prisoner had been in the employment of the prosecutor for about twelve months as a secretary, and at times as acting-manager, and he was acting in that capacity during the week ending Sept. 8 last, when he was in charge of a company performing at the Hackney Empire. In the course of his duties he received certain moneys from the treasurer of that hall, and in the ordinary course made up his usual weekly statement, which he presented to Mr. Bell, who was Mr. Karno's cashier. In that statement he set out the salaries of the various performers in the company, and amongst them was the name of Mr. J. Clegg, who was put down as having received £2 from the prisoner as salary. Prisoner presented his vouchers in the ordinary way to Mr. Bell, one of them being signed "J. Clegg." Prosecutor at that time was in America. Upon the prosecutor's return in October last, prisoner being still in his service, Mr. Bell drew his attention to certain irregularities in the prisoner's accounts, and the prosecutor called prisoner into his room and asked for an explanation. Prisoner then said he was very sorry, but he had got into a muddle with his accounts. At that time it was not known that the Clegg voucher was not in fact signed by Mr. Clegg. On Oct. 13 prisoner absented himself from business, and did not return again to the prosecutor's service. Prosecutor caused an investigation to be made, and it was then found that Mr Clegg did not receive £2 from the prisoner, and did not sign the receipt which the prisoner had presented. Other matters having come to the prosecutor's knowledge, he thought it necessary to take proceedings.

Detective-sergeant Hedges said he found the prisoner detained at Swanley on the 2nd inst., and read the warrant to him. He replied, "This is a surprise." On the way to the railway station he said, "Johnnie Clegg worked three days for one company. He left. On the Saturday I could not see him, and I signed the note."

Prosecutor, who resides at Vaughan-road, Camberwell, and Mr. T. S. Bell, his cashier, were called in support of the charge.

Mr. John Clegg, a comedian, of Dewsbury, stated that for three nights during the week ending Sept. 8 he was performing with Mr. Karno's company in The Mumming Birds at the Hackney Empire. He did not receive any money from the prisoner that week. The receipt produced was not in his handwriting, nor did he authorise anyone to sign it. As a matter of fact his salary was paid by another manager, to whose company he was transferred.

Mr Hopkins committed prisoner for trial.

THE FIGHT FOR BURSLEM WAKES.

Excellent progress has been already made in the struggle for the people's popular Fair at Burslem. The local defence committee have done yeoman service, and we anticipate that the end of this week will see the forces of reaction routed, and the old-time wakes again freed from danger.

It had been arranged that the Showmen's Guild would join forces with the local Traders' Committee, and that the Rev. T. Horne and Mr. Watson Wright would speak for the showmen at the town's meeting. This arrangement was prevented coming into effect by a resolution passed at the last Council meeting, to the effect "that only ratepayers be heard at the town's meeting."

This eminently futile attempt to muzzle the showmen was met by the Guild at once taking the Drill Hall and billing the town for a big appeal to the people of Burslem. The following poster and handbill was issued, and every means taken to arouse public interest:—

SHALL BURSLEM WAKES BE LOST?

What is the answer that the people of Burslem will give to this important question?

Remember it is your Wakes, your heritage handed down to you in almost unbroken line by your forefathers, and it is yours to hand on to generations yet unborn.

What social crime have the toilers of Burslem committed? Why should their old-time Wakes, a genuine rest from toil, be taken from them by those who have abundant opportunity of rest and of pleasure at their command?

These "goody-goody" people view with alarm and suspicion the working-man and his family enjoying the fun of the fair, and they are quick to conclude that the fellowship and good neighbourliness of the open-air fun at the Wakes, has within it the possibilities of all possible sin and social degradation.

You, the men, women, and children of Burslem, have been held up to reprobation and all sorts of social iniquity attributed to you because, in spite of the bidding of these would-be custodians of your daily life, you still love your old Burslem Wakes.

Twenty-eight years ago you were deprived of your Wakes for a couple of years by the same type of people as would deprive you of it to-day.

You rose in your might and majesty, and won your Wakes back again.

Shall the sons of such worthy sires prove less valiant in the fight against prejudice, cant, and humbug?

Remember, even the enemies of the wakes have been driven to admit that this is a people's question.

They did not put that reservation in the resolution now on the minutes of the Borough Council, practically abolishing the Wakes.

Although they knew it was eight months before the next Wakes, they ordered that no ground be let for shows or such like things during the time of Burslem Wakes.

There is no reference here to the will of the sovereign people.

A town's meeting has been duly convened, and a vigorous movement started to bring about the rescinding of the resolution against the Wakes.

Attend in your thousands. Demonstrate your fixed purpose to retain the liberty and enjoyment of your old-time fairs, and show these would-be dictators as to what you shall do and what you shall not do—what pleasures you may enjoy and what pleasures you may not enjoy—that you claim the liberty of free-born Britons to say that your soul is your own, and that you will not be treated as creatures unfit to enjoy without moral stigma and social disgrace your old-time liberties and freedom from toil at Burslem Wakes.

The showmen of the Empire will hold a public meeting, on the Wednesday evening before the town's meeting, at the Drill Hall, Newcastle-street, Burslem, at 7.30, when the cause of the showmen will be advocated by the following gentlemen:—The Rev. T. Horne, London; T. Watson Wright, Esq., Leicester; and Fred Bibby, Esq., Manchester, members of the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild. T. HURST, Hon. Sec.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

W. F. Jury's Imperial Bioscope company has been exhibiting in the theatre an attractive entertainment by means of their living pictures. The varied subjects have met with hearty recognition, and special praise may be accorded to the series of living flowers, very beautiful displays of coloured photography—the floral ballet being most artistically depicted. The show included variety interludes. Amongst those appearing may be mentioned Mr. Walter Howard, whose banjo performances are of no mean order, and the Brothers Daniels, negro minstrels, with dancing specialities. On Saturday the Central Hall was filled with a large and appreciative attendance. Tschaikowsky's grand overture, "Solonnelle," was performed by the full strength of H.M. Coldstream Guards' Band, under the conductorship of Lieut. J. Mackenzie Rogan, to whom the credit is due of first introducing this fine work to the British public. A number which called for special praise was the song, "Beloved it is morn," by the ever-successful artist Miss Maud Dalrymple, who in response to the applause, gave "Home, sweet home." Mr. Harry Dearth's songs were all meritorious, particularly "The Corporal's ditty." The organist and accompanist was Mr. G. D. Cunningham, whose praiseworthy efforts always meet with the appreciation they deserve. Gounod's scena, "The Holy Temple," was given as a cornet solo by the conductor, and the success of the concert throughout was beyond question.

BARRING CLAUSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I think it will be of interest to all artists and agents to know how they have been misled by not reading carefully their contracts. I consider three months' limit very reasonable. Now, then—Mr. J. W. Rickaby, who should have opened this week at the Hippodrome, Putney, was threatened with an injunction by Mr. Walter Gibbons, although his date to open with him, I am informed by his agents, is Dec. 16, 1907. If barring of twelve months is allowed to continue, how are the agents and artists to exist?—I am, Sir, yours faithfully, W. J. GRIMES,

THE LYCEUM THEATRE,

STRAND.

An Exceedingly Valuable

FREEHOLD PROPERTY,

comprising

THE

SHOP AND BUSINESS PREMISES

adjoining thereto, situated a few yards out of the Strand, almost facing Aldwych, and with most important frontages to Wellington-street, Exeter-street, and Burleigh-street, aggregating 423ft., with an additional approach from the Strand, the whole covering an area of 23,500 square feet, or over half an acre.

THE LYCEUM THEATRE,

renowned as the scene of Sir Henry Irving's greatest triumphs, has recently been entirely reconstructed and brought up to the standard of modern requirements, and has a capacity for seating 2,750 persons. This occasion offers an unique opportunity for acquiring a suitable National Theatre, while (apart from the value and histrionic traditions of the present buildings) the site, from its size, and the fact that it is situated in one of the most valuable business centres of the Metropolis, opens up great building possibilities to Land Syndicates, Capitalists, Public Companies, and others. Vacant possession of the Theatre will be given on completion. The property includes also the shop and business premises, Nos. 33, 34, and 35, 36 and 37, Exeter-street, which are at present let on tenancies producing £331 per annum; and portion of No. 21, Wellington-street, which is now in hand.

Messrs. GLASIER & SONS

will Sell the above Most Important Property by Auction at the Mart, Tokenhouse Yard, E.C., on Thursday, Dec. 13, 1906, at 2 o'clock precisely, in One Lot.

Particulars, Plans, and Conditions of Sale may be obtained of Messrs. WITHAM, ROSKELL, MUNSTER, and WELD, Solicitors, 1, Gray's Inn-square, W.C., or of the AUCTIONEERS, 7, St. James's-street, London, S.W.

THE

IMPERIAL THEATRE,

WESTMINSTER.

SHORT NOTICE OF SALE BY AUCTION.

By Direction of Mrs. LANGTRY,

MESSRS. MARLER & MARLER

will offer for

SALE BY AUCTION,

at the MART, Tokenhouse Yard, on THURSDAY, Nov. 22, 1906, at 1 o'clock precisely, the Valuable Lease of the above House, with Immediate Possession. The Theatre was built by Mr. Frank Verity six years ago for Mrs. Langtry, regardless of expense. Since then it has been re-upholstered and re-decorated, and a new and exceptionally complete electric installation has been made. The stage is exceptionally large, and is furnished with the most modern appliances, and to it is attached a large Paint-room and Scene-dock. The house is ready for immediate occupation, and can be opened at a few days' notice for a Production. Held on Lease at a moderate rental.—Printed particulars and conditions of sale may be obtained from Messrs. Sutton, Ommanney, and Rendall, solicitors, of 3 and 4, Great Winchester-street, London, E.C.; and, together with permits to view, from the Auctioneers, at their offices, 176, Sloane-street, Belgravia, S.W.

CAPITALISTS.

THE THEATRE ROYAL, STOCKTON-ON-TEES

Messrs. R. & W. MACK

are instructed to offer

FOR SALE BY AUCTION,

at the Theatre Hotel, Stockton-on-Tees, on Tuesday, the 20th day of November, 1906, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all that commanding measuring 988 square yards, or thereabouts, situated in Yarm-lane, Stockton-on-Tees, being the site of the Theatre Royal, recently partially destroyed by fire.

FREEHOLD SITE,

The situation is unique for a theatre or music hall, having a long frontage to Yarm-lane, convenient access for scenery, &c., from Yarm-lane and Bridge-road, and being within fifty yards of the electric tramways running from Norton, through Stockton, Thornaby, and Middlesbrough, to North Ormsby, giving expeditious and inexpensive access to the population of an extensive and populous district.

The main halls, including the handsomely-designed front in Yarm-lane, remain standing, and are practically intact.

The Theatre Royal was fully licensed by the county magistrates representing the Durham County Council.

Apart from the special value of the site for a theatre or music hall, its situation and extent render it well adapted for shops or for wholesale business premises.

For further particulars apply to Messrs. Thomas and Malkin, solicitors, Stockton-on-Tees; to Messrs. Criddle and Criddle, solicitors, 2, Collingwood-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne; or to the auctioneers, 73 and 77, Pilgrim-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

BRIDLINGTON.

TO BE SOLD
by Auction

by Messrs. CRANSWICK and CRANSWICK, at the People's Palace, Quay-road, Bridlington, on THURSDAY, Nov. 29, 1906, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon precisely. (Subject to the General Conditions of Sale of the Hull Incorporated Law Society and to such special and other Conditions as will be then and there produced).

The whole of the Valuable Freehold Estate of the

BRIDLINGTON PEOPLE'S PALACE COMPANY, LTD.

(In Voluntary Liquidation),

Situate in Quay-road, Prospect-street, and Palace-avenue, Bridlington,
and consisting of:—

LARGE CONCERT HALL OR THEATRE (licensed); good stage, 29ft. opening, 20ft. deep, and 20ft. high, with large gallery and a seating capacity for about 1,500 people.

LARGE REFRESHMENT ROOM (fully licensed), 50ft. long, 30ft. wide, 22ft. high, with two good Tea Rooms attached, each being 24ft. long and 18ft. wide; boiler, heating apparatus, and lift to kitchen; good cellarage.

EXTENSIVE BALL-ROOM, 90ft. by 50ft., in basement; lavatories and w.c.'s.

LARGE ROOM adjoining Ball-Room, 50ft. by 30ft., used at present as a Shooting Gallery.

GOOD BOWLING GREEN in Palace Grounds.

TEN THOUSAND YARDS or thereabouts of Valuable BUILDING LAND surrounding the Palace.

FOUR GOOD LOCK-UP SHOPS (at the front of the Palace), recently built. Three let.

THREE SHOPS IN PROSPECT-STREET (adjoining the Palace Grounds), also commodious Dwelling-house and out-offices known as "ROSENDALE."

ELEVEN GOOD HOUSES IN PALACE-AVENUE, nearly new.

The Estate has a frontage to the main street, leading from the Railway Station to the sea, of about 125yds.

The Gross Annual Rental of the Houses and Shops (all of which have been recently reduced) is £401 10s., and £11 per annum is also received from advertising boards in front of the Palace. Such rents are quite exclusive of the Palace itself, from which alone the sum of £335 has been received in rentals this year.

All the Properties are Freehold and in the centre of the town (which is rapidly increasing in popularity), and would form a most desirable investment.

For further particulars apply to the Auctioneers, Messrs. Cranswick and Cranswick, Quay-road; Miss Morgan, 40, Tennyson-avenue, Bridlington; to the Liquidator, Mr. W. Kitchingman, The Aquarium, Scarborough; or to

Messrs. RICHARDSON and SON,
Solicitors, Bridlington.

FRANCIS, DAY, & HUNTER'S

11th HOUR PANTO. NOVELTIES.

"FIGHTING FOR THEIR KING AND SIRELAND."

(A Grand Patriotic Song).
Written and Composed by Edward Montagu.

There's a mighty little island, where the west wind blows,
Where the oak tree grows, and the red, red, rose;
And her native sons have never failed to thrash her foes.
The whole world knows it well.
Though her rivals always envy her, and try to claim
That she's not the same at the fighting game;
Her sons throughout the world will still uphold her name,
And win anew the glories of her fame.
Chorus:—
At duty's call in line will fall, whenever danger's nigh,
The boys who'll waste no time in idle brag;
From colonies beyond the seas the men who'll do or die,
Underneath the same old flag.
The gallant Scotch, the old Black Watch, those fighting Highland boys,
And then that dear dare-devil Pat from Ireland,
Tommy Atkins tried and true, sailor lads in navy blue,
Fighting for their King and Sireland.

Write for Full Copy and hear the Melody.

"ARRAH WANNA."

(An Original Irish-Indian Song).
Words by Jack Drislane, Music by Theodore Morse.

'Mid the wild and woolly prairies lived an Indian maid,
Arrah Wanna, queen of fairies, of her tribe afraid.
Each night came an Irish laddie O, with a wedding ring,
He would sit outside her tent, and with his bagpipes loudly sing.
Chorus:—
Arrah Wanna, on my honour, I'll take care of you;
I'll be kind and true.
We can love and bill and coo.
In a wigwam built of shamrock green, we'll make those red men smile,
When you're Missis Barney Michael Carney from Killarney's isle.

Write for Full Copy and hear the Melody.

"THE GOOD OLD UNION JACK."

(A Dramatic Story and Stirring Refrain).
Words by Jack Drislane, Music by Theodore Morse.

Tell me, daddy, tell me, why those men in that big crowd,
Won't you tell me why they're cheering, what makes each one look so proud?
Listen, lad, he answered, it's the tune the brass band plays,
It's the song, "Britannia Rules the Waves," and you'll know one of these days.
Chorus:—
Makes no diff'rence where you wander, makes no diff'rence where you roam;
You don't have to stop and ponder for a place to call your home;
When they ask where you were born, lad, speak right up and answer back,
That you're proud of your own dear Motherland, and the good old Union Jack.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.

AN OLD MAN'S DARLING. Code Word, BRUSQUER.
An old officer and young girl are wedded, but a young man comes in her way, and she goes to her new lover. The old man confronts the two lovers, and, in an impassioned scene, leaves his wife and commits suicide. Very dramatic and powerful.
280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

CAUGHT IN A TRAP. Code Word, CIRAGE.
Two burglars are breaking into a house, followed by a zealous policeman. They secure a wicker dressmaker's dummy, and clapping it over the head and body of the policeman, decamp. Very droll.
98ft. The Subject £1 12s. 8d.

THE WRESTLER'S WIFE. Code Word, BRUNISURE.
Another dramatic story. A travelling wrestler is admired by a rich lady and is asked to come to her house. He does so, followed by his jealous wife, who finally stabs the lady in her back.
362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d.

FEMALE SPY. Code Word. CINGLANT.
A story of the wilds of Russia. A young girl turns spy. Pursued by the Cossacks, she is captured, tortured, and finally tied to a wild horse's tail to be dragged over the country. Terribly dramatic, amidst gorgeous scenery.
428ft. The Subject £7 2s. 8d.

PAY DAY.
A workman having just been paid his wages gets very intoxicated and has rows with a baker, coalman, tramcar conductor, &c., generally coming off worst in the encounter.
297ft. The Subject £4 19s.

POOR TUTOR.
A pretty story showing the devotion of a poor tutor son for his mother. For beating one of the boys who annoys him he is turned out of the school by the principal, but brought back again by the boys, who find a letter from the poor young man to his mother, and, saddened, they plead for him.
412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

COLONEL'S BICYCLE. Code Word, CIRE.
Amusing antics by the colonel's manservant and the cook on his bicycle, who by their carelessness ruin some beautiful garden beds, and leading to further funny complications.
215ft. The Subject £3 11s. 8d.

ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP. Code Word, BROUER.
The old fairy story retold, with beautiful scenery and Eastern effects, and coloured very effectively in parts. Grand quality.
824ft. The Subject £13 14s. 6d.
Colouring extra, £1 17s.

THE

FISHING INDUSTRY.

This film vividly illustrates one of our country's most staple industries, and gives us a little idea of this gigantic trade.

The fishing fleet is seen departing from the shore, one after another the ships glide out to sea, all hands on board dependent on the yield the deep will give up. After the catch they hasten back to give up their haul. Basket after basket load is taken up on the landing stage, emptied out and lowered again and again for a consignment which seems almost endless. All sizes and kinds of fish are seen on the wharves as the camera travels around, hundreds of pounds are here already to be distributed and sent off to supply our needs.

Now we see the fisher girls on the rough hewn rocks, doing their work merrily enough. Haddocks in plenty are strewn about, being dealt with—as only Scotch girls know how—opened, dried, smoked, and packed for the London market.

Our attention is drawn later to both girls and men, some dealing with herrings, and others preparing the much loved kipper. In the packing yards all are busy working with haste to despatch the food for hungry people. No time to waste, cleaning, cutting, drying, smoking, hanging and packing all going on in different spots, each one knowing and doing his work with precision and bustle. The "hustler" is not required here; the work of sending away must be done, it is imperative—food cannot wait!

This is a most excellent review of our fishing industry, the quality throughout is very fine. It is, indeed, the "catch of the season."

Length 375ft. Price £9 7s. 6d.

PAUL'S LATEST - - - - FILM.

HOW TO MAKE THE TIME FLY.

This Film conveys the idea of hastening or delaying time. A little girl takes the pendulum off a clock, and causes the maid, who usually scrubs in a leisurely manner, to hasten her work accordingly to the speed of the clock. Visitors enter the hall, but suddenly rush up stairs as the clock speeds on. Men papering a wall at the usual speed of the British workman are seen splashing on the paste and the paper with alarming celerity. A gentleman starts taking his meal in the usual quiet manner, but eats faster and faster, according to the going of the clock. In other words, "How to Make the Time Fly" is a film illustrating forcibly the idea of how people could be made to work, eat, and traffic to pass if the control of time itself were in the hands of man.

Code-word, "Time." Length, 300ft.

WARWICK TOPICALS BEST AGAIN!

The Visit of

KING HAAKON AND QUEEN MAUD.

THE ARRIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH. The Royal Yacht arriving at the Dockyard. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales with Dr. Nansen awaiting the King and Queen. Coming down the gangway. Inspecting the Guard. The Royal train leaving for Windsor.

The above is an absolutely exclusive picture. We had exclusive rights in Portsmouth Dockyard.

THE ARRIVAL AT WINDSOR. H.M. King Edward VII. arrives to await King Haakon. The Royal Party getting into their carriages. This is a pretty picture, showing Queen Alexandra holding little Prince Olaf by the hand and helping him into the carriage.

This is also an absolutely exclusive picture.

Going through the streets of Windsor on the way to the Castle.

ALL THE ABOVE ARE EXCELLENT PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY.

THE VISIT TO THE CITY.

Passing through Holborn Viaduct. The arrival at Guildhall.

This is a truly wonderful picture (although somewhat poor in photographic quality, as it was taken in a bad light and under cover). Here one sees the arrival of the King and Queen of Norway and their reception by the Prince and Princess of Wales, Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Lord Mayor, and a host of other dignitaries. Our cameras were within 20ft. of the reception, so that we get striking portraits of every one concerned.

Length altogether about 600ft.,
Or will be printed in sections as required.

THE GREAT MOIR-PALMER BOXING MATCH.

For the HEAVY-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP of ENGLAND, at the National Sporting Club, King Street, London, on Monday Evening, Oct. 29th, at 10 o'clock.

BY COURTESY OF THE NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB we received SOLE CONCESSIONS enabling us TO DEPICT THIS GREAT MATCH in all its stages.

A Special Private Exhibition of the Film was given on Nov. 1st, at which were present the Leading Sportsmen of England, as well as Representatives of the Sporting Press, and the unanimous verdict at the conclusion was—"MOST EXCELLENT—BEST WE EVER SAW—HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS—THE FINEST GLOVE-FIGHT FILM EVER TAKEN, EVEN INCLUDING FORMER 'DAYLIGHT' PICTURES."

Absolutely no point of the Great Contest was missed, and the whole is reproduced—IN A PICTURE OF PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY EQUAL TO THE BEST DAYLIGHT EXPOSURE—without a break, from preliminaries to conclusion.

The Grand Result of our perfect arrangements, a close and uninterrupted view of the Ring, and a Special installation of powerful Arc Lamps of 30,000 c.p. brilliancy, is

Of this Film, 'THE SPORTSMAN' of Nov. 3rd, says:

"So fine a picture has been taken of the Boxing Match of Monday last that the hundreds and thousands who follow the sport and were not present at headquarters will in the near future be able to see the struggle presented, with everything that took place, to the most minute detail. . . The best pictures of a Boxing Contest ever produced here, or it may be, anywhere. Clear films and a wonderfully steady action enable every movement to be followed. . . Not a point is lost . . in fact, the affair is placed before the eye as it actually occurred."

Of this Film, 'THE SPORTSMAN' of Nov. 3rd, says:
